

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

~~Univ~~
4

OBITUARY RECORD

OF

GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED FROM JULY, 1859, TO JULY, 1870.

PRESENTED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE ALUMNI,

1860--70.

366911
19.5.39

NEW HAVEN, CONN.:

PRINTED BY TUTTLE, MOREHOUSE & TAYLOR,

1870.

LD

6324

A3

1860-70

119203
m. 2. 51

OBITUARY RECORD OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

who have died during the Academical Year, 1859—1860, including the names of four who died the year previous, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 25th, 1860.]

NOTE.—The first Annual Obituary Record of Yale Graduates, was prepared by the late Professor KINGSLEY, for the year ending August, 1842. The present is the nineteenth of the series, and the first one printed.

CLASS OF 1792.

TIMOTHY MATHER COOLEY died in East Granville, Mass., Dec. 14, 1859, aged 87.

He was son of William Cooley, and was born at East Granville, Mass., March 13, 1772. At his graduation he delivered an oration in Hebrew, and he retained a familiar acquaintance with this tongue through life. While he was a Senior, one of the Berkeley Scholarships was awarded to him, and after graduation he remained in New Haven one year as resident scholar, and engaged in teaching.

He studied theology with Rev. Charles Backus of Somers, and in May, 1795, he was licensed to preach. He preached a short time in his native town and in Salisbury, Conn. Receiving from both places a call to settle as pastor, he chose the smaller place with the smaller salary, and on the 3d of February, 1796, he was ordained pastor of the church in East Granville. He continued to discharge in full the duties of this office, until 1854, when, having completed his 82d year, he was released from the charge of the pulpit, and a colleague was employed. He retained his activity until a fortnight before his death. In fulfilment of a promise exacted of him many years previous, a discourse was preached at his funeral by Rev. Dr. Sprague of Albany. This has since been published. (Albany, 1860, pp. 38, 8vo.)

Soon after his settlement, Mr. Cooley opened a classical school in his own house, and continued it during most of his life. More than eight hundred youth have thus enjoyed the benefit of his personal tuition. He also superintended the studies of several young men preparing for the ministry. For fifty-seven years he was an active and influential member of the Board of Trustees of Westfield Academy, and for forty-seven years he held the same relation to Williams College.

Several of his Sermons and Addresses have been printed. The number of his publications, including his articles in the journals of the day, is not far from sixty.

About twelve years ago, he prepared, with the assistance of Hon. James Cooley, a collection of the memoirs of all the members of the class of 1792, and in 1850 he presented the volume in manuscript to the Library of Yale College.

EPHRAIM STRONG died in Hudson, Ohio, January 25, 1860, aged 88.

He was son of Ebenezer Strong, and was born in Woodbury, Conn., December 20, 1771.

Early in the present century he removed to Greensborough, Vt., where he was engaged as a farmer and trader. He was Postmaster of that town for several years. In 1836 he removed to Hudson, Ohio, where he resided until death.

1797.

GEORGE GRIFFIN died in New York City, May 6, 1860, aged 82.

He was son of George Griffin, and was born January 14, 1778, at East Haddam, Conn. He was a younger brother of Rev. Edward D. Griffin.

After graduating, he began to study law with Noah B. Benedict of Woodbury, Conn. Six months later he went to the Law School at Litchfield, and there completed his preparatory studies. In December, 1799, he was admitted to the bar, and in the summer of 1800 he located himself at Wilksbarre, Penn., and there pursued the business of his profession for six years. In the autumn of 1806 he removed to the city of New York, where he thenceforth resided, holding a high rank in the profession.

For ten years or more before his death he gradually withdrew from the practice of law, and devoted much time to theological studies and to general literature. As the fruit of these studies he published two works entitled, severally, "The sufferings of our Saviour," and the "Evidences of Christianity."

SYLVESTER MAXWELL died in Charlemont, Mass., December 21, 1858, aged 82.

He was son of Hugh Maxwell, and was born April 16, 1775, at Heath, Mass. The year following his graduation he taught an academy in Burke County, Georgia. He then returned to Massachusetts and studied law with Judge Hinckley of Northampton. He was admitted to the bar, established himself in the practice at Charlemont, and there resided through life. He had for about thirty years the chief direction of the municipal affairs of that town, and was repeatedly a member of the State Legislature, in both branches.

1801.

THOMAS KIMBERLY BRACE died in Hartford, Conn., June 14, 1860, aged 80.

He was son of Jonathan Brace, and was born in Glastenbury, Conn., October 16, 1779. He was through life a prominent citizen of Hartford, Conn. For many years he was a merchant there, and for a long period he was the President of the Ætna Insurance Company. He was a Representative of the town of Hartford in the Legislature of Connecticut, and was Mayor of the City from 1840 to 1843.

1802.

WILLIAM LIGHTBOURN STRONG died in Fayetteville, N. Y., August 31, 1859, aged 76.

He was son of Adonijah Strong, and was born in Salisbury, Conn., October 18, 1782.

He pursued a course of theological study, and on the 3d of April, 1805, he was ordained and installed Pastor of the church in Somers, Conn. Here he remained until July 2, 1829. After this he was Pastor of the church in Redding, Conn., for about five years. From Redding he went to Vienna, Ontario Co., N. Y., where in 1835 he was installed Pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The failure of his eye-sight obliged him to leave the active duties of the ministry five or six years after this period. He then removed to Fayetteville, N. Y., where the last twenty years of his life were passed. He was an occasional contributor to the Connecticut Evangelical Magazine, and was the author of several published discourses and of one or two of the tracts issued by the American Tract Society.

1803.

JONATHAN LAW died in Cheshire, Conn., November 4, 1859, aged 76.

He was son of William Law of Cheshire, and was born in that town, January 14, 1784.

He studied Law in the office of Judge Chauncey, in New Haven, and was admitted to the bar, in this city, March 3, 1807. During that year he went to Hartford, in this State, and commenced the business of his profession. He was appointed Postmaster of Hartford, March 23, 1809, and continued in office until 1829. The last fifteen years of his life he spent in his native town.

1807.

JOEL ADAMS died near Columbia, S. C., May 1, 1859, aged 75.

He was son of Joel Adams, and was born in Richland District, S. C., March 6, 1784.

He studied law in the office of the late Judge Nott, in Columbia, S. C. Soon after his admission to the bar, he left the profession, and thenceforward devoted himself, with eminent success, to the pursuits of a planter in his native district. He was occasionally in public life, having been a member of the Legislature of South Carolina in 1812 and 1813, and again in 1832.

1808.

WILLIAM SEWARD PIERSON died in Windsor, Conn., July 16, 1860, aged 72.

He was born at Killingworth, Nov. 17, 1787.

He was the only son of Deacon Abraham Pierson of Killingworth and a descendant of Abraham Pierson, the first Rector of Yale College.

He studied medicine in the Medical School of Dartmouth College, and received the degree of M. D. in 1813.

In 1813 he settled as a physician in Durham, Conn. From this place he removed in December 1818, to Windsor, Conn., where he resided in the practice of his profession until death.

THEODORE POMEROY died in St. Anthony, Minnesota, June 26, 1860, aged 75.

He was born in Southampton, Mass., March 17, 1785.

He studied medicine and commenced practice in Cooperstown, N. Y. In 1820 he removed to Utica, N. Y., where he thence-forward resided, engaged in the business of his profession nearly to the close of life.

While on a visit to his sons in St. Anthony, he died after a short illness.

1810.

CHAUNCEY ALLEN GOODRICH died in New Haven, February 25, 1860, aged 69.

He was son of Elizur Goodrich, and was born in New Haven, October 23, 1790.

After graduation he taught the Hopkins Grammar School in this city for two years, and was then a Tutor in this College from 1812 to 1814. During his tutorship he pursued his theological studies under the direction of Dr. Dwight. Having preached for a short time, he was in July 1816, ordained Pastor of a church in Middletown, Conn., which place he left on account of ill-health. In 1817 he was appointed to the newly established Professorship of Rhetoric in this College, and he filled this office until 1839. He was then transferred to the Professorship of the Pastoral Charge in the Theological Department, and he continued in this place during the remainder of his life.

In literary labor he was industrious and fertile. While a Tutor he published a compendious Greek Grammar, which he improved in the numerous subsequent editions. In 1832 he published the first edition of his Latin Lessons and Greek Lessons, constructed on a plan now widely adopted. In 1829 he established the Quarterly Christian Spectator, and was its sole Editor until about 1836. He also made important contributions to other religious periodicals. One of these on Revivals of Religion in Yale College, appeared in the Amer. Quar. Register for 1838. In 1852 he published a work of great value, entitled "Select British Eloquence," accompanied by critical and biographical sketches and arguments. To lexicography he gave much time, especially during the last fifteen years. In 1847 was issued his thoroughly revised editions of Webster's quarto and octavo dictionaries, embodying the results of great labor and research. In 1856 appeared his University edition, and in 1859 his large supplement to Webster's Dictionary, enriched with an elaborate collection of synonyms, of which he was the author.

During his long term of service in the College, he has been conspicuous for his zeal and efficiency, and for his devotion to the religious interests of the students.

In the enlargement of the Theological Department of the College, his labors and counsels were of great importance, and his donations for this and other objects connected with the Institution were so liberal, as to entitle him to rank among the largest of its pecuniary benefactors.

A discourse, commemorative of his life and services delivered by President Woolsey, March 5th, was printed in the New Englander for May, and also in pamphlet form. (New Haven, 1860, 8vo., pp. 30.)

1811.

LEVINUS MONSON died in Hobart, Delaware Co., N. Y., Sept. 23, 1859, aged 68.

He was son of Joshua Munson, and was born in Hamden, Conn., May 5, 1792.

He studied law with Hon. Samuel Sherwood, in Delhi, N. Y. After his admission to the bar, he removed to Hobart, N. Y., where he resided until his death, excepting a short period while he was a resident of Newburgh.

He was for many years a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, in the County of Delaware, and on the death of Judge Morehouse, of Cooperstown, N. Y., he was in 1850 appointed to fill the vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court of that State.

1813.

JOHN CRANE died in Fredonia, N. Y., May 20, 1860, aged 69.

He was son of Henry Crane, and was born in Durham, Conn., July 21, 1791. He was taken in his infancy, with his father's family, to Whitestown, N. Y.

Soon after graduation he entered on the study of law in the office of Hon. Thomas R. Gold of Whitesborough, N. Y., and in May 1817, he was admitted to practice. He removed to Chatauqua County, N. Y., and in July 1817, settled in what is now the village of Fredonia, where he resided till his death, engaged chiefly in the business of his profession. About the year 1822, he was appointed an associate Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Chatauqua County, and held the office about two years. He was the first secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Fredonia Academy, the first incorporated academy in the county, and now one of the most prominent in Western New York. He was one of its trustees for about thirty-five years, until age and infirmities compelled him to resign.

JONATHAN ASHLEY WELCH died in Brooklyn, Conn., Sept. 9, 1859, aged 67.

He was son of Rev. Moses C. Welch, and was born in Mansfield, Conn.

He studied law with S. P. Staples, Esq., in New Haven, and was admitted to the bar. He established himself in practice at Brooklyn, where he continued to reside till his death.

1816.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS died in Salem, Mass., June 17, 1860, aged 62.

He was the son of Samuel W. Williams, of Wethersfield, Conn., and was born in that town, October 2, 1797.

After graduation he remained in New Haven one year as amanuensis of President Dwight. He studied theology at Andover, Mass., and in 1821 was ordained and settled as pastor of a church in Salem, Mass. He continued there until 1838, when he was called to Exeter, N. H., where he was pastor until his health failed in 1842. He then returned to Salem, studied medicine, and there resided in active professional practice until his death.

1817.

JOEL JONES died in Philadelphia, Penn., February 3, 1860, aged 64.

He was born October 25, 1795, in Coventry, Conn.

He pursued the study of law in New Haven and in Litchfield, and on completing the usual preparatory course, he removed to Easton, Penn., and there commenced practice. In 1830 he was appointed one of the Commissioners to revise the civil code of Pennsylvania. After declining several offers of judicial position, he accepted the office of Associate Judge of the District Court for the city and county of Philadelphia,—of which Court he afterwards became the President Judge. He continued in this place until he was elected to the Presidency of the Girard College, which office he resigned after about two years. In 1849 he was elected Mayor of the city of Philadelphia. After serving one term, he resumed his professional practice, and continued it during the remainder of his life. He was eminent for his attainments in jurisprudence, philology and theology.

1819.

HORATIO MILLER died in Rhinebeck, N. Y., April 12, 1860, aged 61.

He was son of Rev. Wm. F. Miller, (Y. C. 1786,) and was born Febr. 18, 1799, at Wintonbury, Conn., then a parish of Windsor, now Bloomfield.

After graduating, he remained in New Haven, studying law during the years 1820 and 1821. On account of the partial failure of his eyesight he did not engage in the practice of the profession, but removed to Charleston, S. C., where he embarked in mercantile pursuits. He retired from business several years since, and for a time resided in New York City, whence he removed to Rhinebeck, N. Y., and there passed the remainder of his life.

1820.

JAMES SMILEY PRATHER died in Louisville, Ky., Febr. 14, 1860, aged 58.

He was son of Thomas Prather, and was born in Louisville.

He resided through life in his native city, engaged in business employments.

1821.

JOHN GOULDING died in Stratford, Conn., January 10, 1860, aged 63.

He was son of Ephraim Goulding, and was born in Grafton, Mass., January 19, 1797.

He went to Stratford, Conn., soon after graduation, and was a teacher in the Academy there, during a part of the year 1823. He engaged in the study of medicine, and attended the lectures in the Medical Department of this College, receiving here the degree of M. D., in 1824. Thenceforth he resided as a physician, in Stratford, through life.

FREDERICK WILLIAM LORD died in New York, May 24, 1860, aged 59.

He was a native of Lyme, Conn.

He studied medicine, and received from this College the degree of M. D. in 1828. He practiced this profession in Lyme from 1828 to 1830, and in Sag Harbor, N. Y., from 1830 to 1846. In 1846 he was a Representative in Congress. He was a delegate from Suffolk County, N. Y., to the Republican Convention in Chicago, Ill., in May, 1860. While on the way thither he was prostrated by apoplexy, at Albany, N. Y. His friends endeavored to take him to his home at Greenport, L. I., but he died on the journey.

1822.

JOHN MALTBY died in Worcester, Mass., May 15, 1860, aged 65.

He was son of John Maltby, and was born March 8, 1795, at Northford, Conn.

Soon after leaving College he entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., from which he graduated in 1825. After preaching in Conway and Sutton, Mass., he settled in the latter place, and was ordained June 28, 1826. Here he remained till 1834, when he was called to the Hammond Street Church in Bangor, Maine, of which he was installed the Pastor, July 23, 1834. He continued in this office until his death. A few months before his decease his health failed, and while journeying for its improvement he stopped at Worcester, Mass., where he died after a short illness.

A Discourse commemorative of his life and character, by Prof. Enoch Pond, was published at Bangor, 1860, pp. 24, 8vo.

1823.

HENRY AUGUSTUS ROWLAND died in Boston, Mass., Sept. 4, 1859, aged 55.

He was the son of Rev. Henry A. Rowland of Windsor, Conn., and was born in that town Sept. 18, 1804.

After the completion of a course of theological studies he was ordained to the ministry, and spent a year at the South as an agent of the American Bible Society. In 1833, he was settled as Pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Fayetteville, N. C., from which place he removed after several years, to take charge of the Pearl Street Presbyterian Church, in New York City. From New York he was called to Honesdale, Penn., where he labored as Pastor ten years. About four years ago, he left that place, and became the Pastor of the Park Presbyterian Church in Newark, N. J., which station he occupied at the time of his death. Six months previous to this event, his health gave way, and while travelling for its restoration he died at Boston. He was a frequent contributor to the religious periodicals, and was the author of several valued works, entitled "The Common Maxims of Infidelity," "The Path of Life," "The Way of Peace," and "Light in a Dark Alley."

1825.

JASON ATWATER died in Orange, Conn., April 1, 1860, aged 59.

He was son of Asa Atwater, and was born in Mt. Carmel Society, Hamden, Conn.

He studied Theology in the Seminary of this College, and was ordained as Pastor in Middlebury, Conn., October 20, 1830. In October 1845, he was dismissed from this charge. After this he resided for several years in Newtown, Conn., and in Southbury, Conn., preaching to the Congregational churches in those towns. The latter days of his life were spent in West Haven, in the town of Orange, in this State.

1827.

WILLIAM WILSON HUDSON died in Columbia, Mo., June 14, 1859, aged 52.

He was son of William Hudson, and was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, in 1808.

He devoted his life to the business of instruction. He was a teacher in Hampden-Sidney College in Virginia, then a Professor in La Grange College in Tennessee, and afterwards Professor of Mathematics in the University of Alabama. From this station he was, in 1841, called to the chair of Mathematics, Physics and Astronomy in the University of the State of Missouri, at Columbia, which office he held until 1856, when he was unanimously elected President of the same Institution, and so continued until his death.

1830.

ROBERT CLARK died near Augusta, Georgia, June , 1860, aged 51.

He was a native of Georgia, and resided near Augusta engaged in the business of a planter.

1831.

NINIAN EDWARDS GRAY died in Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 18, 1859, aged 51.

He was a native of Christian County, Kentucky.

On leaving College, he studied law at Lexington, and graduated at the Law Department of Transylvania University. He engaged in the practice of law, and stood in the highest rank of the profession. He was much in public life. He represented his county and district in both houses of the State Legislature, and was a member of the Convention which framed the present Constitution of Kentucky. He was for many years Attorney of the State, and subsequently Judge of the Circuit Court.

ALEXANDER BALDWIN THOMPSON died in Newark, N. J., May 8, 1859, aged 46.

He was son of Alexander Thompson, and was born in Augusta, Georgia, October 20, 1812. He studied law in New York, and practised this profession in that city, and afterwards in Newark, N. J. He engaged subsequently in mercantile pursuits, from which he retired in 1849, and after that he resided in New York. At the time of his death he held an important position in the office of the Manhattan Gas Company, in New York City: and he also held the office of Recording Secretary of the Cincinnati Society of the State of New York, deriving his membership through his father.

1836.

WILLIAM BEACH died in Albany, N. Y., March 14, 1860, aged 44.

He was son of John H. Beach, and was born in Auburn, N. Y.

After graduating, he was largely engaged in the milling business, at Port Byron, N. Y. Six or eight years later he left the business, and from this time he was chiefly engaged in political concerns, and resided in Auburn, N. Y. In 1847 he was chosen a member of the Senate of the State of New York, and held the office four years.

1840.

JARED OWEN KNAPP died in Beloit, Wisc., July 14, 1860, aged 41.

He was son of Jared Knapp, and was born in North Greenwich, Conn., October, 1818.

He studied theology in the Seminary of this College.

He was settled as Pastor in Central Village, Plainfield, Ct., in October 1846. In 1851 he was called to Hatfield, Mass. Leaving this place in 1855, he was Pastor of the church at Suspension Bridge, Niagara Falls, from that time till 1858. On account of ill health he retired to Beloit, Wisconsin, where he attempted to take charge of a parish, but found his strength insufficient. He remained there till death.

1841.

DAVID IRVINE FIELD died in Bolivar Co., Mississippi, Sept. 11, 1859, aged 39.

He was son of Ezekiel H. Field, and was born at Richmond, Kentucky, April 28, 1820.

He pursued his professional studies in the Law Department of Transylvania University, and graduated there in 1844. He did not, however, engage in legal practice, but after some years spent in business employments, he removed to Bolivar County, Mississippi, and resided there as a planter.

1843.

HORACE HALL REID died in Geneva, Switzerland, March 17, 1860, aged 37.

He was the fourth son of Edward Reid, of New York City, and was born in Charlestown, N. H., Sept. 25, 1822. After a year and a half spent as Principal of the Academy in Bedford, N. Y., he entered the General Theological Seminary in New York, in October, 1845. On completing the regular course of study, he was ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church, July 2, 1848, and for some months following officiated as assistant to Rev. Dr. Wyatt, in Baltimore. He then removed to Paris, Kentucky, and took charge of St. Peter's Church for a year or more. Here he was, in 1849, ordained as priest. In 1850, he became Rector of Christ Church, Watertown, Conn., where he remained nearly seven years. In January, 1857, he was made Rector of St. Stephen's Church, in Milburn, N. J. This place he left, Nov. 1, 1859, on account of impaired health, which he hoped to improve by foreign travel. While in a hotel at Geneva, in Switzerland, he was killed by falling accidentally, during the night, over the baluster, from the second story upon the stone floor beneath.

1845.

ROBERT RANKIN died in San Francisco, Cal., October 7, 1859, aged 36.

He was son of John Rankin, and was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. April 23, 1823.

He studied law in New Haven and in New York, and in July, 1847, he was admitted to practice. In 1851, he removed to California, where he was engaged in the business of his profession until death.

1847.

BENJAMIN STEVENS MILLER died in Oxford, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1859, aged 32.

During the winter of 1849-50, he was a member of the Yale Scientific School. His health being poor, he did not engage in any profession, but was for a considerable time employed in teaching. For the last three or four years he was occupied as a civil engineer.

1848.

WILLIAM AITCHISON died near Pekin, in China, August 15, 1859, aged 33.

He was born at Glasgow, Scotland, January 4, 1826. His father removed with his family to the United States, in 1834, and settled in Greeneville, Norwich, Conn.

He entered on a course of Theological study in the Seminary of this College, and completed it in August, 1851; and during this period he was a Tutor in the College from Sept. 1850, to April 1851.

Soon after this he engaged in the work of preaching, and was for some time pastor at Fitchville, in the town of Bozrah, Conn. On the death of his wife and child, he resolved, in pursuance of a long-cherished purpose, to devote his life to the labors of a missionary in the foreign field. He was ordained at Norwich, Conn., January 4, 1854, to go to Shanghai, China, as a missionary of the American Board. Here and in various other places he labored with great earnestness. In June, 1859, he was offered a place in the American Embassy, then about going to Pekin. Hoping thereby to secure new advantages for his missionary work, he accepted the proposal, and went. On the 4th of August, when he had been eight days in Pekin, he was taken sick, and early on the morning of the 11th he was borne away from the city, on a litter to the boats at Tang Chow, on the Pei-ho river, twelve miles distant. He died on the journey, just before they reached the river.

1849.

JACOB BROWN KIRBY died in Brownsville, Jefferson County, N. Y., March 9, 1860, aged 32.

He was born in Brownsville, N. Y., April 7, 1827.

For several years subsequent to his graduation, he was engaged in agricultural and manufacturing occupations.

1851.

JOSEPH PERKINS GRISWOLD died in Lyme, Conn., June 9, 1860, aged 29.

He was son of Charles Griswold, and was born at Lyme, Conn., June 30, 1831.

On graduating, he pursued the study of law one year, in the office of Judge Waite, at Lyme. The second year he continued his studies at the Yale Law School. Being admitted to the bar, he began practice in New London, Conn., in the winter of 1853. In July, 1854, he sailed for the Sandwich Islands, intending to practice law in Honolulu or Lahaina. In October 1855, he was appointed District Judge of the Second District of Oahu, and Police Justice of Honolulu, which office he held until compelled, by ill health, to resign in October, 1858. In May, 1859, he returned home, where he remained, his health steadily declining, until his death.

ERSKINE JOEL HAWES died in Plymouth, Conn., July 9, 1860, aged 31.

He was son of Rev. Joel Hawes, D. D., and was born in Hartford, Conn., July 23, 1829.

He pursued a course of theological study in the Seminary at Andover, Mass., and in the Theological Department of this College.

After preaching in several places, and declining other calls, he was in January 1858, ordained and installed as the Pastor of the Congregational Church and Society in Plymouth, Conn. He continued in this office until his death, which was the result of a painful accident. His body was interred with his father's family, in Hartford.

1853.

JOSEPH WARREN BLACHLY died in Brooklyn, N. Y., April 6, 1860, aged 28.

He was son of Joseph W. Blachly, and was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 19, 1831.

For some time after his graduation, while his health permitted, he was engaged in mercantile business in Cincinnati, Ohio.

JAMES RAYMOND GOODRICH died at Kewanee, Ill., October 24, 1859, aged 27.

He was born January 8, 1831, in Wethersfield, Conn.

From 1853 to 1856, he was engaged in teaching in New Haven. In 1857 he went to Natchez, Miss., and taught a private school there for two or three years. His body was brought home to Wethersfield, to rest with his kindred.

1855.

WILLIAM LEWIS MORRIS died in Cambridge, Minnesota, October 6, 1859, aged 24.

He was son of William Lewis Morris, and was born in New York City, June 12, 1835.

He studied law for three years in New York City, and in Albany, and was admitted to the bar in New York, May, 1857. He resided there, engaged in the practice of the profession, until January, 1859, when his health failing, he went to Minnesota for its recovery. While there, he lost his life by the accidental discharge of his own gun.

1856.

DONALD DOUGLAS SHAW died in Hamden, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1859, aged 25.

He was son of Donald Shaw, and was born in Hamden, N. Y., June 25, 1834.

He studied law in Albany, and in Delhi, N. Y. In November, 1859, he was elected a member of the House of Representatives of the State of New York, but died before the commencement of the session.

1857.

FREDERICK NATHANIEL CHURCH died in Salisbury, Conn., Oct. 4, 1859, aged 20.

He was son of Frederick H. Church of Philadelphia, Penn.

Soon after he had entered on a course of theological study his health began to fail and he returned home.

EDWARD THURSTON FULLER died in Huntington, N. Y., Nov. 7, 1859, aged 21.

He was a member of the Theological Seminary at Princeton, N. J., was there taken sick, went home, and died.

INDEX.

Name.	Class.	Name.	Class.
Adams, Joel,	1807	Knapp, Jared O.,	1840
Aitchison, William,	1848	Law, Jonathan,	1803
Atwater, Jason,	1825	Lord, Frederick W.,	1821
Beach, William,	1836	Maltby, John,	1822
Blachly, Joseph W.,	1853	Maxwell, Sylvester,	1797
Brace, Thomas K.,	1801	Miller, Benjamin S.,	1847
Church, Frederick N.,	1857	Miller, Horatio,	1819
Clarke, Robert,	1830	Monson, Levinus,	1811
Cooley, Timothy M.,	1792	Morris, William L.,	1855
Crane, John,	1813	Pierson, William S.,	1808
Field, David J.,	1841	Prather, James S.,	1802 20
Fuller, Edward T.,	1857	Pomeroy, Theodore,	1808
Goodrich, Chauncey A.,	1810	Rankin, Robert,	1845
Goodrich, James R.,	1853	Reid, Horace H.,	1843
Goulding, John,	1821	Rowland, Henry A.,	1823
Gray, Ninian E.,	1831	Shaw, Donald D.,	1856
Griffin, George,	1797	Strong, Ephraim,	1792
Griswold, Joseph P.,	1851	Strong, William L.,	1810 02
Hawes, Erskine J.,	1851	Thompson, Alexander B.,	1831
Hudson, Wm. W.,	1827	Welch, Jonathan A.,	1813
Jones, Joel,	1817	Williams, William,	1816
Kirby, Jacob B.,	1849

Total, 43.
Average age, 54 years.

The three oldest surviving graduates of the College are,
JOSHUA DEWEY, of Watertown, N. Y., of the Class of 1787.
DANIEL WALDO, of Syracuse, N. Y., " " " 1788.
SOLOMON STODDARD, of Northampton, Mass., " " 1790.

OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY 1861, INCLUDING THE RECORD OF TEN WHO DIED THE YEAR
PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 24th, 1861.]

[No. 2 of the printed series, and No. 20 of the whole Record.]

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

deceased during the academical year ending in July 1861, including the record of ten who died the year previous, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 24th, 1861.]

[No. 2 of the printed series, and No. 20 of the whole Record.]

CLASS OF 1790.

SOLOMON STODDARD died in Northampton, Mass., Oct. 16, 1860, aged 89.

He was the son of Solomon Stoddard, (Y. C. 1756,) and was born in Northampton, Mass., Feb. 18, 1771.

After completing his Collegiate course, he entered as a law student the office of the late Governor Strong of Massachusetts. On admission to the bar he practised law for a year and a half in Williamstown, Mass., and then settled for life in his native town. Here he continued the active duties of his profession till 1810, when he was chosen register of deeds for the county of Hampshire. In 1821 he was appointed clerk of the courts of the same county, which office he resigned in 1837. Several times he was sent by the town as representative to the Legislature of the State, and he filled moreover with great fidelity many offices of trust in the region of his residence. At the age of 67 he retired from public life.

In 1799 he married Miss Sarah Tappan, who died in 1852. Their children were seven sons and one daughter. Two of the sons have deceased; the eldest, Professor Solomon Stoddard, (Y. C. 1820,) and the youngest, Rev. David Tappan Stoddard, (Y. C. 1838.)

1793.

PERLEE BRUSH died in Warren, Trumbull Co. Ohio, August 4, 1860, aged 90.

He was, as is supposed, born in the State of New York.

For many years after graduation he was engaged in teaching, in Ohio, and several young men were fitted for College under him. At an early day he purchased a farm in Coitsville, Mahoning County, (formerly Trumbull Co.) Ohio, and there resided most of the rest of his days, living with his tenant. A few of his later years were passed in Hubbard, Trumbull Co., Ohio.

JOSEPH RUSSELL died in Ellington, Conn., January 8, 1861, aged 85.

He was the son of Noadiah (Y. C. 1750) and Esther (Talcott) Russell, and was born in Thompson, Conn.

He studied theology and was settled as pastor of a church in Princeton, Mass. Compelled by severe and protracted illness to leave the work of a parish minister, he engaged in mercantile life in Troy, N. Y., and after several years thus employed he retired to Milford, Conn. The latter part of his life was spent in Ellington.

1799.

HENRY MEIGS died in New York City, May 20, 1861, aged 78.

He was the son of Professor Josiah Meigs (Y. C. 1778) and was born in New Haven, Conn., October 28, 1782.

He studied law and resided in New York City engaged in practice more than fifty years. He was much in public life. From 1819 to 1821 he was a Representative in Congress from New York City. In 1832-3 he was President of the Board of Aldermen of New York, and he was also Representative of that city in the State Legislature. He was likewise Judge of one of the Courts in New York City, and was afterwards Clerk of the Court of General Sessions. In 1845 he was elected Recording Secretary of the American Institute and he was also Secretary of the Farmers' Club, and discharged the duties of these stations with great activity to the last year of his life. The printed Transactions of the Institute contain many valuable papers from his pen.

1800.

GILES CROUCH KELLOGG died in Hadley, Mass., June 19, 1861, aged 80.

He was son of Dr. Giles C. (Harv. Coll. 1751) and Mary (Catlin) Kellogg, and was born in Hadley, Mass., August 12, 1781.

He studied law with Jonathan E. Porter, Esq., was admitted to the bar in Hampshire County, Mass., opened an office in his native place and here spent his life. He was honored by his townsmen with many private and public trusts. For many years he was town clerk and treasurer, and for thirteen years Register of Deeds for Hampshire County. He was often representative to the General Court of the State, and was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1853. In the war of 1812 he served as an adjutant in one of the Massachusetts regiments. For several years he taught successfully in the Hopkins Academy in Hadley.

1802.

RALPH ISAACS BUSH died in New York City, August 4, 1860, aged 80.

He was the son of David and Sarah Bush, and was born in Greenwich, Conn., October 29, 1779.

He pursued the study of medicine, first in his native town, and then with Dr. Rush in Philadelphia, where he received the degree of M. D. He practiced this profession many years in Rockland County, N. Y., and then removed to New York City, where he continued his practice, engaging also in the sale of drugs and medicine. At the age of 70, he retired from active business, with the ample rewards of an industrious and useful life.

LEVI COLLINS died in Belvidere, Ill., December 11, 1859, aged 82.

He was son of Joseph Collins, and was born in Somers, Conn., February 22, 1777. He learned the hatter's trade before he began to study for College.

Soon after graduating he studied theology with his pastor, Rev. Charles Backus, in Somers. In February 1804, he was licensed to preach by the Tolland Association, and preached in various places in New England for about two years and a half, but on account of weakness of his lungs, he declined to settle in the pastoral office. In 1807 he took charge of the academy in Munson, Mass., and there remained seven years. In 1814 he became agent of a cotton manufactory in Amherst, Mass. His health improving, he resigned the agency in January 1817, and resumed the labors of a preacher and instructor, chiefly in Otsego and Chenango Counties, N. Y. Worn down by these labors, he removed in 1825 to a farm in Fabius, Onondaga County, N. Y., and thence in 1832 to Smyrna, Chenango Co., N. Y. Here in 1833 he was ordained as an evangelist. In this capacity he labored as he had opportunity, until 1842, when his health gave way. In 1846 he removed to Belvidere, Boone County, Illinois, where he spent the remainder of his days.

In 1818 he married Miss Allen. Their children were two sons and three daughters.

SHELDON CLARK LEAVITT died in Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 4, 1860, aged 75.

He was the son of David and Lucy (Clark) Leavitt, and was born in Bethlem, Conn., January 7, 1785.

He remained many years in his native town, managing the estate of his father, who died soon after the son's graduation. In 1837 he removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he permanently resided with his mother and sister. He spent his life in the service of the family.

CHARLES HOBBY POND died in Milford, Conn., April 28, 1861, aged 80.

He was son of Charles and Martha (Miles) Pond, and was born in Milford, Conn., April 26, 1781.

He studied law with the late Roger M. Sherman, of Fairfield, and was admitted to the bar, but preferring mercantile life, he engaged for many years in foreign commerce. In 1819 he was appointed Sheriff of the County of New Haven, and held that commission for many years, till he voluntarily relinquished it and retired to his paternal homestead and farm in Milford. In 1850 he was elected Lieutenant Governor of the State of Connecticut, and was twice re-elected, with an interval of one year in 1851. During the greater part of the year 1853, he was the acting Governor of the State. His various public and private duties were discharged with great fidelity, and acceptably to all.

In 1808 he married Miss Catharine Dickinson of Milford. Their children were six daughters and one son.

1803.

WILLIAM BELDEN died in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 20, 1861, aged 79.

He was the eldest son of Azor and Hannah Belden, and was born in Wilton, Conn., July 16, 1781.

He first studied law and was for a short time engaged in practice in Norwalk, Conn. He soon left this profession, and prepared himself for the ministry of the gospel. In October 1812 he was settled as pastor of the Congregational church in Greenfield, (in the town of Fairfield, Conn.,) where he remained until 1821, being at the same time engaged in teaching the academy which Dr. Dwight founded in that place.

On leaving Greenfield he went to Fairfield and was occupied a few years in teaching. In 1824 he went to New York City and opened a classical school which he taught for several years. He was then appointed principal of one of the public schools and subsequently an instructor in the Normal School in that city. These offices he continued to hold until 1853, when he resigned on account of his advancing age. From 1858 to the time of his death he resided in Brooklyn.

1804.

JOAB BRACE died in Pittsfield, Mass., April 20, 1861, aged 80.

He was the son of Zenas and Mary (Skinner) Brace, and was born in West Hartford, Conn., June 13, 1781.

He studied theology, was licensed to preach and on the 16th January, 1805, he was ordained and installed pastor of the congregational church in the parish of Newington, in the town of Wethersfield, Conn., and there continued until he had completed fifty years of active and useful service as pastor. On the 16th of January, 1855, he delivered a half-century discourse, reviewing the history of the church and society from the earliest times. This discourse has been printed. (Hartford 1855, pp. 75, 8vo.)

In 1854 he received the degree of D. D. from Williams College. Still retaining a nominal connection with his parish, he removed to Pittsfield, Mass., where, in the family of his son-in-law, the Rev. J. Todd, he passed happily the last six years of his life.

He married Miss Lucy Collins, of West Hartford, Conn., January 21, 1805, and had six children.

GERARDUS CLARK died in New Rochelle, N. Y., August 23, 1860, aged 74.

He was the son of William and Annis (Bostwick) Clark, and was born in New Milford, January 20, 1786.

While in College he often acted as amanuensis of Dr. Dwight, who was then engaged in writing his Travels in New England and New York, a fact to which he referred with great pleasure. Soon after graduating he went to New York and began the study of law in the office of John G. Bogert, Esq. He was admitted to the bar in New York in 1813, and during a long life was engaged in an extensive and successful practice in that city. In 1850 he removed his residence to New Rochelle, N. Y., but continued in active business in the city until a few weeks previous to his death. He was at one time President of the Board of Education of the City of New York, and while in that place he wrote a celebrated paper defending the use of the Bible in Common Schools.

In 1825 he married Miss Ann Maria Bogert of New York, who, with their two children, survives him. His body was buried in his native town, near the spot where he was born.

EZRA STILES ELY died in Philadelphia, Pa., June 17, 1861, aged 75.

He was the son of Rev. Zebulon Ely, and was born in Lebanon, Conn., June 13, 1786.

In October 1806, he was settled as pastor of the church in Colchester, (Westchester parish,) Conn. This place he left, having accepted a call to become a City Missionary in New York City. From New York he was called to the pastorate of the Pine Street Church in Philadelphia, Pa., where he continued over twenty years. About the year 1834 he embarked in the enterprize of establishing a College and Theological Seminary in Missouri. The financial reverses of 1837 frustrated the undertaking and involved him in great trouble.

In 1844 he entered on pastoral duties in the First Presbyterian Church in New London, Pa., and continued his labors until 1851, when a stroke of paralysis laid him aside.

He was a rapid thinker, a fluent speaker and a fertile writer. For several years he edited gratuitously a religious paper called the Philadelphian. He was the author of Ely's Journal, otherwise known as "Visits of Mercy," and, of "Conversations on the Science of the Human Mind," (Phil. 1819.) In 1828 he assisted in publishing a "Collateral Bible, or Key to the Holy Scriptures," and subsequently, a memoir of his father, and other works.

He received the degree of D. D. from Washington College, in Tennessee. He was twice married and two of his children survive him.

JOHN MYERS FELDER died in S. Carolina, in 1859, aged 76.

He was born in Orangeburgh District, S. C., and resided through life in his native place.

After leaving College he studied law, but did not give much time to the practice of the profession, being largely and successfully engaged in the business of a manufacturer of lumber. He served several years in the legislature of South Carolina, and was active in efforts to regulate and economize the finances of that State. He was also a representative in Congress from 1831 to 1835.

ABEL McEWEN died in New London, Conn., Sept. 7, 1860, aged 80.

He was the son of Robert and Jerusha (Doolittle) McEwen, and was born in Winchester, Conn., Feb. 13, 1780.

He studied theology with Dr. Dwight, and also with Rev. Asahel Hooker of Goshen, Conn., and in October 1806 he was settled as pastor of the First Congregational church in New London, Conn. He continued here in active service until at his own request a colleague was appointed in 1854, and he resided in New London till his death.

In 1826 he was elected one of the Corporation of this College, and from 1853 inclusive he was a member of the Prudential Committee of this body. In 1846 he received the degree of D. D. from Union College. He was an able and faithful pastor and a wise counsellor. His knowledge of the theological history of New England and especially of Connecticut was thorough and minute, and has frequently been made serviceable to the public. His half-century sermon in 1856 awakened wide interest.

In 1807 he married Miss Sarah Battell of Torrington, Conn. Their children were three sons and four daughters.

1805.

HEMAN HUMPHREY died in Pittsfield, Mass., April 3, 1861, aged 82.

He was the son of Solomon and Hannah Humphrey, and was born in West Salisbury, (now Canton,) Conn., March 26, 1779.

The years of his early manhood were spent in the labors of a farm, and through difficulties he made his way to College.

After his graduation he remained in New Haven till May, 1806, teaching a school and pursuing the study of theology under President Dwight. He then went to Goshen, continued his studies under Rev. Asahel Hooker, and in October following was licensed to preach. In April 1807 he was settled as pastor of the church in Fairfield, Conn., where he continued ten years. In the Summer of 1817 he was invited to preach in Pittsfield, Mass., and in November of that year he was installed as pastor of the church in that place, and there labored for six years. In 1823 he received the degree of D. D. from Middlebury College. During this year he accepted an invitation to the Presidency of the Amherst Collegiate Institution, now Amherst College. He conducted this institution through its early struggles to a state of great prosperity, and after twenty-two years he resigned his office in April 1845.

Soon after this he spent several months in travelling in Great Britain and on the Continent, and published a valuable record of his tour. In the spring of 1847 he removed to Pittsfield and this was thenceforward his home. The last ten years of his life he passed in retirement, preaching occasionally, and with his pen enriching the religious literature of the country.

His contributions to the religious newspapers of his day were large and valuable. Among his separate publications, (aside from tracts, sermons and biographical works,) may be named, Prize Essays on the Sabbath, 1830—Miscellaneous Discourses and Reviews, 1834,—Domestic Education, 1840—Letters to a Son in the Ministry, 1845—Sketches of the History of Revivals, 1859.

He married Miss Sophia Porter, of Farmington, Connecticut, April 20, 1808. They had ten children, six of whom survived him.

ALLEN McLEAN died in Simsbury, Conn., March 19, 1861, aged 79.

He was son of Alexander and Joanna (Smith) McLean, and was born in North Bolton, Conn., June 20, 1781.

He studied theology and in 1809 was licensed to preach. In August of that year he was settled as pastor of the Congregational Church in Simsbury, Conn., and he continued to hold this office till his death. In 1859, his people and his townsmen united in celebrating the semi-centennial anniversary of his settlement, on which occasion was read a sermon (since published) which he had prepared, giving a brief review of his labors. He had then been totally blind for eleven years.

At his funeral was preached a discourse written many years before, at the request of Mr. McLean, by Rev. Jairus Burt of Canton, Conn., who had now been four years dead.

He was twice married, viz: (1) to Miss Sally Pratt of East Hartford, Conn., January 21, 1810, by whom he had five children, and who died October 27, 1831, (2) to Miss Nancy Morgan of Plainfield, Conn., who died September 23, 1860.

1806.

ROYAL ROBBINS died in Berlin (Kensington parish) Conn., March 26, 1861, aged 72.

He was son of Elisha and Sarah (Goodrich) Robbins, and was born in Wethersfield, Conn., October 21, 1788.

On leaving College he taught school in Hadley, Mass., and in Berlin, Conn., studied law for a time with his uncle, Hon. Asher Robbins of Newport, R. I., then prepared himself for the ministry under the tuition of Rev. Dr. Porter of Catskill, N. Y., and Rev. Dr. Yates of East Hartford, was licensed in 1812 by the Hartford North Association, and was ordained June 26, 1812, colleague pastor with Rev. Dr. Upson, over the Congregational Church in Kensington. In this station he continued forty three years, until his dismissal June 26, 1859.

He was an industrious writer, and contributed many valuable papers to the Christian Spectator. He was the author of Outlines of History for schools, a memoir of J. G. C. Brainard, prefixed to an edition of his poems, and of an account of American Literature incorporated with Chambers' History of English Literature.

He was twice married and leaves a widow and six children.

1808.

WILLIAM HANFORD died in Tallmadge, Ohio, May 31, 1861, aged 73.

He was born in Norwalk, Conn., Nov. 11, 1787, was son of John and Mahitabel (Comstock) Hanford, and was a lineal descendant of Rev. Thomas Hanford, the first minister of that town.

He studied theology in the Seminary at Andover, Mass., was ordained as an evangelist in October, 1813, and went to the Western Reserve in Ohio, in the service of the Connecticut Missionary Society. Here he labored nearly two years. He was then settled as pastor of the church in Hudson, Ohio, August 17, 1815, and continued in this station till September 7, 1831. He then went to Windham, Portage Co., Ohio, where he was settled as pastor, Oct. 12, 1831. After about ten years he retired to Tallmadge, Ohio, where he resided during the residue of his life.

He married a daughter of Elizur Wright, of Tallmadge, O., but left no children.

1809.

JOSIAH WILLARD GIBBS died in New Haven, Conn., March 25, 1861, aged 70.

He was son of Henry and Mercy (Prescott) Gibbs, and was born in Salem, Mass., April 30, 1790.

He was tutor in Yale College from 1811 to 1815. He also pursued a course of theological study, and was licensed to preach. He devoted himself with special zeal to the study of Hebrew, and to the literature of the Bible generally, and was one of the first in this country to make available here the fruits of German research.

In 1824 he removed from Andover, Mass., to New Haven, Conn., and from that time to his death he was connected with the Theological Institution of Yale College, first as Lecturer, and after 1826 as Professor in the department of Sacred Literature. During a part of this period he also gave instruction in Hebrew to such students in the Academical Department as desired it.

In September 1824 he was appointed Librarian of Yale College and continued in this office till he resigned it in 1843.

In September 1830, he married Miss Mary Anna Van Cleve, of Princeton, N.J. Their children were four daughters and one son. In 1853 he received the degree of LL. D. from the College of New Jersey. In biblical criticism and general linguistics he ranked among the most eminent. He contributed to the periodical publications of his time many important papers on subjects of philology and criticism. His chief separate publications are the following, viz :

Translation of Storr's Essay on the Historical Sense of the New Testament. (Bost. 1817. 12°)

" of Gesenius's Hebrew Lexicon of the Old Testament. (Andover 1824. 12°.)

Manual Hebrew and English Lexicon, abridged from Gesenius.
(1828 and 1832. 8°.)

Philological Studies. (New Haven, 1857. 12°.)

Latin Analyst. " 1858. 12°.)

Teutonic Etymology. " 1860. 12°.)

A commemorative discourse by Professor George P. Fisher, appears in the New Englander for July, 1861, and also in a separate form. (8°. pp. 20.)

1813.

JAMES DERHAM JOHNSON died in Morristown, N. J., Aug. 3, 1861, aged 72.

He was the son of Richard and Martha (Rayner) Johnson, and was born in Hanover, Morris Co., N. J., March 30, 1788.

He was engaged in the business of instruction from the time of his graduation to near the close of life ; never undertaking other employment, except that during a few years he was occupied in collecting funds for the Seamen's Home Society of Norfolk, Va.

After teaching a while in private families in New Jersey, he was in May, 1814, invited to be the Principal of the Morris Academy in his native county, which position he occupied till April 1821. In December 1821 he accepted an invitation to take charge of Oxford Academy, N. C., where he remained till 1833. In October 1833 he removed to Norfolk, Va., where he taught a select classical school with much reputation and success for sixteen years, until his health began to be impaired. After journeying a year or two, he returned to his loved vocation, and in 1850 opened a select high school, which he continued till the year 1855. He then returned to his old homestead in Morristown, and in that place established a select school for ladies which he taught for about two years, when the increasing infirmities of age induced him to retire from a field of labor which he had so long and so well cultivated.

1814.

WILLIAM LUCIUS STORRS died in Hartford, Conn., June 25, 1861, aged 66.

He was the son of Lemuel and Betsey (Champion) Storrs, and was born in Middletown, Conn., March 25, 1795.

After a course of professional study, he was admitted to the bar, commenced practice in his native town, and rapidly rose to eminence. He was soon called into public service. In 1827, 1828 and 1829, and again in 1834, he represented Middletown in the State Legislature, and in the latter year he was Speaker of the House.

He was a Representative in Congress from this State from 1829 to 1833 and again in 1839 and 1840. In June 1840 he was elected a Judge of the Supreme Court of Connecticut and in 1856 was promoted to the office of Chief Justice of the same, which he held at the time of his death. In 1846 he was appointed one of the Professors of Law in Yale College, having been chief instructor in the Law Department during the year previous. This Professorship he resigned in 1847. The duties of these various stations he discharged with eminent uprightness and ability.

1815.

THOMAS GRAY died in Norwich, Conn., August 29, 1860, aged 66.

He was the only son of Samuel (Dartm. Coll. 1771,) and Charlotte (Elderkin) Gray, and was born in Windham, Conn.

He studied law, and to some extent, engaged in the practice, residing most of his life in his native town. He was often elected to offices of honor and trust, and was for several years Clerk of the House of Representatives at Washington. At the time of his death, he was Clerk of the Superior Court of Connecticut for Windham County, and Judge of Probate for the district of Windham.

WOODBIDGE STRONG died in Boston, Mass., March 31, 1861, aged 66.

He was the third son of Joseph (Y. C. 1784) and Sophia Woodbrige) Strong, and grandson of Joseph Strong, (Y. C. 1749,) and was born in Heath, Mass., August 24, 1794.

He studied medicine under the late Dr. Nathan Smith, in the Medical Department of Yale College, and received the degree of M. D. here in 1818. Soon afterwards he went to Boston and there continued to reside in the practice of his profession until August 1859, when he was attacked by a cerebral affection from which he never recovered. As a physician he was enthusiastic and skilful.

He married (1) in 1826, Miss Elizabeth F. Wheaton, of Norton, Mass., who died in 1834, without children. (2) in 1840, Mrs. Harriett Atwood Torry, who died in 1851, leaving one daughter who died in March, 1859.

1816.

FRANCIS PARSONS died in Hartford, Conn., March 19, 1861, aged 66.

He was the son of David and Harriet (Williams) Parsons and was born in Amherst, Mass., February 16, 1795.

He studied law with his uncle Hon. Thomas S. Williams, in Hartford, was in due course admitted to the bar, and through life continued to reside in that city engaged in the practice of his profession. Although always avoiding notoriety, he was honored with many public and private trusts, and was a prominent and influential citizen. He was for a time Judge of the Hartford County Court, and declined the offer of the place of Commissioner of the School Fund. In benevolent and charitable enterprises he took a leading part, and was president of the directors of the Hartford hospital at the time of his death.

He married Miss Clarissa Brown, Dec. 23, 1829, and left one son and two daughters.

SAMUEL STILES STEBBINS died in Sherburne, Chenango Co., N. Y., September 5, 1860, aged 66.

He was son of Samuel and Sarah (Boardman) Stebbins and was born in Hartland, Conn., June 13, 1794.

After graduating he taught school one year in Sherburne, N. Y., then returned to Connecticut and married. He then went to Montrose, Penn. Subsequently he taught for nine years in the academy at Pompey, N. Y., two years in Sherburne, N. Y., and two years in Syracuse, N. Y., and in 1846 he took the female academy in Florence, Alabama. In 1851 he opened a select school in Quincy, Illinois, leaving which he returned to Sherburne, where he was still occupied in teaching when overtaken by death.

He married Miss Laura Bestor of Simsbury, Conn., in 1823, and had four children.

1817.

CHAUNCEY BULKLEY died in Philadelphia, Pa., May 23, 1860, aged 62.

He was born in Wethersfield, Conn., January 16, 1798, being the son of Francis Bulkley of that town, and a descendant of Rev. Peter Bulkley of Concord, Mass.

After graduating, he taught a school in Philadelphia, for about a year, and then for three years he was an instructor in Mount Airy College, in Germantown, Pa. He studied law with Charles Chauncey, Esq., of Philadelphia, was admitted to the bar May 20, 1822, and resided in that city engaged in practice. In 1832 and 1833 he was Secretary and Treasurer of the Germantown and Norristown Railroad Co. From 1845 to 1850 he was one of the Aldermen of the city of Philadelphia. After this he resumed his professional practice and continued it till his death.

1818.

ORLANDO CANFIELD died near Columbus, Mississippi, July 14, 1860, aged 66.

He was the son of Lemuel and Sarah Canfield, and was born in Bridgewater, Conn., April 4, 1794.

Immediately after his graduation he began to teach a school at Greenville, N. C., which he continued for two years, at the same time employing his leisure hours in the study of Law. He was admitted to the bar in 1821, and practised law five years, when he was compelled by impaired health to undertake a more active business. He retired to a farm near Hookerton, N. C., but devoted a part of his time to teaching and with success. In March 1837, he removed to Columbus, Mississippi, where he spent the remainder of his life, engaged in the pursuits of a cotton-planter.

He died on his plantation, seven miles from Columbus, leaving a wife and six children.

1820.

DANEL VANMATRE died at Cincinnati, O., December 19, 1860, aged 60.

He was born in Martinsburgh, Va., Feb. 10, 1800. He studied law, and established himself in the practice in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he resided through life. He was for a time the City Solicitor, and from 1830 to 1835 he was State's Attorney for Hamilton County.

In 1833 he married Miss Maria A. Henderson of Cincinnati, and had three sons and four daughters.

1821.

ALFRED TERRY died in New Haven, Conn., December 15, 1860, aged 58.

He was son of Nathaniel (Y. C. 1786) and Catherine (Wadsworth) Terry, and was born in Hartford, Conn., Sept. 28, 1802.

He studied law in the Law School at Litchfield, Conn., was admitted to the bar, and from 1824 to 1831 resided in Hartford engaged in practice. In 1832 he removed to New Haven and was for several years engaged as a bookseller and publisher. In 1843 he was elected Clerk of the town of New Haven, and continued in this office till 1856. After that he was occupied in professional business, relating especially to the examination of titles of real estate, until his death.

In September 1825 he married Miss Clarissa Howe of New Haven. Their children were five sons and six daughters.

1822.

JOHN ARNOLD ROCKWELL died in Washington City, D. C., Febr. 10, 1861, aged 57.

He was son of Charles and Sarah (Arnold) Rockwell, and was born in Norwich, Conn., Aug. 27, 1803.

He studied law and devoted himself to the practice of this profession in his native city. He was soon called into public life. In 1838 and 1839 he was elected to the Senate of the State, and not long after this he was chosen Judge of the Court of New London County. In 1847 he was Representative in Congress from the 3d Congressional District of this State. He served through two consecutive terms, during the last of which he was chairman of the Committee on Claims. The Court of Claims, at Washington, owes its existence chiefly to him, and since its establishment he has been one of the most prominent and successful practitioners at its bar. For the last ten years his professional labors were chiefly in that Court. In this connection he found it necessary to learn the Spanish language, and he published one or two volumes on Mexican law, which are now standard authorities.

In September 1831, he married Miss Mary W. Perkins, of Norwich, sister of Dr. Alfred E. Perkins (Y. C. 1830), the distinguished benefactor of the Library of Yale College. Their children were five, three of whom are now living.

1823.

THORN SELL KINGSLAND, died on Staten Island, N. Y., in 1859, aged about 55.

He was son of Daniel Kingsland, and was born in New York City.

He studied law with David B. Ogden, Esq., in New York.

He established himself in the practice of his profession, on Staten Island, near the town of Richmond, and was at one time District Attorney for the county of Richmond.

1825.

CHESTER BIRGE died in Hudson, Summit Co. O., May 2, 1861, aged 64.

He was born in Bolton, Conn., September 20, 1796.

He studied theology in the Seminary of this College, completing his course in 1828. After preaching a few months in North Greenwich, Conn., he went to Ohio as a home missionary. He labored one year in New Philadelphia, and was then installed pastor of the Presbyterian and Congregational Churches in Vienna, Trumbull County, Ohio, November 17, 1830. Within five years his health gave way, so that he was compelled to ask a dismissal from his pastoral charge. After this he engaged in teaching students in his own house. He remained in Vienna till 1852, when he removed to Hudson, O., in order to educate his children and here he finished his course.

He married Mrs. Hannah C. Mead, and left three children.

JOSEPH ELLSWORTH died in East Windsor (Windsorville) Conn., August 25, 1860, aged 56.

He was the son of Timothy and Ann (Mather) Ellsworth, and was born July 12, 1804, in East Windsor, Conn.

In November 1831 he married Miss Mary A. Starkey of Essex, Conn., and about a year later he removed to that place, and engaged in ship-building. In 1852 he went to Brooklyn, N. Y., and was connected with an Insurance Company until 1854, when, after a short stay in Connecticut, he removed to Detroit, Michigan. In 1856 he returned to Windsorville, and there resided until his death. He was the father of eleven children.

1826.

ELIEZER CRANE died in Cornwall, Orange Co., N. Y., June 3, 1860, aged 53.

He was son of Daniel Crane, and was born in Chester, Orange Co., N. Y., November 2, 1806. He came to College from Waterbury Conn. For the last twenty years of his life he resided in Cornwall, in the quiet employments of a farmer. He was a man of singular unworldliness and simplicity of character.

1827.

GEORGE EDWIN DELAVAN died in Wyoming, Jones Co., Iowa, March 18, 1861, aged 56.

He was born in Dover, N. Y., in 1804. He studied theology at Andover and Yale. Soon after this he was offered a Professorship in Wabash College, which he declined. He was settled as pastor of the Presbyterian church in Hammondsport, N. Y., for two years, then three years in Sherburne, N. Y., where he established an academy, and then in Lafayette and in Wilson, N. Y., six years each. In the spring of 1856 he removed to Maquoketa, Iowa., and took charge of the congregational church there. About a year later he removed to Wyoming, Iowa, where he was pastor of the New School Presbyterian church until his death.

JOHN DICKINSON died in New London, Conn., May 24, 1860, aged 53.

He was the son of William and Betsey Dickinson, and was born in New London, Conn., September 14, 1806.

He married Miss Isham in 1829, and resided in New London through life. He was for many years, and at the time of his death, the Secretary and Treasurer of the New London, Willimantic and Palmer Railroad Co.

JOSEPH HENRY GALLUP died in Norwich, Conn., May 23, 1861, aged 52.

He was the son of Jared and Mary (Whipple) Gallup, and was born in Preston, Conn., September 14, 1808.

After graduation he spent most of his time in study, and in teaching in various parts of Connecticut and Massachusetts, the latter years of his life being passed in Norwich. He was eminent for his attainments in mathematics and in general science.

He married Miss Sarah Maria Parish, of Brooklyn, Conn., Nov. 21, 1834, who died May 20. 1852. He left an only daughter.

CORTLANDT VANRENSSELAER died in Burlington, N. J., July 25, 1860, aged 52.

He was the son of Stephen Van Rensselaer, and was born in Albany, N. Y.

He studied theology in the Seminaries of New Haven and Princeton. After entering upon the ministry, he undertook a voluntary agency for the College of New Jersey, and raised $100,000 for its endowment. He was elected Secretary of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church, and discharged the duties of the place with great zeal and eminent ability and usefulness. He founded the Presbyterian Magazine and was a large contributor to its pages. Every year he compiled and published a volume on the Church, the Ministry, and the School, which he distributed with a liberal hand.

He received the degree of D. D. from the University of the city of New York in 1845.

A volume of his miscellaneous Sermons, Essays, and Addresses, edited by his son, has recently been published in Philadelphia, (1861, pp. 569, 8vo.)

1828.

ORSON COWLES died in North Haven, Conn., Dec. 23, 1860, aged 60.

He was son of Aaron and Jemima (Chapman) Cowles, and was born in East Hartland, Conn., January 14, 1801.

After teaching an academy in Woodstock, Conn., for two years, he pursued a course of theological study in the Seminary of this College, and was licensed to preach. Receiving a second call from the church in North Woodstock, Conn., he entered on the labors of the place January 19, 1832 and was ordained pastor April 25th following. Here he continued until severe and protracted illness compelled him to resign in September 1837. Retiring to North Haven, Conn., he taught there a select school till April 1839. In September 1840 he entered the service of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, as District Secretary for Southern New England, and discharged the duties of this office with his characteristic earnestness and fidelity, until August, 1860, when increasing illness permitted him to work no longer.

He married Miss Eunice Foot of North Haven, November 25, 1832, and had six children.

1829.

CHARLES WILLIAM ROGERS died in Savannah, Ga., May 9, 1861, aged 52.

He was son of Doct. Rogers, and was born in Savannah, Ga.

He pursued a course of theological study in the Seminary at Princeton, N. J., and was licensed as a preacher. He was however not settled as pastor of any church, but preached in various places, chiefly to the colored people in his native State.

1830.

WILLIAM BOUTON WEED died in Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 13, 1860, aged 49.

He was son of Daniel and Martha (Benedict) Weed, and was born in New Canaan, Conn., March 22, 1811.

The five years succeeding his graduation he spent in teaching in Ohio, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Florida. In 1836 he continued the study of law with Hon. Thaddeus Betts, of Norwalk, Conn. Removing to New Haven, he became a member of the law school of this College, and prepared himself for admission to the bar. But constrained by his new convictions, he resolved to become a minister of the gospel. He pursued a course of study in the Theological Department of this College and was in two years licensed to preach. He was settled as pastor of the First Congregational Church in Stratford, Conn., Dec. 4, 1839, and continued here till May, 1855. He was then dismissed at his own request, and accepted a call from the First Congregational church in Norwalk, Conn., where he was installed June 27th following and where he remained until his death, having for many years held a high rank among the clergy of this State.

He married on the 7th July, 1840, Miss Harriet A. Miller of North Stamford. They had three children, two of whom survived him, but one has since died.

A volume containing 39 of his sermons has been published (N. Y. 1861, pp. 413, 12mo.) under the care of his classmate, Rev. S. B. S. Bissell.

1833.

SAMUEL CHAMBERLAIN KERR died in Princeton, N. J., June 4, 1861, aged 48.

He was born in Talbot Co., Maryland, studied theology three years in the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York City, was instituted Rector of a parish in Prince George's County, Maryland, in 1836 and there continued many years. He subsequently preached in other Southern States, his last parish being in Jacksonville, Florida.

1834.

JOHN MURDOCH died at Cane Mount, near Rodney, Mississippi, January 11, 1861, aged 47.

He was the son of John and Esther (Anketell) Murdoch, and was born in Concordia Parish, La., August, 1813.

He resided through life on his estates, in Jefferson Co., Mississippi, engaged in the business of a cotton planter. He was one of the chief founders and most liberal patrons of Oakland College in Mississippi, and was a frequent contributor to the public journals of his neighborhood on the social and political topics of the day.

He married Miss Frances L. Bristol, of New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28, 1840. Their children were eight, of whom six survive him.

WILLIAM HENRY WASHINGTON died in North Carolina, Aug. 12, 1860, aged 46.

He came to College from Waynesboro', N. C. He studied law and practised this profession in Newbern, N. C. He was called into public life, having been a member of the Legislature of North Carolina five or six years, and having held other official stations. From 1841 to 1843 he was a Representative in Congress from his native State.

1835.

HUGH WALSH died in New York City, December 1, 1859, aged 43.

He was the son of James and Elizabeth Walsh, and was born in New York City, January 7, 1816.

Soon after graduation he pursued a course of study in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, N. J., but afterwards preferred to enter upon the study of medicine. He received the degree of M. D. from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, and resided in that city engaged in practice until 1850, when he removed to Fordham, Westchester Co., N. Y. In May 1843 he was appointed Resident Surgeon of the New York Hospital, having been assistant surgeon for two years previous. In 1844 he went to Europe, where he remained two years, attending the hospitals in London and Paris in order to improve his knowledge of the profession. During most of his residence in Fordham he held the appointment of physician and surgeon to St. John's College.

He married in New York in May, 1847, Miss Elizabeth C. Hall, who died February 4, 1855, leaving four children, three of whom died the year following. These severe bereavements were doubtless the occasion of the decline which ended in his death.

1842.

FREDERICK DAN BEEMAN died in Litchfield, Conn., Aug. 4, 1860, aged 39.

He was the son of Daniel Beeman, and was born in Warren, Conn., January 1, 1821.

He studied law with G. H. Hollister, Esq., in Litchfield, Conn., and was admitted to the bar in 1846. Thenceforward he resided in Litchfield, in the practice of his profession. In 1852 he was appointed Clerk of the Courts in Litchfield County, having been assistant Clerk of the same for seven years previous.

He married Miss Maria Hall Brisbane of Charleston, S. C., July 15, 1851, and had one child.

1843.

WILLIAM BURROUGHS died in Germantown, Penn., March 24, 1861, aged 38.

He was the son of John and Margaret (Proctor) Burroughs, and was born in Boston, Mass., February 1, 1823.

After graduating he was for one year a member of the Yale Law School. He then pursued a course of theological study in the Seminary of this Collège, and received license to preach, in 1846 for one year, and in 1847 for four years.

His health was too feeble to permit him to discharge the duties of a clergyman, and he resumed the study of law, in the office of Henry J. Williams, Esq. of Philadelphia. In 1853 he was admitted to the bar, and entered on the practice to a limited extent, chiefly in administering on estates and in managing private trusts. After admission to the bar, he resided in Philadelphia, except that in 1855 he travelled extensively in Europe.

In his last will he bequeathed to Yale College for the benefit of the Theological Institution, the sum of $10,000, subject for a few years to a small annuity. This generous bequest (already paid,) places him among the largest benefactors of this department of the College.

LUCIUS FRANKLIN ROBINSON died in Hartford, Conn., March 11, 1861, aged 37.

He was the son of David F. and Ann (Seymour) Robinson, and was born in Hartford, Conn., February 1, 1824.

On leaving College he entered the Yale Law School and in due course received the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Being then ardently engaged in politics, he was for a year occupied as editor of the Whig, a daily paper in Hartford. He soon entered on the special business of his profession in that city, and was engaged in full and increasing practice down to the close of his life. He was for several years City Attorney and was often a member of the Common Council.

In 1850 he married the only daughter of Gov. Joseph Trumbull and leaves a widow and four daughters.

1847.

WILLIAM HENRY GILMAN died in Exeter, N. H., June 3, 1860, aged 34.

He was born in Exeter, N. H., March 17, 1826.

He studied law in Exeter, N. H., and at the Law School in Cambridge, Mass., completing his preparatory studies in the office of Attorney General Sullivan, in Exeter, N. H.

He was admitted to the bar in Rockingham County, N. H., and in 1851 he removed to Rochester, N. Y., where he was in practice about a year. Hoping to improve his health by a change of climate, he went in 1853 to Dayton, Ohio, but after about three years of professional practice there, increasing illness compelled him to relinquish business. He returned to Exeter, and afterwards sailed in the U. S. ship Merrimack, as Secretary of the Commander, Capt. John C. Long, and on this cruise visited many remote parts of the world. He came home without material benefit and gradually declined.

MATTHEW GREGORY WING died in Santa Fé, New Mexico, July 6, 1860, aged 34.

He was son of Dr. Joel A. Wing, of Albany, N. Y., and was born in that city, April 10, 1826.

After his graduation he continued here some time a student in the Department of the Philosophy and the Arts. His health having from his earliest years been frail, he sought to improve it by travel. From the year 1849 to the time of his death, he was generally away on long journeys and rambles, in the West Indies, in various parts of Europe, Asia Minor, Egypt, and Western America. In the Spring of 1860 while crossing the Rocky Mountains, at an elevation of more than 6000 feet, he suffered from exposure to a pelting rain, and reached Santa Fé, on the 30th of June, in a dying condition, surviving his arrival only six days.

1848.

THEODORE WINTHROP died at Great Bethel, Va., June 10, 1861, aged 32.

He was born in New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21, 1828, and was son of Francis B. and Elizabeth (Woolsey) Winthrop, and a descendant of the distinguished colonial governors of that name in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

In the summer of 1848, during his Senior Year, he was elected to the Clark Scholarship, (for the highest rank at a special examination in all the studies of the College course,) then awarded for the first time. He remained in New Haven the next year on this foundation, engaged in a course of study. From 1849 to 1851 he was travelling in Europe. Several of the subsequent years he spent in study and in travel. His love of adventure and of out-door life was conspicuous. Among other enterprises in which he took part was the celebrated expedition of Lieut Strain in Central America. On his return he took up his residence on Staten Island, entered on the practice of the law and the further prosecution of literary pursuits, sometimes varied by political labors and addresses in the vicinity.

When President Lincoln issued his proclamation, April 15, 1861, for volunteers, Mr. Winthrop offered himself promptly and joined the New York Seventh Regiment. The story of the hastening of this corps to the defense of Washington has been well told by him in the Atlantic Monthly. Before the return of this regiment he was released from further duty, in order to accept the position of first Lieutenant in the regular army to which he was about to be appointed. Meanwhile his love of active service led him to connect himself with the staff of General Butler, and he reported for duty to him at Fortress Monroe. He took part in the expedition against the insurgents entrenched at Great Bethel, Va., and while gallantly leading a charge on the battery there, he fell mortally wounded and died in a few minutes. His body was buried near the spot where he fell. It was subsequently disinterred, and after funeral obsequies in New York City, was brought to New Haven, where on the 28th of June, 1861, with unusual demonstrations of respect, from military, civic and academic bodies and from the people at large, it was laid to rest in the burial place of his father.

1849.

NATHAN SEYMOUR STARR died in Union, N. J., May 24, 1861, aged 31.

He was born in New York City, July 19, 1830. Soon after graduating he engaged in mercantile business in New York, and thus continued till death.

In June 1851 he married Miss Clarissa W. Warland of New Haven.

SILAS WODELL died in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Febr. 19, 1861, aged 35.

He was born in Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y., in 1825.

The two years next after his graduation, he spent in studying law in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He was admitted to the bar of Dutchess County, July 8, 1851, and established himself in the practice of the profession in Poughkeepsie, where he continued to reside. He was District Attorney of that County from Jan. 1, 1856 to Jan. 1, 1859.

In June 1853 he married Miss Anna Hall of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Their children were four.

1851.

WILLIAM JACKSON MALTBY died in Madrid, Spain, Dec. 31, 1860, aged 29.

He was son of Rev. John (Y. C. 1822) and Margaret (Jackson) Maltby, and was born in Sutton, Mass., April 17, 1831.

Two or three years following his graduation he spent in teaching. In the winter of 1853-4, he entered the Theological Seminary in Bangor, Maine, and began the study of Hebrew. In the autumn of 1855 he went to Europe, and spent several years in travelling and in study, in various places on the continent. In 1860 he was appointed Professor of Modern Languages in Bowdoin College, Maine. At Madrid the notice of this appointment reached him, and while there engaged in study, he fell a victim to typhus fever.

1857.

HENRY PORTER MCCOY died in Franklin, Delaware Co., July 25, 1860, aged 30.

He was the son of William McCoy, and was born May 7, 1830, in North Haven, Conn. In 1839 his parents removed to Franklin, N. Y. After graduating he devoted himself to the work of teaching, and continued therein until disabled by illness.

He married Miss Clara A. Robie of Plymouth, N. H., Aug. 12, 1858.

1859.

EDWARD CHASE SHEFFIELD died in Philadelphia, Pa., March 18, 1861, aged 22.

He was the son of William and Elizabeth (Chase) Sheffield, and was born in New Haven, Dec. 13, 1838. At the time of his death he was engaged in teaching in the city of Philadelphia.

His body was brought to New Haven, where he sleeps among his kindred.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1790	Solomon Stoddard, 89,	Northampton, Mass.	Oct. 16, 1860.
1793	Perlee Brush, 90,	Warren, O.	Aug. 4, 1860.
"	Joseph Russell, 85,	Ellington, Conn.	Jan. 8, 1861.
1799	Henry Meigs, 78,	New York City.	May 20, 1861.
1800	Giles C. Kellogg, 79,	Hadley, Mass.	June 19, 1861.
1802	Ralph I. Bush, 80,	N. Y. City.	Aug. 4, 1860.
"	Levi Collins, 82,	Belvidere, Ill.	Dec. 11, 1859.
"	Sheldon C. Leavitt, 75,	Fort Wayne, Ind.	Nov. 4, 1860.
"	Charles H. Pond, 80,	Milford, Conn.	April 28, 1861.
1803	William Belden, 79,	Brooklyn, N. Y.	March 20, 1861.
1804	Joab Brace, 80,	Pittsfield, Mass.	April 20, 1861.
"	Gerardus Clark, 74,	New Rochelle, N. Y.	Aug. 23, 1860.
"	Ezra Stiles Ely, 75,	Philadelphia, Pa.	June 17, 1861.
"	John M. Felder, 76,	South Carolina,	1859.
"	Abel McEwen, 80,	New London, Conn.	Sept. 7, 1860.
1805	Heman Humphrey, 82,	Pittsfield, Mass.	April 3, 1861.
"	Allen McLean, 79,	Simsbury, Conn.	March 19, 1861.
1806	Royal Robbins, 72,	Berlin, Conn.	March 26, 1861.
1808	William Hanford, 73,	Tallmadge, O.	May 31, 1861.
1809	Josiah W. Gibbs, 70,	New Haven, Conn.	March 25, 1861.
1813	James D. Johnson, 72,	Morristown, N. J.	Aug. 3, 1860.
1814	William L. Storrs, 66,	Hartford, Conn.	June 25, 1861.
1815	Thomas Gray, 66,	Norwich, Conn.	Aug. 29, 1860.
"	Woodbridge Strong, 66,	Boston, Mass.	March 31, 1861.
1816	Francis Parsons, 66,	Hartford, Conn.	March 9, 1861.
"	Samuel S. Stebbins, 66,	Sherburne, N. Y.	Sept. 5, 1860.
1817	Chauncey Bulkley, 62,	Philadelphia, Pa.	May 23, 1860.
1818	Orlando Canfield, 66,	Columbus, Miss.	July 14, 1860.
1820	Daniel VanMatre, 60,	Cincinnati, O.	Dec. 19, 1860.
1821	Alfred Terry, 58,	New Haven, Conn.	Dec. 15, 1860.
1822	John A. Rockwell, 57,	Washington City, D. C.	Feb. 10, 1861.
1823	Thorn S. Kingsland, 56,	Staten Island, N. Y.	1859.
1825	Chester Birge, 64,	Hudson, O.	May 2, 1861.
"	Joseph Ellsworth, 56,	East Windsor, Conn.	Aug. 25, 1860.
1826	Eliezer Crane, 53,	Cornwall, N. Y.	June 3, 1860.
1827	George E. Delavan, 56,	Wyoming, Iowa.	March 18, 1861.
"	John Dickinson, 53,	New London, Conn.	May 24, 1860.
"	Joseph H. Gallup, 52,	Norwich, Conn.	May 22, 1861.
"	Cortlandt VanRensselaer, 52,	Burlington, N. J.	July 25, 1860.
1828	Orson Cowles, 60,	North Haven, Conn.	Dec. 23, 1860.
1829	Charles W. Rogers, 52,	Savannah, Ga.	May 9, 1861.
1830	William B. Weed, 49,	Norwalk, Conn.	Dec. 13, 1860.
1833	Samuel C. Kerr, 48,	Princeton, N. J.	June 4, 1861.
1834	John Murdoch, 47,	Rodney, Miss.	Jan. 11, 1861.
"	Wm. H. Washington, 46,	North Carolina,	Aug. 12, 1860.
1835	Hugh Walsh, 43,	New York City,	Dec. 1, 1859.
1842	Frederick D. Beeman, 39,	Litchfield, Conn.	Aug. 4, 1860.
1843	William Burroughs, 38,	Germantown, Pa.	March 24, 1861.
"	Lucius F. Robinson, 37,	Hartford, Conn.	March 11, 1861.
1847	Wm. H. Gilman, 34,	Exeter, N. H.	June 3, 1860.
"	Matthew G. Wing, 34,	Santa Fé, New Mexico.	July 5, 1860.
1848	Theodore Winthrop, 32,	Great Bethel, Va.	June 10, 1861.
1849	Nathan S. Starr, 31,	Union, N. J.	May 24, 1861.
"	Silas Wodell, 35,	Poughkeepsie, N. Y.	Feb. 19, 1861.
1851	William J. Maltby, 29,	Madrid, Spain.	Dec. 31, 1860.
1857	Henry P. McCoy, 30,	Franklin, N. Y.	July 25, 1860.
1859	Edward C. Sheffield, 22,	Philadelphia, Pa.	March 18, 1861.

Total number,.....57

Average age,60½ years.

Of the deaths above enumerated

there occurred in Connecticut	17
“ “ New York	10
“ “ Massachusetts	5
“ “ New Jersey	4
“ “ Pennsylvania	4
“ “ Ohio	4
“ “ Mississippi	2
N. H., Va., N. C., S. C., Ga., Mpi., Ill., Ind., Iowa, D. Col., New Mex., Spain, one each,	11

Among the deceased were

Lawyers	19
Clergymen	15
Physicians	3
Professors and Teachers	7
Variously employed	13

The four oldest surviving graduates are now

Class of 1787	JOSHUA DEWEY, aged 94; of Brooklyn, N. Y.
“ 1788	DANIEL WALDO, aged 98; of Syracuse, N. Y.
“ 1792	WILLIAM BOTSFORD, aged 88; of Westmoreland Co., New Brunswick.
“ 1793	DAVID SHERMAN BOARDMAN, aged 93; of New Milford, Conn.

Of the graduates ad eundem and honorary, the oldest survivor is

1792 JOSIAH QUINCY, who graduated at Harvard in 1790, and is the oldest living graduate of that University.

Of those who graduated before 1801 there now survive 32; viz., of the class of 1787, 1;—1788, 1;—1792, 1;—1793, 1;—1794, 4;—1795, 4;—1796, 7;—1797, 6;—1798, 1;—1799, 2;—1800, 4.

The number of the regular graduates (A. B.) of the College to the year 1860 inclusive, is 6920, of whom 3600 are dead.

The average annual number of deaths among the academical graduates for the five years ending with 1859 was probably about 60. Some of the deaths are of course not ascertainable by the reporter until many years after their occurrence.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page.	Class.	Page.
1842 Beeman, Frederick D.....	39	1857 McCoy, Henry P.....	42
1803 Belden, William.....	23	1804 McEwen, Abel.....	25
1825 Birge, Chester.....	34	1805 McLean, Allen.....	26
1804 Brace, Joab.....	23	1851 Maltby, William J.....	42
1793 Brush, Perlee.....	20	1799 Meigs, Henry.....	20
1817 Bulkley, Chauncey.....	31	1834 Murdoch, John.....	37
1843 Burroughs, William.....	39	1816 Parsons, Francis.....	31
1802 Bush, Ralph I.....	21	1802 Pond, Chas. H.....	22
1818 Canfield, Orlando.....	32	1806 Robbins, Royal.....	27
1804 Clark, Gerardus.....	24	1843 Robinson, Lucius F.....	39
1802 Collins, Levi.....	21	1822 Rockwell, John A.....	33
1828 Cowles, Orson.....	36	1829 Rogers, Charles W.....	36
1826 Crane, Eliezer.....	34	1793 Russell, Joseph.....	20
1827 Delavan, George E.....	35	1859 Sheffield, Edward C.....	43
1827 Dickinson, John.....	35	1849 Starr, Nathan S.....	42
1825 Ellsworth, Joseph.....	34	1816 Stebbins, Samuel S.....	31
1804 Ely, Ezra S.....	24	1790 Stoddard, Solomon.....	19
1804 Felder, John M.....	25	1814 Storrs, William L.....	29
1827 Gallup, Joseph H.....	35	1815 Strong, Woodbridge.....	30
1809 Gibbs, Josiah W.....	28	1821 Terry, Alfred.....	32
1847 Gilman, Wm. H.....	40	1820 VanMatre, Daniel.....	32
1815 Gray, Thomas.....	30	1827 VanRensselaer, Cortlandt.....	35
1808 Hanford, William.....	27	1835 Walsh, Hugh.....	38
1805 Humphrey, Heman.....	25	1834 Washington, Wm. H.....	38
1813 Johnson, James D.....	29	1830 Weed, Wm. B.....	37
1800 Kellogg, Giles C.....	21	1847 Wing, Matthew G.....	40
1823 Kingsland, Thorn S.....	33	1848 Winthrop, Theodore.....	41
1833 Kerr, Samuel C.....	37	1849 Wodell, Silas.....	42
1802 Leavitt, Sheldon C.....	22

CORRECTIONS.

- p. 21, line 2, for 80 read 79.
 " 26, " 1, for Salisbury read Simsbury.
 " 29, " 11, for 1861 read 1860.
 " 31, " 2, for 19 read 9.
 " 35, " 23, for 23 read 22.

OBITUARY RECORD OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY 1862,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF SEVEN WHO DIED THE YEAR
PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 30, 1862.]

[No. 3 of the printed Series, and No. 21 of the whole Record.]

"Onward the ceaseless current sweeps.—"

12898
3/3/91
34. '6.

EDWARD CLAUDIUS HERRICK.

NOTE.—The first of the Annual Obituaries of the Graduates of Yale College, was prepared for the Alumni Meeting in 1842, by Professor James L. Kingsley, who also prepared the two subsequent records. In 1844-5, and subsequently till Professor Kingsley's death, (with the exception, perhaps, of one year,) Mr. E. C. Herrick was associated with him. Since the year 1851-2, Mr. Herrick has had sole charge of the Necrology. This important service in addition to his other labors for the College, renders it obviously fitting, that although only an honorary graduate of the Institution, his name should be here enrolled.

It deserves mention that of sixty names in the obituary of this year, he collected fifty-seven, and wrote out the sketches of about twenty. At the commencement of his memoranda for this object, as if he foresaw his end, he gave specific directions for the printer, prefixing the significant line,—

“Onward the ceaseless current sweeps—”

EDWARD CLAUDIUS HERRICK died at his residence in New Haven, June 11, 1862, aged 51 years.

He was the youngest child of Rev. Claudius Herrick, (Y. C. 1798,) a much respected teacher in New Haven, and Hannah (Pierpont) Herrick. He was born in New Haven, (on what is now a part of the College square,) February 24, 1811.

After a good preliminary education, of which the College course did not form a part, he was engaged as a clerk in the well known book-store of Gen. Hezekiah Howe, where excellent opportunities were afforded him to gratify his early thirst for knowledge. For a short time, he was in business as a book-seller on his own account.

His official connection with the College commenced in 1843. As the Library was about to be removed to the new edifice in which it still remains, he was appointed Librarian, and he continued to discharge the duties of that office fifteen years,—till his resignation in 1858. In 1852 he was also appointed Treasurer of Yale College, and he held that post until his death. His services to the College, however, were by no means confined to his official trusts; but he labored for its interests in every way which his versatile industry could suggest.

Since the death of Professor Kingsley, he has edited the Triennial Catalogue, and has prepared the annual record of the deceased graduates of the College. He also made extensive researches respecting the history of the College, and collected much information respecting the biographies of the early graduates.

His public spirit led him to perform many important labors for the town of New Haven, among which, his care for the public records, and his supervision of the Cemetery, are most note-worthy.

Notwithstanding his life of incessant business, he made high attainments in various departments of science. Entomology was one of his favorite studies, and although he published comparatively little, his acquaintance with the literature of the subject was extensive, and his original investigations were valuable.

He was enthusiastically devoted to Astronomy and Meteorology. From an early period in his life, he was an observer of the heavens, and an accurate recorder of his observations. He rendered important services in determining the periodicity of meteoric showers, and discovered by his own researches the return of the August shower. He took great pains to collect information respecting the paths of remarkable meteors of which he heard, and to look up historical notices of those of earlier years. He likewise paid special attention to the recurrence of the Aurora Borealis, keeping for several years an accurate daily register of the appearance or non-appearance of that phenomenon. Numerous articles from his pen, on all these topics, are to be found in the American Journal of Science.

He received, but did not accept, an appointment as a member of the U. S. Exploring Expedition, under Capt. Wilkes.

In the local history of the college, the town and the state, in American biography, in general literature, especially in quaint and entertaining lore, in English etymology, and in bibliography, his attainments were great, and his knowledge was always at command. He was constantly referred to as an adviser and a critic, not only by his neighbors and College associates, but by those at a distance who knew his reputation. It is believed that the time and pains which he expended in these indirect contributions to literature and science, would, if otherwise employed, have given him wide distinction in the world of letters.

After a very brief illness, he passed away in the calm assurance of Christian faith. He was never married, but kept house in New Haven for his mother, to whom he was affectionately devoted, until her death in 1859.

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

deceased during the academical year ending in July 1862, including the record of seven who died the year previous, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 30th, 1862.]

[No. 3 of the printed Series, and No. 21 of the whole Record.]

CLASS OF 1794.

THOMAS SCOTT WILLIAMS died in Hartford, Conn., Dec. 15, 1861, aged 84.

He was the son of Ezekiel Williams, and was born in Wethersfield, Conn., June 26, 1777.

He graduated at the age of 17, and studied law at the Litchfield Law School, and in the office of Judge Swift of Windham County, and in 1799 he was admitted to the bar of that County. In 1803 he removed to Hartford, Conn., where he thenceforth resided through life, one of her most eminent and honored citizens. He was much in public service. He was a member of the General Assembly of Connecticut, in 1815, 1816, 1819, 1825, 1827, and 1829, and was a Representative in the U. S. Congress from 1817 to 1819. In 1829 he was appointed an Associate Judge of the Supreme Court of Connecticut, and in 1834, Chief Justice of the same, which place he held until 1847, when he reached the age of 70, the age limiting the tenure of the office.

Through life his liberality to every good work was conspicuous. He was long an active member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and of the American Bible Society, and at the time of his death was President of the American Tract Society of New York. He was also for twenty years President of the American Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb, and for a long period Vice-President of the Retreat for the Insane.

His generosity to this College deserves grateful mention. Whenever applied to in behalf of her interests, he always contributed cheerfully and largely, and by his last will he left to the institution a residuary legacy of $5,000.

In 1812 he married Miss Delia Ellsworth, daughter of Hon. Oliver Ellsworth. She died in 1840, and he afterwards married Miss Martha M. Coit, of Boston, who survives him. He leaves no children.

1795.

NATHANIEL HOLLEY died in Storrs Township, near Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 4, 1861, aged 90.

He was the only son of Israel Holley, of Suffield, Conn., and was born in Suffield, Conn., April 15, 1771.

After leaving College, he began the study of Theology under Rev. Cotton Mather Smith, of Sharon, Conn. Becoming acquainted with the doctrines of the New Jerusalem Church, he finally embraced them after long and earnest study. In the early part of the present century he removed to New York, and in October, 1822, he was ordained in Baltimore, Md., a minister of the New Church, in order to be pastor of the Society in Abingdon, Va., of which place he was then a resident. In 1825 he removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he edited a New Church periodical work entitled the Herald of Truth. In 1837 he was connected with the Western Literary Institute and College of Professional Teachers, and was corresponding Secretary of that body. He was for many years engaged in teaching in New York and in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In April, 1814, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Wilson, of New York. Their children were five sons and three daughters. The latter years of his life were spent in and near Cincinnati, with one of his daughters.

DAVID SMITH died in New Haven, (Fair Haven,) Conn., March 5, 1862, aged 94.

He was son of Capt. Ebenezer Smith, who served in the Revolution, and was born in Bozrah, New London Co., Conn., Dec. 13, 1767. Three years after his birth, his father removed to Berkshire, Mass.

After studying Theology, he was ordained, in 1799, pastor of the Congregational Church in Durham, Conn., succeeding Rev. Elizur Goodrich D. D. He remained the pastor of that Church till 1832. During much of this time, he received young men into his family, and trained them in the elements of classical learning. In 1821 he was elected one of the Fellows of Yale College, and held this position forty years, till the close of the session in 1861, when he tendered his resignation. During this time he was never absent from a regular meeting of the corporation. He was able to travel and to preach until a short time before the close of his long and useful life.

He was first married to Miss Betsey Marsh, by whom he had one son. After her death he fitted for college, and subsequent to graduation, he married Catherine, daughter of Rev. Dr. E. Goodrich, by whom he had six children, one of whom studied theology.

1796.

WILLIAM HENRY JONES died in Hartford, Conn., Nov. 26, 1861, aged 83.

He was son of Isaac Jones, and was born in New Haven, Nov. 3, 1778.

He studied Law, but did not enter much into practice. In early life he went to the South with his uncle, Prof. Meigs, and was for a time engaged in teaching at Athens, Ga. He was appointed, May 3, 1814, Postmaster of New Haven, and he continued in that office till Jan. 18, 1842,—a period of nearly twenty-eight years. In Nov., 1858, he went to Hartford to reside with his daughter, Mrs. T. G. Talcott.

He was married in Nov. 1809, to Sarah Russell, daughter of Col. Edward Barker, of Wallingford, Conn., and had several children.

1797.

SETH PERKINS STAPLES died in New York City, Nov. 6, 1861, aged 85.

He was son of Rev. John and Susanna (Perkins) Staples, and was born in Canterbury, (Westminster Parish,) Conn., Aug. 31, 1776.

After studying law for two years in the office of Judge Daggett, in New Haven, he was admitted to the bar in Litchfield, in Sept. 1799.

He began to practice his profession in New Haven. His legal attainments and his excellent library early drew around him a large number of students, and he soon found himself at the head of a flourishing private Law School. After toiling alone for several years, he called to his aid, in 1820, Judge Samuel J. Hitchcock, and made him a partner both in his business and in his Law School. In 1846 the School thus originated, having meanwhile passed into other hands, was formally recognized by the Corporation of Yale College, as the Law Department of that Institution.

In 1824 he removed from New Haven to the city of New York, where he was wholly devoted to his profession till about 1856. His ability, industry and attainments made him a distinguished ornament of the bar. During his residence in New Haven, he was several times a Representative of the town, in the Legislature of Connecticut ; but he withdrew wholly from public life in 1816.

He was married in Nov., 1799, to Catharine, only daughter of Rev. S. Wales, Prof. of Divinity in Yale College. He had three sons and three daughters.

1799.

ELI IVES died in New Haven, Conn., October 8, 1861, aged 82.

He was son of Dr. Levi and Lydia (Auger) Ives, and was born in New Haven, February 7, 1779.

The two years after his graduation he spent as Rector of the Hopkins Grammar School in New Haven, at the same time studying medicine partly with his father and partly with Dr. Æneas Munson. At a subsequent period he attended in Philadelphia the lectures of Drs. Rush and Wistar. In 1801 he began to practice his profession in New Haven, and was continuously engaged in a widely extended field, during a period of over fifty years. His eminence as a physician was recognized throughout the state, and even beyond its limits.

He was one of the originators of the Medical Institution of Yale College, and at its organization in 1813, was appointed one of the first five professors. He held the chair of Materia Medica and Botany for sixteen years till in 1829 he was transferred to the chair of the Theory and Practice of Medicine. In 1853 he ceased to be actively engaged in the Institution, and was named by the Corporation, Professor Emeritus. He was one of the founders of the New Haven Medical Association, and an active member of the State Medical Society and many other local associations. In 1860, the American Medical Association at its meeting in New Haven, elected him President. While Professor in the Medical College he expended much time and effort in the maintenance of a Botanical Garden.

He published four articles in early volumes of the American Journal of Science, an Oration before the Phi Beta Kappa Society in 1802, and an address before the New Haven Horticultural Society in 1837.

He married, Sept. 17, 1805, Maria, daughter of Deacon Nathan Beers, and had three sons and two daughters.

He was honored and beloved for his eminent attainments and his many Christian virtues. A commemorative discourse was delivered at his funeral, by Rev. Dr. Dutton, and was printed in the New Englander, (Oct. 1861,) and as a separate pamphlet.

1801.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL died in Hartford, August 4, 1861, aged 78.

He was son of David and Sarah (Backus) Trumbull, and was born in Lebanon, December 7, 1782.

He studied law with William T. Williams, Esq., of Lebanon, and in 1802 he was admitted to the bar in Ohio, and soon after in Windham County in this State. In 1804 he removed to Hartford, where he resided during the remainder of his useful and honored life. He continued the practice of law till 1828, when he became President of the Hartford bank, an office which he held till his resignation in 1839.

He represented the town of Hartford in the General Assembly of Connecticut in 1832, 1848, and 1851. In 1834 he was elected to fill a vacancy as Representative in Congress, and he was also a member of the House in the 26th and 27th Congresses from 1839 to 1843. In 1849 he was elected Governor of Connecticut, an office which his grandfather and uncle had previously filled.

Through life he manifested a deep interest in the welfare of the community where he resided, and especially in the advancement of Institutions of charity. He was an officer of the American Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb, of the Hartford Retreat for the Insane, of the Hartford Orphan Asylum, and of various other public bodies.

He married, March 6, 1818, Harriet, daughter of General Henry Champion, and, after her decease, Eliza Storrs, sister of the late Chief Justice Storrs. His only daughter survives him. His only son died in 1855.

1802.

JOHN HOUGH died at Fort Wayne, Ind., July 17, 1861, aged 77.

He was son of Dr. Walter and Martha (Lockwood) Hough, and was born in Stamford, Conn., Aug. 17, 1783.

He pursued the study of Theology under Rev. M. C. Welch, and other clergymen, and on the 8th of October, 1805, at Hampton, Conn., he was licensed to preach, by the Windham Association. In 1806 he went to Vermont as a missionary of the Connecticut Missionary Society, and began his labors at Vergennes, in September. An ecclesiastical society was soon formed and he was ordained pastor in that place, March 12, 1807. In 1812 he left Vergennes and was appointed Professor of Languages in Middlebury College, Vt. This chair of instruction he held till 1817, and again from 1825 to 1838, in all eighteen years. From 1817 to 1825 he was Professor of Theology there, and from 1838 to 1839 he was Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature. In all, he was connected with Middlebury College 27 years, and his character and his scholarship were an ornament to the institution. As a labor of love he prepared the notices of all the deceased alumni of the College, for presentation at the jubilee in 1850. The volume was published. After leaving Middlebury in 1839, he spent some time in the service of the American Colonization Society. He resided subsequently in Western New York, and in June 1841 he was installed pastor of the church in Windham, Ohio. In May, 1850, he obtained a dismissal, in the expectation (not realized) of a settlement in Illinois. From this time his sight failed until he became wholly blind. From 1852 till his death, he resided with his son at Fort Wayne. His wife, with whom he had lived nearly half a century, died Feb. 11th, 1859.

ERASTUS SCRANTON died at Burlington, Conn., Oct. 5, 1861, aged 84.

He was the eldest son of Theophilus and Abigail (Lee) Scranton, and was born in Madison, Conn., August 1, 1777.

After preaching a few months at Rocky Hill, Conn., he began the study of Divinity with Rev. John Elliott. In 1804 he was licensed to preach by the New Haven East Association, and he was ordained and installed pastor of the Congregational church in North Milford, afterwards Orange, Conn., July 4, 1805. Being dismissed at his own request in January 1827, he preached in Wolcott two years, and was then, in January 1830, installed Pastor of the Congregational Church in Burlington, Conn. He was relieved of his pastoral charge in 1840, but he continued to reside in Burlington, occasionally preaching in the neighboring churches. He published, in 1855, a Genealogical Register of the descendants of John Scranton, of Guilford, Conn. (Hartford, 1855, 8vo. pp. 104.)

He married, April 10, 1806, Mary Elizabeth Prudden, of Milford.

1803.

WILLIAM S. DARLING died in Bergen, N. J., Oct. 26, 1861, aged 78.

He was son of Dr. Samuel and Clarissa Darling, and was born in New Haven, Conn., Sept. 25, 1783.

He resided for a short time in Bridgeport, Conn., and then removed to New York City, where he was a dry goods merchant for many years.

He married an English lady, Miss Sophia Augusta Geib, by whom he had four children.

MINOTT MITCHELL died at White Plains, N. Y., Feb 20, 1862, aged 77.

He was son of Rev. Justus Mitchell, (Y. C. 1776,) of New Canaan, Conn., and was born in that town, Sept. 24, 1784.

After studying law with his uncle, Hon. Roger Minott Sherman, he entered, in 1806, on the practice of his profession at White Plains, N. Y. He continued to be for many years a distinguished member of the bar in West Chester County, N. Y., giving professional instruction, from time to time, to many young men whom his learning and excellence of character drew around him. In later years he was engaged to some extent in other business.

He married, Dec. 3, 1806, Eliza Leeds, daughter of Joseph Silliman, of New Canaan, and has had eight children. Three of his sons have studied law and one is a physician.

A discourse commemorative of his character, by his pastor, Rev. David Teese, was printed. (New York, 1862, 8vo. pp. 21.)

1806.

SAMUEL HUNTINGTON DEVOTION died in Scotland, formerly a parish of Windham, Conn., May 7, 1862, aged 79.

He was son of Judge Ebenezer and Eunice (Huntington) Devotion, and grandson of Rev. Ebenezer Devotion, (Y. C. 1732,) the first minister of the parish of Scotland, in the town of Windham, Conn. He was born Feb. 18, 1783, in this parish.

He studied law with Judge Swift, of Windham, and was admitted to the bar in that place in 1808. He was subsequently admitted to the bar in Boston, (1810,) and still later in New Orleans, (1811,) and in Pittsburg, (1814.) This was his last effort in professional life. He was a man of uncommon ability and scholarship, but he early went into retirement, engaging but little in any business. The later part of his days he spent in his native parish.

THOMAS GLASBY WATERMAN died in Binghamton, N. Y., Jan. 7, 1862, aged 74.

He was born in New York City, Jan. 23, 1788, and while yet a child removed with his parents to Salisbury, Conn.

He studied law at the Law School in Litchfield, Conn., and afterwards with Hon. Samuel Sherwood in Delhi, N. Y. He was admitted to the bar in New York City, in 1809, but remained with Mr. Sherwood until 1812, when he went for a few months to Owego, N. Y., and thence to Binghamton, where he resided till his death. He practiced law till about 1830, attaining eminence in his profession.

He was to some extent in public life. In 1826 he was a member of the Assembly of N. Y. from Broome County, and during the four succeeding years a member of the State Senate. By appointment of the Governor, he discharged in Broome County the duties of Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. While a member of the N. Y. Legislature, he was one of a committee which made a thorough revision of the statutes of the State, and bore an important part in that laborious work.

In 1828 he prepared and published a volume on the Powers and Duties of Justices of the Peace, which became celebrated, and rapidly passed through three editions.

In 1813 he married the eldest daughter of Gen. Joshua Whitney, of Binghamton.

1807.

ABRAHAM DUDLEY BALDWIN died in Greenfield Hill, June 8, 1862, aged 74.

He was the son of Dudley Baldwin (Y. C. 1777) and a nephew of Abraham Baldwin, (Y. C. 1762,) one of the framers of the Constitution of the U. S., and of Henry Baldwin, (Y. C. 1797,) one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the U. S.

He studied law, but declined to enter upon its practice, residing through his life on Greenfield Hill, chiefly engaged in agricultural pursuits, and occasionally in the discharge of public offices to which he was called by his fellow citizens. He was several times a member of the House of Representatives, and also of the Senate of Connecticut, and while a Senator he was a member of the Corporation of Yale College.

DAVID RAYMOND DIXON died in Unadilla, Mich., June 24, 1861, aged nearly 78.

He was son of Joseph and Mercy (Raymond) Dixon, and was born July 4, 1783, in Manchester, Vt.

His youth was passed in Sherburne, Chenango Co., N. Y., and after preparation at the Academy which has since become Hamilton College, he entered the Junior Class at Yale.

Several of the years next after his graduation, he spent in teaching an academy in Utica, N. Y., and in the study of theology. After being licensed to preach, he went about the year 1814, as missionary to Oswego County, N. Y. He was soon ordained pastor of two Presbyterian Churches in the town of Mexico, and this relation existed about twenty years, during which period he performed a great amount of pioneer missionary labor. In 1835 he removed to Tipton, Mich., and a few years later to Unadilla, where he remained till his death. During nearly all of the last twenty years of his life, he was an industrious colporteur of the American Tract Society.

He married Nancy Taft, Nov., 1809, by whom he had one son. After her death, he married Elizabeth Sergeant, Oct., 1813, by whom he had four children.

1808.

WILLIAM SILLIMAN died at East Chester, Westchester Co., N. Y., October 24, 1861, aged 73.

He was the son of Dr. Joseph Silliman of New Canaan, Conn., and was born in that place Jan. 17, 1788.

After leaving College he studied law, and from the time of his entrance upon that profession until his death, he was a successful practitioner in the City of New York, chiefly in the courts of Chancery.

JOB STAPLES died in Cranbury, Butler Co., Penn., Sept. or Oct., 1861, aged 75.

He was son of Rev. John and Susanna (Perkins) Staples, and brother of Seth P. Staples. He was born in Canterbury, (Westminster Parish,) Windham Co., Conn., Aug. 23, 1786.

He taught school for a short time in Chester, Orange Co., N. Y. The most of his life he passed in Cranbury, Butler Co., Penn., engaged in the cultivation of a farm.

He was married, and had five sons and eight daughters.

1809.

BENJAMIN CLARK MEIGS died in New York City, May 12, 1862, aged 72.

He was the son of Dr. Phineas Meigs, of Bethlem, Conn., and was born Aug. 9, 1789.

He received his Theological education in the seminary at Andover. He was one of the founders of the Ceylon Mission of the American Board, and after having been ordained, he embarked for that Island in October, 1815, from Newburyport, Mass., one of the second company of Missionaries sent out from this country. In 1840-1 he made a brief visit to his native country.

In 1858, after 42 years of faithful and useful service, he retired from the field to spend his last days among his children and friends in this land, and so far as his strength permitted, he continued to labor here for the cause in which his life had been spent. His health failing, he spent the last winter in Kingston, Jamaica, but without material benefit, and after protracted illness, died in perfect peace. In accordance with his request, his remains were removed to Oxford to rest by the side of his mother.

He was married in 1815, to Miss Peet, of Bethlem, Conn., who is still living.

1810.

JONATHAN BARNES died in Middletown, Conn., Dec. 24, 1861, aged 72.

He was the son of Jonathan Barnes, and was born in Tolland, Conn., in 1789.

He began the study of law with his father, and in 1811, he removed to Middletown, where he completed his preparatory studies with Chauncey Whittelsey, Esq. He was admitted to the bar in 1813, and from that time forward he practised his profession in Middletown with unusual constancy, industry, and success. He always shunned public office, was a learned scholar and a highly esteemed and useful citizen.

1812.

CHARLES AUGUSTUS GOODRICH died in Hartford, Conn., Jan. 4, 1862, aged 72.

He was son of Rev. Samuel Goodrich, of Berlin, and was born in Ridgefield, Conn.

After acting as a private tutor, in Albany, for a short time, he studied Theology with Dr. Yates, of East Hartford. In 1816 he was ordained and installed pastor of the First Church in Worcester, where he remained four years. He then returned to his native State, and resided for a considerable time in Berlin. For many years he has made his home in Hartford.

He was associated with his brother, S. G. Goodrich, (Peter Parley,) in preparing books for the young, and he also published, independently, a number of volumes. Among them were a "Bible History of Prayer," "Lives of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence," "Great Events of American History," "Universal Traveller," "Family Encyclopædia," and "Outlines of Geography."

He was once a member of the Senate of Connecticut.

In 1818, he married Sarah, a daughter of Rev. Dr. Upson, of Berlin, by whom he had seven children.

1813.

STEPHEN MITCHELL CHESTER died suddenly in Wethersfield, Conn., April 14, 1862, aged 68.

He was the son of Stephen and Elizabeth (Mitchell) Chester, and was born in Wethersfield, Conn., Oct. 18, 1793.

He was for nine years engaged in mercantile business in North Carolina, and was for a long time afterwards a merchant in New York City. He was also an officer in several Insurance companies there, and an elder in the Presbyterian Church. His natural taste for music and painting he cultivated assiduously. He devoted himself to the improvement of the choirs of the churches with which he was connected, and collected a gallery of valuable paintings.

The last five years of his life were spent in his native town, in the infirmities consequent upon paralysis, but usefully to the last. An acquaintance says of him: "He was beloved and respected in all the walks of private and social life, and sustained uniformly the character of a sincere, consistent, and devoted Christian."

He was never married.

1814.

JOHN BENEDICT HOYT, died in Coventry, Chenango County, N. Y., July 4, 1862, aged 68 years.

He was son of Thaddeus and Jemima (Benedict) Hoyt, formerly of New Canaan, Conn., and was born Jan. 31, 1794, in Walton, Delaware County, N. Y.

After graduating he spent a year in teaching in Dutchess County, New York, and soon after began the study of Theology with Rev. S. Williston, D. D., at Durham, N. Y. In 1818 he was licensed to preach the gospel, and was soon ordained at Green, N. Y., where he remained Pastor of the Congregational church for many years. In 1829, he accepted a call to the second Congregational church in Coventry, N. Y., where he has since resided.

He published a volume of Sermons, entitled, "A Pastor's Tribute to his People," (Norwich, N. Y., 1851; 12mo. pp. 288,) and several occasional discourses.

He was twice married, first to Miss Emeline C. Fenn, of Harpersfield, N. Y., and after her decease, to Miss Eliza Ann Phillips, of Coventry. He was the father of eight children, five of whom survive him.

JAMES POTTER died in Savannah, Georgia, Jan. 25, 1862, aged 68.

He was son of John Potter, a native of Ireland, who came to Charleston, S. C., soon after 1783. He was born in Charleston, S. C., Aug. 23, 1792.

Soon after graduating he traveled extensively in Europe. Being averse to a professional life, he became, upon his return from abroad, the proprietor of a rice plantation on the Georgia side of the Savannah river, and devoted himself with success to the management of this estate. During his later years, the education of his children led him to seek a home at the North, and he passed a considerable portion of the year in Princeton, N. J., though still continuing to direct the plantation.

He sincerely deplored the present contest in arms, and returned to his southern residence to be an advocate for peace. His anxiety for the country preyed upon his spirits and health, and hastened his decease.

He married Miss Grimes, of Georgia. Six children survive him.

NATHANIEL SHELDON WHEATON died in Marbledale, Washington, Conn., March 18, 1862, aged 70.

He was born in Washington, Conn., August 20, 1792.

He pursued a course of theological study in Maryland, where he resided four years, and was ordained by Bishop Clagett, deacon and priest in the Protestant Episcopal Church. In 1818 he was chosen rector of Christ Church, Hartford, and for over twelve years he discharged with marked efficiency the duties of that post. He resigned the rectorship in 1831 to become the second President of Trinity, then Washington College, Hartford, succeeding Bishop Brownell. For this office he was highly qualified by his ability and learning. He had been one of the most efficient of the founders of the Institution, and while he was President he raised forty thousand dollars for its maintenance. In 1837 he resigned the Presidency to accept the Rectorship of Christ Church, New Orleans, where he labored with fidelity seven years. During the ravages of the yellow fever, he was incessant in his devotion to the sick and dying. In 1823-4, he visited Europe, and wrote upon his return, a volume entitled "Journal of a Residence in London, and of Tours in England, Scotland and France," (Hartford, 12mo. 1830.) He also published an expository volume, and occasional discourses. In 1844 he went abroad again.

After his second return he divided his time between Washington, his native place, and Hartford, his early home, preaching occasionally, but assuming no special pastoral charge. He bequeathed to the institution over which he presided, the sum of twenty thousand dollars. He was never married.

The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Yale College in 1833.

1815.

JOHN SILL ROGERS died in Rome, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, Dec. 28, 1860, aged 64.

He was the son of Gideon and Lucy (Ackley) Rogers, and was born in Lyme, Conn., April 15th, 1796.

He was a physician and a farmer. He resided in Lyme, Conn., until 1837, when he removed to Rome, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, which was thereafter the place of his residence. He was to some extent in public life, having been several times a member of each house of the Legislature of Connecticut, and also, in 1840, representative in the Legislature of Ohio.

He married Matilda Lord, of Lyme, Conn., Feb. 10, 1822, and their children were two daughters.

1822.

JAMES WRENTVILLE FRISBIE died in Woodbridge, N. J., Sept. 21, 1861, aged 63.

He was the son of Samuel and Irene (Baldwin) Frisbie, and was born in Branford, Conn., March 29, 1798.

Most of his life, after graduation, was spent in teaching. He was an instructor for nine years in Columbia County, N. Y., fifteen years in Branford, Conn., and eleven years and a half in Orange, N. J., and one and a half years in Metuchen, Woodbridge, N. J.

He was twice married and had six children, three of whom have died. His remains were brought home to Branford for burial.

ITHAMAR PILLSBURY died in Andover, Henry Co., Illinois, April 19, 1862, aged 70.

He came to College from Canaan, N. H. For many years he was pastor of the Presbyterian church in Smithtown, (L. I.) N. Y. In 1853 he was chosen President of McDonough College, Illinois.

He was twice married and left several children.

1824.

FREDERICK JOSEPH JUDSON died in Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 6, 1862, aged 58.

He was son of Pixlee and Catharine (Nichols) Judson, and was born in Stratford, Conn., Feb. 14, 1804.

After teaching school for more than two years in New Kent County, Va., he commenced in 1827 the study of medicine, and attended lectures in New Haven and New York. He received his medical degree from Yale College in 1829.

He resided in New Haven and Westport, Conn., until about 1832, when he removed to St. Mary's, Georgia. He followed his profession in that place till 1846. In 1847 he came to Bridgeport, Conn., and continued to practice there as a physician, until his death. He was thrice married.

1826.

WILLIAM WHITE DWIGHT died of consumption in New York City, July 11, 1861, aged 54.

He was son of Elihu Dwight, an eminent physician, and was born in South Hadley, Mass., August 19, 1806.

He received the degree of M. D. from Harvard College in 1830. He had resided in New York City for the last twenty-five years with the exception of two years when he was in California.

WILLIAM AUGUSTUS LARNED died in New Haven, Conn., February 3, 1862, aged 55.

He was son of George Larned, and grandson of Gen. Daniel Larned, of Thompson, Conn., and was born in that town, June 23, 1806.

Two years after graduating he spent in teaching at Salisbury, North Carolina. Then from 1828 to 1831 he was a tutor in Yale College. At the close of this period a change in his religious convictions led him to abandon the course of law studies on which he had entered, and devote himself to Theology under the guidance of Rev. Dr. Taylor, in the Seminary at New Haven.

In the spring of 1834 he was ordained Pastor of the Congregational Church in Millbury, Mass., and he remained there till October of the next year, when the loss of health compelled him to resign. He then accepted proposals from Rev. Dr. Beman and Rev. Mr. Kirk to engage with them in the instruction of a Theological school at Troy, N. Y. He was there occupied in teaching Hebrew and Greek and in preaching, till the Institution was crippled by the financial disasters of 1837. In 1839, on the transfer of Prof. Goodrich to the Yale Theological Department, Mr. Larned was elected Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature in Yale College, and for twenty-two years he discharged the duties of this office with assiduity and success.

From its commencement in 1843, he was one of the most constant contributors to "the New Englander," about thirty articles on political, literary, and philosophical topics having been published by him in that magazine. In 1854 and 1855, he acted as its editor. He printed, but did not publish, an exposition of the grammatical principles of Becker in "The Analysis of the Sentence," (New Haven, 12mo. pp. 100.) In the later years of his life he was much occupied in preparing an edition of the Oration of Demosthenes on the Crown, with philological and rhetorical notes. (2d Ed. revised, New Haven, 1858, 8vo..) Although he made this volume a text-book in his own classes, he refrained, with characteristic diffidence, from offering it to the public.

His increasingly useful career was suddenly terminated by a stroke of apoplexy as he was returning home, in a snow storm, from a walk on which his last known act was an example of the unselfish Christian kindness which had adorned his life.

He was married in 1843 to Irene, daughter of Joseph Battell, of Norfolk, Conn.

A discourse by President Woolsey, commemorative of Mr. Larned, has been printed, (New Haven, 8vo.) and an article from the same pen appeared in the New Englander for April, 1862.

1828.

LEVI HART GODDARD died in Norwich, Conn., May 9, 1862, aged 53.

He was the son of Hon. Calvin and Alice (Hart) Goddard, and was born in Norwich, Oct. 29, 1808. After studying law in the office of his father, and in the Cambridge Law School, he commenced, in 1832, the practice of law in his native town. In 1833 he went to Marietta, Ohio, and remained there till 1836, when he returned to Connecticut, and made his home upon a farm in Salem. In 1847 he returned to Norwich, and continued the practice of his profession in that place until his death. At the time of his decease he was the oldest practising member of the bar in Norwich.

In 1835 he married Miss Mary W. Perkins, of Norwich, and left four children.

JOHN NITCHIE LEWIS died very suddenly in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 5, 1861, aged 53.

He was son of Zechariah (Y. C. 1794) and Sophia (Nitchie) Lewis, and was born in New York City.

He studied theology at Princeton, N. J., and was ordained and settled as a minister near Newburgh, N. Y.

For many years he was the Secretary of the Central Education Society of the Presbyterian Church, (N. S.) and also Clerk of the Synod of New York and New Jersey.

The larger part of his life he spent in Brooklyn, N. Y.

He married Sarah, daughter of Col. William Edwards, of Hunter, N. Y., and left a large family of children.

ISAAC WILLIAM STUART died in Hartford, Oct. 2, 1861, aged 52.

He was son of Rev. Moses Stuart, of Andover, and Abigail (Clark) Stuart, and was born in New Haven, while his father was pastor of the Centre Church in this place.

For a short time after graduating, he taught in the Hopkins Grammar School at Hartford, and was much engaged in the study of hieroglyphics and oriental literature. He published in 1830 a translation, with notes, of Greppo's "Essay on the Hieroglyphic System of Champollion." (Boston, 1830, 12mo.) Being elected Professor of Greek and Latin in the College of South Carolina, he removed to Columbia, and there remained some time. He published in 1837, an edition with notes of the Œdipus Tyrannus of Sophocles. (New York, 12mo.)

At length he returned to Hartford, and was well known for many years as proprietor of the Wyllys Estate on which was standing the famous Charter Oak. He was distinguished for his enthusiastic attention to the history of his native state. He published in 1856, a Life of Nathan Hale, the Martyr Spy of the Revolution, (Hartford, 1856, 8vo.) a volume of local historical sketches, entitled "Hartford in the Olden Time," by Scœva, (Hartford, 1853, 8vo.) and an elaborate Life of Governor Jonathan Trumbull. (Boston, 1857, 8vo. pp 700.)

He married Caroline Bulkely.

1831.

JAMES HOPKINS ADAMS died at his residence, in Richland District, near Columbia, S. C., July 27, 1861, aged about 50.

He entered College from Columbia, S. C., at the beginning of Sophomore year.

He was a distinguished member of the lower house in the Legislature of South Carolina, as early as 1835, and at that time he vigorously opposed "nullification" and the peculiar faction of Calhoun.

He was subsequently a member of the Senate of his native State, and in 1854 he was chosen Governor for the term of two years.

After the passage of the "secession ordinance," in South Carolina, he was appointed a Commissioner, in conjunction with Messrs. Barnwell and Orr, to visit Washington and treat with Mr. Buchanan, then President, in respect to the transfer of the forts and other property of the United States situated in South Carolina, to the ownership of the State. The correspondence between the President and these gentlemen was sent to Congress and printed.

JOHN AUGUSTUS TOTTEN died in New Haven, Conn., Jan. 21, 1862, aged 49.

He was son of Gilbert and Mary (Rice) Totten, and was born in New Haven, Dec. 27, 1812,

He studied Medicine in the Medical Institution of Yale College, receiving the degree of M. D. in 1835. For a few years he was engaged in the practice of his profession in New Haven, but although a man of very rare intellectual powers, he was disposed to retire from all public observation. About 1851, he went to Aspinwall and was there successfully engaged as one of the Physicians of the Panama Rail Road Company, for five years, while the corps of laborers were engaged in constructing that road. His last days were passed in New Haven.

He was never married.

AUGUSTUS WYNKOOP died in Kinderhook, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1862.

He led a retired life in Kinderhook, maintaining a constant interest in literary pursuits. He was married and left several children.

1832.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR EBBETTS died of consumption, after a long illness, in New York, Nov. 17, 1861, aged 48.

He was born at Newtown, (L. I.) N. Y., March 30, 1813. His father was Capt. John Ebbetts, a favorite shipmaster of John Jacob Astor.

From childhood he resided in New York. After leaving College he entered upon the business of a broker, which he pursued with diligence during the most of his life, cultivating at the same time a gentle disposition and a fine intellectual taste. In later years, declining health and adversity kept him from public observation, but the excellence of his life was acknowledged by all who knew him.

He married Miss Catherine Vanderburgh, of Troy, and left no children.

1833.

JAMES TUTTLE SHERMAN died in Trenton, N. J., May 20, 1862, aged 47.

He was the youngest son of George Sherman, who removed from New Haven to Trenton in 1797, and Rebecca (Potts) Sherman. He was born Dec. 21, 1814.

After studying law for a short time, he became associated with his father in the conduct of the State Gazette, published in Trenton, N. J., and he continued to be the editor till 1853. He was invited to assume the charge of the United States Gazette in Philadelphia, when Mr. Joseph A. Chandler retired from its management, but declined this proposal.

Although deeply and honestly interested in the political welfare of the state and nation, he resolutely declined to accept any nomination for office. Since his withdrawal from editorial labors, he has been an active friend of the State Normal School at Trenton.

1838.

THOMAS WHEELER WILLIAMS died at Emerald Grove, Wis., July 27, 1861, aged 51.

He was the son of Cyrus and Martha (Wheeler) Williams, and was born in North Stonington, Conn., Nov. 14, 1809.

After a few years spent in teaching in Buffalo, N. Y., he removed to Wisconsin, and devoted his life chiefly to agricultural pursuits, using his talents and education for the best good of the community in which he lived.

He married Eliza Parrott, of Washington, D. C., Nov., 1838, and had one child, a daughter.

1839.

DANIEL BROOKS died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1861, aged 47.

He studied medicine, and graduated in the school at Castleton, Vt., and was for a time engaged as medical assistant in the Insane Retreat, Hartford. About 1844 or 5, he began to reside in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he was a highly respected physician until his death. He was thrice married.

1840.

JOHN BURROUGHS ALLEY died in Boston, Mass., April 29, 1862, aged 41.

He was the son of Nathaniel Alley, and was born in Boston, April 25, 1821.

He graduated in the Medical School of Harvard University, in 1844, and then spent two years in Europe, chiefly in Paris, pursuing his medical studies. From that time till his decease he resided in Boston, an active and useful member of the medical profession.

For several years he was Superintendent of the Boston Dispensary. He was also Secretary, and, for a time, one of the Councillors of the Massachusetts Medical Society. In these and other responsible positions, he discharged his duties with fidelity and efficiency; but from delicacy of health, or other causes, he did not enter extensively into the practice of his profession. He was never married, but devoted himself to his widowed sister and her children.

1841.

WILLIAM HENRY PORTER died in Roxbury, Mass., May 26, 1861, aged 43.

He was born in Rye, N. H., Sept. 19, 1817, and was one of the eighteen children of Rev. Huntington Porter, formerly pastor of the church in that place. After a preliminary course of study in Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., he entered College in 1837, with his twin brother, Charles Henry Porter, who died after completing his Sophomore year.

He studied Theology one year in the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, one year in the Theological Department of Yale College, and a few months at Lynn, Mass., under the instruction of his father. In the Spring of 1844 he was licensed to preach. In the Autumn of 1845 he was settled over a Presbyterian church in Litchfield, N. H., where he remained as pastor four years. In 1851 he united with the New Jerusalem, or Swedenborgian Society, in Boston, Mass.

On the 19th of May, 1844, he married Miss Mary Frances, daughter of Hon. Paul Wentworth, of New Hampshire. He had several children, the eldest of whom, a daughter, died in 1850.

He published "Common and Scriptural Proverbs Compared," 1845, and "The Heavenly Union, or New Jerusalem on Earth," 1850.

1842.

WILLIAM SIDNEY HUGGINS died in Kalamazoo, Michigan, March 23, 1862, aged 40.

He was born in New Haven, Conn., March 19, 1822.

For three years after leaving College, he was engaged as a private tutor in Judge Couper's family, Glynn Co., Georgia, and then for three years he was a member of the Yale Theological Seminary. He visited Europe in 1836. The next year he was licensed to preach, but for want of good health he was not settled as a Pastor until November 1852, when he was ordained and installed over the Congregational church in Whitewater, Wisconsin. This charge he was soon compelled by ill health to give up. In September 1854, he was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church in Kalamazoo, Michigan, and there he remained until his death.

He married, in Oct. 1854, Mary Frances Smith, daughter of Hon. A. D. Smith, of Milwaukee.

JAMES MERIT RANDALL died in Woburn, Mass., August 2, 1861. He was smitten with apoplexy the day previous, at his office in Boston.

He was born in Millbury, Mass., June 21, 1817.

The first year after graduating, he spent as private tutor, in Gloucester Co., Va. After studying law in Worcester Co., Mass., and in Boston, he was admitted to the bar July 30, 1845.

He was engaged in the practice of his profession, in Boston, Mass., up to the day previous to his death.

He married, March 9, 1846, Miss Ann R. Munroe, of Lexington, Mass., and leaves three children, one child having died in 1856.

1843.

FREDERICK MOORE LATHROP died in Hartford, Conn., Oct. 14, 1860, aged 38.

He was the son of John and Nancy (Moore) Lathrop, and was born in Norwich, Conn., May 24, 1822.

After graduating, he entered the Harvard Law School, and subsequently pursued the study of law under the private instruction of Hon. J. A. Rockwell, of Norwich, and Judge Waite, of Lyme.

He was admitted to the bar in New London Co., in June, 1846, and resided in his native city till 1853, engaged in practice. He then removed to Chicago, Ill., continuing his professional practice, with a brief interruption, till a few months prior to his death. His health suffering from close study and insufficient exercise, he entered the Retreat for the Insane, at Hartford, Conn., Aug. 22, 1860, and died there of paralysis.

He was unmarried.

1844.

ARCHELAUS WILSON died in New Britain, Conn., Feb. 26, 1862, aged 44.

He was son of the late Judge Wilson, of New Hampshire, and was born in 1818.

After studying law he was admitted to the bar and began to practice in Manchester, New Hampshire. He afterwards removed to Boston, and subsequently to New York. In addition to his professional duties, he devoted himself to telegraphic improvement, especially to an arrangement for lighting numerous gas burners at the same instant. His hopes were cut off by a disease of the lungs which terminated fatally.

He married Julia A., daughter of the late E. A. Andrews, LL. D.

1846.

JEFFERSON FRANKLIN JACKSON died in Montgomery, Ala., March 27, 1862, aged 40.

He was a member of the law firm of Watts, Judge & Jackson.

1847.

HENRY CHRISTIAN KUTZ died in Wilkesbarre, Penn., April 24, 1862, aged 34.

He was born July 4, 1827.

After studying law in the office of Hon. Joel Jones, of Philadelphia, he was admitted to the bar in that place, and he continued to practice there till a few months before his death. He accepted, in the Spring of 1861, a Major's commission on the staff of Brig. Gen. Pleasonton, and discharged its duties with success till mortal disease interrupted his labors.

1848.

FREDERICK PACKARD died of consumption, after a short illness, in Philadelphia, July 18, 1862, aged 34 years.

He was son of Frederick A. and Elizabeth D. (Hooker) Packard, and was born in Springfield, Mass., July 21, 1828.

He entered the class as Sophomore resident in Philadelphia. After graduating, he studied law in the office of S. H. Perkins Esq., in Philadelphia, and subsequently in the Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the bar at Green Bay, Wisconsin, Oct. 7, 1850, and immediately commenced the practice of law at Appleton, Lower Fox River Valley, in the same State. He followed his profession in that place with diligence and success until a few weeks before his death.

He married Miss Ellen M. Hall of Geneva, N. Y.

JOHN RICHARD WATROUS died in Madison, N. J., June 12, 1861, aged 35.

He was the son of John L. and Laura (Isham) Watrous, and was born in Colchester, Conn., June 27, 1826.

He studied in Yale Law School, but did not enter on the practice. He resided with his father, in Auburn, N. Y., engaged in a bank there, until he was compelled by declining health to seek a more favorable climate. In the Autumn of 1860 he removed to Madison, N. J., where he purchased a little place, well stocked with fruits, in the care of which he hoped, but in vain, to recover his lost health.

He was unmarried.

1849.

HAMILTON COUPER died at Manassas Junction, Va., in March, 1862, aged 33.

He was the son of James Hamilton Couper, (Y. C. 1814,) of St. Simon's Island, Georgia, and was born in Glynn Co., Georgia, Jan. 11, 1829.

He entered Yale College at the beginning of Sophomore year. After graduating, he studied law in Georgia, then in the school at Cambridge, Mass., and afterwards in the office of Daniel Lord, Esq., New York City. In 1853 he was admitted to the bar in Brunswick, Georgia. The same year he established himself as a lawyer in Savannah, and continued in the practice of his profession at that place till 1861. Soon after the secession ordinance was passed in the State of Georgia, he joined the Confederate army as Captain in Bartow's Georgia Regiment and commanded the company which, under the orders of the Governor of the State, took possession of Fort Pulaski about a year since. He was afterwards promoted to the rank of Major or Lieut. Colonel.

He died in the hospital at Manassas of typhoid fever, a short time previous to the evacuation of that post by the Confederate forces.

1850.

SAMUEL H. EDWARDS died in Syracuse, N. Y., March 17, 1862, aged 30.

He was son of Hon. Samuel L. Edwards, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in Onondaga County, N. Y., and was born in Manlius, N. Y., December 27, 1831.

After studying law in his native town, he was admitted to the bar in Jan. 1853, and began his professional practice first in Manlius and then in Buffalo. In 1858 he removed to Syracuse, N. Y., and continued to be there engaged in his profession until his death.

He was married in November, 1861, to Virginia, daughter of Hon. Wm. H. Shankland.

1851.

JAMES MADISON SPENCER died in Lafayette, Ind., March 4, 1862, aged 32.

He was born in 1830.

He had been for several years engaged in business in Lafayette, Ind.

1852.

DUDLEY PEET died in New York City, April 18, 1862, aged 31.

He was the third and youngest son of Dr. Harvey P. Peet, (Y. C. 1822) and Margaret M. (Lewis) Peet, and was born at Hartford, Conn., July 9, 1830.

He studied medicine in the college of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, and received from that Institution the degree of M. D. in 1856, and for a short time pursued the practice of his profession in New York City. In 1857 he removed to Burlington, Iowa, and was occupied there as a physician for the next two years. He was then invited to become one of the instructors in the N. Y. Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, with which his father and two elder brothers had been long connected. He was well fitted for this work, and during the three closing years of his short life, distinguished himself by the zeal and the success with which he labored for the education of deaf mutes.

He married, Jan. 27, 1857, Miss Caroline W. Hubbell, of New York, and left no children.

MYRON OLIVER ALLEN died in Lowell, Mass., Aug. 1, 1861, aged 30.

He was the only son of Rev. D. O. Allen, D. D., formerly Missionary of the American Board in India, and Myra W. Allen, and was born at Bombay, India, Feb. 15, 1832.

After graduation, he studied till 1854 in the Pennsylvania Medical College, where he received the degree of M. D. During the next Winter he acted as Demonstrator of Anatomy in the same Institution. In 1855 he began to practice medicine in Wenham, Mass. Several months before his decease, a disease which had twice interrupted his College course, compelled him to relinquish his profession, and he returned to his friends in Lowell to die. He wrote a History of Wenham, which was published by the town; (12mo. pp. 220;) and in many other ways he manifested his interest in the intellectual and moral improvement of the community in which he resided.

He was married in May, 1858, to Miss Susan W. Barnes.

1855.

JAMES McHOSE died in Brownsville, Minnesota, July 18, 1861, aged 36.

He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., June 20, 1825, and entered College from Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

He spent some time after graduating, in teaching in Illinois and Michigan, and was for a time engaged as a Home Missionary in Dubuque Co., Iowa. He worked his way through great difficulties into the Christian ministry, and graduated at the Andover Theological Seminary in 1860. He died of hemorrhage of the lungs.

He married Miss Sarah M. Willston, at Molina, Illinois, July 24, 1853.

1856.

NELSON BARTHOLOMEW died Nov. 21, 1861, in Philadelphia, Pa., aged 26 years.

He was the son of Adolphus and Lydia (Conant) Bartholomew, and was born in Hardwick, Mass., Dec. 29, 1834.

After studying law in the Cambridge Law School, he was admitted to the bar in Suffolk County, Mass., and commenced the practice of his profession in the town of Oxford, in August, 1858. His home was there until his death.

At the commencement of the present war, he raised by his own influence and exertion an entire company, and received a commission as First Lieutenant in Co. E. of the Fifteenth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers. The regiment was engaged at the battle of Balls Bluff. He died of the typhoid fever contracted in camp.

He was never married.

1857.

ALBERT WALDO DRAKE died in South Windsor, Conn., June 5, 1862, aged 27.

He was born in South Windsor, Conn., Feb. 21, 1835.

He entered the Junior Class in Yale College, after having been a member of Williams College. For two years he studied law in Hartford and New Haven, and was admitted to the bar in the Spring of 1859. He was a member of the Connecticut House of Representatives in 1859, from South Windsor. He afterwards began to practice law in Hartford. At the beginning of the present war, he was one of the earliest to enlist in Hartford. He was commissioned as First Lieutenant in Company A. of the First Regiment Conn. Vol., and served with distinction in the battle of Bull Run. He was subsequently appointed by the Governor, Lieut. Colonel of the 10th Regiment Conn. Vol. and as such was engaged in the battle of Roanoke Island. As acting Colonel of the same Regiment, he took part in the capture of Newbern, and he was then appointed Colonel of his Regiment. The failure of his health compelled him to seek repose at home, but consumption soon terminated his short and brave career.

1859.

EDMUND BRIDGES ALLIS died October 12, 1861, in East Whately, Mass., aged 25.

He was son of Josiah and Eliza (White) Allis, of East Whately, and was born Dec. 11, 1835. He was fitted for college at East Hampton, Mass.

After graduating he studied law for a year in the school at New Haven, and afterwards in New York City. His health failing, he sought recovery by a change of air and went to Kentucky, but he was soon obliged to return to his home in Massachusetts, where he died. He was unmarried.

SUMMARY.

Class	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1794	Thomas S. Williams, 84.	Hartford, Conn.	Dec. 15, 1861.
1795	Nathaniel Holley, 90,	Cincinnati, O.	Oct. 4, 1861.
"	David Smith, 94,	New Haven, Conn.	March 5, 1862.
1796	William H. Jones, 83,	Hartford, Conn.	Nov. 26, 1861.
1797	Seth P. Staples, 85,	New York City,	Nov. 6, 1861.
1799	Eli Ives, 82,	New Haven, Conn.	Oct. 8, 1861.
1801	Joseph Trumbull, 78,	Hartford, Conn.	Aug. 4, 1861.
1802	John Hough, 77,	Fort Wayne, Ind.	July 17, 1861.
"	Erastus Scranton, 84,	Burlington, Conn.	Oct. 5, 1861.
1803	William S. Darling, 78,	Bergen, N. J.	Oct. 26, 1861.
"	Minott Mitchell, 77,	White Plains, N. Y.	Feb. 20, 1862.
1806	Samuel H. Devotion, 79,	Windham, Conn.	May 7, 1862.
"	Thomas G. Waterman, 74,	Binghamton, N. Y.	Jan. 7, 1862.
1807	Abraham D. Baldwin, 74,	Greenfield Hill, Conn.	June 8, 1862.
"	David R. Dixon, 78,	Unadilla, Mich.	June 24, 1861.
1808	William Silliman, 73,	East Chester, N. Y.	Oct. 24, 1861.
"	Job Staples, 75,	Cranbury, Penn.	Sept. or Oct. 1861.
1809	Benjamin C. Meigs, 72,	New York City,	May 12, 1862.
1810	Jonathan Barnes, 72,	Middletown, Conn.	Dec. 24, 1861.
1812	Charles A. Goodrich, 72,	Hartford, Conn.	Jan. 4, 1862.
1813	Stephen M. Chester, 68,	Wethersfield, Conn.	April 14, 1862.
1814	John B. Hoyt, 68,	Coventry, N. Y.	July 4, 1862.
"	James Potter, 68,	Savannah, Ga.	Jan. 25, 1862.
"	Nathaniel S. Wheaton, 70,	Washington, Conn.	March 18, 1862.
1815	John S. Rogers, 64,	Rome, O.	Dec. 28, 1860.
1822	James W. Frisbie, 63,	Woodbridge, N. J.	Sept. 21, 1861.
"	Ithamar Pillsbury, 70,	Andover, Ill.	April 19, 1862.
1824	Frederick J. Judson, 58,	Bridgeport, Conn.	Feb. 6, 1862.
1826	William W. Dwight, 54,	New York City,	July 11, 1861.
"	William A. Larrard, 55,	New Haven, Conn.	Feb. 3, 1862.
1828	Levi H. Goddard, 53,	Norwich, Conn.	May 9, 1862.
"	John N. Lewis, 53,	Brooklyn, N. Y.	Oct. 5, 1861.
"	Isaac W. Stuart, 52,	Hartford, Conn.	Oct. 2, 1861.
1831	James H. Adams, 50,	Richland Dist., S. C.	July 27, 1861.
"	John A. Totten, 49,	New Haven, Conn.	Jan. 21, 1862.
"	Augustus Wynkoop, 50,	Kinderhook, N. Y.	Jan. 18, 1862.
1832	John J. A. Ebbetts, 48,	New York City,	Nov. 17, 1861.
1833	James T. Sherman, 47,	Trenton, N. J.	May 20, 1862.
1838	Thomas W. Williams, 51,	Emerald Grove, Wis.	July 27, 1861.
1839	Daniel Brooks, 47,	Brooklyn, N. Y.	Dec. 24, 1861.
1840	John B. Alley, 41,	Boston, Mass.	April 29, 1862.
1841	William H. Porter, 43,	Roxbury, Mass.	May 26, 1861.
1842	William S. Huggins, 40,	Kalamazoo, Mich.	March 23, 1862.
"	James M. Randall, 44,	Woburn, Mass.	Aug. 2, 1861.
1843	Frederick M. Lathrop, 38,	Hartford, Conn.	Oct. 14, 1860.
1844	Archelaus Wilson, 44,	New Britain, Conn.	Feb. 26, 1862.
1846	Jefferson F. Jackson, 40,	Montgomery, Ala.	March 27, 1862.
1847	Henry C. Kutz, 34,	Wilkesbarre, Penn.	April 24, 1862.
1848	Frederick Packard, 34,	Philadelphia, Penn.	July 18, 1862.
"	John R. Watrous, 35,	Madison, N. J.	June 12, 1861.
1849	Hamilton Couper, 33,	Manassas, Va.	March, 1862.
1850	Samuel H. Edwards, 30,	Syracuse, N. Y.	March 17, 1862.
1851	James M. Spencer, 32,	Lafayette, Ind.	March 4, 1862.
1852	Myron O. Allen, 30,	Lowell, Mass.	Aug. 1, 1861.
"	Dudley Peet, 31,	New York City,	April 18, 1862.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1855	James McHose, 36,	Brownsville, Min.	July 18, 1861.
1856	Nelson Bartholomew, 26,	Philadelphia, Penn.	Nov. 21, 1861.
1857	Albert W. Drake, 27,	South Windsor, Conn.	June 5, 1862.
1859	Edmund B. Allis, 25,	East Whately, Mass.	Oct. 12, 1861.

HONORARY A. M. (1838.)

Edward C. Herrick, 51,	New Haven, Conn.	June 11, 1862.
------------------------	------------------	----------------

Total Number,-----60.

Average age,-----57.

Of the deaths above enumerated

there occurred in	Connecticut	21
"	"	New York	13
"	"	Massachusetts	5
"	"	New Jersey	4
"	"	Pennsylvania	4
"	"	Ohio	2
"	"	Michigan	2
"	"	Indiana	2
	Va., Geo., S. C., Ala., Wisc., Ill., and Min.,	1 each.	7

Among the deceased were

Lawyers	21
Clergymen	15
Physicians	9
Variously employed	15

The four oldest surviving graduates are now

Class of 1787	JOSHUA DEWEY, aged 94; of Brooklyn, N. Y.
"	1788 DANIEL WALDO, aged 97; of Syracuse, N. Y.
"	1792 WILLIAM BOTSFORD, aged 88; of Westmoreland Co., New Brunswick.
"	1791 DAVID SHERMAN BOARDMAN, aged 93; of New Milford, Conn.

Of the graduates ad eundem and honorary, the oldest survivor is

1792 JOSIAH QUINCY, who graduated at Harvard in 1790, and is the oldest living graduate of that University.

Of those who graduated before 1801 there now survive 26.

The number of the regular graduates (A. B.) of the College to the year 1862 inclusive, is 7116, of whom 3702 are dead.

The average annual number of deaths among the academical graduates for the last few years has probably been about 60. Some of the deaths are of course not ascertainable by the reporter until many years after their occurrence.

 The graduates of the College, and all other persons who are interested in the publication of this obituary, are requested to communicate fresh intelligence respecting the deaths of Yale Graduates, in any of the departments, to the Librarian of Yale College.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page	Class.	Page.
1831 Adams, James H.	68	1843 Lathrop, Frederic M.	72
1852 Allen, Myron O.	76	1828 Lewis, John N.	68
1840 Alley, John B.	71	1855 McHose, James.	76
1859 Allis, Edmund B.	77	1809 Meigs, Benjamin C.	61
1807 Baldwin, Abraham D.	60	1803 Mitchell, Minott.	59
1810 Barnes, Jonathan.	62	1848 Packard, Frederick.	73
1856 Bartholomew, Nelson.	76	1852 Peet, Dudley.	75
1839 Brooks, Daniel.	70	1822 Pillsbury, Ithamar.	65
1813 Chester, Stephen M.	63	1841 Porter, William H.	71
1849 Couper, Hamilton,	74	1814 Potter, James.	64
1803 Darling, William S.	59	1842 Randall, James M.	72
1806 Devotion, Samuel H.	59	1815 Rogers, John S.	65
1807 Dixon, David R.	60	1802 Scranton, Erastus.	58
1857 Drake, Albert W.	77	1833 Sherman, James T.	70
1826 Dwight, William W.	66	1808 Silliman, William.	61
1832 Ebbetts, John J. A.	69	1851 Spencer, James M.	75
1850 Edwards, Samuel H.	75	1795 Smith, David.	54
1822 Frisbie, Jas. W.	65	1808 Staples, Job.	61
1828 Goddard, Levi H.	67	1797 Staples, Seth P.	55
1812 Goodrich, Charles A.	62	1828 Stuart, Isaac W.	68
1795 Holley, Nathaniel.	54	1831 Totten, John A.	69
1802 Hough, John.	57	1801 Trumbull, Joseph.	57
1814 Hoyt, John B.	63	1806 Waterman, Thomas G.	59
1842 Huggins, William H.	72	1848 Watrous, John R.	74
1799 Ives, Eli.	56	1814 Wheaton, Nathaniel S.	64
1846 Jackson, Jefferson F.	73	1794 Williams, Thomas S.	53
1796 Jones, William H.	55	1838 Williams, Thomas W.	70
1824 Judson, Frederick J.	66	1844 Wil-on, Archelaus.	73
1847 Kutz, Henry C.	73	1831 Wynkoop, Augustus.	69
1826 Larned, William A.	66

CORRECTIONS.

Page 10, line 28, for June read May.

" 24, " 36, for New London, Pa., read Northern Liberties, Phil.

" 33, " 37, for about 55, read 57, (died June 12, 1859.)

OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY 1863, INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED THE YEAR
PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 29, 1863.]

[No. 4 of the printed Series, and No. 22 of the whole Record.]

THE NEW YORK

Public Library, Astor Lenox and Tilden Foundations

100 N. 4th St. New York, N. Y. 10003
Telephone: (212) 555-2400

Open daily, 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Closed on Sundays and public holidays

For information, call (212) 555-2400

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

deceased during the academical year ending in July 1863, including the record of a few who died the year previous, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 29th, 1863.]

[No. 4 of the printed Series, and No. 22 of the whole Record.]

1795.

JOHN ADAMS was born in Canterbury, Conn., September 18, 1772.

His father was John Adams, an officer in the Revolution, and a lineal descendant of Henry Adams, who fled with eight sons from Devonshire, Eng., to the province of Massachusetts.

After graduation, he taught the academy in his native town for three years. In 1800, he was appointed Rector of Plainfield Academy, and in 1803, Preceptor of Bacon Academy, in Colchester, Conn. In June 1810, he was chosen Principal of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in which office he continued twenty three years. In 1833 he resigned this position, and removed with some of his family to Illinois where he invested his property in the new lands.

Possessed of a constitution of unusual soundness, he discovered that in his 72d year he had both the power and opportunity of doing great good. Always interested in the young, he volunteered his services for their advantage, and after he had passed the period allotted to man, organized in the state of his adoption, several hundred sabbath schools, many of which have grown into churches.

Eminent as a teacher of the classics, he was also specially wise and faithful in the religious education of his numerous pupils. He has left copious manuscripts illustrative of the art of mental management in educating and governing the young.

When resident in Andover he took part in the organization of several of the great national charities of the country.

The degree of LL. D. was conferred on him by his Alma Mater in 1854.

He married Elizabeth Ripley of Scotland, (Windham) Conn., (a lineal descendant of Gov. Wm. Bradford of the Mayflower) who was the mother of his eleven children,—seven of whom survive him. His three sons are graduates of Yale College in the classes of 1821, 1825, and 1827.

He died in Jacksonville, Illinois, April 24, 1863, in his 91st year, retaining to the last the full possession of his faculties, a sound judgement, and a most cheerful Christian hope. A discourse delivered at his funeral by Rev. L. M. Glover, has been printed.

1797.

LYMAN BEECHER was born in New Haven, Conn., Sept. 12, 1775, the son of David and Catherine (Lyman) Beecher. His early life was spent in the family of his uncle, Lot Benton of North Guilford, where he was fitted for college by the Rev. Thos. W. Bray, (Y. C. 1765,) minister of the parish.

After a course of theological study at New Haven, directed by President Dwight, he was licensed to preach in Sept. 1798, and soon afterwards began to supply the pulpit of the Presbyterian church at East Hampton, L. I., where he was ordained in Sept. 1799. In 1810 he accepted an invitation to the First Congregational Church in Litchfield, Conn., where he was installed as Pastor in the month of June, and where he remained till March 1826, "the most laborious part of his life," according to his own statement.

In 1826 he removed to Boston and became Pastor of the Hanover Church in that City where he remained for six years and a half, and was actively concerned in the theological controversies of the day. While residing here his celebrated "Sermons on Intemperance" were first printed.

When he was nearly sixty years old he was invited in 1832, to become President of Lane Theological Seminary near Cincinnati, and a large amount of money was pledged to the institution on condition of his acceptance. The duties of this position he discharged for nineteen years, during the earliest half of which he also acted as the minister of the 2d Presbyterian Church in Cincinnati. His name was retained as the official head of the seminary until his death.

In 1851, he returned to Boston from the West, and subsequently removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where his declining years were passed. He died in that city, Jan. 10, 1863, aged 87 years. His remains were brought to New Haven and interred, according to his own request, by the side of Rev. Dr. N. W. Taylor. A funeral discourse preached in Brooklyn, by Rev. L. Bacon, D. D., was printed, as was also the eulogy pronounced in Cincinnati by Rev. Prof. Allen of Lane Seminary.

Dr. Beecher was the author of a large number of published sermons and addresses. He was also a frequent contributor to various theological magazines, especially to the Christian Spectator, the Connecticut Observer, the Spirit of the Pilgrims. A collection of some of his writings, in three volumes duodecimo was made under his own supervision. His eminence as a pulpit orator, and his efficiency as the head of a theological seminary, are every where acknowledged.

He was thrice married, and was the father of thirteen children, ten of whom survive him. Several of them are eminent in their theological and literary reputation. The eldest, Rev. Edward Beecher, graduated at Yale College in 1822.

1800.

THOMAS BARNARD STRONG died in Pittsfield, Mass., May 24, 1863, aged 83.

He was born in New Marlboro, Mass., and in early life removed to Pittsfield, Mass., the home of his uncle Ashbel Strong, Esq., (Y. C. 1776,) by whom he was adopted. After leaving college he studied law with this relative, but neither choice nor pecuniary necessity led him to engage in the practice of his profession.

1803.

RINALDO BURLEIGH, son of John and Persis (Hayward) Burleigh, was born at Ashford, Ct., Feb. 20, 1774, and died in Plainfield, Conn., February 10, 1863, aged nearly 89 years.

His grandfather John Burleigh, came to this country at the age of 14 years, with Gov. Belcher of Mass. in 1730. Rinaldo Burleigh, having lost an arm while a boy, determined to obtain a liberal education, and by dint of difficult and persevering exertions, he succeeded, almost unaided, in fitting himself to enter college.

He chose teaching as his occupation in life, and acted successively as preceptor of the academies in Colchester, Woodstock and Plainfield, Conn., and was widely known as an accurate scholar and a successful teacher. For over forty five years from 1817, he was a Deacon in the Congregational Church in Plainfield. He was also among the foremost to advocate the abolition of slavery, and to help forward other social reforms.

During the last sixteen years of his life, he was afflicted with total blindness, arising it is said from excessive study.

He married Lydia Bradford of Canterbury, a descendant of Gov. Wm. Bradford. Five of his nine children survive ;—four of them sons, who are widely known both as writers and public speakers.

1805.

AARON HERVEY KELSEY died in Killingworth, Conn., July 4, 1863 in the 80th year of his age.

1806.

HENRY CARLETON died in Philadelphia, March 28, 1863 in his 78th year.

Henry Carleton Coxe was born in Virginia, and entered college from Athens, Georgia. After leaving college, he dropped the surname Coxe, removed to Mississippi, and finally established himself at New Orleans in 1814. He served as a Lieutenant of Infantry, under Gen. Jackson, in the campaign which terminated Jan. 8, 1815. He then actively engaged in the profession of the Law, and soon after, in connection with Mr. L. Moreau, he began the translation of those portions of Las Siete Partidas, a celebrated Spanish code of Law, which were observed in Louisiana. In 1832 he was appointed U. S. District Attorney for the Eastern District of Louisiana. He was afterward appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of the same State, which post he resigned on account of ill health in 1839.

He visited Europe several times and traveled extensively in this country, and finally, a number of years since, took up his residence in Philadelphia. He devoted much attention to biblical, theological and metaphysical studies, and published in 1857 a volume on "Liberty and Necessity." A few days before his death he read an essay on the Will, before the American Philosophical Society. Notwithstanding his early life in the south and the exposure of his property to confiscation by the Confederates, he adhered uncompromisingly to the Constitution and the Union.

He was twice married,—first to Mlle. d' Avezac de Castera, (a sister of Mrs. Edward Livingston,) and after her death to Miss Vanderburgh.

HEZEKIAH GOLD UFFORD died in Stratford, Conn., Jan. 23d, 1863, in his 84th year.

He was son of Samuel and Abigail (Gold) Ufford, and was born in Stratford, April 14th, 1779. •

He fitted for College with Rev. Ira Hart, of Middlebury, Conn., studied Theology with Dr. Dwight, and was licensed by the Fairfield East Association. His strength of voice not allowing him to speak in public, he accepted an invitation to become principal of an academy in Bloomingdale, N. Y., and he subsequently devoted many years to the work of a classical teacher in New York and in his native town. He retained his habits of classical study to the close of his life.

In 1823 he published a Logic which was considered a work of merit.

He married, March 19th, 1812, Miss Julia Hine, of Woodbridge, who, with four children, survives him.

MARTIN WELLES, son of Gen. Roger, (Y. C. 1775,) an officer in the Revolutionary army, and Jemima (Kellogg) Welles, was born in Wethersfield, Conn., Dec. 7, 1787, where he resided during most of his life.

Having studied Law with Samuel Cowles, Esq., of Farmington, he opened an office in that place. Subsequently he was admitted to the bar in the State of New York, and began to practise his profession first at Newburgh, and afterwards in the city of New York. His health failing he returned to his native place, and refrained for a time from professional activity. During this period he interested himself in planning and superintending the Connecticut State Prison, in the establishment of which at Wethersfield he was the chief instrument.

He was chosen to the House of Representatives in 1824, 5, 6, 7, and also in 1831 and 2. During the first three years of his membership he was Clerk, and during the last two he was Speaker of that body. In 1827, 8 and 9, he was a member of the State Senate, being in 1827 elected to both Houses. While a Senator he was a member of the Corporation of Yale College. He was also an associate Judge on the bench of the Hartford County Court.

During the last fifteen years of his life he was engaged with energy and success in the practice of his profession in Hartford.

His death occurred at Martin, Ottawa County, Ohio, January 19, 1863, at the age of 76 years.

He married Fanny, daughter of Reuben S. Norton, of Farmington.

1809.

ALFRED HEYLIGER was the son of John and Elizabeth (Solomons) Heyliger, and was born in New Haven, July 19, 1788 ?

He was for many years a dry goods merchant in his native town, where he lived in later days a life of great retirement.

He died in New Haven, July 5, 1863, aged about 75 years.

1810.

DYAR THROOP BRAINARD was born in 1790, in New London, Conn., the son of Hon. Jeremiah G. (Y. C. 1779) and Sarah (Gardiner) Brainard. Two of his brothers graduated at Yale College, William F., in 1802, and John G. C., in 1815.

After leaving college he studied medicine, and entered upon its practice in his native place, where he continued to reside until his death, highly respected for his professional skill and for his excellent character.

He was never married, but devoted himself with paternal care to the bereaved children of his brother.

His death occurred in New London, February, 6, 1863, aged 73 years.

FREDERICK GRIMKE died in Chillicothe, Ohio, March 8, 1863.

He was born in Charleston, S. C., Sept. 1, 1791, and was a brother of Hon. Thos. S. Grimké, (Y. C. 1807.)

Having devoted himself to the profession of Law, he removed to Ohio, where for several years he was Presiding Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in one of the circuits of that State. In 1836, he was elected by the Legislature a Judge of the Supreme Court, which post he held for the next seven years.

He published a work entitled "Considerations upon the Nature and Tendency of Free Institutions," (Cincinnati, 1848, 8vo. pp. 544,) and an essay on Ancient and Modern Literature.

He left a fund to his executor to provide for the publication of a collection of his various writings in two volumes octavo.

1811.

ROGER SHERMAN BALDWIN, second son of Simeon (Y. C. 1781) and Rebecca (Sherman) Baldwin, was born January 4, 1793, in New Haven, where he resided through life.

After leaving college, he studied law in his father's office in New Haven, and also in the Litchfield Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1814. Although repeatedly called into public office, he devoted himself through life to the profession of his choice, attaining the highest distinction, especially in the discussion of questions of law. His defence in 1841, of the rights of the Africans of the Amistad, is celebrated both on account of its marked ability, and also because of the peculiar interest which was felt in these unfortunate captives.

After having been a member of the city government in New Haven, in 1826 and 1828, Mr. Baldwin was elected in 1837 and again in 1838, a member of the State Senate. In 1840 and in 1841 he represented the town of New Haven in the General Assembly. He was chosen Governor of the State in 1844 and was reelected in 1845. On the death of Hon. J. W. Huntington in 1847, Mr. Baldwin was appointed by Governor Bissell to fill the vacancy thus occasioned in the United States Senate, and in December of that year he took his seat as a member of that body. He was elected by the Legislature in the following May to the same position, which he held till 1851. Since that period he has held no public office, except that he was one of the presidential electors in the canvass of 1860, and by appointment of Gov. Buckingham was a delegate to the Peace Convention which met in Washington, in 1861, by request of the State of Virginia. In all his career as a statesman he was distinguished for the wisdom of his counsels, the purity of his character, and an unswerving devotion to the progress of Liberty.

The death of Governor Baldwin occurred in New Haven, February 19, 1863, at the age of 70. A biographical discourse was pronounced at his funeral by Rev. Dr. Dutton, which was printed in the New Englander for April, 1863, and was also published as a pamphlet.

Mr. Baldwin was married in 1820 to Miss Emily Perkins of Hartford. Four of their nine children are surviving. The two eldest sons, graduates of Yale College in 1842 and 1847, died in early manhood. His younger sons were graduated in 1853 and 1861.

RALPH EMERSON, formerly Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Pastoral Theology in the Andover Theological Seminary, died at Rockford, Illinois, May 26, 1863, aged nearly 76.

He was born, Aug. 18, 1787, in Hollis, N. H., where his father was a leading citizen, and where his grandfather, Rev. Daniel Emerson (H. C. 1739) was a Pastor from 1743 to 1801.

After studying theology at Andover, he held the office of Tutor in Yale College, from 1814 to 1816, and at the close of this service he was ordained and installed as Pastor of the Congregational Church in Norfolk, Conn. Here he remained till 1829, when he was appointed Professor in the Theological Seminary at Andover,—an office which he retained through a period of twenty-five years till April, 1854. The next five years he resided at Newburyport, Mass., after which he removed to Rockford, Ill., for the sake of being near his children. While at the west, he repeated by request his lectures on the History of Christian Doctrine, to the students of the Chicago Congregational Theological Seminary. He was a contributor to the Bibliotheca Sacra and the Christian Spectator, and to other religious periodicals. He also published a life of his brother, Rev. Joseph Emerson, and a translation, with notes, of a work on Augustinism and Pelagianism, by C. F. Wiggins.

He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Yale College in 1830.

He was married in 1817 to Miss Eliza Rockwell who survives him. Three of his sons have entered the ministry and one is a lawyer.

A sermon was preached at his funeral by his son-in-law, Rev. Prof. Haven, and his body was interred at Beloit, Wisconsin.

HENRY COLLINS FLAGG was born in the parish of St. Thomas, near Charleston, S. C., January 5, 1792, and died March 8, 1863, aged 71 years. His father, whose exact name he bore, was a native of Rhode Island, who served through the Revolutionary war. His mother was Miss Moore.

Some of his early studies were pursued in Newport, Rhode Island. After leaving college he returned to South Carolina, and remained there for some years. He then came back to New Haven, studied law with S. P. Staples, Esq., and began to engage in its practice. He took an active part in the political movements opposed to the Federalist party in Connecticut, both as a public speaker and as an editor of the Connecticut Herald, which he had purchased. He was also Clerk of the New Haven County Court.

About 1824, he returned to South Carolina, where he practiced law till 1833.

Designing to educate his children at the North, he then again took up his residence in New Haven, where his home continued till his death. He practiced law till 1842 when he retired. From 1834 to 1839 he held the office of Mayor of New Haven.

He married, March 20, 1811, Miss Martha Whiting, daughter of Joseph Whiting, Esq., who survives him; and six of their seven children are also still living.

Mr. Flagg's attachment to his native State was strong, but his devotion to the Union was stronger, and like his friend, Petigru, with whom, side by side, he withstood the nullifiers in 1832, he was true to the last.

1812.

DENNIS KIMBERLY was born October 23, 1790, in what was then a part of New Haven, and is now the town of Orange. He was the youngest but one of the twelve children of Capt. Silas and Sarah (Smith) Kimberly. He was fitted for college in the school at Litchfield South Farms.

His chosen profession was the law, which he studied in Springfield with Geo. Bliss, Esq., and in Fairfield with Hon. Roger M. Sherman. In March, 1814, he was admitted to the bar in New Haven, where he soon acquired a solid reputation.

In early life he bestowed much time on military affairs, holding finally the rank of Major General in the State Militia. Other public offices were thrust upon him.

He was a member of the House of Representatives in 1826, 27, 28, 29, 32 and 35. In 1831 he held the office of Mayor of the city and was reëlected in 1833 but declined the appointment.

In 1838 he was chosen by the Legislature of Connecticut, a Senator of the United States, but after deliberation, he decided not to enter upon the office. He also declined a nomination for Governor at a time when his election was regarded as certain. A few years later, from 1845 to 1848, he was States Attorney for New Haven County.

On account of impaired health, Gen. Kimberly, in July, 1852, began a tour in Europe, from which he returned in May, 1854, somewhat better, but he was far from being well during the closing years of his life. He continued to pay some attention to his professional business, and especially to the affairs of the N. Y. & N. H. Railroad Co., in which he was a Director, until a few months before his death. This event occurred in New Haven, December 15, 1862, in his 73d year.

A discourse, commemorative of his life, was preached by Rev. E. L. Cleaveland, D. D., and was printed. (New Haven. 22 pp. 8vo.)

1814.

HENRY DWIGHT CHAPIN died at Flushing L. I. July 14, 1862, in the 69th year of his age.

He entered College from Wilbraham, Mass. After practicing law for many years in Prince George's County, Maryland, he removed to Baltimore, and subsequently, about twenty years ago, to the City of New York.

In 1849 he removed to a country residence in Flushing, L. I., where he resided till his death.

ISAAC ADRIANCE was born of Dutch ancestry in Harlem, New York City, Feb. 13, 1794, and died in New York, Aug. 26, 1862, aged 68 years and 6 months.

At an early age he was sent to the boarding-school of Dr. Smith, of Stamford, Conn., where he fitted for college. After graduating he studied law in the office of Richard Riker, Esq., then Recorder of New York, and on the completion of these studies he immediately began to reside in the town of Geneva, N. Y., Preferring however a home in his native city, he soon returned to New York, where he practiced law till the time of his death. He was successful in his profession and assiduous in his attention to business. He also filled a number of public offices of trust. It was his skill which devised the present system of taxation in the city, by which order was brought out of great disorder.

He married, Dec. 28, 1830, Miss Margaret E. McGown. His widow and three of their four children survive him.

1817.

JONATHAN PRESCOTT HALL died in Newport, R. I., September, 1862, aged 67 years.

He was a native of Pomfret, Conn.

He was engaged in the practice of law in New York City, where he rose to distinction, and held the office of U. S. District Attorney, by appointment of President Taylor.

He published two volumes of Law Reports, entitled "Reports of Cases in the Superior Court of the City of New York, 1828-9." (New York, 1831-3, 2 v. 8vo.)

He married Miss De Wolf.

WYLLIS LYMAN died in Burlington, Vt., December 1, 1862.

He came to college from Hartford, Vt., in which place, after a course of professional study at Cambridge, he began to practice law. He was repeatedly a member of the Legislature.

During the latter portion of his life he resided in Burlington.

1820.

CHARLES HOOKER, son of William and Hannah Hooker, was a native of Berlin, (Kensington) Conn., and a descendant of Thomas Hooker, the first minister of Hartford.

He was born March 22, 1799, and died in New Haven, March 19, 1863, aged 64 years.

He pursued his medical studies in the school at New Haven, where he graduated in 1823. He immediately began the practice of his profession in this city, which he followed with constancy and success, during a period of forty years. In 1838, he was appointed Professor of Anatomy and Physiology in Yale College, and he discharged the duties of this post until his death, acting also as Dean of the medical faculty.

He took an active part in public affairs related to his profession and was interested especially in the management of the Connecticut State Hospital, in which he was a Director and one of the attending physicians from the time of its foundation.

He was the author of various medical essays, which were printed.

He was married in 1823 to Miss Eliza Beers.

1821.

JOHN ADAMS TAINTOR, only son of Hon. Roger Taintor, was born in 1800, in Hampton, Conn., and was fitted for college at Bacon academy, Colchester.

Soon after graduating he made an extended tour in Europe, and after his return he married and engaged in mercantile business in Springfield, Mass. In 1834 he removed to Hartford, and about the year 1840 he began to engage in the importation of the best breeds of sheep from Spain and Saxony. Subsequently he paid much attention to neat cattle and was the first to introduce the Alderney stock into New England. He was of great service to the country by these efforts for the improvement of stock.

He was married in 1831 to Miss Adelia Croade, and left two children. His death occurred suddenly in Hartford, November 15, 1862, at the age of 62 years.

PHINEAS BACON WILCOX died in Columbus, Ohio, March 25, 1863, aged 67 years.

He came to college from Middletown, Conn.

He was a lawyer by profession, and was engaged in an extended and successful practice in Columbus, Ohio, from the time of his removal to that place, about forty years ago, paying particular attention to the titles of land.

He was the author of several important professional volumes, among them,—the 10th volume of Ohio Reports, (Columbus, 1840) and several volumes of condensed and digested Ohio Reports.

His earnest and religious character is evinced in more than one printed pamphlet, especially in a brief essay entitled "A few thoughts by a member of the bar," (Columbus: 1836, 18mo.) He married in 1821 Miss Sarah D. Andrews and left two children.

1822.

JONATHAN DORR BRADLEY died in Brattleboro, Vermont, September 8, 1862, aged 59 years, 5 months.

He was the son of the Hon. William C. Bradley, and was born in Westminster, Vt., April, 1803.

He entered upon the profession of the Law, and was settled first at Bellows Falls, and afterwards at Brattleboro, Vermont. To his legal attainments, he added unusual acquisitions in literature and science.

In 1856 and 1857 he represented the town of Brattleboro in the Legislature, and he was also a member of the Board of Education in Vermont, from its organization until his death.

He has left a widow and four sons.

1823.

NORMAN PINNEY died in New Orleans, October 1, 1862, aged 58 years.

He was born in Simsbury, Conn., Oct. 21, 1804.

In 1826 he became a tutor in Trinity College, Hartford, and in 1828, Professor of the Ancient Languages in the same institution. This position he relinquished in 1831.

He was admitted by Bishop Brownell to the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and was settled for a time at Mobile, but coming to differ from the doctrines of that church, he gave up his charge and devoted himself to the education of the young.

He was the author of a well known series of text-books for instruction in the French Language.

1825.

JOSEPH HULBERT NICHOLS was born, August 20, 1805, at Newtown, Conn., and there resided until 1815, when his parents removed to New York City. He fitted for college in the Episcopal Academy at Cheshire, Conn.

After attending a course of medical lectures in New York, he studied law with Seth P. Staples, Esq., and also in the Litchfield Law School. He was admitted to the bar in 1828, at Albany, but soon gave up the profession of law and fitted himself for the ministry by a course of study in the General Episcopal Theological Seminary in New York. He graduated there in 1831, and was immediately ordained by Bishop Onderdonk. He was then called to Richmond, Va., to assist Bishop Moore in the Monumental Church; his health failing, he returned to his native town and then from 1832 to 1839 was Rector of Christ Church, Greenwich, Conn. He subsequently became assistant Minister of Trinity Church, New Haven, Conn., where he remained till 1846. After officiating as a minister in Bristol and Cheshire, he removed in 1851 to Racine, Wis., where he was rector of St. Luke's Church, until 1856, and Professor of English Literature in Racine College, till 1862. In 1862, he became chaplain of the 19th Reg. Wisconsin Volunteers, and went with his Regiment to Norfolk, Va., where he was prostrated by a fever, which brought on delirium, terminated by his death, Dec. 11, 1862, in the Government Hospital for the Insane. He was buried in Washington. He was well known as a writer in verse and prose. His poem on the Future was delivered as an Inaugural at Racine.

He married, Sept. 17, 1844, Louisa, daughter of Rev. Edward Rutledge, of New Haven.

ISAAC GURDON SEYMOUR was killed in battle near Richmond, Va., July 3, 1862.

He was of Connecticut ancestry, but came to college from Savannah, Ga.

He held for a time the office of President of the Bank of Macon, Ga., and afterwards removed to New Orleans.

He engaged in the war as Colonel of a Louisiana Regiment, having declined an appointment as a Brigadier General. He fell while storming the batteries of Gen. McClellan.

He married Caroline, daughter of Rev. Mr. Whitlock, of New Haven. She died in 1860, leaving an only son, who was taken prisoner at Fort Jackson, by the Union forces. The only daughter died in 1858.

1832.

JOHN BOWERS died in St. Johnsbury, Vt., February 4, 1863, aged 57 years and 4 months.

He was the son of Alpheus and Anna (Sumner) Bowers and was born in Thompson, Conn., Sept. 14, 1805.

After graduating in the Theological Seminary at Princeton in 1836, he taught for a year in Nichols Academy, Dudley, Mass., and having been licensed to preach by the Presbyery of Long Island in 1835, he was ordained Pastor of the Congregational church in Wilbraham, Mass., Dec. 13, 1837. This church he left in the spring of 1856, and after preaching nearly a year at Agawam Falls, he was invited to become Pastor of the 3d Congregational church in St. Johnsbury, where he was installed Feb. 4, 1858.

He was married in 1836 to Miss Maria Healey, of Dudley, Mass.

He published a thanksgiving discourse in 1843 and two discourses at the close of his ministry in Wilbraham.

1833.

ROBERT CARVER died at Orient, L. I., February 25, 1863, aged 52 years and 10 months.

He was born in Taunton, Mass., April 20, 1810, the son of David and Lydia Carver, of that town.

He studied theology in the Seminary at Andover, and after preaching at Phillipsburg, C. E., and Walden, Vt., he was ordained, November 21, 1838, as Pastor of a church lately formed in Berlin, Mass.

He resigned this post in 1842, attended lectures for six months in the seminary at New Haven, and then, during the winter of 1843-4, he supplied a pulpit in Lancaster, Grant Co., Wis. For two years afterward he was stationed in Cutchogue, L. I., and was subsequently installed, Dec. 1, 1847, in the town of Raynham, Mass., where he remained ten years. He then became connected with the Wheaton Female Seminary in Norton, and afterwards removed to Franklin, Mass.

At the opening of the present war he became Chaplain of the 7th Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, and continued with them, without a single furlough, through all their marches in Virginia. His health was seriously injured in the Peninsula campaign, and he was obliged to leave the army at Falmouth, Jan. 18, 1863, for the hospital at Georgetown. He was finally carried to the house of his father-in-law, at Orient, where he died after a few days. His body was taken to Taunton for burial and a commemorative discourse was preached by Rev. Mr. Maltby. He was married about 1846 to Mrs. Jane Ingram, daughter of Rev. Mr. Beers, of Cutchogue.

ASAHEL HOOKER LEWIS died in St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 25, 1862, aged 52 years.

He was the youngest son of Elias and Urania (Hooker) Lewis, of Farmington, Conn., and was born in that town, Sept. 11, 1810.

After studying Law with Hon. W. L. Storrs in Middletown, Conn., he removed to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1835, where he was for several years editor of the Cleveland Herald. He afterward resided in Ravenna and had charge of the "Ohio Star." In 1847 and '48 he represented the counties of Summit and Portage in the State Legislature—and in 1848 removed to Cincinnati, where he remained eight years, and was associated with Hon. Henry Starr in the practice of Law. Then he removed to Akron, O., and took the editorship of the "Beacon," which he retained for a number of years. In the autumn of 1861 he went to St. Louis, and became one of the editors of the "Missouri Democrat." His strength was unequal to his arduous labors, and he fell a victim to disease. He was married in 1843 to Miss Jennette, daughter of Christian Keene of Ravenna, O., and after her death, in 1848, to Miss Jane Platt. He leaves a son and two daughters.

1834.

JAMES ALEXANDER HAZEN died in Sprague, Conn., (Hanover Society,) Oct. 29, 1862, aged 49 years. He was the youngest of thirteen children, and was born in West Springfield, (now Agawam,) Mass., May 2, 1813. Having early been left an orphan, he was fitted for college by his brother, Rev. R. S. Hazen, (Y. C. 1818.) Serious illness while in college left him an invalid for life.

He studied theology at East Windsor, and was ordained Pastor of the Congregational church in South Wilbraham, Mass., early in the year 1839, where he remained ten years. After a brief agency in behalf of the seminary at East Windsor, he was installed pastor of the church in South Williamstown, Mass., where he remained four years and then became, in December 1852, minister of the church in Hanover Society, of Lisbon (now Sprague) Conn., where he remained till his death.

He was married to Miss Rockwell, of South Windsor, and after her death to Miss Grant, of Stafford. His widow and two of his four children survive.

1837.

WALTER THOMAS LENOX was born at Washington, D. C., Aug. 15, 1817.

He studied law in his native city and there began to pursue his profession.

For a time he was President of the Board of Aldermen in Washington, and in 1850 was Mayor.

At the beginning of the rebellion he went to Richmond, where he died in Jan. 1863, aged 45 years.

1838.

CHABLES RICH died in Beardstown, Illinois, October 31, 1862, aged 53 years.

He was a son of Capt. Benjamin and Susanna (Heath) Rich, and was born in Boston, September 12, 1809.

After fitting for college at the Boston Latin School, he went to sea and made several voyages, first as a sailor before the mast, and afterward as mate of a vessel. A change in his religious sentiments taking place, he determined to become a minister, entered Yale College and graduated at the age of twenty nine years.

After studying divinity at Andover, he was settled as a minister in Washington City, then in Nantucket, and finally in Buffalo. About the year 1853, he gave up preaching and entered into mercantile business in Beardstown, Illinois.

He married in 1840, Miss Clapp, of Pepperell, Mass., who, with two of their three children, survives him.

1840.

JOSEPH GIBSON HOYT died in St. Louis, November 26, 1862, after protracted suffering from consumption, aged nearly 48 years.

He was born in Dunbarton, N. H., Jan. 19, 1815, and fitted himself for college in the face of serious obstacles.

After completing his collegiate studies, he took charge of an academy at Plymouth, N. H., and in 1841, was appointed Instructor in Mathematics and Natural Philosophy in Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., where he remained for eighteen years.

He was here distinguished for the public spirit and energy with which he labored for the good of the community, and especially for the improvement of the common schools. In 1851 he was a member of the Convention for the revision of the State Constitution. In 1845-6 he revised Colton's Greek Reader, furnishing for it an entirely new lexicon.

His eminence as a scholar and teacher led to his appointment, in 1858, to be Chancellor and Professor of the Greek Language and Literature in Washington University, a newly established institution in St. Louis. He was formally inaugurated in Oct., 1859, and entered with bright promises of success, upon the duties of this office.

During his declining days he occupied some of his time in making a collection of his Miscellaneous writings, Addresses, Lectures, and Reviews, which was printed after his death, with an introductory note by Rev. Dr. A. P. Peabody, of Harvard College. (Boston, 1863, 8vo. pp.) A commemorative discourse, by Prof. S. Waterhouse, delivered in St. Louis, Jan. 20, 1863, has also been published.

He received the degree of LL. D. from Dartmouth College in 1859. In 1842 he married Miss Margaret S. Chamberlain, of Exeter. Five of their six children are still living.

1841.

EDWARD MILLS, son of Lewis Mills, of Morristown, N. J., was born Oct. 1, 1820, and died in Cincinnati, Ohio, December 5, 1862, aged 42 years.

For three years after graduation he studied law in his native town and then entered upon the practice of his profession in Cincinnati, where he continued until his death. In 1861 he made a visit to Europe.

1843.

JAMES HORTON DILL died near Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 14, 1863, aged 42 years.

He was born in Plymouth, Mass., Jan. 1, 1821.

After a course of theological study in the Seminary at New Haven, he was ordained Pastor of the First Congregational church in Winchester, Conn., Aug. 26th, 1846. He remained there till November, 1851. After passing a few months in study at New Haven, he was installed, in February 1852, as Pastor of the First Congregational church in Spencerport, New York.

In 1859 he removed to Chicago, and became the Pastor of the South Congregational church.

He became Chaplain of the 38th Regiment of Illinois Volunteers in the autumn of 1862, and went with his regiment to the seat of war in the South West. He was sent home in December on regimental business, and while traveling was taken ill, but he persisted in joining his regiment, contrary to medical advice, and died on board the Lady Franklin, on the trip from Louisville to Nashville.

The fidelity which marked his whole career was conspicuous in his military life.

He was married July 14, 1846, to Miss Catharine D. Brooks, of Cheshire, Conn., and left several children.

JOHN ABRAM LENT died in San Francisco, California, Jan. 2, 1863, after a long and tedious illness, at the age of 41 years

He entered college from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and after graduation he studied law for a time and then engaged in mercantile pursuits in New York.

He was one of the early emigrants to California, where for a time he held the office of County Judge of Alameda County.

1844.

JOHN TOWNSEND COIT, son of George Coit, Esq., of Buffalo, N. Y., was born in that city, May 8, 1824. He died in Albion after a short illness, January 23, 1863, aged 38 years.

He pursued a course of theological study more than usually prolonged and comprehensive, beginning at Auburn and continued at Andover. He subsequently determined to go to Germany and place himself under the tuition of Dr. Neander, but this eminent theologian having died before Mr. Coit reached Berlin, he went to Halle, and remained there two years, attending the exercises of Prof. Tholuck. He afterwards passed several months in Göttingen, and then made an extended tour in Europe.

On his return to this country he was invited to become the first minister of St. Peter's Church, Rochester, where he preached six months, and then became the settled pastor of the Presbyterian church in Albion, N. Y. Here he remained five years, when the church in Rochester to which he had before ministered, recalled him. He remained their pastor during the remaining three years of his life. He was honored with a rare degree of affectionate respect, wherever he was known.

The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. W. Clarke, D.D., of Buffalo. By request of Mr. Coit it was based upon a text (1 Cor. 1, 24) on which he was writing a sermon when the fatal illness terminated his life. His body was buried in Buffalo.

He leaves a widow but no children.

1845.

WILLIAM THOMAS CASTO died near Dover, Kentucky, May 8, 1862, aged about 38 years.

He studied law in the Transylvania University, and subsequently resided in Maysville, Kentucky. He was shot in a duel, occasioned by his maintenance of secession sentiments.

1847.

DANIEL TEMPLE NOYES was son of Deacon Daniel Noyes, of Boston, and was born in Boston.

After his graduation he taught for a while in New York City, and then pursued a course of theological study, first in the Union Theological Seminary, and afterward in the Seminary at Andover.

In 1853, he was settled as a Congregational Minister in Dorchester, Mass. About two years afterward he removed to Prairie du Sac, Wisconsin, and assumed the charge of a Congregational Church in that place.

When the war began, he received a commission as a Lieutenant in the 6th Wisconsin Battery, and while acting in that capacity, he fell at Corinth, October 4, 1862, aged about 36.

1849.

WILLIAM GEORGE CHANDLER was born at Mobile, Ala., September 15, 1829, and died July 3, 1862, aged 32 years.

After leaving college, he was engaged in mercantile business in Mobile, for the last few years in the firm of St. John, Powers & Co.

He was married in 1857 to Miss Holbrook, of New York.

1850.

NEWTON SPAULDING MANROSS was born in Bristol, Conn., June 20, 1825.

He sailed for Europe the day after graduation, and spent a year and a half in studying chemistry at Göttingen. He received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from that University in 1852. After spending three months in traveling on the continent, mainly in visiting mines, he returned to this country in the summer of 1852. The following year he spent at his home in Bristol, constructing machinery. In the fall of 1853 he sailed for the Orinoco in an exploring company in search of mining investment, and spent four or five months in examining the gold region of the Yuruari, between the Orinoco and Amazon. He returned home by way of Trinidad in the spring of 1854. In the spring of 1856 he went to the Isthmus of Panama, where he passed the summer in exploring for coal, iron, and other minerals in the province of Chiriqui. Immediately after his return he set out for Mexico, where he was engaged for six months in searching for coal and iron, principally in the district between the City of Mexico and the Pacific coast. During this trip he visited many of the great silver districts, and descended into the craters of Jorullo and Popocatepetl. He returned home in July, 1857, and for several years remained in Bristol, (Forestville,) Conn., engaged in perfecting mechanical and chemical inventions.

He was for one year acting Professor of Chemistry in Amherst College. He subsequently raised a Company of volunteers, and went to the war as Captain of Co. K., 16th Reg. Connecticut Volunteers. He fell after a day of gallant action at Antietam, Md. Sept. 17, 1862.

He was the author of several papers in the American Journal of Science and Arts, and was already eminent for his scientific attainments when he gave up his life for his country.

He was married, Nov. 3, 1857, to Miss Charlotte H. Royce, of Forestville, Conn.

NATHAN APPLETON LEE was born in London, England, Jan. 6, 1829, and entered College from Charleston, S. C. He studied law in the Yale Law School, and received the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1852. Since that time he has resided in New York City, but on account of ill health, he refrained from the active pursuit of his profession.

He died in New York City, March 18, 1863, aged 34 years, and his body was interred in Greenwood Cemetery.

PHILEMON TRACY, son of Hon. Edward Dorr Tracy, Judge of the Supreme Court of Georgia, was born in Macon, Ga., in June, 1831.

After leaving college he established himself in the practice of Law in his native town, where he edited the Macon Telegraph and held the position of Probate Judge. In 1860, he was a member of the Georgia Legislature. He afterwards held the post of a Major in the 6th Georgia Infantry, and while acting as such in the battles near Richmond, in July, 1862, he was severely wounded. He died from the effect of these injuries, Sept. 18, 1862, at the age of 31.

He was married some years ago to Mrs. Caroline Walker, who died about a year after their marriage, leaving no children.

1852.

JOHN SAFFORD PARSONS, the son of Joshua and Laura Parsons, was born in Hartford, Vt., May 14, 1828. He entered College from Amesbury, Mass., having encountered great obstacles in his preliminary studies.

After graduating, he studied theology in the Seminary at Andover, from 1852 till 1855. He was licensed to preach the gospel, February 7, 1855. During the year 1856, he was Principal of the Latin School in Schenectady, N. Y., and from 1857 to 1860, he was Principal of Schoharie Academy, Schoharie County, N. Y. He became Master of Dummer School, Byfield Parish, Newbury, Mass., in October, 1860, the duties of which post he discharged with ability and success till the time of his death. He died October 23, 1862, aged 34 years.

He was married in 1855 to Miss Lydia S. Eames, of Newry, Maine, who, with one child, survives him.

HENRY LORD PAGE KING, son of Hon. T. Butler King, was born at St. Simon's Island, Georgia, April 25, 1831.

He studied law in the Cambridge Law School from 1853 to 1855, receiving at the close of his course the degree of LL. B. He afterwards continued his studies in Savannah, Ga., and subsequently passed a considerable part of his time in New York City.

While acting as aid of Maj. Gen. McLaws, with the rank of Captain in the Confederate forces, he fell in the battle of Fredericksburg, December, 13, 1862, aged 31 years.

He had previously taken part in the actions on the Peninsula, before Richmond, at Sharpsburg and Harper's Ferry.

1853.

WILLIAM SCOTT DENNISTON was drowned in the James River, Virginia, July 22, 1862, aged 30 years.

He was a son of Hon. Robert Denniston, (Un. Coll. 1820,) and was born in Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 28, 1832.

One of his brothers graduated at Yale College in 1856, and another left the class of 1862 to become a Paymaster in the Navy after the present war began.

He studied medicine in Philadelphia and New York, and after receiving the degree of M. D. from the college of Physicians and Surgeons, he removed in 1857 to Chicago, Illinois, where he practiced his profession till the summer of 1861. He then removed to Newburgh on the Hudson.

He entered the service of the United States, as Assistant Surgeon, and was stationed for a time in the General Hospital at Harrison's Landing. His self sacrificing labors, during the Peninsula campaign, brought on a fever, resulting in delirium, and while thus distracted, he threw himself into the James river, and was drowned.

1854.

JOHN WORTHINGTON HOOKER, son of Prof. Worthington Hooker, (Y. C. 1825,) was born in Norwich, Conn., July 14, 1833.

After graduating in 1857 as a Doctor of Medicine in the Medical School at Yale College, he acted for a considerable time on the Surgical Staff in the N. Y. City Hospital, and subsequently continued his professional studies in Europe.

In 1860 he was appointed Professor of Hygiene and Physical Education in Amherst College, which position he was compelled by ill health to resign.

He died at his father's house in New Haven, January 26, 1863.

1855.

GEORGE STUART, a native of Sherman, Fairfield County, Conn., died in that town, Saturday, July 11, 1863.

After studying law in Sherman and in New Milford, Conn., he became, in 1858, a member of the bar of Fairfield County, and had just commenced the practice of law when the war broke out. He was among the first, if not the first to volunteer from that county, enlisting in the first company, in the 1st Regiment Connecticut Volunteers. He was soon afterward commissioned as a Lieutenant in the Regular Army, and attached to the 13th Regiment U. S. A. He took part in the battles of Milliken Bend and Arkansas Post, and marched with his regiment over a large portion of Kentucky. Unusual exposure in rescuing the wounded and captured of Antietam, and exposure in the camp near Vicksburg, brought on a lingering disease which terminated his life. He returned home, much wasted, and died in about a month.

1856.

HENRY MARTYN McINTIRE died at Baltimore, Md., January 16, 1863.

He was the son of Andrew McIntire, and was born at Woodside, near Elkton, Md., March 19, 1835.

After graduating, he commenced the study of the law in the Law School at New Haven, and continued his studies with Joseph J. Lewis, Esq., at West Chester, Penn., where he was admitted to the bar in Sept., 1858. He continued the practice of his profession in that town till 1861.

When the present war began, he enlisted in the "Brandywine Guards," a volunteer company formed in Westchester, and was elected Captain. He was afterwards made Lieutenant Colonel of the 1st Regiment of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, under Maj. Gen. McCall, in which capacity he was engaged in many arduous services. The corps was engaged in the defence of Washington, and won the victory of Drainsville. In the memorable seven days' battles before Richmond it held the enemy in check at Mechanicsville, and bravely covered the retreat of the army. Col. McIntire shared in all these vicissitudes, till on the 30th of June, 1862, at Glendale or Charles City, he was wounded in the ankle, rendering amputation necessary. He was taken in this condition as a prisoner to Richmond, where he remained until exchanged on the 29th of July following. For several months subsequently he was a patient in the David's Island Hospital, near New York, after which he returned to his home in West Chester. Here he was elected without opposition District Attorney for Chester County, but before assuming the office he died from the effect which his wound produced upon the brain. He was buried in Oakland Cemetery near West Chester.

TIMOTHY KEELER WILCOX died in Chicago, Illinois, February 27, 1863, aged nearly 28 years.

He was born May 18, 1835, in North Greenwich, Conn., where his father, Rev. Chauncey Wilcox, (Y. C. 1824,) had been pastor of a Congregational Church.

After graduating, he devoted himself for three years to teaching in the High School at Hartford, and from 1859 to 1861 he held the office of a Tutor in Yale College. He studied theology at New Haven, and subsequently at Princeton, where he graduated in 1862. Having been licensed to preach the gospel, he supplied for three months the Congregational pulpit in New Preston, Conn., and then established a temporary home in Chicago, hoping to become a settled pastor in some western church. He preached in McGregor, Iowa, and in LaSalle, Illinois, and would probably have been invited to remain in the latter place, had not death suddenly snatched him away.

1857.

HENRY MELZAR DUTTON, only son of Judge Henry Dutton (Y. C. 1818) and Elizabeth (Joy) Dutton, fell in the battle of Cedar Mountain, near Culpepper C. H., (Va.,) August 9, 1862, aged 24.

After graduating, he taught school for a short time and then began to study law in the Yale Law School. He was admitted to the bar and began to practice his profession at Middletown, Conn.. He subsequently removed to Litchfield.

When the President first called for 300,000 men, he enlisted as a private in the Fifth Reg. Conn. Volunteers, but he was soon promoted to be Orderly Sergeant, then 2d Lieut., and then 1st Lieut. in Company C. After arduous service in the Shenandoah valley, his regiment was engaged in a desperate encounter under Gen. Banks, with the Confederate forces under Gen. Jackson, at Cedar Mountain. In this hotly contested battle he was pierced by a ball through the heart, and was buried on the field.

FRANCIS EUGENE BUTLER fell in battle at Suffolk, Va., and died May 4, 1863, aged 38 years.

He was a native of Suffield, Conn., and was born Feb. 7, 1825.

For about twelve years previous to entering college, he was engaged in mercantile pursuits in New York City, where he was well known as Secretary of the N. Y. Bible Society, as one of the founders of the Young Men's Christian Association, and as the active friend of other religious institutions. His zeal in his Master's service was so great, that at length, when 29 years old, he determined to enter college, and fit himself for the ministry. When his college course was over, he spent three years in the study of theology at Princeton, and subsequently one term at Andover.

While a student in Princeton, in addition to his influence in other respects, he was a strong advocate of physical education, and secured funds for the erection of a hall for Langdonic gymnastic exercises, in which he himself gave lessons.

Having been licensed to preach, he supplied for a time the pulpit of a Church in Bedford Springs, Penn., and afterwards that of the 2d Presbyterian Church in Cleveland, Ohio.

He was next engaged as Minister of the Congregational Church in Paterson, N. J., in the place of the pastor, who had entered the National service.

When the 25th Regiment of New Jersey Volunteers was organized, he accepted the post of Chaplain, and accompanied the Regiment to Suffolk, Va. In an engagement near that place, May 3, he was actively employed in the relief of the wounded and exhausted of his regiment, which was stationed on the left. Learning that some men of a Connecticut Regiment on the right were suffering for want of surgical assistance, he went to their relief, and in thus passing through a position which was greatly exposed, he was shot by a sharp-shooter and died the next day.

JOHN GRISWOLD was born in Old Lyme, Conn., April 24, 1837.

After graduation, he remained at home until the Spring of 1858. From that time till December of the same year, he was employed as surveyor in Kansas. Returning again to his home, he remained for a little more than a year, and on January 3, 1860, he sailed from New London for Honolulu, to engage in business.

He subsequently remained for six months, with a single Kanaaka companion, on a Guano island in the Pacific, of which it was important to claim possession. He was at length taken off by a company of Chinamen and carried to San Francisco.

At the outbreak of the rebellion, he hastened home and entered the national service as Captain of Co. A, 11th Connecticut Volunteers. He showed great boldness on the field of battle, and at Antietam, bravely gave up his life for his country.

EDWARD LEIGHTON PORTER, the son of Dr. Isaac G. Porter, (Y. C. 1826) of New London, Conn., was born in that city, June 17, 1837.

He early evinced a love of study, especially of metaphysical inquiry, in which, through his life, he continued to be interested. He was fitted for college in Williston Seminary. At one time he seriously thought of seeking admission to the Military Academy at West Point.

After graduation, he taught school for a short time in Virginia, but finding his residence there not congenial, he returned home, studied law and was admitted to the New London County Bar. In August, 1862, he determined to offer his services in his country's defense, and received the appointment of Adjutant in the 18th Connecticut Volunteers, which office he filled till May, 1863, when he was promoted to be Captain in the same Regiment. Soon afterwards, he was shot in the head by a sharpshooter of Jackson's corps near Winchester. When the rebels entered Winchester he was seriously ill in the hospital, but in spite of his surgeon's advice, he took command of his company, and fell while leading his men to their fourth charge. He died almost immediately, June 15, 1863, aged nearly 26 years. His fearlessness of danger cost him his life. His body was buried near the battle field. His short career was honorable in a high degree.

An article from his pen entitled "The Horses of Neptune," appeared in the New Englander for July, 1862.

GEORGE WASHINGTON ROBERTS was born in Chester Co., Pa., October 2, 1833.

After graduation, he studied Law and was admitted to the Bar in West Chester, Pa., in December, 1857. He continued there in the practice of his profession until March 1, 1860, when he removed to Chicago. Here he remained active and successful in his business till the breaking out of the southern rebellion, when he turned his attention to the military service. He was energetic in his efforts to aid in the organization of the Douglas Brigade, one of the regiments of which—the 42nd Illinois—he commanded till the time of his death. His daring enterprise in spiking the rebel guns at Island No. 10, his gallantry at Farmington Roads, and his services at Corinth, gained for him a brilliant military reputation. During the last part of his life, he was in command of a brigade, where he displayed the same qualities which had marked his whole career in the service of his country. He fell in the battle of Murfreesboro, Tenn., December 31, 1862.

JAMES JUDSON SMITH was born, as is supposed, in 1837, and came to College from Clinton, East Feliciana Parish, La.

After leaving college he studied law at home.

He entered the Confederate service when this war began, and fell in battle at Malvern Hills, July 1, 1862.

1858.

EDWARD FOSTER BLAKE, son of Eli Whitney and Eliza (O'Brien) Blake, was born in New Haven, Ct., Nov. 25, 1837.

He remained in New Haven after his college course was over, first engaged in the office of Librarian of the Young Men's Institute, and then in the study of law, till the autumn of 1861, when he determined to engage in the military service of his country.

He received the appointment of Adjutant in the 5th Regiment Connecticut Volunteers, and served with distinction both in this regiment and on the staff of Gen. Crawford. He was engaged in the campaign of Gen. Banks in the Shenandoah Valley, where he won high encomiums for his efficiency and bravery. Soon afterwards he was appointed Major of his regiment. He fell in the battle of Cedar Mountain, Va., August 9, 1862, admired and loved by his comrades on the field, and by a large circle of friends at home. Strong hopes were entertained for a time that he was taken prisoner by the opposing forces, but these are now abandoned. His age was 25 years.

1859.

DANIEL BOWE, son of George L., and Frances (Bagg) Bowe, was born Jan. 13, 1833, in Agawam, Mass.

After graduation he studied theology, the first year in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and the next two in the Theological Seminary, Andover, where he graduated in July, 1862.

During the early part of 1862, he spent about four months near Port Royal, S. C., as superintendent of plantations in the employment of the Educational Commission of Boston, and after a short visit to Andover he returned thither and resumed with activity and fidelity the discharge of this duty. The exposure to an almost tropical climate, brought on an attack of typhus fever, from which he recovered sufficiently to set out for home, but before the vessel reached New York, he sunk into a state of unconsciousness from which he could not be aroused. On the 30th of Oct., 1862, he died in one of the rooms of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, aged 29 years.

CHARLES EASTON was born in the year 1833, in Afton, Chenango Co., N. Y., and entered college at the beginning of junior year, from Wellsville, N. Y. The first year after graduation he spent in Memphis, Tenn., engaged in teaching. During the second year he studied theology in the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, at the end of which time being compelled to discontinue his studies on account of ill health, he went to Black River Falls, Wis., with the hope of regaining strength and vigor. He returned to his home in Wellsville early in Oct. 1862, his health being very poor, and from that time he failed gradually until his death, which occurred April 5, 1863, in his 30th year.

DIODATE CUSHMAN HANNAHS was born in 1839, in Otsego, N. Y., but entered college from New York City. He died in Williamsburgh, Va., Sept. 10, 1862, aged 23 years.

The autumn after graduation he entered the law office of Evarts, Southmayd & Choate in New York City, and remained there, attending at the same time the lectures in the Columbia College Law School, about two years. In August, 1861, he joined the "Ira Harris Guard" (6th N. Y. Cavalry) as 1st Lieutenant. His energy contributed in a marked degree to the organization of this regiment. In November he was promoted to the rank of Captain.

In December, Capt. Hannahs's regiment went into winter quarters at York, Pa. In February he was transferred to Perryville, Md., and shortly after was ordered to the seat of war on the Peninsula. The battalion of Cavalry to which his company belonged was attached to the corps of Gen. Sumner.

After the evacuation of the Peninsula by the army of the Potomac, his company remained in the vicinity of Yorktown, attached to the command of Gen. Keyes. On the 8th of September a body of rebel cavalry made a dash into Williamsburgh, Va., driving our troops from the place in confusion. Gen. Keyes ordered a squadron of cavalry from Yorktown to their support. The enemy having retired before the approach of our forces, Capt. Hannahs's company was detached to reestablish the picket line in an advanced position. While employed on this service he was mortally wounded, by a ball through the right lung, and died the following morning.

CHARLES MORTIMER WHEELER, son of J. M. Wheeler, Esq., was born December 8, 1837, in Canandaigua, N. Y. He was killed in the battle of Gettysburgh, July 4, 1863, aged 25 years.

After leaving college, he returned to his native place, and was there engaged in the study of Law until June 1861, when he was admitted to the bar. In the autumn of 1862, he entered the army as Captain in Co. K of the 126th Regiment N. Y. Volunteers, and went into active service. He was made a prisoner at Harpers Ferry when Col. Miles surrendered that post, and after his exchange he entered with new zeal into the duties of his position, until his patriotic career, bright with promise for the future, was suddenly terminated on the nation's birth-day. He was killed almost instantly, by the bullet of a sharpshooter while he was leading a skirmishing party in the battle which drove from Pennsylvania the armed forces of the rebellion.

1860.

GEORGE WATERMAN ARNOLD died at Fairfax Seminary, Va., Dec. 8, 1862, in the 23d year of his age. He was the son of Burrill Arnold of Centreville, R. I., and was born in Johnston, R. I., October 19, 1840.

After leaving college, he began to study Law, first in the office of Messrs Green & Anthony, Providence, and afterward in the School at Cambridge, Mass. In October 1862, he enlisted as a private in the 12th Rhode Island Regiment, and was soon afterward made a Sergeant. In November he was taken ill with a typhoid fever, and when his regiment, which had been stationed in the defenses of Washington, was sent forward, he was left behind in Fairfax Seminary Hospital, where he died a few days afterward.

CHARLES ALFRED BOIES, son of the late Rev. Artemas Boies, of Keene, N. H., was born in Boston, June, 1838.

He died in Keene, May 14, 1863, aged 25 years.

For a year after the close of his college course, he was an instructor in the family of Judge O'Neill of Fernandina, Florida. In the fall of 1861, he entered the Seminary at Princeton, where he remained through the winter and then returned to Keene. He at once began to preach in the neighboring town of Roxbury, taking also an active part in the Sunday Schools of that neighborhood. In September 1862, he entered the Seminary at Andover, and remained there till January, when his health which had never been vigorous, gave way and he went home again to die.

DANIEL HEBARD, son of Hon. Learned Hebard of Lebanon, Conn., and brother of Albert Hebard (Y. C., 1851,) was born in that town, September 3, 1836.

For a short time after his college studies were over, he was in charge of the Library of the Am. Geographical Society in New York, and he then accepted the position of an Instructor in the Ohio Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb at Columbus.

While residing there, he joined the Home Guards, in the Spring of 1861, and was subsequently occupied for some weeks in guarding bridges on the thoroughfares to Western Virginia. He retained his position in the Asylum at Columbus till the close of that year, when he was appointed Assistant Adjutant General of Volunteers, and attached to the staff of Gen. Gorman. He entered upon these duties December 18, 1861. He acted a brave part in the battles of the Peninsula and before Richmond. But his incessant services seriously impaired his health, and he was sent home to recover strength. The disease however terminated fatally soon after he reached New York. He died in the New England rooms of that city August 7, 1862, aged 26 years.

WILLIAM CURTIS JOHNSTON, died of pneumonia, in Mumfordsville, Ky., Dec. 3, 1862.

He was a son of Rev. Thomas P. Johnston, late Missionary of the American Board in Turkey, and was born July 11, 1839 at Trebizond, Asia Minor. He subsequently resided in Smyrna, and in 1853 came to the United States. He was fitted for college in Salem, Mass.

After graduation he studied Theology in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Danville, Ky., and after two years was licensed to preach. In the summer of 1862 he was engaged in preaching and teaching at Greensburg, Ky. In the following September he was ordained, and commissioned as a Chaplain in the 13th U. S. Kentucky Volunteers. He had already acquired much influence for good in the regiment when death terminated his efforts.

1861.

FREDERICK STANTON DAVIS, the son of Thomas T. Davis, was born in Kingston, Miss, July 24, 1839. After leaving college he resided at home till March 1862, when he enlisted in the "Natchez Southrons," (10th Mississippi Regiment) and joined the army of Bragg. The hardships of his military life he endured with great fortitude. After the battle of Perryville he was left exhausted to die, but recovered sufficiently to march 150 miles and rejoin his regiment, subsisting for eight days on parched corn. He took part in the battle of Murfreesboro and in many subsequent engagements. He suffered from repeated attacks of illness, but persisted in adhering to the service on which he had entered, till he died of pneumonia on or about April 15, 1863 at Chattanooga, Tenn. His remains were taken home for burial.

1862.

FRANCIS NORTON STERLING died on board the steamer Arago, 34 miles south of Cape Hatteras, December 6, 1862, aged 21 years.

He was a son of William C. Sterling, Esq., of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was born December 6, 1841 at Salisbury, Conn.

He received a commission as 1st Lieutenant in Co. D, 128th Reg. N. Y. Volunteers, Col. D. S. Cowles, in which capacity he set sail for New Orleans in the expedition commanded by Maj. Gen. Banks. An attack of typhoid fever soon terminated a career which was bright and promising.

ANDREW FREEMAN SHIVERICK, son of Capt. Andrew M. Shiverick of New York, died of fever at Memphis, Tenn., April 22, 1862, aged 20 years. He was born March 8, 1842, at Falmouth, Mass.

Immediately after leaving college he obtained a commission as Captain in the 28th Wisconsin Regiment, and joined that body in Milwaukee. He was engaged in the Yazoo Pass Expedition, and was for a considerable time stationed at Helena, Arkansas, where he rendered efficient service to the country by his enterprise and bravery.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of death.
1795	John Adams, 90,	Jacksonville, Ill.,	Apr. 24, 1863.
1797	Lyman Beecher, 87,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	Jan. 10, 1863.
1800	Thomas B. Strong, 83,	Pittsfield, Mass.,	May 24, 1863.
1803	Rinaldo Burleigh, 89,	Plainfield, Conn.,	Feb. 10, 1863.
1805	Aaron H. Kelsey, 79,	Killingworth, Conn.,	July 4, 1863.
1806	Henry Carleton, 77,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	Mch. 28, 1863.
"	Hezekiah G. Ufford, 83,	Stratford, Conn.,	Jan. 23, 1863.
"	Martin Welles, 75,	Martin, Ottawa Co., Ohio,	Jan. 19, 1863.
1809	Alfred Heyliger, 75,	New Haven, Conn.,	July 5, 1863.
1810	Dyar T. Brainard, 73,	New London, Conn.,	Feb. 6, 1863.
"	Frederick Grimké, 71,	Chillicothe, O.,	Mch. 8, 1863.
1811	Roger S. Baldwin, 70,	New Haven, Conn.,	Feb. 19, 1863.
"	Ralph Emerson, 75,	Rockford, Ill.,	May 26, 1863.
"	Henry C. Flagg, 71,	New Haven, Conn.,	Mch. 8, 1863.
1812	Dennis Kimberly, 72,	New Haven, Conn.,	Dec. 15, 1862.
1814	Isaac Adriaance, 68,	N. Y. City,	Aug. 26, 1862.
"	Henry D. Chapin, 69,	Flushing, (L. I.) N. Y.,	July 14, 1862.
1817	J. Prescott Hall, 67,	Newport, R. I.,	Sept. , 1862.
"	Wyllys Lyman,	Burlington, Vt.,	Dec. 1, 1862.
1820	Charles Hooker, 64,	New Haven, Conn.,	Mch. 19, 1863.
1821	John A. Taintor, 62,	Hartford, Conn.,	Nov. 15, 1862.
"	Phineas B. Wilcox, 67,	Columbus, O.,	Mch. 25, 1863.
1822	Jonathan D. Bradley, 59,	Brattleboro, Vt.,	Sept. 8, 1862.
1823	Norman Pinney, 58,	New Orleans, La.,	Oct. 1, 1862.
1825	Isaac G. Seymour,	Richmond, Va.,	July 3, 1862.
"	Joseph H. Nichols, 57,	Washington, D. C.,	Dec. 11, 1862.
1832	John Bowers, 57,	St. Johnsbury, Vt.,	Feb. 4, 1863.
1833	Robert Carver, 53,	Orient, (L. I.) N. Y.,	Feb. 25, 1863.
"	Asahel H. Lewis, 52	St. Louis, Mo.,	Sept. 25, 1862.
1834	James A. Hazen, 49,	Sprague, Conn.,	Oct. 29, 1862.
1837	Walter Lenox, 45,	Richmond, Va.,	Jan. 1863.
1838	Charles Rich, 53,	Beardstown, Ill.,	Oct. 31, 1862.
1840	Joseph G. Hoyt, 48,	St. Louis, Mo.,	Nov. 26, 1862.
1841	Edward Mills, 41,	Cincinnati, O.,	Dec. 5, 1862.
1843	James H. Dill, 42,	near Nashville, Tenn.,	Jan. 14, 1863.
"	John A. Lent, 41,	San Francisco, Cal.,	Jan. 2, 1863.
1844	John T. Coit, 38,	Albion, N. Y.,	Jan. 23, 1863.
1845	William T. Casto, 38,	Maysville, Ky.,	May 8, 1862.
1847	Daniel T. Noyes, 36,	Corinth, Miss.,	Oct. 4, 1862.
1849	William G. Chandler, 32,	Mobile, Ala.,	July 3, 1863.
1850	N. Appleton Lee, 34,	N. Y. City,	Mch. 18, 1863.
"	Newton S. Manross, 37,	Antietam, Md.,	Sept. 17, 1862.
"	Philemon Tracy, 31,	Richmond, Va.,	Sept. 18, 1862.
1852	Henry L. P. King, 31,	Fredericksburg, Va.,	Dec. 13, 1862.
"	John S. Parsons, 34,	Byfield, Mass.,	Oct. 23, 1862.
1853	William S. Denniston, 30,	James River, Va.,	July 22, 1862.
1854	John W. Hooker, 29,	New Haven, Conn.,	Jan. 26, 1863.
1855	George Stuart,	Sherman, Conn.,	July 11, 1863.
1856	Henry M. McIntire, 26,	Baltimore, Md.,	Jan 16, 1863.
"	Timothy K. Wilcox, 27,	Chicago, Ill.,	Feb. 27, 1863.
1857,	Francis E. Butler, 38,	Suffolk, Va.	May 4, 1863.
"	Henry M. Dutton, 24,	Culpepper C. H., Va.	Aug. 9, 1862.
"	John Griswold, 25,	Antietam, Md.	Sept. 18, 1862.
"	Edward L. Porter, 26,	Winchester, Va.	June 16, 1863.
"	George W. Roberts, 29,	Murfreesboro', Tenn.	Dec. 31, 1862.
"	James J. Smith, 25,	Malvern Hills, Va.	July 1, 1862.
1858	Edward F. Blake, 25,	Culpepper C. H., Va.	Aug. 9, 1862.

1859	Daniel Bowe, 29,	N. Y. City.	Oct. 30, 1862.
"	Charles Easton, 29,	Wellsville, N. Y.	April 5, 1863.
"	Diodate C. Hannahs, 23,	Williamsburgh, Va.	Sept. 10, 1862.
"	Charles M. Wheeler, 25,	Gettysburgh, Penn.	July 4, 1863.
1860	George W. Arnold, 22,	Fairfax, Va.	Dec. 8, 1862
"	Charles A. Boies, 25,	Keene, N. H.	May 14, 1863.
"	Daniel Hebard, 26,	N. Y. City.	Aug 7, 1862.
"	William C. Johnston, 23,	Mumfordsville, Ky.	Dec. 3, 1862.
1861	Frederick S. Davis, 24,	Chattanooga, Tenn.	April 15, 1863.
1862	Andrew F. Shiverick, 21,	Memphis, Tenn.	April 22, 1863.
"	Francis N. Sterling, 21,	At sea, off Cape Hatteras.	Dec. 6, 1862.
Total Number 68.		Average Age, 48½ years.

Of the persons above mentioned, 3 died previous to the last Commencement, but their deaths were not then known to the reporter.

Among the deceased were 28 whose deaths were occasioned by the present war, 21 of whom fell in the military service of the United States. Of the deceased, 30 were lawyers, 17 clergymen, 4 physicians, 8 teachers and professors, and 8 were devoted to other occupations. Of the deaths, 13 occurred in Conn., 12 in Va., 9 in N. Y., 4 each in Tenn., Ill., and Ohio, 3 each in Md. and Vt., 2 each in Mass., Penn., Mo., and Ky., 1 each in N. H., R. I., D. C., Ala., Miss., La., Cal., and at sea.

The oldest surviving graduates are Joshua Dewey, of Brooklyn. N. Y., of the Class of 1787, and Rev. Daniel Waldo, of Syracuse, N. Y., of the Class of 1788.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1795	Adams, John	83	1854	Hooker, John W.	103
1814	Adrianse, Isaac	92	1840	Hoyt, Joseph G.	98
1860	Arnold, George W.	110	1860	Johnston, William C.	111
1811	Baldwin, Roger S.	88	1805	Kelsey, Aaron H.	86
1797	Beecher, Lyman	84	1812	Kimberly, Dennis.	91
1858	Blake, Edward F.	108	1852	King, Henry L. P.	103
1860	Boies, Charles A.	110	1850	Lee, N. Appleton	102
1859	Bowe, Daniel	108	1837	Lenox, Walter	97
1832	Bowers, John	95	1843	Lent, John A.	99
1822	Bradley, Jonathan D.	94	1833	Lewis, Asahel H.	96
1810	Brainard, Dyar T.	88	1817	Lyman, Wyllys	92
1803	Burleigh, Rinaldo.	85	1856	McIntire, Henry M.	104
1857	Butler, Francis E.	106	1850	Manross, Newton S.	101
1806	Carleton, Henry	86	1841	Mills, Edwards	99
1845	Casto, William T.	100	1825	Nichols, Joseph H.	94
1833	Carver, Robert.	96	1847	Noyes, Daniel T.	100
1849	Chandler, William G.	101	1852	Parsons, John S.	102
1814	Chapin Henry D.	91	1823	Pinney, Norman	94
1844	Coit, John T.	100	1857	Porter, Edward L.	107
1861	Davis, Frederick S.	111	1838	Rich, Charles	98
1853	Denniston, William S.	103	1857	Roberts, George W.	107
1843	Dill, James H.	99	1825	Seymour, Isaac G.	95
1857	Dutton, Henry M.	105	1862	Shiverick, Andrew F.	112
1859	Easton, Charles	109	1857	Smith, James J.	108
1811	Emerson, Ralph	89	1862	Sterling, Fancis N.	112
1811	Flagg, Henry C.	90	1800	Strong, Thomas B.	85
1810	Grimke, Frederick	88	1855	Stuart, George	104
1857	Griswold, John	106	1821	Taintor, John A.	93
1817	Hall, J. Prescott	92	1850	Tracy, Philemon	102
1859	Hannahs, Diodate C.	109	1806	Ufford, Hezekiah G.	87
1834	Hazen, James A.	97	1806	Welles, Martin	87
1860	Hebard, Daniel.	111	1859	Wheeler, Charles M.	110
1809	Heyliger, Alfred	88	1821	Wilcox, Phineas B.	93
1820	Hooker, Charles.	92	1856	Wilcox, Timothy K.	105

OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY 1864,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED A SHORT
TIME PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 27, 1864.]

[No. 5 of the printed Series, and No. 23 of the whole Record.]

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

deceased during the academical year ending in July 1864, including the record of a few who died previously, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 27th, 1864.]

[No. 5 of the printed Series, and No. 23 of the whole Record.]

CLASS OF 1787.

JOSHUA DEWEY, who has been since 1859 the graduate of oldest academic standing in this College, died at Watertown, N. Y., Feb. 23, 1864, in his ninety-seventh year.

He was born in Lebanon, Conn., April 7, 1767, where his father, Daniel Dewey, resided as a farmer. The son was fitted for college in his native town, at the school of the well-known "Master Tisdale." After the burning of New London in the Revolutionary War, he shouldered his musket and became for a time one of the garrison of Fort Griswold on the Thames.

He removed in 1791 to Cooperstown, N. Y., and taught a school in which James Fenimore Cooper is said to have learned the alphabet. Two years later he became a farmer in that neighborhood and began to enter into public life. He was thrice elected a member of the Legislature, and was afterwards commissioned by President Adams as a Collector of Internal Revenue. In 1809, he removed to the new town of De Kalb, St. Lawrence Co., where he also exercised various political functions, being a supervisor of the town, a county magistrate and a commissioner of schools. In the war of 1812, he joined the militia for a short time in the defense of Ogdensburgh. In 1817, he became a religious man, and with his wife and four children united with a Presbyterian Church.

In 1830, he removed to Watertown, and subsequently to Sackett's Harbor and then to Auburn. In his later years, he has resided with his son Lewis, in Brooklyn, L. I., (where he attended the church of Rev. T. L. Cuyler,) and also with his daughter, Mrs. Woolsey Butterfield, at whose house in Watertown he died. In late years he has repeatedly attended the Commencements of Yale College. His mind was clear and his health good till the close of his days.

In 1787, he married Miss Lora Lewis, who died in 1841.

1792.

WILLIAM BOTSFORD, the son of Amos Botsford, (Y. C. 1763,) was born in New Haven, April, 1773. His mother was the daughter of Joshua Chandler (Y. C. 1747).

His father, who had been an adherent of the crown during the Revolution, removed to New Brunswick on the cessation of hostilities, and devoted himself to the profession of law. (Cf. Sabine's Amer. Loyalists.) The son accompanied the father to Annapolis, N. B., in 1782, but was afterwards sent back to Connecticut and fitted to enter college under the instructions of Rev. Dr. Elizur Goodrich, of Durham.

After graduation, he went home and pursued the study of law, (partly with Hon. Jonathan Bliss, Chief Justice of the Province of New Brunswick,) was admitted to the bar in 1795, and commenced the practice of his profession at St. John.

In 1803, he was appointed Judge of the Vice-Admiralty Court, over which he presided until 1807, when at the request of his father, he removed from St. John to Westmoreland Co., resigning this position.

On the death of his father in 1812, he succeeded him in the representation of the county in the Assembly of the Province. In 1817, he was elected Speaker of the House, and continued so by reelection till 1823, when he was promoted to the Executive and Legislative Council. In 1817, he was appointed Solicitor-General, and he held this position till his elevation to the bench of the Supreme Court in 1823. In this office he remained for twenty-two years. His hearing having then become slightly impaired, he resigned his seat on the bench, and during the remainder of his life resided on his estates at Westcock, active in promoting the public welfare, and especially interested in the advancement of agriculture. His long and honorable career was terminated by death, in Westmoreland, May 8, 1864, in the ninety-second year of his age.

In 1802, he married Mrs. Sarah Lowell Murray, daughter of Hon. William Hazen, and widow of Thos. Murray, Esq. Her death occurred May 4, 1850. Their children were eight sons and two daughters.

1801.

JOHN WALES, son of Rev Samuel Wales, D. D. (Y. C. 1767,) Professor of Divinity in Yale College, died in Wilmington, Del., Dec. 3, 1863, in his 81st year. He was born in New Haven, Conn, July 31, 1783.

After a course of studies in law, he commenced the practice of his chosen profession at Hartford where he remained till 1812. He then removed to Baltimore and subsequently in 1815, to Wilmington, Del., which continued to be his home during the remainder of his life. He attained great eminence as a lawyer and was an earnest member of the Whig and Republican parties. He was occasionally called into public service. In 1845, he held the office of Secretary of State in Delaware, and in 1849, on the resignation of Mr. Clayton, he was chosen by the Legislature as a Senator of the United States, which position he held until 1851.

On the 12th of November, 1863, he attended a meeting of the friends of the Union at Middletown, and contracted a severe cold, which terminated fatally a few weeks later.

1802.

PELATIAH PERIT, son of John and Ruth (Webster) Perit, and grandson of Pelatiah Webster, (Y. C. 1746,) was born in Norwich, Conn., June 23, 1785. He was descended from a Huguenot family who early took refuge in New Haven colony.

His preparation for college was made in Philadelphia and New Haven. After graduation he taught for one year a private school in his native town, while he was considering the question of preparing himself for the christian ministry. A weakness of his voice deterred him from this course and he entered upon a life of business in the city of Philadelphia. In 1809, he removed to New York City where he was concerned in commercial affairs to the close of his life. From 1817 to 1861, he was a partner in the shipping house of Messrs. Goodhue & Co., extensively engaged in foreign commerce.

From 1853 to 1863, Mr. Perit was President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York and in that capacity he took a prominent part in the public affairs of the commercial metropolis. In 1857, when the peace of the city was endangered by riotous assemblages, and party faction prevented an organization of the police, he was chosen a Commissioner of the Police, and rendered at much personal sacrifice an important service in restoring the public security. Throughout his life he was an active supporter of the institutions of Christian benevolence. The American Board, the Bible Society, the Seamen's Friend Society, the Sailor's Snug Harbor and the N. Y. Orphan Asylum were among the objects to which he devoted his special attention.

From 1836 to 1859, Mr. Perit's residence was at Bloomingdale, on the Hudson. He then removed to New Haven. During the last two years of his life, he was engaged in the collection of materials for illustrating the History of the Commerce of the United States, which he intended to publish.

He died in New Haven, March 8, 1864, aged 78 years. He was married in 1825 to Maria, daughter of Daniel L. Coit, of Norwich, who survives him.

His brother, John W. Perit, graduated at Yale College in 1801, and his cousin in 1803.

A discourse commemorative of his life was preached in New Haven by Rev. L. Bacon, D. D., and was printed in Hunt's Merchants Magazine for May, 1864.

1804.

WALTER RALEIGH KIBBE died in Somers, Conn., April 22, 1864, aged 82 years. He was born in that town, Sept. 8, 1781.

He was a lawyer by profession, having been admitted to the bar in 1807. He represented his native place in the Legislature during the years 1828, '29, '31, '34, and '38, and in 1832 was a State Senator from the 20th district. He held the office of Judge of Probate during a period of ten years, and was Postmaster from 1821 to 1828. In the latter year, he was one of the Presidential Electors. In the public and private relations of life he maintained a reputation for uprightness and independence. His devotion to the study of the Bible is said to have been remarkable, especially in the later years of his life.

Three of his six children survive him.

1805.

LEONARD COWLES, son of Gamaliel, and grandson of Josiah Cowles, died in Delaware, Ohio, Dec. 29, 1861, aged about 78 years.

He was born in Southington, Conn., and was one of the earliest settlers of Delaware, Ohio. His profession was the law.

GEORGE OLCOTT died at Charlestown, N. H., Feb. 4, 1864, aged 78 years. He was the eldest son of Judge Simeon Olcott, (Y. C. 1761,) formerly U. S. Senator, and the nephew of Rev. Bulkley Olcott, (Y. C. 1758,) both of Charlestown. His mother was Tryphena Terry, of Enfield, Conn.

Geo. Olcott was born in Charlestown, Nov. 22, 1785, and after graduating at this College, he was educated as a lawyer, in the office of Benjamin West, Esq. He practiced his profession in his native town till the year 1824, when he accepted the position of Cashier of the Connecticut River Bank in the same place. He held that post until his death, honored and beloved by all who knew him, as an upright Christian citizen.

He married in 1831, Charity West, widow of Benjamin West, of Boston. She died May 24, 1836, leaving no children by this marriage. In August, 1837, he married Emily A., daughter of Isaac Silsby, Esq., of Charlestown. His widow and three sons survive him.

WILLIAM MATHER SMITH was the only child of the late Hon. John Cotton (Y. C. 1783,) and Margarette (Evertson) Smith. He was born at Sharon on the 18th day of August, 1787.

After his graduation he studied law in New York City, with his maternal uncle, Nicholas Evertson, Esq., (Y. C. 1787,) and was admitted to the bar in that city in 1808. Feeble health and a desire to minister to the comfort of his parents, determined him to give up professional pursuits and to spend his days in his native town. He was a man of devoted piety, and spent his life literally in doing good. As early as 1818, he entered warmly into the duty of sustaining and advancing the interests of Sabbath Schools, and the business of instructing children and youth, through that medium, was his chosen and beloved employment during the remainder of his days. He was the superintendent of the Sabbath School in Sharon for more than forty-five years, and his happy method of expounding the scriptures was remarkably adapted to interest the pupils in the subjects on which they were addressed, and to attach them warmly to himself, personally. In 1828, he was chosen Deacon of the Congregational Church, which office he greatly honored and held till his death. He died in great peace of mind, March 19, 1864. He was married February 19, 1809, to Helen, daughter of Robert Livingston, Esq., of Rhinebeck, N. Y., who survives him. Of three sons, two survive him.

1806.

CALEB PITKIN was born in New Hartford, Litchfield Co. Connecticut, February 27, 1781. His father, Stephen Pitkin, was a farmer, with whom he labored till twenty-one years of age. He then entered upon a course of study with a view to the gospel ministry.

His preparatory theological studies were pursued under Rev. Asahel Hooker, of Goshen. He was licensed to preach, June 10th, 1807, and supplied for a time the churches of Derby and Oxford. He afterwards became pastor of the Second Church in Milford, where he remained nine years, being dismissed Oct. 22d, 1816. The succeeding winter he spent as a missionary in Ashtabula and Portage Counties, Ohio, being in that portion of the State then known as New Connecticut, or the Western Reserve. He was installed April 23d, 1817, pastor of the Congregational Church in Charlestown, Portage County. Here he remained about ten years, spending one half of the time with the Charlestown Church, and the other half traveling extensively over the Reserve, as a missionary.

Previous to the close of this period, measures had been taken by the Presbyteries of Grand River and Portage, toward the establishment of a college. Mr. Pitkin had been an active agent in this work, and henceforward it was the principal object of his attention. In 1828, he removed to Hudson, where Western Reserve College was established in 1826, and remained there till his death. He continued, after his removal to Hudson, to preach in destitute places, upon the Sabbath, as long as his strength permitted, laboring during the week in behalf of the College. He died at Hudson, February 5, 1864, nearly eighty-three years of age. At the time of his death, he was the only remaining member of the original Board of Trustees of Western Reserve College. Mrs. Pitkin (Anna Henderson,) survives her husband. Of five children, three sons and two daughters, the sons survive. Two of these, one a lawyer, the other a minister, are graduates of Western Reserve College. An adopted daughter, wife of Rev. D. Vrooman, a missionary, died in China.

1807.

DARIUS MEAD, son of Joshua and Rachel (Knapp) Mead, of Round Hill, Greenwich, Conn., was born in that town, July 9, 1787. He was fitted for College under the tuition of Rev. I. Lewis, D. D.

After pursuing a course of study under Dr. Rush, in Philadelphia, he received a medical diploma in 1809. He practiced medicine for a few months in New York City, but returned to his native town in 1810 and there continued to reside, still engaged in practice.

In 1845 and 1846, he represented the 12th Senatorial District in the Senate of Connecticut, being nominated without his knowledge of the intentions of his fellow-citizens. For one year he was a member of the Corporation of Yale College.

His death occurred in Greenwich, January 28, 1864. A funeral sermon, by Rev. S. B. S. Bissell, of Norwalk, was published. (N. Y., 1864, 8vo. 19 pp.)

Dr. Mead was married in 1809, to Lydia K., daughter of Elisha Belcher, M. D., of Round Hill, who died in 1848.

1808.

TIMOTHY TUTTLE died in Ledyard, Conn., June 6, 1864, aged 82 years. He was born in East Haven, Conn., Nov. 21, 1781. His father was Joseph Tuttle, a descendant of William Tuttle, one of the early settlers of New Haven. His mother was Mary, daughter of Daniel Grainger, of Suffield, Conn. (Y. C. 1730)

Timothy Tuttle was fitted for college by Rev. D. Smith, D. D., of Durham, to which place his father's family had removed. He studied theology with the same clergyman, and in Sept., 1810, went to North Groton, Conn., as a candidate for the ministry. There he was ordained Aug. 14, 1811, and there he lived and labored through his life, preaching on alternate Sabbaths at North and South Groton until April, 1834, since which time, his labors have been confined to North Groton, now Ledyard.

He married Miss Mary Norton of Durham, Conn., and has left two daughters, one of them the wife of Rev. N. B. Cook, formerly of Stonington and now of Ledyard.

His funeral sermon was preached by Rev. T. L. Shipman, of Jewett City, and a biographical sketch by the same person appeared in the Congregational Quarterly, July, 1864.

1809.

CHARLES EZRA CLARKE was born in Saybrook, Conn., October, 1789, the son of Ezra and Elizabeth (Whittlesey) Clarke. He was fitted for College, in his native place, by the Rev. Frederick W. Hotchkiss, minister of the parish.

After graduating at Yale College, he studied Law in Greene county, New York, and in 1815 established himself at Watertown, Jefferson County, in that State, in the practice of the Law, in which he was engaged constantly for about twenty years and partially till near the close of his life. In 1825 he purchased a farm and mill seat in the same county, and afterward, devoting much attention to that property and becoming a skillful agriculturalist, he gradually withdrew from his profession. He died at his residence, on his farm in Champion, on the 8th day of December, 1863, aged 74 years. He was elected to the legislature of New York two successive terms in the years 1838 and 1839, and to congress in 1849, serving in both stations with distinguished ability. As a lawyer he stood at the head of his profession in the vicinity of his practice.

He married in 1852, and left at his death a widow and four children.

1810.

LOT NEWELL, son of Samuel (Y. C. 1781) and Sarah (Hosford) Newell, and grandson of Rev. Samuel Newell, (Y. C. 1739,) was a native, and for many years a resident, of Bristol, Conn. His career is well known to the residents of that place. He died from exposure to the cold in New York City, March 30, 1864, aged 76 years.

His wife (Naomi Lewis) and child died several years previous.

1812.

THOMAS DUNLAP, a native, and during his life a resident, of Philadelphia, died in that city July 11, 1864, aged 71 years.

He was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia, Sept 4, 1816, and during most of his life was engaged in professional practice.

When Nicholas Biddle resigned the office of President of the United States Bank, Mr. Dunlap was chosen to succeed him, and he remained in that position until the Bank suspended operations, when he resumed the profession of the law.

1814.

CHARLES BACKUS GODDARD died in Zanesville, Ohio, February 1, 1864, aged 67.

He was the son of Hon. Calvin and Alice (Hart) Goddard, and was born in Plainfield, Conn., October 6, 1796.

After studying Law with his father in Norwich, and with Judge Griswold in Lyme, he was admitted to the Connecticut bar, and went soon afterwards to Zanesville, Ohio, where he continued to reside in the uninterrupted practice of his profession until his death.

He was admitted to the bar in Ohio in 1817, (the year of his arrival) at Gallipolis. He was twice elected to the House of Representatives of the State and twice to the State Senate. He was Speaker of the latter during one term. In 1820, he married Harriet Munro, daughter of Daniel Convers, of Zanesville, who, with seven children, survives him.

DAVID LONGWORTH OGDEN died after a short illness in New Haven, October 31, 1863, aged 71 years.

He was the son of Jacob and Jerusha (Rockwell) Ogden, and was born in Hartford, Conn., October 6, 1792. His parents removed to New Haven while he was quite young.

He pursued a course of theological study, extending through three years, in Andover, and afterwards studied for a year at New Haven, under the instruction of Prof. Fitch. He at length accepted a call to become Pastor of the Congregational Church in Southington, Conn., and was ordained in that place, Oct. 31, 1821, just forty two years previous to the date of his death.

Mr. Ogden was dismissed from the pastoral relation to the Church in Southington, Sept. 13, 1836, and soon after removed with his family to Whitesboro, N. Y., where he was installed on the 28th of December following. Resigning his charge in that place in 1844, he was again installed in Marlboro, Mass., April 26, 1848, which place he left in Dec., 1850. In 1853, he preached for several months in Colebrook, Conn., but declined a call to make that his home. During the latter part of his life he resided in New Haven, preaching occasionally.

He married in 1824, Sarah Amanda daughter of Daniel Judson, Esq., of Stratford, Conn. Their children were five in number, three of whom are now living. One of them graduated at Yale College in 1861.

1817.

EBENEZER ANDREWS, born in Fairfield, Conn., April 30, 1795, died of apoplexy, in Chicago, Illinois, April 28, 1864, aged 69 years.

His legal studies were pursued in Westport, Conn., and he was admitted to the bar in New Haven, April 30, 1823. In the following year he began the practice of his profession at Milan, Ohio, and continued it till 1852 or 1853, when he was elected Judge of Probate in Erie County, Ohio. At a subsequent period, he became engaged in banking, first in Milan and after 1862 in Chicago, Ill. In the various stations of life, his uprightness and integrity commanded the respect of all who knew him.

He was married August 15, 1825, to Rachel Hyde of Fairfield, Conn., who with two sons, (graduates of Yale College in 1859 and 1861,) and two daughters, survives him.

1818.

JOHN CALKINS COIT died at his residence in Cheraw, S. C., February 6, 1863, aged about 64 years. He was a son of David and Betsey (Calkins) Coit, of New London, Conn., and was born in that town in 1799. His brother, David G. Coit, graduated at this College in 1819.

After reading law in the office of Judge Swift, of Windham, Conn., and subsequently in the office of Hay & Grimke, in Charleston, S. C., he was admitted to the bar in the last named place, and soon after established himself in Cheraw, S. C., which continued to be his home. For a time he was President of a Bank in that place.

In consequence of a radical change in his religious views, he determined to become a minister of the gospel, and in due course of time he was ordained and installed Pastor of an Old School Presbyterian Church in Cheraw. His ecclesiastical and political sentiments were of a very decided character.

During the last few years of his life, he was without pastoral charge, and for the improvement of his health he made a temporary residence in Milwaukee, Wis., Goldsborough, N. C., and Sumter, S. C., successively.

He was thrice married,—to Miss Campbell, of South Carolina—to Miss North, of New London,—and to Miss Barge, of North Carolina. Several of his children survive him. His widow resides in Fayetteville, N. C. His son, Henry W. Coit, graduated at the Yale Law School in 1858, and died at home, from camp fever contracted in the confederate army.

REUBEN STEDMAN HAZEN, eldest son of Frederick and Sarah (Stedman) Hazen, was born at Tunbridge, Vt., and removed with his parents, in childhood, to Norwich and thence to West Springfield, Mass.

After studying theology with Rev. Dr. Osgood, of Springfield, he was licensed to preach in June, 1820, by the Hampden Association. In the following year he was called to be pastor of the associated churches of Agawam and Feeding Hills, in the town of West Springfield, and was ordained Oct. 17, 1821. After remaining in this connection eight years, he withdrew from the church in Feeding Hills, and devoted himself to that in Agawam. After thirteen years additional labor here, he was dismissed May 17, 1843, and was soon after installed in Barkhamstead, Conn. After remaining here about six years and a half, he accepted an invitation to Westminster, where he was installed Sept. 26, 1849.

He died in Westminster, Conn., March 31, 1864, aged 73 years.

He was thrice married ; to a daughter of Rev. L. Wood,—a daughter of Rev. A. King,—and to Miss Burgess, of Westminster. His brother, James A., (Y. C. 1834) died in 1862.

1820.

GEORGE AUGUSTUS SHELTON, son of Rev. Philo Shelton, (Y. C. 1775) of Bridgeport, was born in Fairfield, Conn., Nov. 21, 1800.

He studied theology at the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York city. On the 3d day of August, 1826, in Christ Church, Hartford, he was admitted to the order of Deacons, by Bishop Brownell, and on the 18th day of December, 1827, in St. James Church, Newtown, L. I., to the order of Priests, by Bishop Hobart.

In 1827, he was invited to the vacant rectorship of St James' Church, Newtown, L. I., which he accepted, and where, in abundant and faithful labors, he spent the remainder of an exemplary Christian life, till, on the 27th of December, 1863, he was called to his reward.

He was deeply interested in the circulation of the Bible, and for a period of twenty-seven years he was Recording Secretary of the Long Island Bible Society, in which capacity it is believed that he visited every town on the Island,—advocating the distribution of the Bible throughout the world.

1822.

THOMAS GRAY HUBBARD, son of Thomas Hubbard, M. D., Professor of Surgery in Yale College, and of Elizabeth (Gray) Hubbard, was born in Pomfret, Conn., Sept. 12th, 1803, and died in Hartford, August 26, 1863, aged nearly 60 years.

After graduation he attended medical lectures in New York and Philadelphia, and received the Degree of M. D. at this college in 1825. He practiced his profession for a few years, first in Brooklyn, Conn., and afterwards in New York City.

He was, for the last thirty years of his life, an inmate of the Retreat for the Insane, at Hartford, Conn.

1824.

EDGAR BURR DAY died at Catskill, N. Y., Nov. 22, 1863, aged 60 years.

He was son of Orrin and Mary (Hull) Day, of Catskill, N. Y. and was born Sept. 1, 1803.

He originally entered Dartmouth College, removing thence to Yale College in his Sophomore year.

After a course of legal study at Catskill, and at Litchfield, he was admitted to the bar in 1827 and continued to practice his profession till 1841, when the failure of his eyesight led him to engage in mercantile pursuits. Catskill was his home through life.

He was an Elder in the Presbyterian Church, and for thirty years Superintendent of the Sunday School in the Church to which he belonged.

In 1835 he married Sophia A. Camp, of Sackett's Harbor, N. Y. Their children were four in number.

1825.

THOMAS SLIDELL, of New Orleans, died at his residence in Newport, R. I., April 20, 1864, aged 57 years.

He was a brother of John Slidell, the Southern representative in Paris. He entered College from New York.

He was an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court in Louisiana for several years subsequent to 1847, and in 1855 he was appointed Chief Justice of the State.

Having resigned his position on the bench, he went to Europe in 1856, for the purpose of recruiting his health, which had been impaired for a year or two, in consequence of his excessive professional labor. While abroad, mental disease developed itself, and he was brought back to this country to become a patient of the Butler Hospital, in Providence. During the winter of 1862-3, the cloud lifted, and in most respects his perceptions became quite clear and correct; and in April, 1863, he rejoined his family, who were residing in Newport, R. I., and there he remained until his death.

He leaves a widow, (formerly Miss Callender) and a son who is an officer in the national army.

1826.

JOSIAH COLLINS, of Edenton, N. C., died in that place in 1863, aged about 57 years.

He was a man of influence and wealth, and somewhat distinguished as a politician. (See page 148.)

RICHARD DECHARMS, son of William and Sarah (Mead) DeCharms, was born in Philadelphia, October 17, 1796, and died in that city, March 20, 1864, aged 67 years 5 months. His father, a native of Hammersmith near London, came to this country in 1793, and became a noted practitioner of medicine in Philadelphia. His mother kept a boarding house in Philadelphia which was the favorite resort of the members of the early Congress assembled in that city. The DeCharms family, (Des Champs), is of Norman origin; the Huguenot ancestors of the American branch having fled from Caen to London in 1685, on the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

In early life Richard DeCharms was a practical printer. His final preparation for College was made under the direction of Rev. John Langdon, at Bethlem, Conn. During the year subsequent to his graduation, he resided in Boston engaged in the study of Swedenborgian theology, under Rev. Thos. Worcester, D. D., at the same time superintending the publication of the "New Jerusalem Magazine," the first three numbers of which he printed with his own hands. His theological studies were continued in Baltimore with Rev. John Hargrove, and his first sermon on the "Paramount Importance of Spiritual Things," was published at that place in 1828, and was afterwards reprinted in London. After a year of pastoral labor in Bedford, Penn., Mr. DeCharms went to London and made further studies in Theology under Rev. Samuel Noble. On returning to this country in 1832, he became Pastor of the First New Jerusalem Church in Cincinnati, and conducted a periodical called "The Precursor." In 1839 he became Minister of the New Jerusalem Church in Philadelphia, in which post he remained five years. Between 1845 and 1850 he was settled in Baltimore, after which he returned to Philadelphia. He subsequently preached for a little while in New York, though Philadelphia continued to be his home.

In his later days he devoted much attention to various mechanical contrivances and inventions of his own. He published a large number of sermons and other treatises chiefly in the defense of Swedenborgian Theology, among the more important of which were the following:—"Sermons illustrating the Doctrine of the Lord," (1840) ; Series of Lectures delivered at Charleston, S. C., (1841) ; "The New Churchman," a periodical, and "The New Churchman—Extra ;" "Freedom and Slavery in the Light of the New Jerusalem ;" Portions of a series of Sermons against Spiritualism.

The mind of Mr. DeCharms was impaired in early life, but not so seriously as to deter him from active intellectual employments. His severe labor brought on about the year 1847 a congestion of the brain, and other disorders from which he never recovered.

In 1833, he married Miss Mary Graham, daughter of Major George Graham of Stoystown, Penn. They became the parents of eight children, four boys and four girls.

1829.

JAMES WOODS McLANE, son of John and Lydia (Lawrence) McLane, died at Williamsburgh, N. Y., February 26, 1864, aged 62 years.

He was born May 22, 1801, in Charlotte, N. C., and while he was quite young his father's family removed to Illinois, from which state he went to Phillips Academy, Andover, to prepare himself for College. He is said to have appeared at the Academy after a journey of a thousand miles on horseback.

After his graduation at New Haven, he taught a school in New London two or three years and then returned to Andover, where he pursued a course of theological study, graduating in 1835. During his residence in the Seminary he was also engaged as a Tutor in the Academy of which he had been a pupil.

In 1836 he became the first minister of the Madison Street Presbyterian Church in New York, and remained there till he was called in 1844, to the charge of the First Presbyterian Church in Williamsburgh, L. I., where he continued to be the Pastor during nearly all the remainder of his life. He was dismissed from this charge in Dec. 1863, at his own request, on account of his health, which began to fail while he was in Philadelphia, attending the meeting of the General Assembly, in the June preceding. In addition to his efficient labor as a Pastor he rendered important services to the ecclesiastical and benevolent institutions with which he was connected. He was for many years a Director and the Recorder of the Union Theological Seminary, and was also Secretary of the (N. S.) Presbyterian Church Erection Fund.

He was employed by the Committee on Versions in the American Bible Society, (of which Drs. Robinson and Turner were members,) to collate various editions of the English Bible, with a view to the preparation of a standard copy, which was adopted by the managers of the Society in 1851. This work he performed with great fidelity, pains-taking and accuracy. Various essays on the subject of Biblical Revision, from his pen, appeared in the N. Y. Observer, under the signature of "Cameroy," and he was also an occasional contributor to the Quarterly Reviews. N. Y. University gave him the degree of D. D. in 1852.

He married Dec. 3, 1833, Miss Ann H. Richards, of New London, who with six children survives him. Their eldest son, bearing his father's name, graduated at Yale College in 1861.

1832.

CHARLES THERON PRENTICE died at Canaan, Conn., Oct. 18, 1863, aged 58.

He was the son of Rev. Charles (Y. C. 1802,) and Clarinda (Kasson) Prentice, and was born in Canaan, Conn., March 31, 1805.

After leaving College, he engaged in teaching in Bridgeport, Conn., and at the same time prepared himself for the ministry under the tuition of the Rev. Dr. Hewitt. In June, 1836, he was settled as pastor of the Congregational Church in the parish of North Fairfield, (then part of the town of Weston,) now the town of Easton, Conn. Here he faithfully performed the duties of a pastor until 1851, when he was released from his charge.

From that time till his death he continued to reside in Easton. For several years after his dismissal, he taught either a family school or the Academy of the town, but for the last few years of his life he was chiefly engaged in agricultural pursuits. He was very useful as a citizen and a christian, and left upon all who knew him the impression of strict integrity of character.

He married Miss Harriet Ensign of Canaan, Conn., April 28, 1835, and leaves a widow, and an adopted daughter.

1833.

JOSIAH BALLARD died at Carlisle, Mass., Dec. 12, 1863.

He was born in Peterborough, N. H., April 14, 1806, and fitted for College at Monson Academy. He taught the classics in Westfield Academy for a year and a half, and studied theology with Rev. Dr. Whiton, of Antrim, N. H., whose daughter he married.

In 1836 he was ordained in Chesterfield, N. H., and settled over a Congregational Church in Nelson, N. H. In 1841 he removed to Sudbury, Mass., where he remained as a Pastor eleven years. In 1852 he was installed over a church in New Ipswich, N. H., and in 1855 he became a stated supply of the Church at Plympton, Mass. He was finally installed over the Church in Carlisle, September 15, 1859.

1835.

FRANK JOHNSTON, son of Alexander W. and Ann (Poin-tell) Johnston, was born in Philadelphia, October 31, 1816, and died, Dec. 10, 1863, at The Meadows, near Pittsburgh, Penn., aged 47 years.

He studied law at Cambridge, and soon took up his residence at Pittsburgh, but did not engage in professional life, his tastes and circumstances leading him to pass his days in scholarly retirement,—chiefly devoted to the study of Greek literature.

One of his sons is a member of the Class of 1867, in Yale College.

1837.

LEMUEL SPRAGUE PARSONS, son of Amos and Luna (Sperry) Parsons, was born in Wolcott, Conn., May 16th, 1809, and died in Cohoes, N. Y., April 27th, 1864, aged nearly 55 years.

He commenced his preparatory studies in Hamden, Conn., which were afterwards completed at the Academy in Troy, N. Y. He entered Yale College in the class of 1835, but did not graduate until 1837, having devoted one year to teaching in Bristol, Conn. After graduation he taught for a short time in Norfolk Co., Va., but was obliged to return home on account of ill health. After teaching another year in Bristol, he moved to Albany, N. Y., in 1839, where with his sister he established a Select Family School. He was also at the same time Principal of the Pearl Street Academy for Boys, in the same city. In 1845 he was chosen Principal of the Albany Female Academy, the duties of which he discharged with success until 1855, when he resigned his office. In the same year he engaged in manufacturing business in Cohoes, where he remained until his death.

He married, July 14th, 1838, Miss Lucy Stanley, of Goshen, Conn., who, with four children, survives him.

1838.

GEORGE ALLEN, son of Rev. George (Y. C. 1813) and Elizabeth (Pitkin,) Allen, of Worcester, Mass., was born in Suffield, Conn., June 26, 1816, and died at Chelsea, Mass., May 1, 1864, aged 47 years. He left a widow and four children.

Immediately after leaving College he engaged in the work of teaching, to which his subsequent life was wholly devoted, first in Newton and then in Boston. For many years, and at the time of his death, he was Master of the Hancock School in that place, which has been of late a school for girls, and in this position he was highly esteemed.

ALMON DAVID CORBYN died in Jackson, Missouri, Oct. 18, 1855. He was the son of Joseph P. Corbyn, and was born in Ashford, Conn., April 22, 1810. In 1815 the father removed his family to Monroe Co., N. Y., which was then almost a wilderness. The son was fitted for College at Phillips Academy, Andover.

After graduating at this College, he was for some time employed as a private tutor in Annapolis, Md., and afterwards made his home in St. Louis, Mo., where he was Professor of Greek in Kemper College. Here he was admitted to orders by the Bishop of Missouri. In 1844 he left the College and took charge of the infant parish of Christ Church, Booneville, on the Missouri River, where he built a church and parsonage. In 1852 he left this place for the charge of St. Paul's parish in Columbus, Miss., and the next year he was invited to the Rectorship of St. Andrew's College, near Jackson, Miss. This charge he left in the spring of 1855, for the parish of St. Andrew, in Jackson. In the following August the yellow fever broke out in the city, and while ministering, in a self-denying spirit, to the sick and dying, he took the disease and fell beneath the attack.

He was twice married,—first to Miss Mary Hough, of St. Louis, whose two sons are still living; and afterwards, in 1847, to Miss Virginia Buckner, who, with three children, survives him. His brother, Rev. Wm. B. Corbyn, D. D., of the class of 1839, is now living at Palmyra, Missouri.

JOSEPH KNOX WALKER died at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. Wm. S. Pickett, in Memphis, Tenn., August 21, 1863, aged about 46 years. He was a son of James Walker, of Columbia, Tenn., and a nephew of President Polk.

In March, 1845, he became Private Secretary of President Polk and the signer of land-warrants. In 1858 he was a member of the Tennessee Senate.

Soon after the beginning of the present war, he entered the Confederate service and became Colonel of a regiment. Exposure in camp, at Columbus, Ky., and afterwards in the vicinity of Corinth and Shiloh, impaired his health so seriously that he was compelled to resign his command. The U. S. General commanding the department permitted him to return on a parole of honor, to Memphis, where his strength gradually declined until his death.

1839.

LEVI WARD SMITH died at Germantown, Penn., Dec. 1863. He was the eldest son of the late Silas O. Smith of Rochester, one of the earliest residents of Monroe Co., N. Y.

He began his college life at Hamilton College, but transferred himself to New Haven at the beginning of his Junior year. After leaving college he studied law, was admitted to the bar in Rochester, and engaged with ardor in his chosen profession, devoting, also, much time to politics as a leader of the Whig party in his neighborhood. He was a member of the State Assembly of N. Y., in 1849 and 1850, and was subsequently, Adjutant-General of the state under Gov. Hunt.

He at length determined to abandon the career on which he had entered, and study for the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Having been admitted to orders, he was made the minister of a church in Albion, where he remained two years. He then resigned this post and visited Europe. On his return he became Rector of St. Michael's Church, in Germantown, Penn. While here, he was appointed a chaplain in the regular army and assigned to the charge of the Military Hospital in Germantown. As his health was impaired by these two-fold engagements, he resigned his rectorship and devoted himself to the hospital until disease completely prostrated him.

His remains were removed to Rochester for interment.

1842.

SAMUEL BUEL MULFORD, son of Silvanus S. and Fanny (Jessup) Mulford, was born at Montrose, Penn., December 9, 1821.

He studied law in the office of Hon. Wm. Jessup (Y. C. 1815) of Montrose, and was admitted to the bar in 1845. After having practised his profession for a time in his native place, he removed, in 1849, to Marysville, Cal., where he resided till his decease. During the latter years of his life, he was much occupied by political affairs, often advocating in public the national cause.

He died in Marysville, Sept. 6, 1863, aged 41 years.

WILLIAM RUFUS NELSON, of Peekskill, N. Y., was born November 22, 1822, the son of Hon. William Nelson of that place.

Having pursued a course of legal study with his father and brother, he was admitted to the bar and began to practice his profession in Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y. But he soon returned to his native place, and about 1846 formed a partnership with his father and brother.

He was married, Sept. 14, 1853, to Miss Abby E. Tuck, eldest daughter of Hon. Amos Tuck, of Exeter, N. H.

His death occurred at Peekskill, February 24, 1864, in his 42d year.

1843.

JOHN JACOB BRANDEGEE, the eldest child of John and Mary Ann (Deshon) Brandegee, was born in New London, July 15, 1823, and died in Utica, N. Y., April 6, 1864.

He pursued a three years course of theological studies in the General Theological Seminary in New York, and on its termination he was ordained Deacon by Bishop Brownell, in St. John's Church, Hartford, July 3, 1846.

In the following autumn he went to the West Indies with an invalid brother, and for a time was associated with one of the ministers of the English Church in St. Croix, in his pastoral work. Thence he went to St. Thomas's, where there was a small congregation of members of the Church of England without a place of worship or a pastor. Under his faithful ministrations, the congregation grew in numbers and in stability, and a handsome stone church was built.

On returning to this country, he was ordained Priest by Bishop Henshaw, in St. James's Church, New London, January 24, 1849, and became Rector of St. Michael's Parish, in Litchfield, Conn. In 1854, he became Rector of Grace Church, Utica, N. Y., where, also, a church was erected under his auspices.

The honorary degree of D. D. was conferred on him by Hobart and Hamilton Colleges, in 1863.

He married in Morristown, N. J., Martina L. Condit, who survives him with four children,—three sons and a daughter.

A discourse commemorative of his life was preached by the pastor of his youth, Rev. Dr. R. A. Hallam, of New London, and was printed.

JOSEPH STILLMAN HUBBARD died of typhoid fever, in New Haven, August 16, 1863, aged forty years.

He was the son of Mr. Ezra Stiles Hubbard, and was born in New Haven, Sept. 7, 1823.

After leaving college, he was engaged for a short time in teaching at Southington, Conn., and he then went to Philadelphia where he found occupation for his remarkable powers as a computer, in the service of Mr. Sears C. Walker, the distinguished astronomer. He was subsequently engaged by Capt. John C. Fremont, in the reduction of the Astronomical observations of his first Expedition. Early in 1845, he was appointed by the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Bancroft, a professor of Mathematics in the U. S. Navy, and assigned for permanent duty to the Naval Observatory in Washington, then recently established. His distinguished ability, both as an astronomical observer and a mathematician, were apparent, not only in his prolonged service at his post, but also in his extra-official studies and investigations. He remained connected with the Observatory until his death, which appears to have been occasioned by the arduous efforts which he put forth during the warm summer months, to relieve the sick and wounded soldiers in the hospitals of Washington. The printed volumes of Washington Observations contain the chief results of his labors. Many articles from his pen, including investigations on the orbits of several comets and planets, were printed in Dr. Gould's Astronomical Journal. He wrote the article on Telescopes, for Appleton's New American Cyclopædia.

His relatives have presented to the Library of Yale College a collection of his manuscripts, (chiefly computations,) in fourteen quarto volumes.

Prof. Hubbard was appointed by Congress one of the original members of the National Academy of Science.

He married, April 27, 1848, Miss Sarah E. L. Hardy, of Washington, who died in 1861. Their only child died in 1857.

ROBERT WESLEY NELSON died at Walkersville, Md., April 23, 1863, aged 43 years.

He was born at Locust Grove, Frederick Co., Md., April 25, 1820. He pursued the study of medicine in Frederick City, Md., and in the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. He commenced practice in his native town, where he continued to reside until his death.

He was married, May 24, 1854, to Miss Ellen Jones, of Kent Co., Md., who survives him with two children.

HUBERT FRANKLIN NORTH died in New Britain, Conn., October 27, 1863, aged 41 years. He was son of Alvin and Clarissa (Burnham) North, and was born Nov. 13, 1822.

He pursued the study of Law in the office of R. H. Mills, Esq., in New Hartford, Litchfield Co., Conn., in the Yale Law School, and in the office of Hon. W. W. Ellsworth, of Hartford, Conn. He was admitted to the bar in March, 1845, and commenced the successful practice of his profession in his native town.

A serious affection of his eyes, and the failure of his general health, compelled him to abandon his profession and engage in more active pursuits. In 1849, he began the manufacture of saddlery hardware. The firm of H. F. North & Co. was but a short time previous to his death, changed for permanence to North & Judd Manufacturing Co. which is its present designation.

As a business man, a member of community, an earnest and useful Christian, and in all the public and private relations of life, his course was crowned with honor and success, and he died widely mourned and lamented.

He was married, Sept. 1st, 1852, to Jane H., daughter of Abel Hendrick, Esq., of New Britain.

His children were two daughters, one of whom died in 1857.

1844.

ROBERT FARRIS FISK died suddenly in Washington, D. C., December 16, 1863, aged 44. He was the third son of Deacon William and Jane (Farris) Fisk, and was born in Cambridge, Mass., May 5, 1819.

After a course of study fitting him for commercial life, he entered the counting-room of an India merchant in Boston, and remained there three or four years, subsequently making a voyage to the West Indies. An irresistible desire for a college education, and the partial failure of his health, led him to change his course of life.

After graduating in New Haven, he pursued the study of law at Cambridge, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar, but he did not enter upon the practice of his profession. He engaged in mercantile and manufacturing pursuits at Boston, and continued there until 1857, when he removed to St. Paul, Minnesota. From 1860 to 1863 he held the office of State Librarian of Minnesota, and then, in consequence of impaired health, he returned to the East.

He was married, June 16, 1847, in New Haven, to Miss Narcissa P. Whittemore, step-daughter of Hon. S. J. Hitchcock. His widow and five children survive him. His brother, Dr. S. A. Fisk, graduated in the same class, and is living in Northampton, Mass.

1847.

SETH ELY CASE, the son of Aurora and Betsey Case, was born in Simsbury, Conn., November 3, 1825, the youngest of five brothers.

He fitted himself for college in the school at Ellington, and under the instructions of Rev. C. McLean, at Collinsville.

Having chosen the Law as his profession, he pursued a course of preparatory studies in the Law department of this College, and subsequently in the offices of Judge Parsons and John Hooker, Esq., of Hartford. In 1850 he entered upon the practice of his profession at New Britain, where he continued to reside, respected and beloved by the community, until his death. This occurred, after a short illness, at New Britain, on the 19th of April, 1864, in his 39th year.

He was married, Oct. 16, 1850, to Miss Minerva E. Wilcox, who, with two sons, survives him.

1849.

ANDREW UPSON, son of Levi Upson, was born in Southington, Conn., May 18, 1825.

After two years employed in teaching at Salem, N. J., and Wellsboro, Tioga Co., Pa., he returned to his native place, and resided there, engaged in agriculture. He was a member of the General Assembly of Connecticut in 1854.

In August, 1862, Mr. Upson entered the military service of the country as First Lieutenant, Company E., 20th Regiment Conn. Vols., and was subsequently promoted to be Captain of Co. K., in the same Regiment.

In the battle of Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863, he was taken prisoner and carried to Libby prison. After his release, he was stationed with his company at Tracy City, Tenn., a small place on the Cumberland mountains, which it was important to hold for the protection of a coal mine worked for the government. On the 20th of Jan., 1864, a detachment of rebel cavalry dashed into the place, and surrounding the quarters of Captain Upson, took him prisoner. After his surrender he was twice cruelly shot, and on the 19th of February he died from the effects of the double wounds.

His career was that of a brave and upright Christian soldier.

He married Miss Elizabeth Gridley, of Southington, who, with three children, survives him.

1851.

CHARLES ALFRED BAER. (See page 149.)

1853.

JOSHUA ANDERSON died of consumption, in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 25, 1864, aged 35 years.

He was born in Buckingham, Pa., Dec. 14, 1828. After a course of studies in the Law Department of this College, he received the degree of LL. B. in 1855, and soon afterwards entered on the active duties of his profession in the city of New York, where he remained until his death.

1854.

GEORGE FREDERICK NICHOLS died in New York city, Oct. 2, 1863, aged 31 years. He was son of Willis Nichols, and was born at Fairfield, Conn., March 8, 1832.

After a short time passed in teaching at Gallatin, Tenn., he pursued the study of law with the firm of Mead & Taft in New York city, and in 1857 he opened an office for the practice of his profession in that place, in connection with Stewart L. Woodford, Esq. There he continued until his decease, which was occasioned by consumption. His remains were buried in Greenfield, Conn.

JAMES CLAY RICE fell in battle, near Spottsylvania Court House, Va., May 11, 1864, aged 34 years.

He was born at Worthington, Mass., Dec. 27, 1829.

After his college course was completed, he resided for a year in Natchez, Mississippi, engaged in teaching and in writing for one of the local newspapers. He also pursued the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in that State.

Returning to the North, he continued his legal studies in New York, in the office of Theodore Sedgewick, Esq., and in 1856 he commenced the practice of his chosen profession.

When the present war began, he engaged in the military service with rare ardor and efficiency. Enlisting as a private in the N. Y. Garibaldi Guard, he soon became Lieutenant, then Adjutant, and afterwards Captain. When the 44th Regiment N. Y. S. Vol. was organized, he received the appointment in it of Lieutenant Colonel. From that time on, his career is thus recorded in the N. Y. Evening Post, (May 12, 1864.)

"He led his regiment through Yorktown, at Hanover Court House, at the bloody battle of Gaines's Mill, at Malvern Hill, at Manassas, in 1862, and was absent from Antietam because he was on a sick-bed with typhoid fever; then at Fredericksburg, under Burnside, and Chancellorsville, under Hooker; then at Gettysburg, where he rendered the most essential and distinguished service. It was his brigade, then the Third brigade of the First division of the Fifth corps; which held the extreme left of the line on Thursday, the second day of the battle, and which successfully resisted the repeated and desperate onsets of the enemy. For three hours in that battle Colonel Rice fought incessantly, without receiving a single order from any superior officer; sending for, receiving and disposing of reinforcements with such cool skill and judgment that at the close of the day's fight he had cleared his front of the enemy and extended and advanced his line so as to cover Round-Top Mountain, which rendered it secure against any flanking movement. For this great service, as well as in reward for former gallant deeds, General Meade, supported by the previous earnest recommendations of Generals Hooker, Porter and Butterfield, had him appointed Brigadier General, in which position he participated in the advance upon Mine Run, passed through the perils of the Wilderness, and met his death amidst the carnage on the banks of the Po.

He fought from a sense of duty, was always foremost in battle, and the deep religious conviction which animated his heart made him, it is not too much to say, one of the best Christian soldiers of the army."

JAMES EDWARD RAINS, son of John Rains, was born in Wilson Co., Tenn., April 10, 1833, and entered college Sophomore year, a resident of Nashville, Tenn.

After teaching for a short time, he studied law and entered on the practice of his profession in Nashville.

In the Confederate army he held the rank of Colonel, and subsequently of Brigadier General, and fell, shot through the heart, at Murfreesboro', Dec. 31, 1862.

He married Miss Yeatman, a step-daughter of John Bell, formerly U. S. Senator from Tennessee.

1855.

WILLIAM WHEELER, youngest son of Russell C. (Y. C. 1816) and Theodosia (Davenport) Wheeler, fell in battle, near Marietta, Ga., June 22, 1864. He was born in New York, August 14, 1836. During his college life, the family residence was removed to New Haven.

After graduation he remained in New Haven, engaged in legal and other studies, till May, 1857, when he sailed for Europe. After passing the summer in travel, he continued the study of law during the winter of 1857-8, at the University of Berlin, and he subsequently visited Italy and Greece.

He returned to New Haven in July, 1858, and in the next Spring he entered the Law School at Cambridge, Mass., where he received the degree of LL. B. in 1860. He soon opened an office in New York City, and entered on the practice of his profession; but when the rebellion began, he could not resist the call of his country, and first went to the defense of the Capitol, with the Seventh Reg. N. Y. S. N. G. in the spring of 1861. After this temporary service, he enlisted a company of men, many of whom were Germans, and received a commission, first as Lieutenant, and subsequently as Captain of the 13th Independent Battery of New York. In this artillery service he was arduously engaged until he was cut down by death.

In the Shenandoah Valley and at Gettysburg, with the Army of the Potomac, and subsequently in the battle of Look-out Mountain, and during the recent advance into Georgia, he bore a most honorable part.

As his battery was connected with no brigade, promotion above the rank of Captain was not possible for him without a change of service. He was however appointed Chief of Artillery on the Staff of Gen. Geary, (2d Div. 20th Army Corps,) in which capacity he served with distinction.

During an engagement with the enemy, it was necessary for his battery to hold an unoccupied position between the First and Second Divisions of his corps. Gen. Geary told him that he could give him no support from the infantry. "Very well, I will support myself then," was Capt. Wheeler's reply. A few moments afterwards a bullet from a sharp shooter pierced his heart, and he fell instantly killed.

His keen relish for knowledge, his quickness of perception and his nobility of soul were strengthened by the army service ;—and bright hopes of scholarly distinction were buried in this patriot's grave.

His body rests in Greenwood Cemetery. A Discourse commemorative of his life was preached in New Haven, July 17, by Prof. Timothy Dwight.

1856.

CHARLES EDWIN BULKELEY, the son of Hon. Eliphalet A. Bulkeley (Y. C. 1824) of Hartford, Conn., was born in Colchester, Dec. 16, 1835.

He was fitted for College in the Hartford Grammar School, was admitted to Trinity College, and at the beginning of Junior year he became a member of this college.

After his graduation he studied law with his father, and was admitted to the Bar in 1859. He was soon afterwards made Clerk of the Hartford City Court.

He responded to the first call for troops in the present war, and served as a member of Co. A. in the First Regiment of Connecticut Volunteers. He was afterwards appointed First Lieutenant in the 1st Conn. Heavy Artillery, and was again promoted to be Captain of Co. E. in that regiment. He shared the hardships of the Peninsular campaign and was subsequently stationed in the defenses of Washington. While in the latter position he was selected for his proficiency to be the Adjutant of the 1st Battalion. He died at Battery Garesche, Va., February 13, 1864, after a short attack of typhoid fever and pneumonia, aged 28 years.

GEORGE CHESTER ROBINSON died at Wellsboro, Penn., Sept. 21, 1863, aged 30 years.

He was the only son of Chester Robinson, Esq., and was born in Wellsboro, August, 1833.

After pursuing a course of theological study in the Union Seminary at New York, he became in 1858 the Minister of the First Place Methodist Episcopal Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., and in the following year he took charge of the Union Chapel in Cincinnati. His health failing, he was sent to Europe by the ecclesiastical society of which he was the minister, and after an extended tour and a prolonged residence in Germany, he returned home with renewed vigor, and with bright hopes for the future, but he soon fell a victim to pulmonary consumption.

He was an occasional contributor to "the Methodist" newspaper.

He married, Aug. 4, 1858, Miss Maria M. Stevens, daughter of Rev. Dr. Abel Stevens, now of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

SAMUEL FAY WOODS, youngest son of Mr. H. P. Woods, of Barre; Mass., was born in that town, June 23, 1837.

His legal studies were pursued in Worcester and Cambridge, and on reaching the age of twenty-one, he was admitted to the bar and commenced practice in the place of his birth.

On the 19th of April, 1861, he entered the military service of the United States, as a Lieutenant in the Third Battalion of Rifles in Massachusetts, being the first man in his town to enter the service. He returned home with his Regiment at the end of three months, and in the summer of 1862, again joined the Volunteer army as Adjutant of the 34th Mass. Regiment. He afterwards held the position of A. A. Adj. Gen. on the staff of Gen. M. Weber, but when his regiment was ordered to the front he chose to rejoin it, and his request was granted.

Having been severely wounded, he returned to Worcester, where he died a few hours after the amputation of his arm, June 26, 1864, aged 27 years.

1858.

DEWEES OGDEN, son of Charles W. Ogden, was born at Pascagoola, Miss., Aug. 5, 1839.

After studying law with George P. Stevens, Esq., in New York, he was admitted to the bar and opened an office in that city. He afterwards held a position in the New York Post Office, which he resigned in order to go to the South and enter the Confederate army. He joined the Richmond Howitzers, as a private, and was killed at Gettysburg, in the first battle, it is believed, in which he fought.

CHARLES BOARDMAN WHITTLESEY was born in Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 4, 1834. His father was Rev. Joseph Whittlesey, (Y. C. 1825,) formerly of Stonington, Conn., and afterwards of Berlin. He entered Amherst College in 1854, and during Sophomore year transferred himself to this College.

After graduation he was occupied in farming, residing in Huron Co., Ohio. At the outbreak of the rebellion he enlisted as a private in the 55th Regiment of Ohio Volunteers, for three years, hoping to be instrumental in freeing the Union from slavery. His health was never vigorous, and from Oct., 1862, to February, 1863, he was confined in the hospital; but he rejoined his regiment in time to participate in the battles of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. His regiment was then transferred to the West, and after taking part in the battle of Chattanooga, was sent to the relief of Knoxville. He was then again taken ill, and after three months confinement in the hospital at Nashville, Tenn., he died in that place, February 21, 1864, aged 29 years.

1859.

PETER VIVIAN DANIEL, son of Vivian and Vitula Daniel, was born July 10, 1837, in Hardinsburg, Kentucky, from which place he entered college.

After graduation he studied law with Mr. Shepley, in St. Louis, Mo. and was licensed to practice in 1860. At the commencement of the war he assisted in raising a Company of men for the Confederate army, and was appointed First Lieut. in the Fifth, and subsequently Captain in the Ninth Kentucky Regiment of Confederate troops. He was wounded in battle at Baton Rouge, and was present at the battles of Shiloh and Murfreesboro. He was killed in the battle of Chickamauga, while leading his men in a charge on the National breastworks, September 20, 1863, aged 26 years.

1860.

THEODORE LEWIS BUFFETT HOWE died in North Madison, Conn., of consumption, November 7, 1863, aged 24 years.

He was a son of Rev. Samuel Howe, (Y. C. 1827,) and E. L. (Buffet) Howe, now of North Madison, and was born in Lenox, N. Y., June 15, 1839.

After graduation he taught a school in Madison, Conn., for a short time,—but a hemorrhage of the lungs, in January, 1861, interrupted this work, and he never recovered his health.

He was intending to become a foreign missionary, and with this hope he pursued, as far as his health permitted, the study of theology and medicine.

FREDERICK CALLENDER OGDEN, only son of Edwin Ogden, Esq., of Newport, R. I., fell in an engagement between Gens. Sheridan and Imboden, at Trevillian Station, Va., June 11, 1864, aged 25 years.

He was born in New Jersey, May 21, 1839.

He spent a year after graduation in Europe. He then entered the military service as Lieutenant in the regular Cavalry, in which capacity he was actively engaged at Fort Leavenworth under Gen. Hunter, in Kentucky and Tennessee under Gens. Buel and Rosecrans, and afterwards under Gen. Stoneman, in Virginia. He was promoted to be First Lieutenant, July 17, 1862, and at the time of his death was Adjutant of the First Regiment U. S. Cavalry.

JAMES HENRY SCHNEIDER, the son of Rev. Dr. Benjamin and Susan M. Schneider, (missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M. at Aintab, Syria,) was born at Broosa, Turkey, March 14, 1839.

During the first three years subsequent to his graduation he was a teacher in the State Normal School, Bridgewater, Mass. He had often felt impelled to offer his services to the country after the rebellion began,—and at length when he was drafted, he determined to report in person for duty. He presently received the appointment of Lieutenant in the 2d Regiment of U. S. colored troops, and was afterwards chosen Chaplain of the Regiment, being ordained at Bridgewater, Oct. 27, 1863. He was stationed at Ship Island, and then at Key West. After a short illness, he became a prey to the yellow fever, and died April 25, 1864, aged 25 years.

In determining, from the purest love of his country, to enter the military service, he declined an appointment as Tutor in Yale College, and postponed indefinitely, direct preparation for the work of a foreign missionary, on which his choice was fixed.

1861.

JOHN NEWELL BANNAN, the son of Benjamin Bannan, was born in Pottsville, Schuylkill County, Penn., August 25, 1839, and died in the same town, Nov. 20, 1863, aged 24 years.

After leaving college he was desirous of entering the service of his country, but on account of his tendency to ill health, he was persuaded by his father to remain for a time at home. Here he took an active part in the enlistment of men of education in the Anderson Cavalry, Col. Palmer, and he finally joined this regiment in the capacity of Corporal, hoping to be benefitted by an out-door life. The hard service which he saw during the first raid into Maryland, in 1862, was too severe for his health, and he was obliged to seek a discharge from the army. Having partly regained his strength at the time of the second raid into Pennsylvania, he persisted, contrary to the advice of physicians and friends, in re-enlisting,—saying, that “he was ashamed to be seen at home.” Again he overtaxed his physical powers, but remained in the army until his regiment was discharged. From that time he continued to fail, until he fell a prey to consumption at the beginning of his 25th year.

JAMES PEPPER PRATT, eldest son of Hon. D. D. Pratt, was born at Logansport, Indiana, Oct. 9, 1841, and was killed on the battle field near Hanover Town, Va., May 29, 1864, in his 23d year.

Immediately after leaving college he began the study of law in his father's office,—but the magnitude of the rebellion soon became so obvious that he determined to enter the military service, and notwithstanding the ease and comfort by which he had always been surrounded, he enlisted as a private for three years in the United States Regular Army. For four months he cheerfully did duty in the ranks, till a knowledge of his character reached President Lincoln, by whom he was appointed a Lieutenant in the Regular Army. For several months he was employed in recruiting troops at various posts in the Eastern States, till, in the spring of 1863, he was summoned to join his regiment under Gen. Meade. He was soon made Adjutant of his regiment, (11th U. S. Infantry, Warren's Corps,) in which capacity he shared the varying fortunes of the Army of the Potomac, with acknowledged bravery. He was twice struck at Gettysburg, and finally, after passing through the battles of the Wilderness, he fell, pierced through the heart, on the field near Hanover Town.

1862.

IRA RUSH ALEXANDER was killed at Mine Run, Orange County, Va., Nov. 29, 1863.

Soon after his college course was over, he became a First Lieutenant in the 16th Pennsylvania Cavalry, and was speedily promoted to the rank of Captain, in which capacity he served his country until his death.

His regiment being attached to the Army of the Potomac, he bravely participated in over twenty engagements. On the day of his death he had been sent to the front to repel an attack of the enemy. This he did successfully and returned to camp. While he was still on horseback, reporting to his Colonel, he was shot through the body, (probably by a rebel sharp-shooter,) and expired in a few hours.

His body was carried to his home at Lewistown, Penn., for burial.

WILLIAM' WATSON HOUSE, son of Wm. W. House, Esq., of Hartford, died of the dysentery at Harney House Hospital, Baton Rouge, La., July 24, 1863, aged 23 years.

He was a member of Co. A., 25th Regiment of Connecticut Volunteers, and was taken ill during the siege of Port Hudson. He had acquired the respect of his officers and comrades as a brave and faithful soldier.

His body was buried in the U. S. Cemetery at Baton Rouge.

RICHARD SKINNER, only surviving child of Hon. Mark Skinner, of Chicago, Ill., was born in that city in 1842.

On leaving College he entered at once on the military service of the country, receiving a commission as First Lieutenant in the regular army, and becoming attached to the 10th U. S. Infantry. His first service was on the staff of Gen. Hunter, in the department of the South. Subsequently he was transferred to the staff of Gen. Roberts, and was occupied in the inspection and purchase of commissary's stores in Iowa. He was subsequently transferred to the department of the Gulf and served in Texas. When summoned to his regiment, he went with alacrity to the front, and within two or three days of his arrival he was shot down, June 22, 1864, in the neighborhood of Petersburg, Va., and died the next day.

1863.

HARVEY HARRIS BLOOM, son of Benjamin and Abby La Rue Carle Bloom, of North Norwich, (King's Settlement,) New York, was born August 23d, 1838, and died at his father's home, March 18, 1864, aged 25 years.

He was originally a member of the class of 1862, and upon reaching the close of his Junior year, he entered the military service of his country as First Lieutenant in the Fifth Regiment, Excelsior Brigade, N. Y. State Volunteers.

His strength was not sufficient to bear the exposure to which he was liable, and after two severe illnesses he resigned his commission and re-entered college in the class of 1863, with which he graduated. But his health was seriously impaired, and after a gradual decline he died of consumption.

EDWIN MACOMBER, son of John Macomber, was born at Oakham, Mass., Oct. 20, 1836, and died in New Haven, Sept. 6, 1863, aged 26 years.

He prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover.

After graduating in July last, he spent a few weeks in a visit at Washington, and on returning to New Haven, was attacked with dysentery, and died, after a short illness, in the full assurance of Christian faith.

WALTER HEBERT SMYTH was the elder son of Ralph D., (Y. C. 1827) and Rachel (Seward) Smith, of Guilford, where he was born May 11, 1843.

He fitted for college at the Guilford Institute. In March, 1863, his health, which had been for some time failing, became so much enfeebled that he was obliged to leave college. He was with his class at the time of taking their degrees, but soon after he went to the West, in hopes that the climate beyond the Mississippi might bring convalescence. He died, however, at Fairfield City, Iowa, on the 27th of November, 1863, at the age of 20 years.

The Woolsey and Bristed Scholarships, which were awarded to him on examination, attest his high standing as a scholar among his classmates.

While this record has been passing through the press, the following additional information has come to hand.

1826.

JOSIAH COLLINS, son of Josiah Collins, a wealthy planter of Edenton, N. C., was born at that place in 1807.

After leaving college, he entered the school at Litchfield, and qualified himself for the profession of the Law. He was a man of mark in the neighborhood of his residence at Edenton, taking an active interest in political affairs, and serving several years as a member of the North Carolina Senate. He died in the latter part of 1863, aged 56 years.

In 1829, he married Miss Riggs, of New Jersey.

1851.

CHARLES ALFRED BAER was born at Lancaster, Pa., May 28, 1831, and died at Norristown, Pa., Sept., 1863.

After graduation, he engaged in study at home for two years, and in October, 1853, he entered the Theological Seminary of the Lutheran Church at Gettysburgh. He was in due time ordained as a minister of that church, and for the last two years prior to his decease, had been a Pastor of a church in Norristown, Pa. His care for the sick and wounded at Gettysburgh seriously impaired his health, and he finally sank under an attack of typhoid fever.

In addition to the names above recorded, the following deaths have been reported among the professional graduates of the College, not graduates of the Academic Department.

DOCTORS OF MEDICINE.

1821.

ALANSON ABBE was born at Enfield, Conn., June 17, 1795; was graduated at the Medical Institution at New Haven, in 1821, and soon after commenced the practice of his profession at Litchfield, Conn., from which place he removed in 1839 to Worcester, Mass., and from there, in 1841, to Boston, where he resided till the time of his death, April 14, 1864, in the 69th year of his age.

His son, Rev. F. R. Abbe, graduated at this College in 1848.

1832.

ASA LEFFINGWELL SPALDING was born Sept. 18, 1800, at Killingly, Conn. His parents soon after removed to Colchester, Conn.; where he was fitted for College, at "Bacon Academy." He relinquished, however, the idea of a collegiate education, and entered upon the study of medicine,—which he pursued in part under the instruction of Dr. North, of Hartford, Conn., and subsequently in the Medical School at Yale College, from which he received his degree. He commenced practice in Marlborough, (Conn.,) whence he removed to East Haddam, (Conn.) Continuing but a short time in each of these places, he came, in the spring of 1839, to Enfield, Conn., where he spent the remaining twenty-five years of his life, almost constantly engaged in the duties of his profession.

He was a man of marked energy of character,—a quality which showed itself in the vigorous support he rendered in church and religious matters, no less than in his successful professional life. He died at Enfield, Jan. 7, 1864.

Dr. Spalding was twice married:—in 1834, to Miss Mary R. Dixon;—in 1843, to Miss Sarah H. Field. He was the father of four children, all of whom are living. The two eldest are graduates of Williams College.

1843.

WILLIAM TAYLOR CLARK died of diphtheria, at Mannsville, Jefferson Co., N. Y., Dec. 2, 1863, in the 45th year of his age.

A native of Rodman, Jefferson Co. N. Y., he began his medical studies in Syracuse, and completed his preparatory course at New Haven. Eight of the twenty years of his medical life were spent in Ohio, and the remaining twelve in New York State. He was busily engaged in his profession up to the time of his death, and was also an active member of the Congregational Church.

BACHELOR OF LAWS.

1847.

FRANKLIN HULSE CLACK, son of Commander Clack, U. S. N., born in Florida, 1828, graduated at Mount St. Mary's College in 1845, and took the degree of Bachelor of Laws at Yale in 1847. He was appointed Secretary of Legation to Brazil in 1851, and after his return and settlement in New Orleans was appointed U. S. District Attorney for Louisiana. On retiring from this position, he continued the practice of his profession with success.

He married a daughter of Mr. S. Babcock, of New Haven.

He was wounded during the battles of Mayfield and Pleasant Hill, Western Louisiana, which took place on the 8th and 9th of April, 1864, and died on the 24th of April.

BACHELOR OF PHILOSOPHY.

1852.

GEORGE WASHINGTON WEYMAN, son of George Weyman, a manufacturer in Pittsburg, Pa., was born in April, 1832, and died at Pittsburg, June 16, 1864.

He studied in Europe three years, at the Universities of Göttingen and Munich, receiving the degree of Ph. D. from the University of Göttingen in 1855. His Inaugural Dissertation was an investigation entitled "Lithia and its Salts."

At the time of his death Dr. Weyman was established at Pittsburg as Pharmaceutist and Analytical Chemist.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and age.	Place and	Time of death.
1787	Joshua Dewey, 96,	Watertown, N. Y.,	Feb. 23, 1864.
1792	William Botsford, 91,	Westmoreland, N. Brunswick,	May 8, 1864.
1801	John Wales, 80,	Wilmington, Del.,	Dec. 3, 1863.
1802	Pelatiah Perit, 78,	New Haven, Conn.,	March 8, 1864.
1804	Walter R. Kibbe, 82,	Somers, Conn.,	April 22, 1864.
1805	Leonard Cowles, 78,	Delaware, Ohio,	Dec. 29, 1861.
1805	George Olcott, 78,	Charlestown, N. H.,	Feb. 4, 1864.
1805	William M. Smith, 76,	Sharon, Conn.,	March 19, 1864.
1806	Caleb Pitkin, 83,	Hudson, Ohio,	Feb. 5, 1864.
1807	Darius Mead, 76,	Greenwich Conn.,	Jan. 28, 1864.
1808	Timothy Tuttle, 82,	Ledyard, Conn.,	June 6, 1864.
1809	Charles E. Clarke, 74,	Champion, N. Y.,	Dec. 8, 1863.
1810	Lot Newell, 76,	New York City,	March 30, 1864.
1812	Thomas Dunlap, 71,	Philadelphia, Pa.	July 11, 1864.
1814	Charles B. Goddard, 67,	Zanesville, Ohio,	Feb. 1, 1864.
1814	David L. Ogden, 71,	New Haven, Conn.,	Oct. 31, 1863.
1817	Ebenezer Andrews, 69,	Chicago, Illinois,	April 28, 1864.
1818	John C. Coit, 64,	Cheraw, S. C.,	Feb. 6, 1863.
1818	Reuben S. Hazen, 73,	Westminster, Conn.,	March 31, 1864.
1820	George A. Shelton, 63,	Newtown, L. I.	Dec. 27, 1863.
1822	Thomas G. Hubbard, 60,	Hartford, Conn.,	Aug. 26, 1863.
1824	Edgar B. Day, 60,	Catskill, N. Y.,	Nov. 22, 1863.
1825	Thomas Slidell, 57,	Newport, R. I.,	April 20, 1864.
1826	Josiah Collins, 57,	Edenton, N. C.,	1863.
1826	Richard De Charms, 67,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	March 20, 1864.
1829	James W. McLane, 62,	Williamsburg, N. Y.,	Feb. 26, 1864.
1832	Charles T. Prentice, 58,	Canaan, Conn.,	Oct. 18, 1863.
1833	Josiah Ballard, 57,	Carlisle, Mass.,	Dec. 12, 1863.
1835	Frank Johnston, 47,	near Pittsburg, Pa.	Dec. 10, 1863.
1837	Lemuel S. Parsons, 55,	Cohoes, N. Y.,	April 27, 1864.
1838	George Allen, 47,	Chelsea, Mass.,	May 1, 1864.
1838	Almon D. Corbyn, 45,	Jackson, Mo.,	Oct. 15, 1855.
1838	J. Knox Walker, 46,	Memphis, Tenn.,	Aug. 21, 1863.
1839	Levi W. Smith, 44,	Germantown, Pa.,	Dec., 1863.
1842	Samuel B. Mulford, 41,	Marysville, Cal.,	Sept. 6, 1863.
1842	William R. Nelson, 41,	Peekskill, N. Y.,	Feb. 24, 1864.
1843	John J. Brandegee, 40,	Utica, N. Y.,	April 6, 1864.
1843	Joseph S. Hubbard, 40,	New Haven, Conn.,	Aug. 16, 1863.
1843	Robert W. Nelson, 43,	Walkersville, Md.,	April 23, 1863.
1843	Hubert F. North, 41,	New Britain, Conn.,	Oct. 27, 1863.
1844	Robert F. Fisk, 44,	Washington, D. C.,	Dec. 16, 1863.
1847	Seth E. Case, 38,	New Britain, Conn.,	April 19, 1864.
1849	Andrew Upson, 38,	near Tracy City, Tenn.,	Feb. 19, 1864.
1851	Charles A. Baer,	Norristown, Pa.,	Sept., 1863.
1853	Joshua Anderson, 35,	Brooklyn, N. Y.	March 25, 1864.
1854	George F. Nichols, 31,	New York City,	Oct. 2, 1863.
1854	James C. Rice, 34,	Spottsylvania C. H., Va.,	May 11, 1864.
1854	James E. Rains, 29,	Murfreesboro, Tenn.	Dec. 31, 1862.
1855	William Wheeler, 27,	near Marietta, Ga.,	June 22, 1864.
1856	Charles E. Bulkeley, 28,	Battery Garesche, Va.,	Feb. 13, 1864.
1856	George C. Robinson, 30,	Wellsboro', Pa.,	Sept. 21, 1863.
1856	Samuel F. Woods, 27,	Worcester, Mass.,	June 26, 1864.
1858	Deweese Ogden, 24,	Gettysburg, Pa.,	July, 1863.

1858	Charles B. Whittlesey, 29,	Nashville, Tenn.,	Feb. 21, 1864.
1859	Peter V. Daniel, 26,	Chickamauga Battle Field,	Sept. 20, 1863.
1860	Theodore L. B. Howe, 24,	North Madison, Conn.,	Nov. 7, 1863.
1860	Frederick C. Ogden, 25,	Trevillian Station, Va.,	June 11, 1864.
1860	James H. Schneider, 25,	Key West, Fla.,	April 25, 1864.
1861	John N. Bannan, 24,	Pottsville, Pa.,	Nov. 20, 1863.
1861	James P. Pratt, 22,	near Hanover Town, Va.,	May 29, 1864.
1862	Ira R. Alexander,	Mine Run, Va.,	Nov. 29, 1863.
1862	William W. House, 23,	Baton Rouge, La.,	July 24, 1863.
1862	Richard Skinner, 22,	near Petersburg, Va.,	June 22, 1864.
1863	Harvey H. Bloom, 25,	North Norwich, N. Y.,	March 18, 1864.
1863	Edwin Macomber, 26,	New Haven, Conn.,	Sept. 6, 1863.
1863	Walter H. Smyth, 20,	Fairfield, Iowa,	Nov. 28, 1863.

Total, 66. Average age, 50 years.

DOCTORS OF MEDICINE.

1821	Alanson Abbe, 68.	Boston, Mass.	April 14, 1864.
1832	Asa L. Spalding, 63.	Enfield, Conn.	Jan. 7, 1864.
1843	William T. Clark, 45.	Mannsville, N. Y.	Dec. 2, 1863.

BACHELOR OF LAWS.

1847	Franklin H. Clack, 36.	Louisiana.	April 24, 1864.
------	------------------------	------------	-----------------

BACHELOR OF PHILOSOPHY.

1862	George W. Weyman, 32.	Pittsburg, Pa.	June 16, 1864.
------	-----------------------	----------------	----------------

The number of deaths reported this year has been sixty-six,—besides five graduates of the Law, Medical and Scientific Schools, making a total of seventy-one names recorded in this list.

The deaths among the graduates of the academical department are thus distributed; in Connecticut, 14; in New York, 12; in Pennsylvania, 8; in Virginia, 6; in Tennessee, 5; in Massachusetts, 3; in Ohio, 3; in New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, California, District of Columbia, and New Brunswick, each 1;—Total 66.

Among the deceased were Ministers, 16; Lawyers, 30; Physicians, 2.

The oldest graduates of the College are now

Class of 1788 Rev. DANIEL WALDO, of Syracuse, N. Y., who will be 102 years of age, Sept. 10, 1864.

" 1793 Hon. DAVID S. BOARDMAN, of New Milford, Conn.

" 1794 Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, of Utica, N. Y.

" 1794 Rev. DAN HUNTINGTON, of Hadley, Mass.

" 1795 Pres. JEREMIAH DAY, of New Haven.

It is believed, that in all, fourteen graduates of classes prior to the class of 1800 are still surviving.

During the year, the oldest ad eundem or honorary graduate of this College, who was also the oldest graduate of Harvard College, Hon. JOSIAH QUINCY, (admitted to his first degree at Cambridge, in 1790, and here in 1792,) died in Quincy, Mass, July 1, 1864, aged 92 years.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page.	Class.	Page.
1862 Alexander, Ira R.	146	1807 Mead, Darius,	122
1838 Allen, George,	133	1842 Mulford, Samuel B.	134
1853 Anderson, Joshua,	139	1843 Nelson, Robert W.	137
1817 Andrews, Ebenezer,	125	1842 Nelson, William R.	135
1833 Ballard, Josiah,	131	1810 Newell, Lot,	124
1851 Baer, Charles F.	149	1854 Nichols, George F.	139
1861 Bannan, John N.	146	1843 North, Hubert F.	137
1863 Bloom, Harvey H.	147	1814 Ogden, David L.	125
1792 Botsford, William,	118	1858 Ogden, Dewees,	143
1843 Brandegee, John J.	135	1860 Ogden, Frederick C.	145
1856 Bulkeley, Charles E.	142	1805 Olcott, George,	121
1847 Case, Seth E.	138	1837 Parsons, Lemuel S.	132
1809 Clarke, Charles E.	123	1802 Perit, Pelatiah,	119
1818 Coit, John C.	126	1806 Pitkin, Caleb,	122
1826 Collins, Josiah,	129	1833 Prentice, Charles T.	131
1838 Corbyn, Almon D.	133	1861 Pratt, James P.	145
1805 Cowles, Leonard,	120	1854 Rice, James C.	139
1859 Daniel, Peter V.	144	1854 Rains, James E.	140
1824 Day, Edgar B.	128	1856 Robinson, George C.	142
1826 De Charms, Richard,	129	1860 Schneider, James H.	145
1787 Dewey, Joshua,	117	1820 Shelton, George A.	127
1812 Dunlap, Thomas,	124	1862 Skinner, Richard,	147
1844 Fisk, Robert E.	137	1825 Slidell, Thomas,	128
1814 Goddard, Charles B.	124	1839 Smith, Levi W.	134
1818 Hazen, Reuben S.	126	1805 Smith, William M.	121
1862 House, William W.	147	1863 Smyth, Walter H.	148
1860 Howe, Theodore L. B.	144	1808 Tuttle, Timothy,	123
1843 Hubbard, Joseph S.	136	1849 Upson, Andrew,	138
1822 Hubbard, Thomas G.	127	1801 Wales, John,	119
1835 Johnston, Frank,	132	1838 Walker, J. Knox,	133
1804 Kibbe, Walter R.	120	1858 Whittlesey, Charles B.	143
1829 McLane, James W.	130	1855 Wheeler, William,	141
1863 Macomber, Edwin,	148	1856 Woods, Samuel F.	143

GRADUATES OF THE PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

1821 M. D. Abbe, Alanson,	149	1832 M. D. Spalding, Asa L.	149
1847 LL. B. Clack, Franklin H.	150	1852 PH. B. Weyman, George W.	150
1843 M. D. Clark, William T.	150

OBITUARY RECORD

OF

GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY, 1865,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED A SHORT
TIME PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 26th, 1865.]

[No. 6 of the printed Series, and No. 24 of the whole Record.]

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

Deceased during the academical year ending in July, 1865, including the record of a few who died previously, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 26th, 1865.]

[No. 6 of the printed Series, and No. 24 of the whole Record.]

1788.

DANIEL WALDO, at the time of his death the oldest graduate of this College, died in Syracuse, N. Y., July 30, 1864, aged 101 years, 10 mos. and 20 days.

He was born in Windham, (Scotland parish,) Conn., Sept. 10, 1762, the son of Zaccheus and Talitha (Kingsbury) Waldo.

In 1778 he was drafted for a month's service at New London, and he subsequently enlisted for eight months in the service of the State.

At the age of 20 he determined to fit himself for the Christian ministry, and after studying with his cousin, Rev. Dr. C. Backus, of Somers, he entered Yale College in 1784.

After graduation he pursued a course in theology under the direction of Rev. Dr. Hart, of Preston, and was licensed to preach by the Association of Windham Co.

In May, 1792, he was settled as a pastor in West Suffield, where he remained eighteen years, and then resigned his charge. After preaching in various places, he went in 1811 to Rhode Island, under the patronage of the Evangelical Missionary Society, and there he labored continuously for nine years.

He was next settled as a pastor in Exeter, R. I., where he remained twelve years.

After this he was never settled as a pastor, but he continued to preach, chiefly in the State of New York, until almost the close of his life. His home was at Geddes from 1846 to 1856, and subsequently at Syracuse.

One of the most noteworthy events of his life was his appointment to be the Chaplain of Congress in 1856, and again in 1857, when he was 94 and 95 years old.

His faculties were unimpaired throughout his long life, and his last sermon was preached after he entered on his 102d year.

1793.

DAVID SHERMAN BOARDMAN, died at New Milford, Conn., December 2, 1864. He was born in that town, in Dec. 1768, and had consequently nearly finished his 96th year at the time of his death. He was a grandson of Daniel Boardman who graduated at this college in 1709.

After becoming twenty one years old, he undertook to fit himself for professional life, and after two years of study was admitted to the Junior class in this institution. He lived to become, after Mr. Waldo's death, the oldest living graduate of the college.

Having studied law with Judge Reeve, he was admitted to the bar in 1795, and immediately began the practice in his native place, and always maintained a high professional reputation. He was appointed Judge of the county court in 1831, but did not remain on the bench for more than two or three years.

During the latter part of his life he devoted much time to historical and literary enquiries, often writing for the press, and continuing to maintain an acquaintance with Greek and Latin writers.

1794.

DAN HUNTINGTON died at his residence in Hadley, Mass., October 31, 1864, aged 90 years.

He was the youngest child of William and Bethia (Throop) Huntington, and was born in Lebanon, Conn., Oct. 11, 1774.

He was prepared for College in the school of "Master Tisdale," in his native place.

Immediately after completing his college course, he became a tutor in Williams College. After holding that position two years, he served as a tutor in this College from 1796 to 1798. Before coming to New Haven he was licensed to preach by the Association of Berkshire County, and he subsequently continued his studies in theology under the direction of Dr. Dwight.

In October, 1798, he was ordained to the work of the ministry, and settled as pastor of the Congregational Church in Litchfield.

In 1809 he was transferred to a church in Middletown, where he remained till the death of his father-in-law, (Charles Phelps,) in 1816, when he removed to the early home of his wife in Hadley, Mass. He continued to reside in that place till his death, being for some years teacher of the Hopkins Grammar School, and in latter days preaching in various pulpits of the neighborhood.

He published in 1857 a volume of personal memoirs, partly devoted to the vindication of his theological opinions. One of his sons is Rev. F. D. Huntington, D. D.

1796.

BENJAMIN SILLIMAN, son of Gen. Gold Selleck Silliman, (Y. C. 1752,) was born in the town of North Stratford, now Trumbull, Conn., August 8, 1779. He died in New Haven, Nov. 24, 1864, aged 85 years.

Mr. Silliman was a Tutor in this college from 1799 to 1804. Having pursued a course of legal studies with the intention of making the Law his profession, he was admitted to the bar in New Haven, in 1802. About that time, his attention was directed to the study of Natural Science by President Dwight, who proposed to him to accept a Professorship of Chemistry and Geology which it was intended to establish in Yale College. After attending preparatory courses of instruction in Philadelphia, Mr. Silliman delivered his first full series of lectures in Yale College in 1805, and in the following spring sailed for Europe, to prosecute his studies further, and to purchase books and apparatus for the college. He returned to this country after an absence of somewhat more than a year and resumed his duties as a teacher. From that time to his final withdrawal from the active labors of an instructor in 1855, he was constantly devoted to the work of his professorship. In addition to his college instructions, he frequently gave public courses of lectures in various parts of the country.

In 1818, he established the American Journal of Science, which he continued to publish with vigor and success until about 1850, when his son and son-in-law assumed the chief editorial labor. In addition to a large number of contributions to this journal, Prof. Silliman published several scientific works and three popular books of travel. He made a second trip to Europe in 1852.

Prof. Silliman was twice married,—in 1809 to Harriet, daughter of the second Gov. Trumbull, the mother of his nine children ; and in 1851, after her decease, to Mrs. Sarah McClellan Webb.

His health remained good and his mind clear till the close of his honored life, and his death was instantaneous and beautiful, like a translation from earth to Heaven.

The discourse delivered at his funeral by President Woolsey has been published, and a more extended memoir is preparing by Professor Geo. P. Fisher.

1800.

SAMUEL JONES died at the residence of his son (Ralph K. Jones, M. D.,) in Bangor, Me., Oct. 29, 1862.

He was the third son of Samuel and Lydia (Tarbox) Jones. He was born at Hebron, Dec. 22, 1778, and was fitted for college under the tuition of Rev. Dr. Amos Bassett, of his native parish.

He studied law in the office of Hon. Sylvester Gilbert, of Hebron, with whom for a short time he practiced his profession, after having been admitted, in Sept., 1803, to the bar of Tolland Co. In 1804 he removed to Glastenbury, and in 1808 to Stockbridge, Mass., where he practiced his profession till the spring of 1845. He represented Stockbridge, on several occasions, in the Massachusetts Legislature, was at one time a member of the electoral college, and in 1843 he was appointed one of the Commissioners of the State of Massachusetts to assist in setting off land to the settlers on the N. E. boundary of Maine, in accordance with the Ashburton treaty. From 1845 to 1849, he was an Inspector of the Port of Boston, and from then till 1851 he continued to reside in that city. He subsequently returned to Stockbridge, and in 1853 retired from active business, passing the remainder of his life with his children in different places.

His remains were interred in Stockbridge.

About 1840 he published a "Treatise on the Right of Suffrage." Boston, 12mo.

1802.

JOHN ALFRED DAVENPORT died in New Haven, October 14, 1864, aged 81 years.

He was the son of Hon. John Davenport, (Y. C. 1770,) and a lineal descendant of Rev. John Davenport, the first minister of New Haven.

Immediately after leaving college, he entered upon mercantile pursuits in New York City, where he remained for about fifty years, residing during a part of the time in the neighboring city of Brooklyn. In 1853 he removed to New Haven, where his home continued during the remainder of his life. His career as a business man was successful, and his interest in the progress of religious and benevolent societies was a life-long characteristic.

His two sons graduated at Yale College in 1830 and 1833.

The funeral discourse by Rev. Dr. Cleaveland has been printed.

MARK MEAD was born in Greenwich, Nov. 6, 1782, and died in the same town, August 8, 1864, aged 81 years.

He prepared for college under Rev. Dr. Lewis of his native place. Having studied theology with Rev. Dr. C. Backus and Rev. Dr. J. Smalley, he was licensed to preach in the summer of 1804, and was ordained pastor of the church in Middlebury, Ct., in Nov. 1809. He was dismissed from this charge in 1830, and after acting successively as the stated supply of the churches in Grassy Hill and in Northfield, he returned in 1839 to Greenwich where he afterwards resided.

He was married in 1804. One of his two sons graduated in medicine at this college in 1829.

NATHAN SHELTON died in Jamaica, L. I., July 25, 1864, aged 80 years. He was born in Huntington, Ct., June 6, 1784, the son of Andrew and Sarah (Booth) Shelton.

After a preliminary course of medical studies in his native State and in the city of New York, he entered upon a course of professional life in Jamaica, L. I., and there he continued to reside until his death.

He was licensed to practice medicine by the Medical Society of Connecticut soon after he left college. He received the degree of M. D. from this College in 1835.

1804.

JOSEPH WRIGHT died at his residence in Glastenbury, Nov. 24, 1864, aged 79 years.

For two or three years after leaving College, he taught successfully the academy in his native place, and he then engaged in agricultural pursuits on his paternal estate, where he continued to reside the rest of his life.

In 1827 he was chosen Deacon of the First Church in Glastenbury, and he continued to perform the duties of this office till the time of his death.

He married a daughter of Rev. William Lockwood, (Y. C. 1774,) pastor of the church in Glastenbury, and had six children, four of whom survive him. One of his sons graduated at Yale College in 1832, and another in 1839.

1806.

NATHANIEL CHAUNCEY died in Philadelphia, February 9, 1865, aged 76 years, nearly.

He was the third son of Hon. Charles and Abigail (Darling) Chauncey, of New Haven, and was born Feb. 27, 1789.

He was a highly respected lawyer in the city of Philadelphia.

In 1836 he married Elizabeth Sewall, (eldest daughter of Samuel and Nancy Salisbury, of Boston,) who died May 22, 1850. Two of their three sons are still living.

JOSEPH EDWARDS was born in Meriden, Conn., August 27, 1783, and died at his residence in Ripley, Ohio, April 30, 1863, aged 79 years.

He studied theology with Rev. Mr. Hooker, was engaged for a time in teaching, and was settled several times as a pastor over different congregations.

The latter part of his life he spent upon a farm which he had purchased in Ripley, Ohio, preaching occasionally.

He was twice married, and had seven children, one of whom is Rev. Mr. Edwards, of East Cleveland.

JAMES LOCKWOOD died in Lewisboro', Westchester Co., N. Y., Sept. 30, 1864, aged 81. He was son of James Lockwood, and was born in New Canaan, Fairfield Co., Conn., in 1783.

He studied medicine with Dr. Richmond of Westport, and commenced the practice of his profession in his adopted town, where he resided for more than a half century, engaged in the faithful discharge of his professional duties.

Although in extended practice, he found time for varied reading, and especially to keep up his studies of the Greek and Latin Classics. He would often sit up to a late hour poring over his favorite authors, Homer, Plato, Livy, Horace, etc.

One only of his three children, Dr. Jas. D. Lockwood of Cross River, Westchester Co. N. Y., is surviving.

WILLIAM FOWLER VAILL, died in Wethersfield, Illinois, February 24, 1865, aged 81 years 9 months. He was a son of Rev. Joseph Vaill, Pastor for more than fifty years of the Congregational Church in Hadlyme, Conn., where the subject of this sketch was born.

His theological studies were pursued under the direction of the Rev. Asahel Hocker of Goshen. He was licensed to preach, Sept. 15, 1807, by the Middlesex Association, and in December, 1808, he was settled as Pastor of the Congregational Church in North Guilford, Conn, where he remained till April 1820. He was afterwards employed as a Missionary to the Osage Indians, by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and was subsequently stationed by the Am. Home Missionary Society in Wethersfield, Ill.

1808.

JONATHAN KNIGHT, died in New Haven, August 25, 1864, aged 75 years, nearly.

He was a son of Dr. Jonathan Knight, a Surgeon's mate in the Revolutionary army, and was born in Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 4, 1789. His mother was a daughter of Dr. Asahel Fitch, of Reading.

For two years after graduation he taught school in Norwich and New London, and was next a Tutor in Yale College for one year. He then attended two annual courses of medical lectures in the University of Pennsylvania, having already been licensed to practice, by the Connecticut Medical Society, in August, 1811. He received the honorary degree of M. D. from Yale College in 1818.

The Medical Institution of Yale College was organized in 1813, and he was appointed the Professor of Anatomy and Physiology. He continued in this post for twenty-five years, when he was transferred to the Chair of Surgery. After having lectured for more than fifty years to successive classes of students, he resigned all connection with the college, in May, 1864. For many years, in addition to his duties in the medical school, he lectured on Anatomy and Physiology to the Senior class in the Academical Department. During all his residence in New Haven, he was engaged in extensive practice.

He was President in 1846 and 1847, of the Convention which formed the American Medical Association, and was also President of the Association itself in 1853. At the time of his death he was President of the American Mutual Life Insurance Co. The Knight Hospital of the U. S. Government, in New Haven, was named in his honor.

A funeral discourse by Rev. Dr. Bacon, and a commemorative sketch by Prof. F. Bacon, M. D., were printed.

1809.

HEZEKIAH BRADLEY CHAFFEE died at Windsor, Conn., Dec. 13, 1864.

HOWLAND FISH died at Fultonville, N. Y., June 21, 1862, aged 75. He was born in Dutchess County, N. Y., Dec. 1786.

He studied law with the late Philip Parker of Hudson, and pursued the profession with success in Johnstown, Glen and Fultonville.

He represented Montgomery Co., three times in the State Legislature, was an active member of the Constitutional Convention of 1820, and in later years held the office of District Attorney.

1810.

SAMUEL GRISWOLD CHAFFEE died at Hartford, Conn., July 10, 1864. He was born May 15, 1791.

He resided during his life at Hartford, engaged in mercantile pursuits.

ALPHEUS DIMMICK was born March 22, 1787, and died in Bloomingburgh, Jan. 17, 1865, aged 77 years.

He commenced the practice of law in Bloomingburgh, Sullivan Co., N. Y., where he continued to reside through life.

In 1828 he was a member of the Legislature, and was subsequently for a number of years, County Judge and Surrogate. In all the relations of life he was respected for his uprightness and integrity.

1811.

WILLIAM DEMING was born in Litchfield, Conn., March 1, 1792, the son of Julius Deming, and died in that place, May 2, 1865, aged 73 years.

He was engaged in mercantile pursuits during his early life, in New York city, but he retired to his home in Litchfield, many years ago, and has since resided there.

1812.

CHARLES NICHOLS died in Brooklyn, N. Y., June 2, 1865, aged 75 years. He was a descendant of Sir Richard Nichols, the early colonial governor in New York.

He was long established in mercantile pursuits in the city of New York, as a member of the firm of Palmer & Nichols.

He was American Consul at Amsterdam, under President Tyler, and also under President Polk.

He married a daughter of Maj. Benj. Romaine.

1813.

THOMAS FREDERICK DAVIES was born at Reading, Conn., August 24, 1793. He was a son of Dr. Thomas Davies, and was of the same family with Rev. Thomas Davies who graduated at this college in 1758. He was fitted for college by Rev. Dr. Ely, of Huntington.

After his graduation he was engaged for a year or two in teaching at New Haven, at the same time pursuing his theological studies under the direction of Dr. Dwight. He was licensed to preach in May 1816, and in March 1817 was ordained and installed as pastor of the Congregational Church of Huntington, succeeding his former teacher, Dr. Ely. Compelled by ill-health to resign this pastoral office, Mr. Davies removed to New Haven in 1819, and became the editor of the Christian Spectator. After having been thus engaged for several years, and subsequently connected with the Religious Intelligencer, he accepted a call from the church in Green Farms, (now Westport,) where he remained from 1829 to 1839. During the next ten years he resided in New Haven, and the residue of his life he divided between his native place, New Haven and Westport, Conn.

He was twice married, and his second wife survives him. One of his sons graduated here in 1843, and another in 1853.

His death occurred at the house of his daughter, in Westport, on the 16th of February, 1865, after an illness of about ten days. A sketch of his life and character, by Rev. Dr. Sprague, appeared in the New York Observer of April 6, 1865.

AMBROSE EGGLESTON died at Coldwater, Mich., Jan. 22, 1865.

1815.

HORATIO GRIDLEY died in Hartford, November 9, 1864, aged 72 years.

He was native of Berlin, Kensington Society, Conn.

He graduated at the Theological Seminary in Andover in 1818, and also pursued a course of studies in medicine. His life was devoted to the latter profession.

He was at one time a member of the Connecticut Senate, and as such he became one of the Corporation of Yale College. About 13 years ago, he removed to Hartford, soon after the death of his son Dr. H. W. Gridley, (Y. C. 1847,) but he did not resume the practice of his profession.

HORACE HOOKER son of Elijah and Susanna (Seymour) Hooker, was born in Kensington Society, Berlin, Conn., March 1793, and died in Hartford, December 17, 1864, aged 71 years.

He was a descendant of Rev. Thomas Hooker, first minister of Hartford. He fitted for college under the direction of Rev. Joab Brace, D. D., (Y. C. 1804,) at Newington. After graduating, he was for about two years Principal of the Hartford Grammar School, from which he was called to be Tutor in Yale College, which office he held from 1817 to 1822. During this time he studied theology and was licensed to preach the gospel. In the year 1822, he was ordained as pastor of the Congregational Church in Watertown, Conn., where he remained about two years, being then compelled to resign his pastorate on account of ill-health. In 1824 he returned to Hartford and became editor of the Connecticut Observer, a religious newspaper, which he conducted with ability for many years. He also held the office of Secretary of the Missionary Society of Connecticut, from 1826, and of the Connecticut Home Missionary Society, from 1831 till his death.

In 1852, he was appointed Chaplain of the Retreat for the Insane, performing the duties of that office until incapacitated by an attack of paralysis in August, 1862. For several years previous to 1856, he spent his leisure time in the preparation of books for children. Among these were "Child's Book on the Sabbath;" "The Farmer;" "Prophets and Prophecy;" and four volumes of "Scripture Biography." In connection with Rev. Dr. Gallaudet, he prepared "The Practical Spelling Book," and "The School and Family Dictionary." With the assistance of Rev. Dr. Daggett, he selected and arranged the "Hymns and Psalms," as set forth by the General Association of Connecticut, in use for twenty years past in most of the Congregational Churches in this State.

Mr. Hooker was a clear thinker, and expressed his thoughts in a style remarkable for its neatness and perspicuity.

He married, July 17, 1822, Mary Ann Brown, who died May 3, 1838, without children. He married Harriet Watkinson, Nov. 22, 1843, who survives him. He left a son, Thomas, (Y. C. 1864,) and a daughter.

1816.

THOMAS MATHER SMITH died while on a visit to his friends at Portland, Me., Sept. 6, 1864, aged 67 years.

He was born in 1797 in Stamford, Conn., the son of Rev. Daniel Smith, (Y. C. 1791,) for fifty years Pastor of the Congregational Church in that place.

When his college course was concluded, he spent a year in study with his uncle, Hon. John Cotton Smith, and in 1820 he graduated at the Theological Seminary in Andover. In 1822 he was ordained as a minister, and settled over the Third Congregational Church in Portland. He was subsequently a Pastor in Fall River, Mass., Catskill, N. Y., and New Bedford, Mass.

His views respecting the ministry having changed, he desired to be admitted to orders in the Episcopal Church, and was ordained Deacon, at New Bedford, by Bishop Smith, of Kentucky, and a year later, Priest by Bishop Eastburn, of Massachusetts. He was soon after appointed Milnor Professor of Systematic Divinity in the Theological Seminary at Gambier, Ohio, and subsequently, for four years, in addition to holding this Professorship, he was President of Kenyon College.

After eighteen years of unremitting toil at Gambier, he resigned his professorship and was named an Emeritus Professor. He received the degree of D. D. from Bowdoin College in 1850. His wife was the daughter of Rev. Dr. L. Woods, of Andover.

1817.

WILLIAM HEATHCOTE DELANCEY, was born at Mamaroneck, N. Y., Oct. 8, 1797, a descendant of Huguenot ancestors. He died at Geneva, N. Y., April 5, 1865, aged 67 years.

Having studied theology under Bishop Hobart, he was admitted in 1822, to the order of priests, and soon became an assistant minister in the associated parishes of Christ Church, St. Peter's and St. James's in Philadelphia. From 1823 to 1830, he was annually chosen Secretary of the Diocesan Convention, and from 1823 to 1829, was also Secretary of the House of Bishops. In 1828, he became Provost of the University of Pennsylvania. After remaining in that office for five years, he became again an assistant minister of St. Peter's church, and on the death of Bishop White, the Rector of that parish.

In 1838, he was chosen Bishop of the newly constituted Diocese of Western New York, and accordingly removed his residence to Geneva. His consecration to the Episcopal office took place May 9, 1839.

In 1852, Bishop DeLancey was appointed a delegate to attend the Jubilee commemoration of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and in this capacity made a visit to Europe. He then received the degree of J. C. D. from the University of Oxford. He had in 1828 received the degree of S. T. D. from his Alma Mater, and in 1847, the degree of LL. D. from Union College.

The body of Bishop DeLancey was interred in the family burial-ground at Mamaroneck.

1819.

NOYES BILLINGS, second son of Coddington and Eunice (Williams) Billings, was born March 31, 1800, at Stonington, Conn. He was fitted for College at New London, by the late Prof. Olmsted.

After his graduation he commenced the study of law with Judge Swift of Windham, which he continued with Judges Reeve and Gould in Litchfield. In 1821 he went to New Orleans with the expectation of practicing his profession in that city, but ill-health compelled his return to the north. For the same cause he was persuaded to give up a professional life, and after a visit to Europe in 1823, he established himself in the whaling business at New London, in company with his brother. He was at different times Mayor of New London, Representative in the General Assembly, State Senator and Lieut. Governor. He repeatedly declined invitations to office under the Democratic administrations of the United States.

In 1838 he made a second visit to Europe. In 1844 he retired from business, and in 1846 he again went abroad, residing in Europe during the greater part of the next six years. After a short residence in New York City, he returned to New London, which continued to be his home. He died April 24, 1865, at the age of 65 years, leaving a widow but no children.

He was married in October, 1825, to Isabella L., daughter of James Stewart, then British Consul at New London.

1820.

STEPHEN WILLIAM STARKEY was the son of Stephen and Phebe Starkey, of part of the town of Saybrook, comprising the present town of Essex, Conn., where he was born September 7, 1797.

For some time after taking his first degree in college, he was engaged in teaching, pursuing at the same time the study of law. He was admitted to the bar at Haddam, in Middlesex County, Conn., April 8, 1823; after having completed his studies in the office of Joseph Platts, Esq., in his native town. Here he followed his profession, managing at the same time a considerable farm, all his life.

He married first Miss Emily Hayden, and after her decease, Miss Mary Hayden, both of Saybrook. The latter still survives him. He died at Essex, March 14, 1863, aged 66 years.

WILLIAM JOSEPH HUBBARD died in Boston, Nov. 14, 1864, aged 62 years. He was son of David Greene Hubbard, and was born in New York City, July 3, 1802.

Immediately after leaving college, he went to Boston and began the study of law in the office of his uncle, Hon. Samuel Hubbard (Y. C. 1802,) residing in his family. Boston continued to be his home through life, and the law his chosen profession.

He was occasionally called into public life, having been in 1834, and subsequently, a member of the State Legislature, and in 1853, a member of the Convention for revising the Constitution of the State. He was a Master in Chancery, and was often appointed a referee in legal business. For nearly twenty years he was a leading member and chairman of the Prudential Committee of the A. B. C. F. M. To the close of his life he presided over the corporation which has the care of the Academy and the Theological Seminary at Andover.

His death was occasioned by an accident which befell him about four weeks previous, in the city of New York. He left a widow and several children. His son, David G., graduated at this college in 1852. A discourse commemorative of his life and character was delivered by Rev. J. E. Todd, and printed, Boston 1864, 8vo. 17pp.

1821.

CHARLES RICHARD ALSOP was born in Middletown, Dec. 25, 1802, and died in that city March 5, 1865, aged 62 years.

After studying law with Chancellor Kent, and Daniel Lord, Esq. of New York, he was admitted to the bar in his native state, and commenced the practice of his profession, residing in Middletown.

From 1843 to 1846 he was Mayor of Middletown, and in 1855 he represented the 18th Senatorial District in the Connecticut Legislature.

He was a member of the Corporation of Yale College in 1855-6.

DAVID WALKER [BENJAMIN] BARTON died in Winchester, Va., July, 1863, aged about 61 years.

He was a lawyer by profession, and had been a member of the Virginia Legislature. He was an earnest opponent of the southern secession, and his death is said to have been occasioned by the domestic distress which the war produced.

1825.

HUBBARD WINSLOW died at Williston, Vermont, his native place, Aug. 13, 1864.

He was born Oct. 30, 1799, son of Nathaniel and Anna (Kellogg) Winslow, and brother of Rev. Miron and Rev. Gordon Winslow.

He began his theological studies in Andover, and completed them in New Haven. In December 1828, he was ordained Pastor of the First Congregational Church in Dover, N. H., from which place he retired three years afterward.

In Sept. 1832, he was installed Pastor of the Bowdoin St. Church, Boston, succeeding there Rev. Lyman Beecher. In 1844 he became principal of the Mount Vernon School for Young Ladies, which position he held nine years, often preaching on the Sabbath in Boston and its vicinity.

He afterward made a visit to Europe, and then devoted himself to the preparation of several books. In June 1857, he was installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Geneva, N. Y. He remained there two years and then went to New York, where he opened a boarding-school for young ladies. In 1861 he was installed pastor of the 50th St. Presbyterian Church in New York, but he did not continue there many months. He devoted the closing part of his life to teaching and writing for the press.

Among the most important of his numerous publications are the following :—"Discourses on the Trinity," "The Young Man's Aid," "Self Examination," "Intellectual Philosophy," and "Moral Philosophy."

He is also the author of various printed discourses, including a history of the Presbyterian Church in Geneva.

He received the degree of D. D. from Hamilton College in 1858.

1826.

WILLIAM OTIS NORCROSS died in Newark, N. J., Jan. 24, 1863.

1829.

MASON FITCH COGSWELL died in Albany, Jan. 21, 1865. He was son of M. F. Cogswell, M. D., and Mary (Ledyard) Cogswell, and born at Hartford, Nov. 10, 1809.

After a course of medical studies in New York, he received the degree of M. D. from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in 1832. He then established himself at Albany, and devoted his life to his chosen profession. Among other local trusts which he held, he was for a long time one of the physicians of the City Hospital. He married, in 1847, Lydia Bradford, and his widow and two sons survive him.

On the breaking out of the rebellion he was appointed examining surgeon of the military post at Albany, and many thousand volunteers passed under his inspection. In 1862, during the Peninsular Campaign, he was active in organizing a Field Hospital at the White House in Virginia, and the exposure and arduous labors incident to that work led to serious inroads on his health. He was subsequently surgeon of the Post Hospital, Assistant Surgeon of the U. S. Hospital, and later, full Surgeon.

In February, 1863, with Dr. Thomas Hun, he was appointed under the direction of the Sanitary Commission, to inspect the Western Hospitals, and the duty was performed with efficiency and thoroughness.

1831.

DAVID FRANCIS BACON died in the city of New York, Jan. 23, 1865, aged 51 years.

He was a son of Rev. David Bacon, (well known as one of the missionary pioneers in Ohio and Michigan,) and was born Nov. 30, 1813, in Prospect, Ct.

He graduated in medicine at this college in 1836, and a short time afterwards was sent out by the American Colonization Society, as principal colonial Physician in Liberia.

After his return from Africa, he published three parts of a work entitled "Wanderings on the Seas and Shores of Africa," in which his observations on the west coast of that country are very minutely recorded. (N. Y. 1843. 8vo.)

During most of his life he resided in New York, and at one time he was actively engaged in political affairs, as an earnest advocate of the election of Henry Clay to the Presidency. He was a frequent contributor to the periodicals of the day.

In 1835 he published a work, evincing much research, entitled "Lives of the Apostles."

1833.

HIRAM DOANE died at Vicksburg, July 22, 1863.

He was born in the town of Loraine, N. Y., March 17, 1806.

After studying theology in this college, he engaged in the work of a minister in different parts of New York State. He was settled at Smithville in 1838, and in 1841 became pastor of a church in Rutland, N. Y. In 1850 he was settled in Carthage, laboring also in Deep River. In 1856 he removed to Norwich, then to Wabashaw, and afterwards to Peoria, Ill.

In 1862 he became chaplain in the 47th Ill. Inf. serving with fidelity and bravery in the campaign before Vicksburg, till his life gave way under the malarial influences to which he was exposed.

A commemorative sermon preached at Rutland, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1863, by Rev. J. Douglas, has been printed.

1834.

HENRY WILLIAM ELLSWORTH, son of Hon. Henry L., (Y. C. 1810) and Nancy (Goodrich) Ellsworth, was born at Windsor, Conn., in 1814.

His legal studies were pursued at the Law School in New Haven.

In 1844, he was one of the Presidential electors in Indiana, voting for President Polk, by whom he was appointed in the following year, Chargé des Affaires in Sweden.

His death occurred in New Haven, August, 1864, at the age of 50 years.

1835.

JOSHUA HILL was born in 1813, at Limerick, Maine.

After a course of legal studies he was admitted to the bar in his native state in Nov. 1838, and commenced the practice of his profession first with Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, and was afterwards in business by himself in the town of Hampden, Me. At one time he was Inspector of Customs at that place.

His death occurred Oct. 12, 1860, at the age of 47 years.

He married in 1840 a daughter of Hon. J. Herrick, of Hampden, and his widow with two children survives him.

1843.

JOHN MYERS HUNTINGTON, son of Thomas M. and Mary (Campbell) Huntington of Norwich, was born in New York, April 3, 1821, and died at Marietta, Ohio, October 10, 1864, aged 43 years.

After a course of legal study at Cambridge, Mass, he established himself in Cleveland, Ohio, and was admitted to the bar. In 1846, he removed to Cincinnati, and was for a time engaged in editorial labors. Two years later he went to California and resumed the practice of his profession at Sonora. He subsequently came to Chicago, where he resided till the time when the rebellion began.

He entered the Union army as a volunteer, and held the rank of Captain in the Quartermaster's Department.

TIMOTHY LINSLEY, son of the Rev. Ammi Linsley, was born in Hartland, Conn., May 3, 1822, and died in North Haven, Nov. 4, 1864, aged 42 years.

After graduating, he taught school for nearly two years in Trumbull and Washington, Conn.

During the greater part of his life since leaving college, he has been an inmate of the Retreats in Brattleboro and Hartford.

1845.

WILLIAM GUSTINE CONNER died at Gettysburg, July 3, 1863.

He held the position of Brigadier General in the rebel army, and as such was killed in action.

JAMES REDFIELD fell mortally wounded in the battle of Allatoona Pass, October 6, 1864, at the age of 40 years.

He was son of Luther Redfield and was born in Clyde, Wayne Co., N. Y., March 27, 1824.

After leaving college he studied law in his native place, was elected County School Commissioner, and finally accepted a position at Albany, in the office of Hon. Christopher Morgan, Secretary of State.

In 1855, he removed to Iowa, and established himself near the geographical centre of the State. The town of Redfield, Dallas Co., received its name from him. He held several offices of trust in the county, and in 1860 was elected State Senator.

On the outbreak of the war he raised a company of which he was elected Captain, and on the organization of a regiment, the 39th Iowa Infantry, he was elected its Lieutenant Colonel. He continued in that post until his death. His regiment was in active service at the West, under Buel, Grant and Sherman.

When Allatoona Pass was attacked by French's Division of Hood's army, Col. Redfield, then garrisoning the town of Rome, went forward with his command to defend the pass. While cheering on his men to resist the rebel attack, a ball pierced his heart and he fell dead.

His remains were buried in a village near the battle-field.

He left a widow and three children.

1847.

OTHNIEL DE FOREST died at his residence in New York City, December 16, 1864, aged 37 years. He was son of Charles De Forest, and was born in New York, Aug. 13, 1826.

In July 1861 he received authority from the Secretary of War to raise a regiment of Cavalry, and subsequently to raise a Brigade. He succeeded in organizing two regiments and a part of a third, when the Government determined to raise no more Cavalry. These two regiments were the 5th and 6th N. Y. Cavalry, and were called the 1st and 2nd "Ira Harris Guards." In 1862 he raised another regiment which became the 12th New York.

He married in 1851, Miss Frances R. Nevins, who with four children survives him.

HENRY HAMILTON HADLEY, youngest son of Prof. James Hadley, of Buffalo, N. Y., died at Washington, D. C., Aug. 1, 1864.

After graduation, he pursued for one year a general course of study in New Haven, and then entered the Theological Department of the College. In Sept. 1850 he went to Andover, Mass., where he completed his studies in preparation for the ministry in 1851. In May of that year, he became Tutor in Yale College, and continued in this office until Dec. 1852. At the beginning of the year 1853, owing to doubts in regard to his fitness for the pastoral work, he turned his attention to the study of law, and removed to the city of New York. His scholastic tendencies, however, were too strong to be resisted, and in 1854 he returned to New Haven, where he devoted himself for four years to the careful study of the Hebrew language and the Old Testament Scriptures. In 1858 he was appointed instructor in Hebrew, in Union Theological Seminary in New York, and in 1862 he became Assistant Professor of Hebrew in that institution. He continued in that position till the time of his death. In 1861, after the death of Prof. Gibbs, he was elected to the Professorship of the Hebrew language and literature in this college, but he held this office only for a single year, and during that time discharged its duties in connection with the duties of his place in New York. He had already become one of the most successful and promising scholars in the country in his department, and in his death the cause of theological learning sustained a loss which is not easily measured.

His devotion to the cause of the country in the late struggle, was manifested from the very outset. He was with great difficulty, and only by the urgent advice of his friends, prevented from enlisting as a soldier in the army; and, when at length he gave up going himself, he provided successively two substitutes to serve in his place. Not content with this, after the close of the Seminary year in June 1865, he engaged in the work of the Sanitary Commission, and served in one of the Hospitals at City Point, Va. Here he was prostrated by sickness, and, after lingering for a while, was compelled to return homeward. He had pursued his journey only as far as Washington, when his death occurred.

1849.

SHELDEN CLARK BEECHER was born at Oxford, Conn., April 7, 1826.

After leaving college he was occupied nearly all his time in teaching, at various towns in the state of New York, until 1858, when he established himself in Brooklyn, as a teacher in a private school.

In Sept. 1862, he received a commission as 1st Lieut. Co. C, 139th N. Y. Infantry, and was promoted to be Captain of the same company Dec. 16, 1863.

On the 2nd of June 1864, his regiment was engaged in an action at Cold Harbor, Va., in which he was struck by a ball and died soon after.

He left a widow, now residing in Bristol, Conn., and four children.

1851.

JAMES BUDLONG died in Richmond, Va., Jan. 29, 1860, in the 33d year of his age. He was born in Nashua, N. H., April 12, 1827, the only son of James and Julia Budlong of Pawtucket, R. I.

He pursued a course of medical studies in Providence, R. I. and in Philadelphia, receiving the degree of M. D. from the University of Pennsylvania, in 1854. For the sake of further improvement in his profession, he went abroad, and spent a year in studies at Paris.

He finally established himself in practice at Pawtucket, and acquired a good reputation as a Physician and Surgeon.

His death was occasioned by consumption on his return from a tour to the south in search of health.

BYRON HART died in N. Y., October 7, 1864, aged 36 years. He was born in Hartsville, Buck Co., Penn., October 15, 1827.

He studied medicine in Philadelphia, received his degree at the Jefferson Medical College in March, 1854, and continued to practice in the same city.

1852.

WILLIAM FLINTOFF HUMPHREY, was born at Maccan, Cumberland Co. Nova Scotia, Oct. 24, 1826.

After leaving college, he pursued a course of studies in medicine, at the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, receiving the degree of M. D. at that institution in April, 1854. He continued his professional studies in Edinburgh and Paris, and was occupied for a year as House Physician in the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh.

He subsequently established himself at St. John, New Brunswick, and engaged successfully in the practice of his profession.

Last November he left his home for the Mediterranean, hoping that a milder climate might restore his failing health, but his pulmonary complaint was incurable, and he died at Valetta in the island of Malta, Feb. 7, 1865, aged 38 years.

His widow survives him.

1854.

SAMUEL CURTIS BLACKMAN, son of Hon. Alfred Blackman, (Y. C. 1828,) died in New Haven, Aug. 20, 1864, aged 31.

He was born in Humphreysville, (now Seymour,) Conn., April 7, 1833.

He studied law in New Haven, and was admitted to the bar in this place, Sept. 2, 1856. He was for a time clerk in the U. S. District and Circuit Courts, and was also clerk of the city of New Haven.

JOHN SAMUEL DONELSON, son of Andrew J. Donelson, died Sept. 9, 1863.

After graduation he studied law and began the practice of his profession in Memphis.

In 1862, he entered the Confederate service as Lieutenant, and was subsequently promoted to be Captain. He was killed in the battle of Chickamauga.

LEWIS LEDYARD WELD, the third son of Lewis Weld, (Y. C. 1818,) was born at Hartford, May 13, 1833.

After two years spent in teaching, he pursued the study of law in Cleveland, Ohio, and in New York City, and was admitted to the bar in 1857.

In 1858 and 1859, he was settled as an Attorney at Leavenworth, Kansas, and took strong ground in opposition to the Lecompton Constitution. He afterwards removed to the neighborhood of Pike's Peak, settled at Denver and continued the practice of his profession.

When the territory of Colorado in 1861 was organized, he was made the Secretary, and was for some time the Acting Governor, exerting powerful influence for the maintenance of the national authority.

In 1862, he resigned his office, with a view to engage in the military service. While awaiting a suitable opportunity he edited the Denver Commonwealth newspaper. In Oct. 1863, he passed the examining board as Major, and subsequently became Lieutenant Colonel of the 41st U. S. Colored Troops. He served in Maryland, South Carolina, Florida, and in the Army of the James before Richmond, where he died Jan. 10, 1865, from an acute disease brought on by exposure.

1856.

FRANK HENRY PECK, the son of Chauncey B. Peck, was born in New Haven, Sept. 20, 1836. He died in 1864, on the anniversary of his birth, aged 28 years.

After leaving college he was engaged for a short time in teaching at West Killingly, Conn., and in 1857 he began the study of law in the Law School at New Haven. He was admitted to the bar in 1859, and began his professional career in his native place, holding at one time the office of clerk of the Probate Court, and subsequently that of Grand Juror.

Upon the organization of the 12th Reg. Conn. Vols., (Col. Deming,) he went with it, as Major, to New Orleans. During much of the time he was in command of the regiment and at length he was commissioned as its Colonel.

He fell in the battle of Opequan Creek, near Winchester, Va., Sept. 19, 1864, and died in hospital next day.

1858.

THEODORE WOOLSEY TWINING was the eldest of twin brothers, born Sept. 4, 1835, at West Point, N. Y., sons of Alex. C. Twining (Y. C. 1820,) and Harriet A. (Kinsley) Twining.

For two years after graduation, he was occupied partly in teaching and partly as an assistant in the field operations of a civil engineer. He subsequently entered the Law Department of Yale College, received the degree of LL. B. in 1862, and was admitted to the bar in New Haven, May 15, 1863. He deferred entering upon the practice of his profession for the sake of serving the country in the war. He first enlisted as a private in the 37th N. Y. Regiment, and was mustered out with the regiment when its term of service expired. In July, 1863, he received an appointment as Acting Assistant Paymaster in the U. S. Navy, and served in that capacity on the U. S. Steamer Kensington till May 1864. He was then ordered to the U. S. Bark Roebuck, serving as a blockader on the east coast of Florida. The vessel was afterwards ordered to the west coast, and in lying off Key West for three days, became infected with yellow fever. Paymaster Twining was attacked by this disease, and after an illness of little more than three days, died on Sunday, August 14th, 1864, in Tampa Bay. His remains are buried at Egmont Key.

1859.

EDWARD CARRINGTON, the son of Edward Carrington, was born in Hartford, in 1838. His parents soon removed to Colebrook, from which place he came to college in 1855.

After a year passed in teaching, he entered the Law School of Columbia College, where he was graduated LL. B, in 1862. He immediately commenced practice in the office of Bowdoin, Larocques & Barlow, of New York.

Upon learning of the death of his classmate, Capt. Hannahs, who fell in the service of the nation, in the autumn of 1862, he determined to enter the volunteer army, and received a commission as 2nd Lieutenant in the 143d Regiment of N. Y. volunteers. He was soon promoted to be 1st Lieutenant, and assigned to Gen. Wadsworth's staff, in which capacity he acted in the battles of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. He was afterwards transferred to Gen. Newton's staff, and accompanied that officer in Sherman's campaign against Atlanta. Gen. Newton being assigned to duty at Key West, he accompanied him to that place, and acted as Associate Judge in the Provost Court. He participated in many battles but was always unhurt, till he fell mortally wounded on the 6th of March, 1865, in the advance against St. Marks, while leading one of the columns to a charge in the battle of Natural Bridge.

1860.

HENRY WARD CAMP was born in Hartford, February 4, 1839, the son of Rev. Henry B. (Y. C. 1833,) and Cornelia (Baldwin) Camp. The father was one of the instructors in the American Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb.

After a few months spent in teaching, Henry W. Camp commenced the study of law in the office of John Hooker, Esq., in Hartford. In December 1861, he was commissioned as 2nd Lieut. in the 10th Connecticut Infantry. He was afterwards appointed Adjutant, and on one occasion was detailed as Judge Advocate of a General Court Martial on Sea-brook Island.

In July 1863, he took part in the heavy fight on James Island, and also in the assault on Fort Wagner on the 19th of that month. In a cessation of hostilities for the burial of the dead and the removal of the wounded, he was seized with Chaplain H. C. Trumbull, and carried as a prisoner to Charleston, and thence to Columbia, S. C. He escaped at length from confinement, but after a tramp of nearly a hundred miles, was recaptured and held a prisoner till April 1864. He made a short visit at home, but as soon as his exchange was effected, he hurried back to his regiment, and shared with it in the Army of the James, five months of the most arduous and dangerous service. In Sept. 1864, while before Petersburg, he was commissioned as Major.

On the 13th of October he fought his last fight. After skirmishing all day between the Darbytown and Charles City roads, about four miles from Richmond, his regiment was ordered to lead an assault on the enemy's works. "Come on, boys, Come on," he shouted to this men, and the words were hardly uttered before he fell shot through and through. His body was recovered next day and taken to Hartford for interment. The record of his beautiful and heroic life has been written by the Chaplain of the regiment, Rev. H. C. Trumbull, under the title of "The Knightly Soldier; a record of College, Field and Prison."

1861.

WILLIAM BARDWELL CLARK, son of Erastus Clark, of Granby, Mass., was born in that place Jan. 20, 1838.

In July 1862, he enlisted as a private in the 34th Mass. Inf. and served as a private and non-commissioned officer until Jan. 20, 1864. He was then appointed, after an examination by Gen. Casey's Board, a Captain in the 22nd Regt. U. S. Colored Troops. He was wounded at Petersburg, Va., June 15, when his regiment was the first to plant the national colors on the rebel works. In a reconnoissance in force beyond the Fair Oaks battle field, Oct. 27, 1864, our troops were repulsed, and Capt. Clark was left on the field mortally wounded.

GILBERT MILES STOCKING died at Jefferson Barracks Hospital, Jan. 24, 1865, aged 26 years.

He was a native of Waterbury, Conn., where he was born Dec. 22, 1838.

Having spent two years in teaching at Lyme and Greenwich, Conn., and in the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, he determined to give himself to the cause of the country. At the close of the year 1863, he enlisted and soon afterwards joined Co. B, of the 20th Connecticut Infantry, then in the Department of the Cumberland, guarding the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad. During the rest of the winter he acted as clerk in the Quartermaster's Department, and in the following spring took the field and participated in the operations which resulted in the capture of Atlanta. Though detailed as a clerk at Brigade Headquarters, he claimed no exemption from the work of a private soldier, but took his turn in the trenches and on the picket line, till his strength was exhausted, and he was compelled to go into hospital. He was sent northward when Atlanta was evacuated, and after a wearisome journey was placed in the Hospital of Jefferson Barracks near St. Louis.

It was thought he would recover his health if quiet and care could be secured for him, and his discharge papers were accordingly made out. He was expecting to set out for home in a day or two, when alone at night he quietly passed away from earth to Heaven.

His remains were brought home to Waterbury. A sketch of his career, from the pen of one of his classmates, appears in the Connecticut War Record for May 1865.

GEORGE WORMAN was born in Mt. Pleasant, Westmoreland Co., Penn., Nov. 24, 1832. His widowed mother had in 1850 removed her home to Mendon, Ill., from which place he came to college.

He was engaged as a teacher in Illinois after leaving college until the spring of 1864, when he enlisted in the 137th Illinois Infantry.

In the month of June his regiment was ordered to Memphis, Tenn. In August, the rebel Gen. Forrest made a raid into the town and carried off a large number of prisoners, including Worman, who was attending his sick brother, a graduate of 1863. The prisoners endured the severest hardships and cruelty, to which at length George Worman succumbed. He died Oct. 27, 1864, at the age of 32, leaving the record of a good soldier and a true christian.

1863.

JAMES ELEAZER BULKLEY, son of Geo. Bulkley, of Southport, died at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, October 18, 1864, aged 23 years. He was born in New York City, April 25, 1841. Immediately after leaving college he became a member of the Law School of Columbia College.

His death was occasioned by injuries received in an accident on the New York and New Haven Railroad, on the 10th of October.

SAMUEL ERWIN COOPER, died at Cooper's Plains, Steuben Co., N. Y., Aug. 3, 1864, aged 23. He was the son of John Cooper, Jr., and was born at Cooper's Plains, Feb. 6, 1841.

At the time of his decease he was a member of the Law School of Columbia College.

1864.

DANIEL LATHROP COIT, the second son of Daniel W., and Harriet F. Coit, of Norwich, was born in that town, Nov. 24, 1842, and died in the same place, June 1, 1865, aged 22 years.

Soon after his graduation, he was induced by patriotic motives, to engage himself for the winter as a relief-agent in the field service of the Sanitary Commission, but his strength was not adequate to this work, and while employed on the James River, he was seized with an illness from which he never recovered. He bore his protracted sufferings with Christian resignation, and died with the satisfaction of having done what he could for the cause of his country.

HOWARD EBEN PRATT, son of Nathaniel J. Pratt, was born in Essex, Conn., Oct. 29, 1840.

He came to college from Williston Seminary.

He returned home after graduation, and devoted himself closely to his invalid father who was declining with consumption. The same disease was soon developed in himself, and he survived his father but three weeks, closing his life in Christian hope, February 21, 1865.

In addition to the names above recorded, the following deaths have been reported among the professional graduates of the College, not graduates of the Academical Department.

DOCTOR OF MEDICINE.

1825.

HOSEA EDWARDS died in New Orleans, Feb. 27, 1865.

1831.

ADRIAN RUSSELL TERRY died in Chicago, Ill., Dec. 4, 1864. He was for a time Professor of Chemistry and Natural History in Bristol College, Penn.

1863.

CYRUS HUMISTON who came to the Medical School from Cheshire, was drowned in the Naugatuck river, August 5, 1863, at the age of 22 years.

BACHELOR OF LAW.

WILLIAM FREDERICK CROSWELL died in New Haven in June, 1865.

BACHELOR OF PHILOSOPHY.

JOHN ANTOINE DUVILLARD, died at Fort Hamilton, New York, on the 8th of May, 1865, aged 31 years. Lieut. D. was the son of John Duvillard, a native of Geneva, Switzerland, who, with many other young men, accompanied Joseph Bonaparte to Jefferson Co., New York, where they settled on his land. Lieut. D. was born at Cape Vincent, Jefferson Co., New York.

On the completion of his collegiate education, Mr. Duvillard visited Europe, spending much time with his relatives in Geneva; his paternal grandfather having been a distinguished Professor for upwards of forty years in the college at that city. On his return he went into merchantile business, and the manufacture of flour at Cape Vincent. On the breaking out of the rebellion, Mr. D. hastened to Providence, R. I., and joined the First Regiment Rhode Island Volunteers, under Colonel [afterwards General] Burnside, as a private. He was in the company of sharpshooters, at the battle of Bull Run, and remained in this regiment until it was disbanded, when he was appointed a Lieutenant in the 12th U. S. Infantry.

He was with his regiment in all the campaigns of the army of the Potomac, and was engaged in no less than sixteen pitched battles.

In the winter of 1863-4, when his regiment had become greatly reduced by losses in action, the officers were sent out on recruiting service. Lieut. Duvillard was sent to Ogdensburg, New York, where, from his acquaintance along the border, he met with great success and obtained a larger number of recruits than any other officer, except the one in the city of New York. Soon after he took up his residence in Ogdensburg, his health began to give way from the effects of his severe and continued service. In March last he rejoined his regiment at Fort Hamilton, but so feeble that he was unable to do active duty. His health continued to fail until he died. Lieutenant Duvillard married the daughter of Hon. John R. Bartlett, Secretary of State of Rhode Island, who with one son survive him.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1788	Daniel Waldo, 101,	Syracuse, N. Y.,	July 30, 1864.
1793	David S. Boardman, 96,	New Milford,	Dec. 2, 1864.
1794	Dan Huntington, 90,	Hadley, Mass.,	Oct. 31, 1864.
1796	Benjamin Silliman, 85,	New Haven,	Nov. 24, 1864.
1800	Samuel Jones, 83,	Bangor, Me.,	Oct. 29, 1862.
1802	John A. Davenport, 81,	New Haven,	Oct. 14, 1864.
1802	Mark Mead, 81,	Greeuwich,	Aug. 8, 1864.
1802	Nathan Shelton, 80,	Jamaica, L. I.,	July 25, 1864.
1804	Joseph Wright, 79,	Glastenbury,	Nov. 24, 1864.
1806	Nathaniel Chauncey, 76,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	Feb. 9, 1865.
1806	Joseph Edwards, 79,	Ripley, Ohio,	April 30, 1863.
1806	James Lockwood, 81,	Lewisboro', N. Y.,	Sept. 30, 1864.
1806	William F. Vaill, 81,	Wethersfield, Ill.,	Feb. 24, 1865.
1808	Jonathan Knight, 75,	New Haven,	Aug. 25, 1864.
1809	Hezekiah B. Chaffee,	Windsor,	Dec. 13, 1864.
1809	Howland Fish, 75,	Fultonville, N. Y.	June 21, 1862.
1810	Samuel G. Chaffee, 73,	Hartford,	July 10, 1864.
1810	Alpheus Dimmick, 77,	Bloomingsburgh, N. Y.,	Jan. 17, 1865.
1811	William Deming, 73,	Litchfield,	May 2, 1865.
1812	Charles Nichols, 75,	Brooklyn,	June 2, 1865.
1813	Thomas F. Davies, 71,	Westport,	Feb. 16, 1865.
1813	Ambrose Eggleston, 72,	Coldwater, Mich.,	Jan. 22, 1865.
1815	Horatio Gridley, 72,	Hartford,	Nov. 9, 1864.
1815	Horace Hooker, 71,	Hartford,	Dec. 17, 1864.
1816	Thomas M. Smith, 67,	Portland, Me.,	Sept. 6, 1864.
1817	Wm. H. DeLancey, 67,	Geneva, N. Y.,	April 5, 1865.
1819	Noyes Billings, 65,	New London,	April 24, 1865.
1820	William J. Hubbard, 62,	Boston,	Nov. 14, 1864.
1820	Stephen W. Starkey, 66,	Essex,	March 14, 1863.
1821	Charles R. Alsop, 62,	Middletown,	March 5, 1865.
1821	David W. Barton, 60,	Winchester, Va.,	July 7, 1863.
1825	Hubbard Winslow, 64,	Williston, Vt.,	Aug. 13, 1864.
1826	William O. Norcross, 64,	Newark, N. J.,	Jan. 24, 1863.
1829	Mason F. Cogswell, 55,	Albany,	Jan. 21, 1865.
1831	David F. Bacon, 51,	New York,	Jan. 23, 1865.
1833	Hiram Doane, 57,	Vicksburg,	July 22, 1863.
1834	Henry W. Ellsworth, 50,	New Haven,	Aug. 14, 1864.
1835	Joshua Hill, 47,	Hampden, Me.,	Oct. 12, 1860.
1843	John M. Huntington, 43,	Marietta, Ohio,	Oct. 10, 1864.
1843	Timothy Linsley, 42,	North Haven,	Nov. 4, 1864.
1845	James Redfield, 40,	Allatoona Pass,	Oct. 6, 1864.
1845	William G. Conner,	Gettysburgh,	July 3, 1863.
1847	Othniel De Forest, 37,	New York City,	Dec. 16, 1864.
1847	Henry H. Hadley, 38,	Washington, D. C.,	Aug. 1, 1864.
1849	Sheldon C. Beecher, 38,	Cold Harbor, Va.,	June 2, 1864.
1851	James Budlong, 32,	Richmond, Va.,	Jan. 28, 1860.
1861	Byron Hart, 36,	New York,	Oct. 7, 1863.
1852	William F. Humphrey, 38,	Valetta, Malta,	Feb. 7, 1865.
1854	Samuel C. Blackman, 31,	New Haven,	Aug. 20, 1864.
1854	John S. Donelson, 32,	Chickamauga battle field,	Sep. 9, 1864.
1854	Lewis L. Weld, 31,	Point of Rocks, Va.,	Jan. 10, 1865.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1856	Frank H. Peck, 28,	Shenandoah Valley, Va.,	Sept. 20, 1864.
1858	Theodore W. Twining, 28,	Tampa Bay, Flor.,	Aug. 14, 1864.
1859	Edward Carrington, 27,	St. Marks, Florida,	March 6, 1865.
1860	Henry W. Camp, 25,	near Richmond, Va.,	Oct. 13, 1864.
1861	William B. Clark, 26,	near Richmond, Va.,	Oct. 27, 1864.
1861	Gilbert M. Stocking, 26,	near St. Louis, Mo.	Jan. 24, 1865.
1861	George Worman, 32,		Oct. 27, 1862.
1863	James E. Bulkley, 23,	New York City,	Oct. 18, 1864.
1863	Samuel E. Cooper, 23,	Cooper's Plains, N. Y.	Aug. 3, 1864.
1864	Daniel L. Coit, 22,	Norwich,	June 1, 1865.
1864	Howard E. Pratt, 20,	Essex,	Feb. 21, 1865.

DOCTORS OF MEDICINE.

1825	Hosea Edwards,	New Orleans,	Feb. 27, 1865.
1831	Adrian R. Terry,	Chicago, Ill.,	Dec. 4, 1864.
1863	Cyrus Humiston, 22,	Naugatuck,	Aug. 5, 1863.

BACHELOR OF PHILOSOPHY.

1854	John A. Duvillard,	Fort Hamilton. N. Y.,	May 8, 1865.
------	--------------------	-----------------------	--------------

BACHELOR OF LAW.

1862	William F. Croswell,	New Haven,	June, 1865.
------	----------------------	------------	-------------

Total number of names recorded, 67.

Graduates of the Academic department, 62; average age, 55 years. Fourteen of this number, including almost all the younger persons, gave up their lives, it is believed, in the service of the country. Several other deaths, including a number at the South, have been reported to the necrologist, but without sufficient definiteness to be here recorded.

The oldest surviving graduates of the College are,—

Class of 1794 Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, of Utica.

" 1795 Rev. JEREMIAH DAY, D. D., of New Haven.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page.	Class.	Page.
1821 Alsop, Charles R.,	170	1815 Gridley, Horatio,	166
1831 Bacon, David F.,	172	1847 Hadley, Henry H.	174
1821 Barton, David W. B.	170	1851 Hart, Byron,	176
1849 Beecher, Sheldon C.	175	1835 Hill, Joshua,	173
1819 Billings, Noyes,	168	1815 Hooker, Horace,	166
1854 Blackman, Samuel C.	177	1820 Hubbard, William J.	169
1793 Boardman, David S.	158	1852 Humphrey, William F.	176
1851 Budlong, James,	176	1794 Huntington, Dan,	158
1863 Bulkley, James E.	181	1843 Huntington, John M.	173
1860 Camp, Henry W.	179	1800 Jones, Samuel,	160
1859 Carrington, Edward,	179	1808 Knight, Jonathan,	163
1809 Chaffee, Hezekiah B.	164	1843 Linsley, Timothy,	173
1810 Chaffee, Samuel G.	164	1806 Lockwood, James,	162
1806 Chauncey, Nathaniel,	162	1802 Mead, Mark,	161
1829 Cogswell, Mason F.	171	1812 Nichols, Charles,	165
1861 Clark, William B.	180	1826 Norcross, William O.	171
1864 Coit, Daniel L.	182	1856 Peck, Frank H.	178
1845 Conner, William G.	173	1864 Pratt, Howard E.	182
1863 Cooper, Samuel E.	182	1845 Redfield, James,	174
1802 Davenport, John A.	161	1802 Shelton, Nathan,	161
1813 Davies, Thomas F.	165	1796 Silliman, Benjamin,	159
1847 DeForest, Othniel,	174	1816 Smith, Thomas M.	167
1817 DeLancey, William H.,	168	1820 Starkey, Stephen W.	169
1811 Deming, William,	165	1861 Stocking, Gilbert M.	180
1810 Dimmick, Alpheus,	164	1858 Twining, Theodore W.	178
1833 Doane, Hiram,	172	1806 Vaill, William F.	163
1854 Donelson, John S.	177	1788 Waldo, Daniel,	157
1806 Edwards, Joseph,	162	1854 Weld, Lewis L.	177
1813 Eggleston, Ambrose,	166	1861 Worman, George,	181
1834 Ellsworth, Henry W.	172	1825 Winslow, Hubbard,	170
1809 Fish, Howland,	164	1804 Wright, Joseph,	162

OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE,

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY, 1866,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED A SHORT
TIME PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 25th, 1866.]

[No. 7 of the printed Series, and No. 25 of the whole Record.]

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE,

Deceased during the academical year ending in July, 1866, including the record of a few who died previously, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 25th, 1866.]

[No. 7 of the printed Series, and No. 25 of the whole Record.]

1796.

LEVI ROBBINS died at Rocky Hill, Conn., Feb. 15, 1866, aged 91 years.

He was the son of Wait and Hannah (Robbins) Robbins, and was born in that part of Wethersfield which is now Rocky Hill, Conn., March 1, 1775.

His health failing him soon after leaving College, he engaged in agricultural pursuits in his native town, where he continued to reside until his death. He held various offices of trust, and commanded, for his integrity and moral worth, the respect of all who knew him.

1797.

ASAHCL CLARKE died at Peoria, Ill., Oct. 14, 1865, aged 89 years.

He was the son of Asahel Clarke, and was born in Columbia, Conn., July 25, 1776. His mother was a sister of Governor Strong of Massachusetts.

After his graduation, he pursued the study of law, under the direction of Judge Gilbert, of Hebron, and in 1800 was admitted to the bar. He began the practice of his profession in his native town, and continued it with success until 1815, when an accident which befel him, disqualifying him for severe mental labor, led him to relinquish it. He turned his attention to agriculture, and up to the time of his removal to Peoria, some fourteen years ago, was engaged in this occupation.

He was married in 1804, to Miss Abigail Hooker, daughter of Col. Noadiah Hooker, of Farmington.

Mrs. Clarke died in 1839. Six of their eight children are living.

1798.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS, the son of Gen. Joseph Williams, was born at Norwich, Conn., March 29, 1779, and died at that place, Nov. 28, 1865, aged 86 years.

After studying law at Litchfield, he commenced the practice of it in his native place, with the public interests of which he was, during his long life, honorably identified. He held various positions of trust, and was one of the projectors, and, at the time of his death, the President of the Norwich Savings Society. He also served several terms in the State Legislature. He was the oldest native male resident of Norwich, and the last surviving member of his Class.

Two daughters, unmarried, survive him.

1802.

TRUMAN BALDWIN, the son of Amos Baldwin, was born in Granville, Mass., Sept. 27, 1780.

He studied theology with Rev. Charles Backus, D. D., of Somers, Conn. His first settlement, from 1807 to 1815, was at Charlotte, Vt.; his next at Pompey, N. Y., where he remained a number of years. He was then for three years pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Cicero, N. Y.; after which he labored in various places. In 1835, on account of failure of health, he removed to Middleport, N. Y., where he opened a school. He returned in 1845 to Cicero, where he spent the remainder of his life. He died July 27, 1865, aged 84.

He married in 1808, a daughter of Joel Linsley, Esq., of Cornwall, Vt. He had three children.

1805.

SAMUEL BADGER was born in Windham, Conn., Dec. 6, 1786, and died in Philadelphia, March 14, 1866, aged 79 years.

He read law in the office of Jared Ingersoll, Esq., of Philadelphia, and was admitted to the bar in 1809. Notwithstanding his youth, he received in 1814, from Governor Snyder, the appointment of Associate Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He retained this office but little more than a year, accepting from the same Governor the office of Alderman, which he held for twenty-five years.

He leaves a widow.

1807.

JOHN BARTLETT, son of Deacon John and Desire (Loomis) Bartlett, was born in Lebanon, Conn., Aug. 16, 1784, and died at Avon, Conn., April 25, 1866, aged 81 years.

He was a descendant, on his mother's side, of John Carver, the first Governor of Plymouth Colony.

He pursued his theological studies under the direction of Dr. Dwight, and in 1811 was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church at Warren, N. Y. In 1815, he was settled over the Church in Wintonbury, (now Bloomfield,) Conn., where he remained sixteen years. On account of ill health, he was dismissed, and for five years was agent of the American Bible Society. He was again settled in 1835, over the Church in West Avon, of which he remained pastor twelve years. The remainder of his life was spent in East Avon.

He married at Warren, N. Y., Sept., 1812, Jane, daughter of Judge David Golden, who survives him. Of the eleven children born to them, four only are living.

HENRY WILLIAM CHANNING died in New York City, Jan. 24, 1866, aged 78 years.

He was the son of Rev. Henry Channing, (Y. C. 1781), for many years pastor of the Congregational Church in New London, Conn., and Sally (McCurdy) Channing, and was born in New London, Conn., Aug. 5, 1787.

After his graduation he commenced the study of law in the Litchfield Law School, continued it at Albany, and was admitted to the bar in New York City, in 1812.

For a brief period during the war of 1812 he served as a volunteer, with the rank of Major, under the command of Maj. Gen. Jacob Brown, and at the battle of Sackett's Harbor, where, according to the official report, he acquitted himself with great gallantry, he was severely wounded.

He practiced law in New York City for more than fifty years, early acquiring and always maintaining a high professional reputation.

He was married in 1827, to Adeline D'Anville Cook, of Boston, Mass., who died June 15, 1833. Only one of his three sons, Roscoe H. Channing, a lawyer of New York City, survives him.

1808.

GARRICK MALLERY was born in Woodbury, Conn., April 17, 1784, and died in Philadelphia, Pa., July 6, 1866, aged 82 years.

For some time after graduation he was principal of the Academy at Wilkes Barre, Pa., where he read law with Mr. Wells. He also attended the Law School at Litchfield, Conn., and was admitted to practice at Wilkes Barre, in 1811.

In 1827 he was elected to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, without party nomination, and was reelected in 1828, '29 and '30. From his position as Chairman of the respective Committees, he was largely instrumental in establishing the General Improvement and Penitentiary systems of Pennsylvania. In 1831 he was appointed by Governor Wolf, President Judge of the Third Judicial District of that State, which position he resigned in 1836, and in November of the same year removed to Philadelphia, to resume the active practice of law. In this he was eminently successful. For several years past he held the office of Master in Chancery for the Supreme Court of his State. Judge Mallery was at the time of his death the oldest practicing member of the bar of Philadelphia. To such an extent did he retain his vigor, that only six weeks before his death he conducted a most important and hotly contested jury trial, lasting more than a week.

He received in 1840 the degree of LL. D. from Lafayette College.

He was thrice married, and leaves four children, one of whom graduated at this College in 1850.

1810.

EDWARD AVERY died about the 1st of July, 1866, aged 76 years.

He entered College from Fairfield, Conn., and after his graduation studied law and was admitted to the bar in this State.

In 1816 he visited England ; and in 1817 removed to Wooster, Ohio, where he resided until his death, engaged in the practice of law. He was for two years a member of the State Senate, and in 1847 was elected a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio, his term expiring in 1851.

HERVEY TALCOTT died at Portland, Conn., Dec. 19, 1865, aged 75 years. He was the son of Joseph and Rebecca Talcott, and was born in Coventry, Conn., Jan. 6, 1791.

After one year spent in teaching in Newcastle, Me., he entered Andover Theological Seminary, where he remained three years. During the next two years he preached, a part of the time under the direction of the Connecticut Domestic Missionary Society, of which he was the first missionary, in various churches in Connecticut, Massachusetts, and New York. He was ordained, Oct. 23, 1816, pastor of the First Church in Portland, (then Chatham), Conn., where he remained, a useful and honored minister, until his death, a period of almost fifty years. Five years before his death he was relieved from the active labors of his office, by the appointment of a colleague.

He married, Aug. 26, 1817, Miss Cynthia Osborne, of East Windsor, Conn. His children were four daughters, of whom three are living.

ASAHEL THOMSON, the son of Jonathan and Eunice (Fitch) Thomson, was born in Farmington, Conn., April 16, 1790, and died at the same place, May 2, 1866, aged 76 years.

After his graduation, he taught two years in the Ellsworth Academy, Sharon, Conn., and a third year in the Academy at East Windsor. In the fall of 1813, he became a private tutor in Woodlawn, Va., in the family of Lawrence Lewis, Esq.

In the spring of 1815 he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Eli Todd, of Farmington, attending the medical lectures of that and the following winters, at the Medical College in New Haven. He then began the practice of medicine in his native town, and continued it until his death.

He was a member of the State Legislature, in 1850, and again in 1858. He received the honorary degree of M. D. from Yale College, in 1859.

1811.

ELY BURCHARD, the son of Richard Burchard, was born in West Springfield, Mass., April 24, 1788, and died in Clinton, N. Y., of pneumonia, Feb. 4, 1866, aged 77 years.

After leaving College, he took charge, for a time, of the Academy at Onondaga, N. Y. He then pursued his theological studies under private direction, and in 1817 was licensed to preach by the Oneida Presbytery. He was for some years pastor of the Church in Augusta, N. Y., but the greater part of his life was spent in teaching.

He was twice married. Four children, one son and three daughters, survive him.

MOSES CHAPIN, son of Moses A. Chapin, was born at West Springfield, Mass., May 2, 1791.

He entered Williams College in 1807, but removed to Yale in 1809, where he was graduated in 1811.

Beginning the study of law at Leesburg, Va., he entered in 1813 the Law School at Litchfield, Conn., but during the same year removed to Albany, where he was admitted to practice in 1816. During a portion of his time here he was occupied as an instructor in the Albany Academy. In 1816 he removed to Rochester, then a village of 600 inhabitants. Here he was appointed, in 1825, the first Judge of Monroe County, and held this office until 1831; after which he devoted himself to the practice of his profession. His legal ability and his high integrity gained the universal confidence and respect of his fellow citizens. Besides other positions of trust which he occupied, he was President of the old Bank of Monroe, and Trustee and Attorney of the Monroe County Savings Bank. From 1824 until his death, Judge Chapin was an Elder in the First Presbyterian Church, and here as in his other relations, was always earnestly faithful. About twenty months before his death, he suffered an attack of paralysis, from the effects of which he gradually declined. He died Oct. 8, 1865.

He was twice married; in 1818 to Esther Maria, daughter of Dr. Levi Ward, who died in 1823, and in 1826 to Lucy Terry, daughter of William Barton, of Hartford, and widow of Simeon T. Kibbe, of Canandaigua. Of the six children, three from each marriage, four survive. The eldest daughter, the wife of Rev. Eli Smith, D. D., missionary to Syria, died in 1842. His son, Rev. Henry B. Chapin, of Trenton, N. J., graduated at Yale College in 1847.

JOSEPH EMERSON WORCESTER was born in Bedford, N. H., Aug. 24, 1784, and died Oct. 27, 1865, at Cambridge, Mass., where he had resided since 1819. He was the son of Jesse Worcester, and belonged to the well known family which flourished at Hollis, N. H.

For several years after his graduation he taught in Salem, being engaged also in the preparation of his "Geographical Dictionary, or Universal Gazetteer," which was printed at Andover in 1817. This was followed by several other works, mostly geographical. In 1827 he began his labors in lexicography, by a revised edition of Johnson. In 1830 appeared his "Comprehensive, Explanatory and Pronouncing Dictionary," and in 1846 his "Universal and Critical Dictionary of the English Language." He published, in 1855, a "Pronouncing, Explanatory, and Synonymous Dictionary," and at length, in 1860, gave to the world the final results of his long and successful labors, in his large quarto "Dictionary of the English Language."

Dr. Worcester was also, from 1831 to 1843, the literary Editor of the "American Almanac." He received the degree of LL. D. from Brown University and from Dartmouth College, and was a member of several learned Societies at home and abroad.

He married, in 1841, the daughter of the late Professor McKean, of Harvard College, who survives him, but without children.

1812.

AUGUSTUS RUSSELL STREET died in New Haven, June 12, 1866, aged 74 years.

He was the son of Titus and Amaryllis (Atwater) Street, and was born in New Haven, Nov. 5, 1791.

He studied law with Judge Chauncey, but the state of his health did not permit him to engage in an active professional life. He resided in New Haven, following the pursuits to which his quiet and cultivated tastes naturally inclined him, and though from early manhood an invalid, he did not fail both to acquire large culture for himself, and by his benevolence and public spirit, to make his life a blessing to the community. From 1843 to 1848 he traveled and resided abroad, devoting much attention to the acquisition of the modern languages and to the study of art. It deserves to be remarked that these circumstances were doubtless not without weight in determining the direction which his later gifts to the College largely took.

Beyond the respect due to his character, the graduates and friends of Yale College will cherish the memory of Mr. Street as the most munificent of all the benefactors of the College since its foundation. Besides occasional contributions to its funds, he founded the Street Professorship of Modern Languages, erected the building for the Yale School of the Fine Arts, and made provision for its partial endowment. He also left a handsome legacy, which is ultimately to be used in founding the Titus Street Professorship in the Yale Theological Seminary ; the remainder, if there be any, to be applied to the increase of the College Library. The whole amount of these gifts to the College can hardly fall short of $300,000.

He was married, October, 1815, to Caroline, M. daughter of William Leffingwell, Esq., (Y. C. 1786). He survived all his children, the last of whom, the wife of Admiral Foote, U. S. N., died in 1863, not long after her husband.

CALEB SMITH WOODHULL died at Miller's Place in the town of Brookhaven, L. I., July 16, 1866, aged 74 years.

He was the son of Merrit S. Woodhull, and was born at Miller's Place, Feb. 26, 1792.

In 1814 he commenced the study of law in the city of New York with George W. Strong, Esq., and in the fall of the same year, toward the close of the war with Great Britain, entered the army. He was admitted to the bar in 1817, and in 1836 was elected to the Common Council of the city of New York. He retained this position for eight years, becoming in 1839 a member of the Board of Aldermen. In 1843 he was President of the Board, and in the absence of the Mayor performed his duties for the year. During nearly the whole period of his connection with the Common Council, he was chairman of the Law Committee. He was nominated in 1844 by the friends of Henry Clay, as one of the Presidential Electors for the State of New York. In May, 1849, he was elected Mayor of New York City, and held this office until Jan., 1851, when he retired from public life and shortly afterward returned to Miller's Place, where he resided until his death.

He was twice married ; in 1818 to Lavinia Nostrand, who died a few months afterwards, and again in 1830 to Harriet, daughter of Abraham Fardon of New York city, who died in 1865. Two of his three children by the second marriage survive him.

1813.

GEORGE EDMUND BADGER died at Raleigh, N. C., May 11, 1866, aged 71 years.

He was the son of George E. Badger, Esq., and was born April 13, 1795, in Newbern, N. C., where his father, originally from the North, had settled.

Mr. Badger was eminent as a lawyer, and was much in political life. In 1816, at the age of twenty-one, he was elected to the State Legislature, and in 1820 was elected a Judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina, but resigned the post in 1825. He was appointed Secretary of the Navy by President Harrison, in 1841; was chosen a Senator in Congress in 1846, and reëlected in 1848 for a term of six years, serving on the Committees on Military and Naval Affairs. In 1851 he was nominated by President Fillmore as a Judge of the U. S. Supreme Court, but the Senate did not confirm the nomination. At the expiration of his term of office he withdrew from public life, and devoted himself wholly to his professional practice.

In February, 1861, when the proposition to hold a Convention for the purpose of seceding from the Union was submitted to the people, he consented to serve as a Union candidate, if the Convention should be called. The proposition was however defeated by the people, but when in May, 1861, the Convention was finally called, he served in it as a representative of Wake County. He spoke ably in defence of the Union, and, after the ordinance of secession was passed, was known as a member of the Conservative party.

He was thrice married. His first wife was a daughter of Gov. Turner, the second a daughter of Col. William Polk, and the third, Mrs. (Haywood) Williams. Several children by the last two marriages survive him.

WILLIAM THEODORE DWIGHT, son of Rev. Timothy Dwight, President of Yale College, and Mary (Woolsey) Dwight, died in Andover, Mass., Oct. 22, 1865, aged 70 years.

He was born at Greenfield Hill, Conn., June 15, 1795. Four years after his graduation he became Tutor in the College, in which office he continued till 1819. He entered upon the study of law, and, having removed to Philadelphia in 1819, was admitted to the bar in that city, in the spring of 1821. For a period of about ten years he devoted himself to that profession, but at the end of this time his views of duty led him to study theology. He was licensed to preach in 1831, and after a short time was invited to supply the pulpit of the Third Congregational Church in Portland, Maine. He was ordained, and installed as pastor of that Church, June 6, 1832, and for thirty three years he continued to minister to the same people. The death of his wife, and his own impaired health and advancing years, led him to resign his pastorate on the 4th of May, 1864, and immediately after his resignation he removed to Andover, Mass., to reside with his daughter, the wife of Professor Egbert C. Smyth, of the Theological Seminary in that place.

Dr. Dwight was for many years previous to his death one of the most prominent and influential ministers in Maine, and was well known everywhere as an earnest supporter of all the institutions of Christian benevolence. He was for a long time a member of the Board of Overseers of Bowdoin College, from which institution he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1846. He was also one of the Board of Visitors of Andover Theological Seminary during a period of ten years or more, and held this office at the time of his death. He was the last survivor among the children of President Dwight, and resembled him in his appearance and manner, and in the character of his preaching.

He was married, in October, 1831, to Eliza, daughter of Thomas Bradford, Esq., of Philadelphia, who died October 2, 1863. Four children, two sons who graduated at Yale College in 1852 and 1859, and two daughters, survive him.

CHARLES HAWLEY died at Stamford, Conn., Jan. 23, 1866. He was the only son of Cyrus and Mary (Curtis) Hawley, and was born at Monroe, Conn., June 15, 1792.

He studied law first with Judge Chapman, at Newtown, and afterward with Judges Reeve and Gould, at Litchfield. In 1816, he commenced the practice of his profession in Stamford, and continued it, in the same place, with marked success, until his death. He served repeatedly in both branches of the State Legislature, was one of the Presidential Electors in 1829, and in 1839 was elected Lieutenant Governor.

He married in 1821, Miss Mary Stiles Holly, of Stamford, who with seven children survives him.

1814.

WILLIAM BARRON CALHOUN died in Springfield, Mass., Nov. 8, 1865, aged 69 years.

He was the son of Andrew Calhoun, and was born in Boston, Dec. 29, 1795.

He studied law with George Bliss, Esq., of Springfield, and for forty years was prominently connected with the public interests of that city. From 1825 to 1835 he was a member of the State Legislature, and for the last two years Speaker of the House. From 1835 to 1843 he was a Representative in Congress, President of the State Senate in 1846 and 1847, and

Secretary of State for the three following years. His later life was an almost constant struggle with disease, and was spent in great part in the retirement of a farm life. He was Mayor of Springfield in 1859, and again a Representative in the Legislature of 1861, his last public service.

Mr. Calhoun was for many years a contributor to the editorial columns of the Springfield Republican. In 1858 he received the degree of LL. D. from Amherst College.

He leaves a wife and three children.

THEODORE CLAPP was born in Easthampton, Mass., March 29, 1792, and died in Louisville, Ky., April 17, 1866, aged 74 years.

He was for one year, 1818-19, a student in Andover Theological Seminary. In 1822 he became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in New Orleans, in which relation he continued till 1834, when having adopted Unitarian views, his connection with the Presbyterian Church was dissolved. He continued, however, to preach in the same church edifice, which had in the meantime become the property of a wealthy Jewish gentleman, a personal friend of Mr. Clapp, and to a congregation composed in part of his former parishioners. Mr. Clapp possessed great power as a pulpit orator, and by his devotion to the sick on repeated occasions when the city was visited by epidemics, endeared himself to all classes of the population.

In 1847 he travelled in Europe, and in 1857, his health failing, and his church having been burned, he resigned his pastorate. He published in 1858, a volume of "Autobiographical Sketches and Recollections" of a 35 years' residence in New Orleans. The last nine years of his life were spent, chiefly in retirement, in Louisville, Ky.

He leaves a widow and two children.

EBENEZER SEELEY, the son of Ebenezer Seeley, was born in Wilton, Conn., April 9, 1793.

He studied law under Seth P. Staples, Esq., of New Haven, and afterwards with Hon. Roger Minott Sherman, at Fairfield, where he commenced practice, but afterwards removed to Bridgeport. In 1825 he took up his residence in New Haven, and in 1832-3 was Mayor of the city. In 1834 he was elected to the State Senate, from the 4th Senatorial District. In 1837 he removed to New York, where he continued the practice of his profession until his death, Jan. 23, 1866.

Mr. Seeley sought professional rather than political distinction, and enjoyed a high legal reputation. He maintained also through life an unusual familiarity with the ancient classics. During the late Rebellion he was an earnest supporter of the Government, and gave most freely to the various charities which the war called into operation.

He was twice married ; first, to Elizabeth, daughter of John Titus, of Flushing, L. I., who died during his residence at Bridgeport. His second wife was Alice, daughter of John I. Glover, of New York, who died in 1844. One of his two sons by the first marriage, John T. Seeley, Esq., of New York, survives him.

1815.

JOHN POPE, the son of Leroy Pope, was born at Petersburg, Ga., July 16, 1794, and died at his residence near Memphis, Tenn., March 27, 1865, aged 70 years.

He began his collegiate education at Cumberland College, (Nashville, Tenn.), but, a year after, entered the Sophomore Class at Yale. On leaving College, he commenced the study of law ; but soon after, having married Miss Louisa Rembert, the daughter of a wealthy planter in Georgia, he turned his attention to cotton planting, and settled near Huntsville, Ala. He served several terms in the State Legislature, where he distinguished himself as the champion of a liberal system of internal improvements.

His fondness for agricultural pursuits led him to abandon political life. Attracted by the undeveloped resources of the country, he removed to West Tennessee, then an almost unbroken wilderness, and settled near Memphis, which was at that time little more than an Indian trading post. It is an evidence of the success with which he devoted himself to his favorite pursuit, that he obtained the premium for the best bale of short staple cotton exhibited at the World's Fair, in London, in 1851. He took a prominent part in the organization of an Agricultural Society, of which he was for many years the President, and his contributions to the agricultural literature of the day were extensive and valuable. His services in this department, and in the development of the great valley of the Mississippi, were recognized at the "Internal Improvement Convention," which met at Memphis, in 1835, and of which John C. Calhoun was President, when Mr. Pope was made Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture.

For some years before his death he was President of the Union Bank of Tennessee, and was prominently engaged in the Memphis and Charleston Railroad enterprise.

In 1837 he lost his first wife, and a few years later married Miss Elizabeth Hemphill Jones, of Wilmington, Del., whom he also survived.

1816.

JOHN HYDE COLEY, son of Michael and Abigail (Hyde) Coley, was born in the village of Saugatuck, now Westport, Conn., Oct. 16, 1796.

He entered the Sophomore Class in Yale College, in 1813. The year after his graduation was spent in North Carolina, as principal of the Greenville Academy. In 1818 he returned to New Haven, and engaged in mercantile pursuits, which were continued with success until 1835, when he removed to New York. Failing health brought him back to New Haven the year before his death, which occurred Dec. 8, 1865.

Mr. Coley was married in 1818, to Matilda Beach, daughter of John Beach, Esq., of Cheshire. Four of his seven children are living.

1817.

SAMUEL ROBINSON died at Hartford, Conn., April 7, 1866, aged 70.

He was the son of Col. Samuel Robinson, and was born in Guilford, Conn., Sept. 16, 1795.

He followed through life, with brief interruptions, the profession of teaching. The years immediately following his graduation were spent in this occupation at Bedford, N. Y., and in his native place. In 1822 he became Principal of Lee's Academy, Madison, Conn., where he remained till 1829. After three years spent at Guilford, he again, from 1832 to 1837, had charge of Lee's Academy. In 1840 he resumed teaching in Guilford, and so continued until 1854. For several years before his death he taught in Brooklyn, N. Y. He held during his life various offices, civil and military.

He was twice married. Of his four children, a son and a daughter survive him, the former a graduate of Yale, of the Class of 1852.

1818.

SHELDON MOORE died in Kensington, Conn., March 20, 1866, aged 67 years.

He was the son of Roswell and Lovina (Phillips) Moore, and was born in Southington, Conn., Oct. 17, 1798.

After his graduation he taught for some time in Virginia and in Connecticut. He afterwards studied law, and was admitted to practice, but did not make it his profession. He was engaged in business from which he retired about twenty-five years ago, on account of a failure of health.

JOEL WORTHINGTON NEWTON died at the Navy Yard, Mare Island, California, Oct. 29, 1865, aged about 67 years.

He was a native of Colchester, Conn.

He studied at Andover Theological Seminary from 1824 to 1827, and was ordained, Oct. 29, 1834, as pastor of the Congregational Church at Norwich Falls, Norwich, Conn., where he remained until January, 1837. Later, he resided in Philadelphia. In 1844 he entered the Navy as Chaplain, and continued in the service until his death. He died after a protracted illness.

GEORGE STILLMAN ROBBINS, the son of Appleton and Chloe (Curtis) Robbins, was born in East Granby, Conn., May 25, 1796.

He studied law at Hartford, Conn.; afterwards engaged in business in New York City, as an importer and jobber of dry goods, in which he continued till 1836. Since 1842 he has been a broker in New York City, where he died of paralysis, Jan. 15, 1866, aged 69 years.

He was married in 1826, to Miss Frances C. Wolcott, daughter of Dr. Oliver Wolcott, of New London, Conn., who survives him. The children were two daughters and two sons. The eldest son, George A. Robbins, graduated at Yale College in 1847, and was associated with his father in business.

1821.

JOHN RIPLEY ADAMS died at Northampton, Mass., April 25, 1866, aged 64 years.

He was the son of John Adams, LL. D., (Y. C. 1795), for many years principal of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and Elizabeth (Ripley) Adams, and was born at Plainfield, Conn., March 20, 1802.

He was for three years a teacher in Phillips Academy, and afterwards a student in the Theological Seminary at Andover, where he completed the course in 1826. The interval between 1826 and 1831, when he was settled as pastor over the Congregational Church in Londonderry, N. H., was occupied in teaching and in missionary labor in Western New York. He remained in Londonderry five years, and afterwards preached for two years in Great Falls, N. H. His second settlement, in 1847, was in Brighton, Mass., where he also remained five years. He was subsequently for fourteen years, from 1847 to 1861, pastor of the Congregational Church in Gorham, Me.

In June, 1861, he was appointed Chaplain of the 5th Maine Regiment, and was present at most of the battles of the Potomac Army, from the first Bull Run battle on. When the term of service of his own regiment expired, he became Chaplain of the 121st New York, another regiment in the same brigade, and remained in service until its discharge, July, 1865. The value of his army services was such as to receive a public acknowledgment from the Governor of Maine, and from general officers.

On his return home, he was employed in the work of the Maine Missionary Society, in the western part of that State. The disease which occasioned his death, was acute inflammation of the brain, and was attributed by his physicians to the reaction from the over-excitement of his army life.

He was married in 1833, to Mary Ann MacGregor, of Derry, N. H. There are three children, one of whom graduated at Yale College in 1862.

DAVID GREENE died in Westborough, Mass., April 7, 1866, aged 68 years.

He was born in Stoneham, Mass., Nov. 15, 1797.

He taught for two years, after his graduation, in Amherst Academy and in Boston, and then entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, where he completed the course in 1826. He became, in 1828, an Assistant Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and in 1832, after the death of Mr. Evarts, one of the Corresponding Secretaries. He resigned in 1848, in consequence of an injury received in a railroad accident, which seriously impaired his health. The remainder of his life he was occupied, in Westborough, Mass., and in Windsor, Vt., in cultivating a farm. While engaged in blasting, his skull was fractured by a fragment of rock, and a few days afterward he died.

He married a daughter of Jeremiah Evarts, Esq. Of their twelve children ten survive, one of whom graduated at Yale College in 1853.

HENRY BLISS PORTER died in New Haven, May 30, 1866, aged 64 years.

He was the son of Rev. Amasa Porter (Y. C. 1793) and Sarah (Bliss) Porter, and was born in Derby, Conn., Aug. 17, 1801.

He was graduated from the Medical Department of Yale College in 1824, and entered on the practice of his profession at West Hartford. In 1839 he removed to this city, where he continued his practice until compelled by a paralytic attack, about six years before his death, to relinquish it.

He was married in 1826, to Miss Caroline H. Collins, who with three of their five sons and a daughter, survives him.

LOREN G. ROBBINS died at La Salle, Ill., March 28, 1866, aged 66 years.

He was a native of Wethersfield, Conn., and from 1822 to 1825 was a merchant in that place.

From 1829 to 1831 he preached in Kentucky and Ohio, being also in 1830 a Tutor in Transylvania University, Ky. He was pastor of the Congregational Church in Oxford, Mass., from 1831 to 1833, but for many years past he had not performed ministerial duties. He had resided for a few years previous to his death at Kewanee, Ill.

LEWIS PUGH WILLIAMSON died at the residence of his daughter in Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 14, 1865, aged 64 years.

He was born in Northampton County, N. C., April 23, 1801.

When but little more than twenty-one years of age, he was elected a member of the Legislature of North Carolina for his native county, and served for two successive years. In 1827 he removed to Somerville, Fayette Co., Tenn., where he continued to reside until his death.

His principal occupation was that of a planter; but he had also the care of many estates, both large and small, of deceased friends, and the ability and kindness with which these trusts were discharged, commended him especially to the respect and affection of the community in which he lived. He was an active promoter, by public efforts, of religion and temperance and of the economic interests of society, and in his earnest advocacy of these interests acquired reputation and power as an orator.

His religious connection was with the Methodist Church, of which for the greater part of his life he was a zealous and valued member.

In 1824 he was married to Miss Mary E. Littlejohn, of North Carolina, who survives him.

1822.

ALBERT BARLOW CAMP, the eldest son of Rev. Joseph E. Camp, (Y. C. 1787), was born in Northfield, Conn., Feb. 16, 1797, and died in Bristol, Conn., May 17, 1866, aged 69 years.

After a theological course at Andover, which he completed in 1826, he was settled over the First Congregational Church in Ashby, Mass. In 1832 he left Ashby, and returned to his native place, where he resided two years, supplying various pulpits in the vicinity. In 1834 he was settled over the Church in Bridgewater, Conn., and continued there ten years. He removed to Bristol in 1845, where he became engaged in book-keeping and writing for various manufacturers in the vicinity, and continued in this occupation until the failure of his health, some six years before his death.

He was married in 1829, to Miss Mary A. Wilder, daughter of Hon. Samuel L. Wilder, of Rindge, N. H. She died in 1831, and in 1839 he married Miss Frances A. Stearns, of Leominster, Mass., who survives him.

1823.

SAMUEL HAYES died in New Haven, June 2, 1866, aged 62 years.

He was the son of Ezekiel and Wealthy (Trowbridge) Hayes, and was born in New Haven, Sept. 11, 1803.

After his graduation he studied law, but never entered on a professional life. Engaging in foreign commerce, he resided for more than twenty years in the island of Trinidad. Since his return to this country, about eighteen years ago, he has been interested, principally at New York, in the same business.

1825.

WILLIAM SMITH PORTER died in New Haven, June 11, 1866. He was the son of Joseph and Susanna (Langdon) Porter, and was born in Farmington, Conn., Oct. 28, 1799.

The first year after his graduation he was Acting Professor of Mathematics in Jefferson College. From 1826 to 1829 he studied theology in the Theological Department of this College, and afterwards preached for a time in Prospect, Conn. He was subsequently the Editor of an Anti-Slavery newspaper in Boston, a Teacher in Monson, Mass., and a Surveyor in Farmington, Conn.

He removed to New Haven some fifteen years ago, and here was much engaged in statistical labors. For a number of years past he has been the Editor of the Connecticut Register. His death, which was quite sudden, resulted from an attack of paralysis.

He married in 1831, Miss Jane Bradley, daughter of Zebul Bradley, of New Haven. He survived her and all but one of his six children.

JOHN STARKWEATHER, son of Charles and Mary Starkweather, was born in Worthington, Mass., Oct. 27, 1800, and died in Hamden, Conn., Dec. 6, 1865, aged 65 years.

After three years in the Andover Theological Seminary, he was first settled over the Congregational Church in Bristol, R. I., where he remained three years. He afterwards preached in Binghamton, N. Y., Orange, Conn., Boston, Mass., and in other places. The last twenty years of his life were passed in New Haven and vicinity, in a quiet and secluded manner.

1828.

EDWARD HENRY CARROLL LONG died at Princess Anne, Somerset Co., Md., Oct. 16, 1865, aged 57 years.

He was the son of Zadock Long, and was born at Princess Anne, Sept. 23, 1808.

Immediately upon his graduation he began the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in 1830. He attained prominence in his profession, the practice of which he continued in his native place, until compelled by disease, during the latter years of his life, gradually to withdraw from it.

He was twice a member of the State Legislature. During his last term of service, in 1860, he was the most prominent competitor of the successful candidate for the U. S. Senate. From 1845 to 1847 he represented his District in Congress.

He married Miss Amelia Roach, daughter of William Roach, Esq., of Somerset Co. She and five children, none of whom have yet reached majority, survive him.

MILES TOMLINSON MERWIN, the son of Daniel and Mary (Tomlinson) Merwin, was born in Milford, Conn., June 15, 1802.

After graduation he taught for two years in New Haven, and subsequently in New York and Brooklyn. In 1839 he entered the Union Theological Seminary, where he remained two years, and then spent a third year at Princeton. He was ordained in the O. S. Presbyterian Church, in 1846. From 1842 to 1854, he was employed in different parts of Pennsylvania, as a missionary and stated supply, and the following year in New Jersey. Then, after two years spent in Florida, he returned to New Haven. He afterwards spent some time in Philadelphia. He relinquished preaching in 1863, and died in New Haven, April 13, 1865.

He married in 1834, Miss Elizabeth Coit, and was the father of four children.

FITCH WATERMAN TAYLOR died in Brooklyn, L. I., July 24, 1865, aged 62 years.

He was the son of Col. Jeremiah and Lucy Taylor, of Middle Haddam, Conn., and was born Aug. 4, 1803.

He went to New York City at the age of fifteen, with a mercantile life in view, but a change in his religious views led him after two or three years to enter on a course of study in preparation for the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. His first charge was in the Diocese of Maryland. In 1841 he received the appointment of Chaplain in the U. S. Navy, which he held twenty-four years, being at the time of his death the Senior Chaplain in the service. In the course of his sea service he made a voyage around the world, an account of which he published under the title of "The Flag Ship." He also published other works, and at his death left behind him several volumes in manuscript.

1829.

NATHANIEL WELLS died December, 1864, aged 60 years.

He studied medicine at the Medical College of South Carolina, from which he received the degree of M. D. He then took up his residence in the interior of Mississippi, where he continued in the practice of his profession until his death.

1831.

EDWARD WINTHROP, eldest son of Francis Bayard (Y. C. 1804) and Julia Ann (Rogers) Winthrop, was born in New York City, Dec. 19, 1811.

After his graduation he studied theology at New Haven and Andover, and in the Protestant Episcopal Seminaries of New York and Alexandria, Va. He finished his studies at Lexington, Ky., where he was ordained by Bishop Smith, and was for a time Assistant Rector to the Bishop in Lexington, and also Professor of Sacred Literature in the Episcopal Theological Seminary in that place. He was subsequently Rector of St.

Paul's Church, Cincinnati, O., of the parish of Marietta, O., and (after a short residence in Georgia,) of Norwalk, O. Here he was compelled, by loss of voice, to relinquish preaching, and for some years took charge of a Female Seminary. Later he was placed as a missionary over the conjoined parishes of Maumee, Napoleon, and Defiance, O. From Ohio he removed to Highgate, Vt., where he was rector at the time of his death, Oct. 21, 1865.

He was the author of several works on the Second Advent, and on Prophecy.

He was married in Lexington, to Miss Marian Penny, and after her death, was again married. He left a widow and one child.

1833.

SAMUEL WILLIAM SOUTHMAYD DUTTON died at Millbury, Mass., Jan. 26, 1866, aged 51 years.

He was the son of Rev. Aaron Dutton (Y. C. 1803) and Dorcas (Southmayd) Dutton, and was born in Guilford, Conn., March 14, 1814.

The year after his graduation was spent in teaching in Mount Hope College, Baltimore, Md. In September, 1834, he was chosen Rector of the Hopkins Grammar School, in New Haven, and held the position one year. From 1836 to 1838 he was a Tutor in Yale College, and from 1835 to 1838 pursued his theological studies in the Seminary here.

Having accepted a call to become the pastor of the North Church in this city, he was ordained June, 1838, and remained in this relation until his death, a period of more than twenty-seven years, with an influence extending widely beyond the limits of his parish. He published in 1842, a History of the North Church in New Haven during the last century. He was one of the Associate Editors of the New Englander from its commencement, in 1843, and, with one exception, the most frequent of all the contributors, having furnished no less than forty-six articles. He also published various Addresses and Sermons. He received the degree of D. D. from Brown University in 1856.

His death occurred while on a visit to Millbury, after an illness of only a few days. A discourse preached at his funeral by Rev. Leonard Bacon, D. D., has since been published, and a sketch of his life appeared in the Congregational Quarterly for April, 1866.

He was married in 1838, to Miss Harriet Waters, daughter of Asa Waters, Esq., of Millbury, Mass. She died in 1864.

JOSHUA SMITH, the eldest son of Joshua and Elizabeth (Hartshorn) Smith, was born March 1, 1809, at Franklin, Conn., and died at Newark, N. J., Aug. 19, 1865, aged 56 years.

He was engaged for some time in teaching, and then entered the Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Va. He was ordained Deacon by the Rt. Rev. Richard Channing Moore, Jan. 10, 1840, and shortly after went as missionary of the Protestant Episcopal Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society, to Cape Palmas, Western Africa. He returned to the United States in 1844, and resided, among other places, in Batavia, Rochester, and Buffalo, removing to Newark in 1851. He was ordained Priest by Bishop Doane, April 28, 1863, and took charge of a colored congregation in Newark.

1837.

THOMAS RICE DUTTON died at Hartford, Conn., July 15, 1866, aged 49 years.

He was the eldest son of Rev. Matthew Rice Dutton, Professor of Mathematics in Yale College from 1822 to 1825, and was born May 4, 1817, at Stratford, Conn., where his father was then pastor of the Congregational Church.

For the three years following his graduation he was engaged in teaching at Savannah, Ga., and Columbia, Tenn., and then, in consequence of an injury to his eyes, embarked December, 1840, on a whaling voyage to the Pacific Ocean. He returned in 1843 to New Haven, and the next year was engaged in farming near Buffalo, N. Y. In 1845 he was again a teacher in Cornwall, Conn., and in New Haven, and in 1846 spent some months in the Copper regions of Lake Superior, as a Surveyor, both Civil and Mineralogical. Scientific employments at New Haven and in Ohio occupied the two following years, and in 1848 he was elected Superintendent of the New Haven City Gas Company. He exchanged this position in 1850, for the corresponding one at Hartford, which he retained until compelled by ill-health, a few months before his death, to resign it.

He was married, April, 1865, to Miss Catharine C. Goodrich, daughter of Rev. Charles A. Goodrich, of Hartford.

1838.

DAVID AVERY ABBEY, the son of David and Nancy Abbey, was born at Olive, Ulster Co., N. Y., April 6, 1813.

Immediately after his graduation he entered Auburn Theological Seminary, where he completed his studies in 1841.

The nearly twenty-five years of his active ministry were spent in Canada West, at and in the region of Niagara Falls, at Monterey, and West Dresden, N. Y., New Milford, Pa., and Apalachin, N. Y., where he died Dec. 6, 1865, aged 52 years.

He married in 1843, Blandina M., daughter of Conrad Brodhead, Esq., of his native town, who with an only daughter, survives him.

JOHN BUCHANAN COBURN, the son of Robert Coburn, was born in Philadelphia, July 1, 1817.

He was graduated at the Jefferson Medical College, in 1843; but being an only son, the care of his father's property required his attention, and he never engaged in professional practice.

He remained unmarried, displaying a marked devotion to his parents, and becoming, after the death of his mother, the almost constant attendant of his father, now aged and blind.

He died at Philadelphia, of consumption, May 27, 1866, aged 48 years.

1842.

LEANDER ELMER WAKEFIELD died at Monticello, Minn., May 9, 1865, aged 46 years.

He was the son of Rev. Tubal and Rosella Wakefield, and was born in Angelica, N. Y., Sept. 22, 1818. His parents removed during his infancy to Massachusetts.

He was ordained a minister of the Baptist Church at Richmond, R. I., Sept. 30, 1843. In 1844 he removed to Hopkinton, R. I., where he was occupied for a year in preaching and giving instruction. The following year he removed to Feltonville, in Marlboro', Mass., where he was settled as pastor the remainder of his life, except three years and a half, from 1848 to 1852, spent at Osterville, in Barnstable, Mass. He died of consumption, in Minnesota, whither he had gone in the fall of 1864 for the benefit of his health.

He was married in 1852, to Miss Lucy Chase Mann, of Worcester, Mass., who survives him.

1847.

EBENEZER WHITE BECKWITH died at Indianapolis, Sept. 30, 1865, aged 40 years.

He was the son of Josiah Beckwith, of Hartford, and was born at Middletown, Upper Houses, (now Cromwell,) April 17, 1825.

After graduation he was engaged for seven years in teaching at the South. He then returned to his native town, and established a military boarding school, which he continued eight years.

In April, 1865, he went to Indiana, to engage in business, and there died, after a sudden illness.

He married in 1859, Miss Fanny Peck, of Milford.

1848.

JACOB KERLIN MCKENTY died at Douglasville, Pa., Jan. 3, 1866, aged 42 years.

He was the son of Henry McKenty, of Douglasville, and was born Jan. 19, 1824.

After graduating at the Law School of Yale College, in 1850, he continued his studies in the office of Hon. William Strong, of Reading, Pa. He was admitted to the bar April 7, 1851, and engaged in the practice of law, first in Douglasville, and afterwards in Reading. From 1856 to 1859, he was District Attorney for Berks Co., and in 1860 member of Congress for the Reading District, to fill the unexpired term of Hon. John Schwarts. At the time of his death he was already selected as the next candidate for the same position. He died after a long and painful illness, of malignant cancer.

1850.

CHAUNCEY MEIGS HAND, the eldest son of Joseph Winborn Hand (Y. C. 1813) and Catherine F. Hand, was born in Washington, D. C., May 2, 1828.

After graduation he was for two years a teacher in the Military Academy, at Oxford, Md. He then entered the Yale Law School, and after completing his studies elsewhere, engaged in the practice of his profession in New York City. He afterwards studied theology, and was licensed to preach in May, 1862, by the New Haven East Association. Enlisting as a private in the 2d N. Y. Cavalry, he was severely wounded at the battle of Bridgewater, and after remaining some months in the hospital, returned to Madison, Conn., where he died Oct. 5, 1865, aged 37 years.

1852.

WILLIAM RICE DONAGHE died in New York City, July 18, 1866, aged 36 years.

He was the son of Dr. James Donaghe, and was born in New Haven, April 26, 1830.

At the close of his Freshman year he was compelled, by ill-health, to suspend study for a year, and then went to the University of Virginia, where he commenced the study of medicine. In 1852 he received the degree of M. D. from the University Medical College in New York City, and for the next year and a half was House Surgeon in the Bellevue Hospital. He then went to Paris to continue his medical studies, and spent fifteen months in attending lectures and visiting hospitals. On his return, he commenced the practice of medicine in the city of New York, becoming again connected with the University Medical College, as Lecturer and Demonstrator of Anatomy. During the war he responded twice to the call for volunteer Surgeons; the last time, after the battle of Fredericksburg. His health had already become impaired by his habits of close application and by severe labor, and the exposure and excitement of this service brought on a disease of the brain, from which he never recovered. In 1864 he received the appointment of Adjunct Professor of Anatomy in the University Medical College, but was never able to enter on the duties of the place. He received the degree of A. M. from Yale College in 1859.

He was married in 1856, to Miss Susan B. Richardson, of Richmond, Va., who with two daughters survives him.

GEORGE STARR MYGATT, the son of George Mygatt, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 16, 1831, and died at the same place, Jan. 3, 1866, aged 34 years.

He was engaged with his father in business as a banker, at Cleveland, until October, 1856, when he went for a few months to Florida. In 1858 he entered the law office of F. T. Backus, in Cleveland, and was admitted to the bar in 1860. He was appointed Aid to Governor Denison, of Ohio, in April, 1861, and acted as Assistant Quartermaster General for the State until August of the same year, when he became Major of the 41st Ohio Regiment. In the following February he was promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel of the same regiment, of which he was in command at the battle of Pittsburg Landing. He was finally compelled by ill-health to resign, and after a few months' rest, accepted the position of Cashier in the Internal Revenue Office at Cleveland, which he held until July last.

He was married Oct. 15, 1856, to Miss Lucy Ellen Kelly, who died in 1857. He was married a second time, in 1861, to Mrs. Annie C. Clark.

1853.

CHARLES BROOKS died in Townsend, Mass., June 11, 1866, aged 35 years.

He was the son of Samuel Brooks, and was born in Townsend, Mass., March 24, 1831.

The first two years after his graduation were spent in teaching at Port Gibson, Mississippi. He then entered the Theological Department of this College, where he remained two years, spending a third year at Andover. In June, 1858, he was installed over the Congregational Church in Byfield, Mass., where he remained five and a half years. In 1864 he preached six months, during the absence of the pastor, in Wilmington, Mass., and in December of the same year accepted a call to Unionville, Conn. He was however compelled to resign after a few months, by a bronchial affection, which terminated finally in consumption.

He leaves a widow and one child.

1854.

HENRY HORTON died of consumption, at Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1865, aged 34 years.

He was born in New York City, March 22, 1831.

He studied law at Syracuse, N. Y., and was admitted to the bar, Jan. 1, 1856. He continued the practice of law in that city until his death.

He was married, December, 1854, to Miss Mary Bloomer, of Ovid, N. Y., and left four children.

1856.

WILLIAM LAMSON, the son of Charles Lamson, was born in Keene, N. H., Dec. 22, 1834.

From the time of his graduation until his death, he was engaged in the business of his father, which was that of a tanner. He died at Keene, Nov. 1, 1864, in the 30th year of his age.

He married in 1861, Julia Ann, daughter of Gardner Morse, Esq., of New Haven. He left two children, one of whom has since died.

EDWARD ASHLEY WALKER, the son of Alfred and Eunice (Minor) Walker, was born in New Haven, Nov. 24, 1834.

From the fall of 1856 till the spring of 1858, he pursued his theological studies in the Theological Department of Yale College. He preached a short time in Terryville, Conn., and in Sept., 1858, sailed for Europe, where he remained two years, engaged chiefly in Biblical studies, at Heidelberg and Berlin. He had formed a plan to pursue a course of Oriental studies in Syria, but at the outbreak of the war entered the army as Chaplain of the 4th Regiment of Connecticut Volunteers, (afterwards the 1st Conn. Heavy Artillery, and the first Regiment which enlisted for the war.) Beyond the faithful and zealous discharge of the duties of his place, he rendered during the Peninsular Campaign important services to his regiment. In the retreat to Harrison's Landing, the Surgeons being prostrated by sickness, an ambulance train was placed under his charge, and though seriously unwell, he remained in the saddle nearly the whole of six days and nights. A long and exhausting illness followed, from the effects of which he never fully recovered.

An anniversary address delivered before the regiment in June, 1862, being a review of their first year's service, was subsequently printed for circulation among the members and friends of the regiment.

In June, 1863, he was settled as pastor of the Old South Church, in Worcester, Mass. His health failing, at the end of a year and a half he went abroad for six months. On his return early last summer, he made an effort to preach again, but was soon compelled to desist. He went to the shores of Lake Superior for the winter, and died at Marquette, Mich., April 10, 1866, aged 31 years.

He was married in 1863, to Miss Kate Kent Child, of Castleton, Vt., who with one child survives him.

1858.

ROBERT MARSHALL BEALE died at Washington, D. C., June 9, 1866, aged 26 years.

He was the son of Robert and Elizabeth Jane (Forbes) Beale, and was born in Washington, D. C., Nov. 13, 1839.

He studied law in the office of Robert Ould, U. S. District Attorney, and in March, 1861, was admitted to the bar. From this time until his death, he was engaged in the practice of law in Washington. At the time of his death, which was caused by consumption, he was under appointment as U. S. Consul at Ancona, Italy.

1859.

JOHN COFFING HOLLEY, the son of Ex-Governor Alexander H. Holley, was born in Salisbury, Conn., Dec. 20, 1837.

He resided after graduation, for the most part, at Salisbury, where he was engaged in the manufacture of cutlery. In 1862, during the session of the New York State Legislature, he was correspondent from Albany, of the New York Times. He had been subject, since his last year in College, to severe attacks of inflammatory rheumatism, which brought on finally disease of the heart. The disease was much aggravated by his labors for the reelection of Mr. Lincoln, in the last Presidential campaign. He died at San Francisco, Cal., whither he had gone to escape the severity of our winter, Nov. 3, 1865.

He was married in 1862, to Miss Juda R. Sterling, who with one child survives him.

1860.

OSCAR MORTIMER CARRIER, the son of B. H. and E. Carrier, was born at Conquest, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1834.

He removed to Yale College in 1859, from Oberlin, joining the Junior Class. After his graduation he taught for a few months in Jackson, Mich., and then became an instructor in Olivet College, where in the spring of 1861 he was elected Professor of Latin. He occupied the post until his death, which occurred at Olivet, Mich., Oct. 30, 1865.

He was married in 1862, to Miss Susan Lyon, of Eckford, Mich., who survives him.

WILLIAM WISNER MARTIN died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1865.

He was the son of Rev. William M. Martin, and was born at Rahway, N. J., Dec. 18, 1837.

He spent two years of his theological course at Andover, and the third at the Union Seminary, New York. He was ordained as an evangelist, June 18, 1863, and a few days afterward sailed for California, under appointment of the N. S. Presbyterian Home Missionary Society. He preached a year at Sonora, but finding the work too hard, was obliged to leave for rest. Then after preaching a few months in the Howard St. Church, in San Francisco, he was called to San José. His health gave way after a brief effort, and he returned in August, 1865, to Brooklyn, where he died.

He married in 1863, Fanny L., daughter of Crowell Hadden, Esq., of Brooklyn, N. Y., who with one child survives him.

JOHN FRANK SEELY died at Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 21, 1865, aged 29 years.

He was the son of John H. Seely, and was born in Ludlow, Ohio, Oct. 1, 1836.

The first year after his graduation he studied law at Beverly, Ohio. The following year he attended lectures in the Cincinnati Law School, from which he received his degree in the spring of 1862. He removed shortly after to Des Moines, where he was engaged in the practice of his profession until his death.

He was married in 1863, to Eliza M., daughter of Eli W. Blake, Esq., of New Haven. He leaves one child.

1862.

JAMES PIERREPONT BLAKE, the youngest son of Eli W. Blake (Y. C. 1816) and Eliza M. (O'Brien) Blake, was born at New Haven, March 8, 1839.

During his College course he was subject to severe and protracted attacks of illness, but his remarkable energy enabled him to pursue his studies and graduate with his Class.

Immediately after graduation he commenced the study of law, and was admitted to the bar of New Haven County, Oct. 13, 1864. Before entering upon the practice of his profession, wishing to serve his country in some capacity during the war, he in November, 1864, went to Beaufort, S. C., in the service of the Freedmen's Aid Society. On the arrival of Sherman's army at that point, he was appointed General Relief Agent, to distribute for the relief of destitute freedmen the supplies which his own earnest appeals had aided much to secure. He was shortly afterward appointed Superintendent of Schools at Edisto Island, and remained there until July, 1865. After a short visit home, he returned to Charleston, S. C., to establish himself in his profession, hoping to render further aid to the freedmen, in the protection of their legal rights. He was drowned in crossing St. Pierre's Creek, Dec. 25, 1865.

1863.

CHARLES WEBSTER, the son of John H. Webster, was born in New Portland, Me., Aug. 15, 1840.

He studied law in the office of his father, at Norridgewock, Me., and was admitted to the bar, September, 1864. Soon afterward he joined his brother, an Assistant Quartermaster, U. S. V., assigned to duty in the 5th Army Corps, for whom he acted in the capacity of clerk, until overtaken by sickness. He died of typhoid fever, at Washington, D. C., August 11, 1865.

1865.

CHARLES DOUGLAS ANTHONY died in Gouverneur, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1865.

He was the only son of Charles and Louisa L. Anthony, and was born in Gouverneur, N. Y., June 29, 1844.

He commenced the study of law in his father's office. His health had however become impaired during the last year of his College course, and an attack of typhoid fever proved fatal.

In addition to the names above recorded, the following deaths have been reported among the professional graduates of the College, not graduates of the Academical Department.

DOCTOR OF MEDICINE.

1823.

ELISHA HUNTINGTON died at Lowell, Mass., Dec. 10, 1865, aged 69 years.

He was the son of Rev. Asahel and Alethea (Lord) Huntington, and was born in Topsfield, Mass., April 9, 1796.

He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1815. Commencing his professional life at Lowell in 1824, two years before the incorporation of that city, he was identified for the last quarter of a century with its growth and improvement, and was eight times elected Mayor. In 1853 he was Lieut. Governor of Massachusetts. He was also at one time President of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and from 1860 to 1865 an Overseer of Harvard College.

He married in 1825, Miss Hannah Hinckley, of Marblehead, who died in 1859. They had five children.

1828.

JOHN THOMAS PLUMMER died in Richmond, Indiana, April 10, 1865, aged 58 years.

He made observations and collections in different departments of natural science, and contributed occasional papers to the American Journal of Science. He left numerous manuscripts relating chiefly to the Society of Friends, of which he was one of the most influential members.

1839.

BENJAMIN F. SMITH was born in Waterford, (now East Lyme,) Conn., in 1817, and died at Amherst, Mass., Sept. 10, 1865.

He began the study of medicine under Dr. Nathaniel S. Perkins, of New London, (Y. C. 1812,) and after receiving the degree of M. D. from this College, entered on the practice of his profession in his native town. He was afterwards a physician in Chicopee and North Hadley, Mass., and removed finally to Amherst. In his professional and his personal character he possessed in a rare degree the confidence of the community in which he lived.

1863.

WILLIAM BURRITT NORTH died in Cromwell, Conn., March 18, 1866, aged 31 years.

He was the son of Dr. B. B. North, and was born in Cromwell, Conn., June 22, 1834.

In 1861-2 he was House Surgeon in the State Hospital at Hartford, and in 1863 was appointed Assistant Surgeon of the 18th Regiment Conn. Vols. The disease of which he died was contracted in his army service.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1796	Levi Robbins, 91,	Rocky Hill,	Feb. 15, 1866.
1797	Asahel Clarke, 89,	Peoria, Ill.,	Oct. 14, 1865.
1798	Joseph Williams, 86,	Norwich,	Nov. 28, 1865.
1802	Truman Baldwin, 84,	Cicero, N. Y.,	July 27, 1865.
1805	Samuel Badger, 79,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	Mar. 14, 1866.
1807	John Bartlett, 81,	Avon,	April 25, 1866.
1807	Henry W. Channing, 78,	New York City,	Jan. 24, 1866.
1808	Garrick Mallery, 82,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	July 6, 1866.
1810	Edward Avery, 76,	Wooster, O.,	about July 1, 1866.
1810	Hervey Talcott, 75,	Portland,	Dec. 19, 1865.
1810	Asahel Thomson, 76,	Farmington,	May 2, 1866.
1811	Ely Burchard, 77,	Clinton, N. Y.,	Feb. 4, 1866.
1811	Moses Chapin, 74,	Rochester, N. Y.,	Oct. 8, 1865.
1811	Joseph E. Worcester, 81,	Cambridge, Mass.,	Oct. 27, 1865.
1812	Augustus R. Street, 74,	New Haven,	June 12, 1866.
1812	Caleb S. Woodhull, 74,	Miller's Place, L. I.,	July 16, 1866.
1813	George E. Badger, 71,	Raleigh, N. C.,	May 11, 1866.
1813	William T. Dwight, 70,	Andover, Mass.,	Oct. 22, 1865.
1813	Charles Hawley, 73,	Stamford,	Jan. 23, 1866.
1814	William B. Calhoun, 69,	Springfield, Mass.,	Nov. 8, 1865.
1814	Theodore Clapp, 74,	Louisville, Ky.,	April 17, 1866.
1814	Ebenezer Seeley, 72,	New York City,	Jan. 23, 1866.
1815	John Pope, 70,	Memphis, Tenn.,	March 27, 1865.
1816	John H. Coley, 69,	New Haven.	Dec. 8, 1865.
1817	Samuel Robinson, 70,	Hartford,	April 7, 1866.
1818	Sheldon Moore, 67,	Kensington,	March 20, 1866.
1818	Joel W. Newton, about 67,	San Francisco, Cal.,	Oct. 29, 1865.
1818	George S. Robbins, 69,	New York City,	Jan. 15, 1866.
1821	John R. Adams, 64,	Northampton, Mass.,	April 25, 1866.
1821	David Greene, 68,	Westborough, Mass.,	April 7, 1866.
1821	Henry B. Porter, 64,	New Haven,	May 30, 1866.
1821	Loren G. Robbins, 66,	La Salle, Ill.,	March 23, 1866.
1821	Lewis P. Williamson, 64,	Memphis, Tenn.,	Oct. 14, 1865.
1822	Albert B. Camp, 69,	Bristol,	May 17, 1866.
1823	Samuel Hayes, 62,	New Haven,	June 2, 1866.
1825	William S. Porter, 66,	New Haven,	June 11, 1866.
1825	John Starkweather, 65,	Hamden,	Dec. 6, 1865.
1828	Edward H. C. Long, 57,	Princess Anne, Md.,	Oct. 16, 1865.
1828	Miles T. Merwin, 62,	New Haven,	April 13, 1865.
1828	Fitch W. Taylor, 62,	Brooklyn, L. I.,	July 24, 1865.
1829	Nathaniel Wells, 60,	Mississippi,	December, 1864.
1831	Edward Winthrop, 53,	Highgate, Vt.,	Oct. 21, 1865.
1833	Samuel W. S. Dutton, 51,	Millbury, Mass.,	Jan. 26, 1866.
1833	Joshua Smith, 56,	Newark, N. J.,	Aug. 19, 1865.
1837	Thomas R. Dutton, 49,	Hartford,	July 15, 1866.
1838	David A. Abbey, 52,	Apalachin, N. Y.,	Dec. 6, 1865.
1838	John B. Coburn, 48,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	May 27, 1866.
1842	Leander E. Wakefield, 46,	Monticello, Minn.,	May 9, 1865.
1847	Ebenezer W. Beckwith, 40,	Indianapolis, Ind.,	Sept. 30, 1865.
1848	Jacob K. McKenty, 42,	Douglasville, Pa.,	Jan. 3, 1866.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1850	Chauncey M. Hand, 37,	Madison,	Oct. 5, 1865.
1852	Wm. R. Donaghe, 36,	New York City,	July 18, 1866.
1852	George S. Mygatt, 34,	Cleveland, O.,	Jan. 3, 1866.
1853	Charles Brooks, 35,	Townsend, Mass.,	June 11, 1866.
1854	Henry Horton, 34,	Syracuse, N. Y.,	Aug. 8, 1865.
1856	William Lamson, 29,	Keene, N. H.,	Nov. 1, 1864.
1856	Edward A. Walker, 31,	Marquette, Mich.,	April 10, 1866.
1858	Robert M. Beale, 26,	Washington, D. C.,	June 9, 1866.
1859	John C. Holley, 27,	San Francisco, Cal.,	Nov. 3, 1865.
1860	Oscar M. Carrier, 31,	Olivet, Mich.,	Oct. 30, 1865.
1860	William W. Martin, 27,	Brooklyn, L. I.,	Oct. 16, 1865.
1860	John F. Seely, 29,	Des Moines, Iowa,	Oct. 21, 1865.
1862	James P. Blake, 26,	St Pierre's Creek, S. C.,	Dec. 25, 1865.
1863	Charles Webster, 25,	Washington, D. C.,	Aug. 11, 1865.
1865	Charles D. Anthony, 21,	Gouverneur, N. Y.,	Sept. 3, 1865.

DOCTORS OF MEDICINE.

1823	Elisha Huntington, 69,	Lowell, Mass.,	Dec. 10, 1865.
1828	John T. Plummer, 58,	Richmond, Ind.,	April 10, 1865.
1839	Benjamin F. Smith, 48,	Amherst, Mass.,	Sept. 10, 1865.
1863	William B. North, 31,	Cromwell,	March 18, 1866.

The total number of deaths reported this year is 69.

Of these, 65 were from the Academical department, distributed as follows :—in Connecticut, 18; New York, 13; Massachusetts, 7; Pennsylvania, 4; Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Tennessee, California, and District of Columbia, 2 each; and in eleven other States, 1 each.

Of the deceased, 23 were Ministers; 20, Lawyers; 5, Physicians.

The average age is 59 years.

The oldest surviving graduates of the College are, as last year,—
Class of 1794, Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, of Utica, N. Y.

“ 1795, Rev. JEREMIAH DAY, D. D., of New Haven.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page.	Class.	Page.
1838 Abbey, David A.,	209	1828 Long, Edward H. C.	206
1821 Adams, John R.,	202	1848 McKenty, Jacob K.,	211
1865 Anthony, Charles D.,	217	1808 Mallery, Garrick,	192
1810 Avery, Edward,	192	1860 Martin, William W.,	215
1813 Badger, George E.,	196	1828 Merwin, Miles T.,	206
1805 Badger, Samuel,	191	1818 Moore, Sheldon,	201
1807 Bartlett, John,	191	1852 Mygatt, George S.,	212
1802 Baldwin, Truman,	190	1818 Newton, Joel W.,	202
1858 Beale, Robert M.,	214	1815 Pope, John,	200
1847 Beckwith, Ebenezer W.,	210	1821 Porter, Henry B.,	203
1862 Blake, James P.,	216	1825 Porter, William S.,	205
1853 Brooks, Charles,	213	1818 Robbins, George S.,	202
1811 Burchard, Ely,	193	1796 Robbins, Levi,	189
1814 Calhoun, William B.,	198	1821 Robbins, Loren G.,	204
1822 Camp, Albert B.,	205	1817 Robinson, Samuel,	201
1860 Carrier, Oscar M.,	215	1814 Seeley, Ebenezer,	199
1807 Channing, Henry W.,	191	1860 Seely, John F.,	215
1811 Chapin, Moses,	194	1833 Smith, Joshua,	209
1814 Clapp, Theodore,	199	1825 Starkweather, John,	266
1797 Clarke, Asahel,	189	1812 Street, Augustus R.,	195
1838 Coburn, John B.,	210	1810 Talcott, Hervey,	193
1816 Coley, John H.,	201	1828 Taylor, Fitch W.,	207
1852 Donaghe, William R.,	211	1810 Thomson, Asahel,	193
1833 Dutton, S. W. S.,	208	1842 Wakefield, Leander E.,	210
1837 Dutton, Thomas R.,	209	1856 Walker, Edward A.,	213
1813 Dwight, William T.,	197	1863 Webster, Charles,	216
1821 Greene, David,	203	1829 Wells, Nathaniel,	207
1850 Hand, Chauncey M.,	211	1798 Williams, Joseph,	190
1813 Hawley, Charles,	198	1821 Williamson, Lewis P.,	204
1823 Hayes, Samuel,	205	1831 Winthrop, Edward,	207
1859 Holley, John C.,	214	1812 Woodhull, Caleb S.,	196
1854 Horton, Henry,	213	1811 Worcester, Joseph E.,	194
1856 Lamson, William,	213

GRADUATES OF THE PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

1823 M. D. Huntington, Elisha,	217	1828 M. D. Plummer, John T.,	217
1863 M. D. North, William B.,	218	1839 M. D. Smith, Benjamin F.,	217

223

OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY, 1867,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED A SHORT
TIME PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 17th, 1867.]

[No. 8 of the printed Series, and No. 26 of the whole Record.]

THE NEW YORK

LIBRARY OF THE NEW YORK

ASTOR LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS
155 WEST 44TH STREET, NEW YORK, N. Y. 10018

1911

1911

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

Deceased during the academical year ending in July, 1867, including the record of a few who died previously, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 17, 1867.]

[No. 8 of the printed Series, and No. 26 of the whole Record.]

1801.

ZALMON STORRS died at Mansfield, Conn., February 17, 1867, aged 87 years.

He was the son of Dan and Ruth (Conant) Storrs, and was born in Mansfield, Dec. 18, 1779.

He began, in 1802, the study of law, with the late Judge Thomas S. Williams, of Hartford, then a resident of Mansfield ; but the death of his brother threw upon him the care of his father's store, and led him to relinquish his law studies.

During his long life he several times represented his native town in the State Legislature, was for a period of six years Judge of Probate for the district of Mansfield, for twenty years Post Master at Mansfield Center, and for thirty-five years Justice of the Peace, holding the latter office until he reached the age of seventy years, the limit fixed by the law of the State.

He was the last survivor of his class.

1802.

DAVID DUDLEY FIELD died at Stockbridge, Mass., April 15 1867, aged 86 years, nearly.

He was the son of Captain Timothy Field, a Revolutionary officer, and was born in East Guilford, now Madison, Conn., May 20, 1781.

He studied theology with Dr. Charles Backus, at Somers, Conn., and was licensed to preach by the New Haven East Association, in September, 1803. After preaching a few months in Haddam, Conn., he was settled over the Congregational Church in that place, where he remained fourteen years, until April, 1818. His next settlement, preceded by a Missionary tour of a few months in Western New York, was at Stockbridge, Mass., from which place, after a pastorate of nearly eighteen years, he was recalled to his old parish in Haddam, Conn. This charge he kept seven years, when the parish, being inconveniently large, was divided, and he preached seven years longer to the new society formed at Higganum. During this settlement, he made a voyage to Europe, and spent several months in France and Great Britain. In the spring of 1851, having reached the age of seventy, he returned to Stockbridge, and resided there up to the time of his death.

Dr. Field published, during his first settlement at Haddam, a History of Middlesex County, and at Stockbridge prepared, with the help of others, a History of Berkshire County, which was published in 1829. A Historical Address, delivered in Middletown, Conn., on the Second Centennial Anniversary of that town, was afterward enlarged into a volume. Still later he published a Genealogy of the Brainerd Family, and, in 1863, Memoirs of his College Class. Many of his Sermons have also been published. He received the degree of D. D. from Williams College in 1837.

He was married, October 31, 1803, to Submit Dickinson, daughter of Captain Noah Dickinson, of Somers, Conn. Of their ten children, six are living, four of the sons being graduates of Williams College. Mrs. Field died in 1861.

1803.

NOAH PORTER died at Farmington, Conn., Sept. 24, 1866, aged 84 years.

He was the son of Deacon Noah Porter, and was born Dec. 15, 1781, in Farmington, of which place his ancestors were among the first settlers.

After his graduation he taught, for some time, in the family of Mr. Goldsborough, a gentleman living on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and then studied theology with Dr. Dwight, and Rev. Asahel Hooker, of Goshen, Conn. He declined the position of Tutor in this College, which was open to him, and was ordained over the Congregational Church in Farmington, Nov. 5, 1806. His long and successful ministry to this Church was terminated only by his death, though he was relieved from a portion of his labor by the settlement of a colleague, in 1861. For thirty-nine years, from 1823 to 1862, he was a member of the Corporation of Yale College, and was also long a member of the Prudential Committee.

A number of his occasional discourses were published, and among them, a half-century discourse, preached Nov. 12, 1856. He received the degree of D. D. from Dartmouth College in 1828.

He married Miss Mehetable Meigs, of Middletown, Conn. He had seven children, all still living. Three of his sons are graduates of this College,—Prof. Noah Porter, Mr. Samuel Porter, Professor in the National Deaf Mute College at Washington, and Rev. Giles M. Porter, of Garnavillo, Iowa.

1804.

JOHN PIERPONT died at West Medford, Mass., August 27, 1866, aged 81 years.

He was the son of James and Elizabeth (Collins) Pierpont, and was born in Litchfield, Conn., April 6, 1785.

In 1805 he went to South Carolina, as private tutor in the family of Col. William Alston, and remained four years. On his return, in 1809, he studied law in the School at Litchfield, was admitted to the bar in Essex Co., Mass., in 1812, and opened an office in Newburyport. His profession proving, in consequence of the war, unremunerative, he engaged in mercantile business, first in Boston and then in Baltimore, but in this also was unsuccessful. In 1818 he entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, and the next year, April 14, was ordained Pastor of the Hollis Street Church in Boston. During the later years of his long pastorate, by his bold advocacy of the Anti-Slavery, Temperance and other reforms, he aroused the opposition of a portion of his parish, and in 1845, after a protracted controversy, he requested a dismissal. He was then settled as the first pastor of the Unitarian Church in Troy, N. Y., and four years later was called to the First Congregational (Unitarian) Church in Medford, Mass. On the breaking out of the rebellion, though already past seventy-five, he promptly offered his services, and was appointed by Gov. Andrew chaplain of the 22d Mass. regiment. But his strength soon gave way under the hardship and exposure of the service, and he accepted a clerkship in the Treasury Department, which he held until his death.

In 1835–6 he traveled in Europe and the East. In 1840 he published a volume of poems, under the title of “Airs of Palestine and other Poems.” During the later years of his life he was a believer in the doctrines of Spiritualism.

He was married, Sept. 23, 1810, to Miss Mary Sheldon Lord, of Litchfield, by whom he had six children. She died at Medford, Aug. 23, 1855. He was again married, Dec. 8, 1857, to Mrs. Harriet L. Fowler, daughter of Archibald Campbell, Esq., of Pawling, Dutchess Co., N. Y., who survives him.

1805.

SAMUEL BELLAMY BEACH died in Oneonta, Otsego Co., N. Y., July 31, 1866, in the 86th year of his age, having been confined to his house for more than a year previous.

He came to college from Whitestown, N. Y., and pursued the profession of the law. In 1824 he published, at Utica, N. Y., a poem of 109 pages, 12mo., entitled "Escalala, an American Tale."

In 1837, after the election of Van Buren to the Presidency, he was appointed to a clerkship in the Post Office Department at Washington, in which department he remained for most of the time until after President Lincoln's election.

He was long a resident of Oneonta, and identified with many public improvements there. He was the original projector of the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad.

His widow, Mrs. Martha M. Beach, died in June, 1867. Several children survive.

1806.

WILLARD WELTON, the oldest son of Benjamin and Agnes (Gunn) Welton, was born Jan. 14, 1782, in Waterbury, Conn., and died in Hamilton, N. Y., Aug. 11, 1866, aged 84.

He entered college at the beginning of Sophomore year, from Watertown, Conn. After leaving college he went to Hudson, N. Y., where he prosecuted the study of law. In 1808 he married, and a year two later was admitted to the bar in Sherburne, N. Y. In the spring of 1819 he gave up the law, and moved to a farm in Madison, N. Y., where he lived until after his wife's death, in 1832. About the time of his second marriage, in the spring of 1835, he moved into the village of Hamilton, where he ended his days. He leaves two sons in that place.

He was a consistent member of the Congregational Church in Hamilton. On all political subjects, he was extremely decided in his sympathies with Liberty and Union.

1807.

LEONARD AUGUSTUS DAGGETT died in New Haven, Conn., April 26, 1867, aged 77 years.

He was the oldest son of Hon. David (Y. C. 1783) and Wealthy Ann (Monson) Daggett, and was born in New Haven, April 30th, 1790.

He read law in the office of his father for a year after graduating, and then spent two or three years in New York to qualify himself for mercantile pursuits, in which he was for a number of years engaged in this city. From 1819 to 1823 he was a teacher in New Haven, and for the ten following years engaged in foreign commerce. In 1833 he resumed the occupation of teaching, in which he continued until 1850. After this time he was not actively engaged in any pursuit. In 1862 he had an attack of paralysis, from the effects of which he suffered until his death.

He was twice married ; in 1819 to Miss Jeanette Atwater, who died June 19, 1825, and in 1853 to Mrs. Julia Raymond, both daughters of Timothy Atwater, of New Haven. Two children, a son (Y. C. 1839) and a daughter, survive him.

CHARLES WILEY TAYLOR was born in Norwalk (now Westport), Conn., Jan. 11, 1786, and died Dec. 5, 1865, in the house where he was born. He was the youngest son of Ahijah and Isabella (Wiley) Taylor, who were farmers.

He studied medicine, soon after graduation, with Dr. David Richmond, of Saugatuck village (now Westport), and then for a while practiced in his native town.

About 1811, he removed to Florida, Orange County, N. Y., where he also practiced medicine and taught school, Hon. Wm. H. Seward being one of his pupils. After three or four years, his health becoming impaired, he returned to Westport, where he spent the rest of his life, mainly in agricultural pursuits.

He was several times a representative in the State Legislature. He was never married.

1808.

NATHANIEL HEWIT, the son of Nathaniel and Sarah (Avery) Hewit, was born in New London, Conn., Aug. 28, 1788, and died in Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 3, 1867, aged 78 years.

He commenced a course of legal studies in the office of Hon. Lyman Law, of New London, but soon altered his plans. He then taught in the Academy at Plainfield, Conn., and there studied theology with Rev. Joel Benedict, D. D. He was licensed to preach by the New London County Association, Sept. 24, 1811, and supplied several congregations in Vermont and elsewhere. After about six months in Andover Theological Seminary, in class of 1814, he was ordained Pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Plattsburg, N. Y., July 5, 1815, and dismissed Oct. 2, 1817, being driven southward by the severity of the climate.

In Jan. 1818, he was installed over the First Congregational Church in Fairfield, Conn., as successor of Rev. Dr. Heman Humphrey. While in this charge, he became prominent as an able Temperance advocate, and in 1827 he labored extensively in behalf of the American Temperance Society, formed the year before in Boston. In Nov., he was appointed to a three years mission for this Society, and was accordingly dismissed from his pastorate, Dec. 18. His successful efforts during this time, well entitled him to be called the "Luther of the early Temperance Reformation." Dec. 1, 1830, he was installed over the Second Congregational Church in Bridgeport, Conn., a parish adjacent to his former one. The summer of 1831 was spent in England and Paris, on the errand of the Temperance Reform.

In 1833, Dr. Hewit (he received the degree of D. D. from Amherst in 1830) was prominent among the founders of the East Windsor—now Hartford—Theological Institute. In 1853 a difference in his Society, in regard to the course to be taken in procuring assistance for the pastor, resulted in his withdrawal, and the formation of an Old School Presbyterian Church, over which he was installed Oct. 31. Here he continued preaching until a colleague was settled, about five years ago.

His first wife, Rebecca Woolsey, daughter of Hon. James Hillhouse, of New Haven, died Jan. 4, 1831. His second wife was Miss Susan Eliot, daughter of Rev. Andrew Eliot, of Fairfield; she died May 1, 1857. Of seven children, two sons and a daughter by his first wife survive.

The discourse preached at his funeral, by Prof. Lyman H. Atwater, D. D., was published.

1809.

JONATHAN LEE died in Salisbury, Conn., Sept. 13, 1866, aged 80 years.

He was the son of Deacon Milo and Ruth (Camp) Lee, and was born in Salisbury, July 19, 1786.

He fitted for college with Rev. Ammi R. Robbins, of Norfolk, and entered the Freshman Class in Sept., 1804, but was compelled by poor health to relinquish study for an entire year during his college course.

He studied theology at Andover for three years, graduating Sept., 1812, and was ordained and installed pastor of the Congregational Church in Otis, Mass., July 28, 1815. He was dismissed from this charge, July 10, 1831, at his own request. July 4, 1834, he was installed over the Congregational Church in Weybridge, Vt., where he remained until May 25, 1837. He published an "Address, designed to be presented to a Mutual Council," called for his dismissal, (pp. 23, 8°, Middlebury, Vt., 1837.) Two sermons preached at Otis were also published.

In Jan., 1838, he returned to Salisbury, where he resided until his death, being partially occupied in teaching.

He was twice married. His first wife, who died Nov. 14, 1826, was Harriet Dewey, daughter of Col. J. Danforth, of Pittsfield, Mass. He married, Nov. 25, 1827, Mary, daughter of Col. Adonijah Strong, of Salisbury. She died Dec. 24, 1863, aged 76.

CHARLES GOODRICH OLMSTED, son of Col. David Olmsted, of Ridgefield, Conn., died in Spring Port, Henry Co., Ky., Sept., 1865, aged 77 years.

Before he entered college, his family had removed to Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., and after graduation he studied law in Onondaga.

Settling first in Tennessee, where he married, he spent the remainder of his life in the Southwestern States. For the last eight or ten years he had resided in the family of his wife's son-in-law, Hon. Humphrey Marshall, of Ky. He left no children.

He was remarkable for a spirit of philosophical investigation, though as a practising lawyer not eminent. During the rebellion he was consistently loyal, having previously avowed abolition sentiments.

JOHN STILL WINTHROP PARKIN died in N. Y. City, Nov. 2, 1866, aged 74 years.

He entered College from New London, Conn. He was a physician by profession, and had long been a resident of New York City.

1811.

WILLIAM RIPLEY GOULD was born at Sharon, Conn., May 27, 1789, and died at Pottstown, Pa., July 2, 1867, aged 78 years.

He graduated at Andover Theological Seminary, in Sept., 1814, and on the 12th of the following month was ordained at Enfield, Conn., as an Evangelist, to labor in Ohio under the direction of the Conn. Missionary Society. Before a year passed, he was invited to settle permanently at Gallipolis, Ohio. The neighborhood had been colonized by French Catholics, who were now without a priest; and the result was, that Mr. Gould became the founder of Protestant worship over a wide region. After a ministry of 12 years, he returned to Connecticut, and became pastor of the Congregational Church in Torrington, in his native County, where he remained from Feb., 1827, to Feb., 1832. From Sept., 1832, to 1838, he was a pastor in Barkhamsted, also in Litchfield County. In 1839 he was recalled and re-installed over the Church which he had organized at Gallipolis.

In 1846 Mr. Gould left Ohio, and since then held no pastoral charge, but resided mainly with his son-in-law, Rev. Matthew Meigs, at whose residence he died.

JOHN THOMAS, son of John Thomas, Esq., was born in Woodbridge, Conn., Jan. 27, 1792, and died in Galesburg, Ill., March 5, 1866, aged 74.

He studied law in New Haven, Conn., and practiced here for several years. In 1824 he removed to Cortlandville, N. Y., where he obtained prominence in his profession, the practice of which he continued until a few years before his death. He served in the State Legislature, and became earnestly identified with the abolition party, and a frequent contributor to its publications. In 1860 he removed to the residence of his only surviving child, a son, at Galesburg, Illinois.

He married, Dec. 3, 1815, Caroline, daughter of Elias Beers, of New Haven. She survived him until March 20, 1867.

1814.

ANSON SETH ATWOOD died at his residence in East Hartford, Conn., July 22, 1866, aged 76 years.

He was the oldest son of Nathan and Susanna (Minor) Atwood, and was born at Woodbury, Conn., Aug. 1, 1790.

He studied divinity chiefly under the direction of Rev. Dr. Porter, of Catskill, N. Y., and was settled over the Congregational Church in South Mansfield, Conn., Sept. 1, 1819, having previously spent some time in missionary labor in Southern Central New York and Northern Vermont, and in teaching a select school in Ashford, Conn. He remained pastor of this Church until April 22, 1862, a period of nearly forty-three years, when, on account of a failure of health, he was dismissed at his own request. Shortly afterward he removed to East Hartford.

He was married in Nov. 1819, to Sarah, only daughter of Joseph Palmer, M. D., of Ashford, who died but a few weeks before him. One of their three children survives them.

JAMES HAMILTON COUPER was born at Sunbury, Ga., March 5, 1794, and died at his temporary residence, Carteret's Point, Ga., July 3, 1866, aged 72 years.

He joined the Sophomore Class in Yale College, in 1811, from St. Mary's College, Baltimore. After his graduation he returned home, and in 1815 made a voyage to Europe for purposes of study and travel. On his return he became a planter, and in this occupation his life was mostly spent. His plantations were models of good and kind government, and attracted the especial notice of travelers, among others of Sir Charles Lyell. He labored, not without success, to improve the cultivation of cotton and rice. The experiment of pressing oil from cotton seed, in which he engaged, he abandoned after a year's trial. He was one of the contractors in the construction of the Brunswick Canal.

Mr. Couper was a man of varied culture, and Christ Church, Savannah, planned by him, is a monument of his taste and skill in architecture. His library was among the most extensive of the private libraries in the South. He kept aloof from public life, and only on two occasions did he consent to take office. Once, when the office of sheriff in his county had become difficult and dangerous, in consequence of the effort made to defeat the collection of debts, he accepted and executed it. Again, as a delegate to the Convention called in Georgia during the excitement on the question of Nullification, he helped to defeat the plan of disunion. So, too, he was opposed to the more recent movement for secession, and during the war lived in the closest seclusion.

He married, shortly after his return from Europe, Miss Wylie, a lady of his neighborhood, who with two daughters and three sons survives him. Another son, a graduate of Yale College in the Class of 1849, died in 1862.

THEODORE DWIGHT was born in Hartford, Conn., March 3, 1796, and died at his residence in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1866, aged 70. His father was Hon. Theodore Dwight, brother of President Dwight, and a prominent citizen and politician of Connecticut, the Secretary of the Hartford Convention of 1814, of which he published the history. His mother was Abby Alsop, of Middletown, Conn.

Before graduating he had resolved to study theology; but an attack of hemorrhage from the lungs, soon after commencing his theological course, prevented him. He visited Great Britain in 1818, where he spent a year. In 1820 he again went abroad, and visited the greater part of Europe. After his return he published his first book, "Journal of a Tour in Italy in 1821." (N. Y., 1824, 8vo. pp. 468.) In conjunction with William Darby, he edited a "New Gazetteer of the U. S.," published at Hartford in 1833, 8vo. He also published during this year, from stenographic notes, "President Dwight's Decisions of Questions discussed by the Senior Class in Yale College, in 1813 and 1814." (N. Y., 12mo. pp. 348.)

In the same year he removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he resided until his death, devoted to literary and philanthropic pursuits. In the origination and organization of the public schools of that city, he was one of the principal movers. He was engaged in several periodicals, and was at one time publisher and editor of the New York Presbyterian. During the greater part of his life, he was accustomed to write for the leading daily and weekly papers, and for magazines.

He devoted much time to the acquisition of foreign languages, and with such success that he conversed readily in French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, German, Greek, and to some extent in Hebrew and Arabic. These acquisitions, united with an ardent love of liberty, made him the efficient friend of the various political exiles who have at different times sought refuge in America. For the last year or two he had been much engaged in translating some of our useful books into Spanish, with a view of introducing them into the Spanish-American States.

In 1841, his "History of Connecticut," 18mo., pp. 450, was published; and in 1847, "Summer Tours; or Notes of a Traveller through some of the Northern and Middle States." In 1851 appeared "The Roman Republic of 1849." (N. Y., 12mo. pp. 240.)

His death was caused by injuries received on the preceding day at the Jersey City depot of the Camden and Amboy Railroad, while leaping from a train in motion. He married Ellen Boyd, of New York, by whom he had five daughters and one son.

1816.

CHARLES FREDERICK BUTLER was born at New Hartford, Conn., Jan. 21, 1790, and died at Bedford, N. Y., Aug. 14, 1866, aged 76 years.

He joined the Sophomore Class in Yale College in 1813. After his graduation, he took charge for one or two years of the Academy at Bedford, N. Y., pursuing at the same time his theological studies, under the direction of Rev. Ebenezer Grant, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in that village. He was licensed by the Association of the Eastern District of Fairfield County, May 28, 1817, and supplied for a time a vacant Church in this State. His first settlement was at South Salem, N. Y., where he remained five years. He then taught two years in Staples' Academy, Easton, Conn. From 1824 to 1835 he was acting pastor of the First (Mianus) Church in Greenwich, Conn. Being obliged by the state of his health to seek a change of climate, he was settled for two years in Stockbridge, N. Y., and subsequently at Verona, N. Y., for ten years. This was his last charge, though he continued for some years to do the work of an evangelist and missionary. The last years of his life were spent with his children at Bedford, N. Y.

He was married, Feb. 1817, to Miss Amanda Rundle, daughter of Solomon Rundle, Esq., of Westchester Co., N. Y., who died in 1848. Of his eight children four are living.

GEORGE WILLIAM GRISWOLD died of paralysis at the residence of his son, Daniel T. Griswold, of Glastenbury, Conn., April 2, 1867, aged 72 years.

He was born May 23, 1794, being a descendant of Edward Griswold, one of the early settlers of Windsor, Conn., and connected with the early Governors, Matthew and Roger Griswold.

He entered College from East Hartford, Conn., and on graduation, read law in the office of Jonathan W. Edwards, Esq., of Hartford. Having been admitted to the Bar in March, 1821, he settled in Manchester, Conn., where he followed his chosen profession until near the close of life.

He was twice married; first, to Betsey Talcott, of Vernon, by whom he had seven children; and after her death, to the widow of Jason Covill, of Glastenbury, by whom he had two children.

JARED WHITFIELD PARDEE was the son of Leavitt and Elizabeth (Hemingway) Pardee, and was born at East Haven, Conn., Jan. 2, 1792.

He was graduated at the Medical Department of Yale College in 1818, and in the same year began the practice of medicine in Bristol, Conn., and there died, Jan. 7, 1867, aged 75 years.

He was married, June 8, 1818, to Ruth Norton Upson, of Bristol, who, with four of their seven children, survives him. The only son is Hon. Dwight W. Pardee, (Trin. Coll. 1840,) Judge of the Superior Court of Conn.

WILLIAM AUGUSTUS WHITTLESEY died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 5, 1866, aged 70 years.

He was the son of Matthew Beale and Hannah (White) Whittlesey, and was born in Danbury, Conn., July 14, 1796.

After leaving College he taught for one year at Wallabout, now a part of East Brooklyn, L. I. In 1818 he went to Canfield, O., where for three years he was a student at law with his uncle, Hon. Elisha Whittlesey. Shortly after his admission to the bar, he removed to Marietta, O., and here he resided until his death. For twelve years, from 1825 to 1837, he was Auditor of Washington County. In 1839 he was elected to the Ohio General Assembly, and in 1848-50, was a member of Congress from his District. He declined a reelection in 1850.

He was married Oct. 25, 1838, to Miss Jane Hobby, of Washington Co. She, with the youngest of their three children, survives him.

1819.

JOHN HIRAM LATHROP died at Columbia, Mo., Aug. 2, 1866, aged 67 years.

He was the son of John and Prue (Hatch) Lathrop, and was born at Sherburne, Chenango Co., N. Y., Jan. 22, 1799. He entered Yale College in 1817, toward the close of Sophomore year, having passed the two preceding years at Hamilton College. After graduation, he was preceptor of the Grammar School at Farmington, Conn., six months, and of Monroe Academy, Weston, Conn., two years. From March 1822, to Sept. 1826, he was Tutor in Yale College, pursuing at the same time his studies in the Law School, under Judges Daggett and Hitchcock.

In 1826 he was admitted to the bar, and commenced the practice of law at Middletown, Conn., but remained there only a few months. In the summer of 1827 he was employed as instructor in the Military Academy at Norwich, Vt., and then for nearly two years was principal of the Gardiner Lyceum, a scientific school on the Kennebec, Maine. He was appointed in 1829 to the Professorship of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy in Hamilton College ; and in 1835 was transferred to the Maynard Professorship of Law, History, Civil Polity and Political Economy, in the same College. In 1840 he was chosen President of the University of the State of Missouri, at Columbia, entered upon the post in the following March, and held it until 1849, when he became Chancellor of the University of Wisconsin. In 1859 he was elected President of the Indiana State University, but the next year returned to Columbia, Mo., as Professor of English Literature, and was made in 1862 Chairman of the Faculty, and in 1865 a second time President of the University, which position he held at the time of his death. In 1845 he received the degree of LL. D. from Hamilton College.

Mr. Lathrop was married, March 15, 1833, to Miss Francis E. Lothrop, of Utica, N. Y., who, with three of their seven children, survives him.

1820.

MASON BROWN died at Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 27, 1867, aged 67 years.

He was the son of Hon. John and Margaretta (Mason) Brown, and was born in Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10, 1799, his father being, at that time, United States Senator from Kentucky. His mother was a sister of John M. Mason, D. D.

He joined the Sophomore Class in Yale College in 1817, and after graduation returned to Frankfort, where he entered the law office of Hon. John J. Crittenden. He completed his studies in the Law School at Lexington, and began the practice of law in Maysville. After a few years he removed to Frankfort ; and here became a partner of Hon. Benjamin Mills, and subsequently, of Gov. Charles S. Morehead. In conjunction with Gov. Morehead, he compiled the valuable Digest of the State laws, known as "Morehead and Brown's Digest." For a number of years he was Judge of the Circuit Court of his District, and from 1855 to 1859, during the administration of Gov. Morehead, he occupied the post of Secretary of State. Highly distinguished in his profession, he was also warmly esteemed for his worth of character. To his public spirit Frankfort was largely indebted for works of public utility and ornament. He married a daughter of Hon. Jesse Bledsoe, of Kentucky. Two sons have graduated at Yale College, Hon.

Benjamin Gratz Brown, late U. S. Senator from Missouri, in 1847, and Brig. Gen. John Mason Brown, in 1856.

FRANCIS HUGER RUTLEDGE died at Tallahassee, Florida, Nov. 6, 1866, in the 68th year of his age.

He was the son of Chancellor Hugh Rutledge, of Charleston, S. C., and Mary, daughter of Benjamin Huger. His early studies were pursued at the Charleston College, and at Abbeville, S. C. After graduation he remained in New Haven as a student in the General Theological Seminary of the Prot. Episc. Church. He was ordained Deacon by Bishop Bowen of S. C., in 1823, and was ordained Priest by the same, at Charleston, Nov. 20, 1825. His first work was performed in the parish of St. Thomas and St. Dennis, and at Moultrieville, Sullivan's Island, S. C. His labors in his native State were most untiring, until his health, never robust, and his delicate constitution forced him to seek the more genial climate of Florida. In 1839, he became Rector of Trinity Church, St. Augustine, and in 1845, of St. John's Church, Tallahassee. In 1844, he received the degree of D. D. from Hobart College.

On the 15th of Oct., 1851, he was consecrated the first Bishop of the Diocese of Florida, in St. Paul's Church, Augusta, Ga. His health was feeble during the whole period of his Episcopate, and his retiring nature rendered him less known than his abilities and character deserved.

He was never married.

1822.

BENJAMIN BILLINGS COIT died in San Francisco, Cal., April 16, 1867, aged 65 years.

He was the son of Benjamin and Sally Coit, and was born in Norwich, Conn., Sept. 10, 1801.

He studied medicine at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, where he was graduated in 1826. He was engaged in practice as a Physician in Buffalo, N. Y., Pittsfield, Mass., but chiefly in New York City, until 1849, when he removed to San Francisco. During the cholera season of 1832, he was so successful in his treatment of cases of this epidemic, in New York City, that he received from Mayor Lee a valuable testimonial in recognition of his services. In San Francisco, as he was one of the oldest physicians, so also he was one of the most esteemed, and not less for his private, than for his professional character. His health had been failing for two or three months, but his death occurred suddenly, from disease of the heart, while walking in the streets of San Francisco.

1823.

WILLIAM TURNER was born in Newtown, Conn., March 7, 1803, and died in Cleveland, O., Jan. 26, 1866.

Soon after graduating he commenced the study of law in Ohio, and was admitted to the bar. He practiced his profession for about fifteen years in Ravenna, and thence removed to Cleveland, where, relinquishing his profession, he was engaged, for several years, in the coal business, having charge of a mine near Clinton, in the same State.

During several years of the latter part of his life he was much interested in horticulture, and in the cause of temperance, writing for periodicals and delivering public addresses upon these subjects.

He was never married.

1824.

HAMILTON MURRAY died at his residence, (Greenvale,) Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 30th, 1866, aged 62 years.

He was the youngest son of John B. Murray, an eminent merchant of the city of New York, and grandson of Dr. John Murray, of Norwich, Eng. He was born in N. Y. City, Nov. 20, 1804.

He joined the Sophomore Class in Yale College in 1821. After his graduation he engaged in business as a merchant in the city of New York, where, for many years, he held an honorable position. In 1834 he went to Europe for the benefit of his health, and after a year of travel returned to his business. While a resident of New York, Mr. Murray took a warm interest in the public schools and charitable institutions. He was for many years a manager of the Institution for the Blind; was one of the founders, and for more than twenty years, until he removed from New York, an efficient member of the Board of Trustees of the Northern Dispensary. In 1847 he removed to Oswego, where also he was active in the promotion of the public interests. He was at one time President of the Agricultural Society of the County, was President of the City Bank, until compelled, by failure of health, to resign, and was a director of the Syracuse and Binghamton Railroad, and one of the initiators of that enterprise. His health had been gradually declining for a considerable time before his death.

Mr. Murray was twice married. His widow and four children by the second marriage survive him.

1826.

DAVID ADAMS GROSVENOR, the youngest son of Rev. Nathan and Lydia (Adams) Grosvenor, was born in Craftsbury, Vt., July 10, 1802, and died of cholera, in Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 11, 1866, aged 64 years.

He entered College in 1821, but an inflammation in the eyes, during his Junior year, obliged him to be absent, and return into a lower Class.

After graduating, he spent a year in the family of Judge Hall, of Ellington, Conn., as principal of his classical school. The next three years he was in Yale Theological Seminary. He was licensed in 1829, and soon after supplied, for nine months, the pulpit of the Congregational Church in Pomfret, Conn.

In Aug. 1831, he commenced preaching in Uxbridge, Mass., and on June 6, 1832, was ordained colleague pastor of the First Evangelical Society in that town, where he remained until May, 1842. From Feb. 9, 1843, until the summer of 1852, he was pastor of the First Presb. Church in Elyria, Ohio. In 1853 he commenced preaching in the First Congregational Church in Medina, Ohio, and there remained, as stated supply, for about nine years. For the rest of his life he resided at Elyria, Ohio; being, for many months, engaged as agent for Lake Erie Female Seminary, and, for more than a year before his death, in the Life Insurance business in Cincinnati.

In May, 1835, he married Miss Sarah Whitney, of Princeton, Mass., who survives him. They had one child, who died in infancy.

1827.

NATHANIEL PARKER WILLIS died at Idlewild, his home on the Hudson River, Jan. 20, 1867, aged 60 years.

He was the son of Nathaniel Willis, and was born in Portland, Me., Jan. 20, 1807. His father removed to Boston in 1813, and his preparation for College was made at the Latin School of that city, and Phillips Academy, Andover. While an under-graduate he published, under the signature of "Roy," a series of Poems, entitled "Scripture Sketches," and immediately, upon his graduation, became connected with the editorship of the Legendary and the Token, journals published by Mr. S. G. Goodrich. In 1823 he established the American Monthly Magazine, which, after a little more than two years, was united with the New York Mirror, edited by George P. Morris. Soon afterward he went to Europe, where he remained a number of years, a contributor to American and English periodicals. His "Pencilings by the Way," the record of his quite extensive travels, were originally published in the Mirror. He returned home in 1837, and after two years spent in Agricultural and Literary pursuits near Owego, N. Y., he became associated with Dr. Porter, in the Editorship of the Corsair, a weekly journal. In 1839 he made a second visit to England, and remained abroad until 1844, publishing, meantime, "Letters from under a Bridge," and other writings. On his return he established, in connection with his former associate, Gen. Morris, the Evening Mirror, a daily newspaper, but the death of his wife, and his own failing health, soon carried him abroad a third time. Returning in 1846, he again joined Mr. Morris in a literary enterprise, the establishment of the Home Journal, and with this journal, which proved highly successful, he remained in connection until his death. Besides his regular editorial contributions, Mr. Willis found time for several volumes, published for the most part between 1850 and 1860.

He was married, in 1835, to Miss Mary Leighton Stace, daughter of General William Stace, at that time in command of the Arsenal at Woolwich, Eng., and in 1846, to Miss Cornelia Grinnell, daughter of Hon. Joseph Grinnell, of New Bedford, Mass. Of the first marriage one daughter, and of the second, several children were born.

1828.

JOHN VAN BUREN died on board the Steamship Scotia, Oct. 13, 1866, aged 56 years.

He was the son of President Martin and Hannah (Hoes) Van Buren, and was born at Hudson, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1810.

He studied Law with Hon. B. F. Butler, in Albany, and with Hon. Aaron Vanderpoel, in Kinderhook, N. Y., and began practice with Mr. McKown, in Albany. In 1836 he became a partner of Mr. Hamilton W. Robinson, and in the following year, his father being then President, he visited England. In 1845 he was chosen, by the New York Legislature, Attorney-General of the State, and in that position he conducted several important prosecutions with remarkable ability. On the expiration of his term of office, he removed to the City of New York, where he took a prominent position at the bar, and became still more widely known for his political activity and influence.

In the spring of 1866 he went abroad for his health, which had been for some years failing, and it was on the voyage home that his death occurred.

He married, shortly after his visit to England in 1837, Miss Vanderpoel, of Kinderhook. She died, not long after her marriage, leaving one daughter, who still survives.

1829.

DAVID SANFORD died in Sandy Hook, (Newtown,) Conn., May 3, 1866, aged 58 years.

He was the son of Elijah and Abigail Sanford, and was born in Newtown, Conn., Aug. 21, 1807.

He established himself in Sandy Hook, and became engaged in the manufacture of cotton warp. Besides filling local offices of trust, he was, for two terms, a Representative in the State Legislature.

He married, in New Haven, Oct. 5, 1831, Emily A., youngest daughter of Isaac and Rhoda Townsend. With his widow, three sons, out of a family of four sons and four daughters, survive him.

1830.

CHARLES FLOYER POND, the only child of Caleb Pond, was born in Hartford, Conn, Jan. 21, 1809, and died at his residence in the same city, May 10, 1867, aged 58 years.

Immediately upon graduation he spent two or three years in European travel.

From 1842 until his death, he was President of the New Haven, Hartford and Springfield Railroad Company, devoting much of his time to the details of the business. The high reputation of the road has been gained under his management.

Mr. Pond belonged to the Democratic party, and in 1860 went with the Douglas wing. In 1864, his name headed the McClellan ticket of candidates for electors in the State of Connecticut.

He married a daughter of Anson G. Phelps, of New York. His wife, two sons and a daughter, survive him.

1833.

JOHN PURNELL ROBINS died at his residence in Burlington, N. J., March 20, 1867, aged 54 years.

He was the son of Judge James B. and Elizabeth (Horsey) Robins, and was born at Snow Hill, Worcester Co., Md., June 21, 1812. Upon his graduation, his friends desired him to study Law, but his zeal in his Master's service led him into the ministry. He was ordained, in Jan., 1836, Rector of two contiguous parishes of the Prot. Episc. Church in the lower part of Worcester County, Md.

He married, in 1835, Miss Margaret A. P. Spence. He relinquished his parochial charge in 1847, on her death, and, for a few years, resided in the City and County of Baltimore.

About 1853 he transferred his relations to the O. S. Presbyterian Church. Returning to Snow Hill, he remained until his second marriage, to Miss Marianna Laird, in 1857, when he removed to Columbia, Penn. In 1861, he removed to Burlington, N. J. He was, from his infancy, in very feeble health.

His widow and four children survive him ; one son by his first marriage, and, by the last marriage, a son and two daughters.

1835.

EDWARD WARNER, eldest son of Caleb and Mary (Pearson) Warner, was born at Salem, Mass., Nov. 9, 1814, and died Sept. 14, 1866, at New Brighton, Pa.

He entered Dartmouth College in 1831, where he remained two years, and then transferred his relations to the Junior Class, at New Haven.

After leaving College, he first engaged in teaching, but having a taste for mathematics, soon turned his attention to the study of civil engineering, under the direction of Mr. Latrobe, of Baltimore. While under the tuition of Mr. Latrobe, and subsequently, he was employed on the surveys for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, afterward became Chief Engineer of the Cleveland and Mahoning and other roads, and was engaged in the surveys for the route across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

He also took a course of law reading in the office of the Attorney General at Washington, and was admitted to the bar. In later years he was occupied with professional pursuits in New York City, until ill health, in Aug. last, confined him to his residence at New Brighton, where he died.

He married, in 1842, Sarah Ellen, daughter of Geo. W. Dashiell, of Washington, D. C., who, with two children, survives him.

1836.

ASA GILES ALEXANDER died at Smyrna, Asia Minor, May 6th, 1865, aged 50 years.

He was the eldest son of Asa and Nancy T. Alexander, and was born in Killingly, Conn., Aug. 30, 1814. For some time after his graduation, he was a teacher of modern languages in Providence, R. I., and in this occupation his life was mostly spent. He had an unusual facility for the acquisition of languages, and his acquaintance extended, it is said, at the time of his death, to more than thirty, ancient and modern. He resided some years in the East, and was at one time professor in a French College in Smyrna. In September, 1864, he visited Athens for the third time, and was there engaged in teaching, when his health failed him, and he set out for home, but lived only to reach Smyrna.

He was married in the East to a Greek lady.

1837.

SAMUEL BIRCH HALL was born in Milford, Del., Sept. 9, 1817, and died at Pine Ridge, Miss., Feb. 21, 1867. He joined the Sophomore Class, in Yale College, in 1835. The six years following his graduation were spent in teaching in various places in the State of Kentucky. From 1844 to 1846, he was a student of divinity in Alleghany Seminary, Penns., and in 1849 was licensed to preach, while teaching in New Orleans, La. For five years, until 1854, he was engaged in teaching and preaching at Madisonville and Covington, La., and for two years more, in Kentucky. In 1857 he was settled over the Presbyterian Church (O. S.) at Pine Ridge, near Natchez, Miss., where he remained until his death. He was compelled, by failure of voice, to relinquish the active work of the ministry, some three years before his death, but continued to teach.

He was married, July 22, 1841, to Miss Theodosia Sackett, of Warren, Conn. Four of their eight children are living.

ROBERT COIT LEARNED died at Plymouth, Conn., April 19, 1867, aged 49 years.

He was the son of Edward and Nancy (Coit) Learned, and was born in New London, Conn., Aug. 31, 1817. The first year after graduation he was an assistant teacher in Mr. Hart's school, in Farmington, Conn. He then pursued a course of theological study in the Yale and Andover Theological Seminaries, spending two years in the former, and a third year in the latter. After preaching some months in Newton Falls and Vienna, Ohio, he was ordained pastor of the Presb. (N. S.) church at Twinsburg, in the same state, Sept. 27, 1843, and continued in this relation until April, 1846. Returning to Connecticut, he became pastor of the Congregational Church in Canterbury, his ministry lasting from Dec., 1847, till Nov., 1858. Two other settlements, in Berlin and Plymouth, of two and four years respectively, followed. He was dismissed from the latter of these, July 15, 1865, but continued to reside in Plymouth until his death.

He was twice married; first, to Miss Sarah B. Whitney, of Northampton, by which marriage there were six children, and after her death, to Miss Lora E. Talcott, of Plymouth.

1838.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SILL, son of Isaac W. and Mary (Beckwith) Sill, was born in the parish of Hamburg, Lyme, Conn., Feb. 26, 1812, and died at Pass Christian, Mississippi, Aug. 22, 1866, aged 54 years.

Having previously engaged in business, at the age of 21 he began preparation for College, and entered at the beginning of the course, from Hebron, Conn.; before his graduation his father removed to Andover, Conn., where he still resides.

On leaving College, he taught for three years in a private family at Holly Springs, Miss. He then entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., where he remained but a short time, finding the climate too severe for his feeble health. On returning to the South, he was taken ill at St. Louis, Mo., where he was induced to accept, on his recovery, the Professorship of Mathematics in Kemper College. He entered on his duties, January 1, 1842. While there he became a communicant in the Episcopal Church, and having been ordained to the Diaconate, took charge of the Churches at Hannibal and Palmyra, Mo., still performing the duties of his Professorship.

Three years after, being admitted to the Priesthood, he removed to Holly Springs, Miss., where for several years he had charge of the Church, and, as his salary was small, conducted a Female Seminary. He next became Rector of Trinity Church, Pass Christian, Miss., and Associate Principal of Trinity Female Seminary, where he remained until 1860. At this time his voice failed in an attack of bronchitis, from which he never recovered. During the late war, he resided in Louisiana, and with the return of peace returned to Pass Christian, where he was able for a few months to teach in Trinity High School, until compelled by the progress of disease to resign.

He married Miss Angeline S. Branch, of Holly Springs, Miss., Sept., 1842, and had five children.

1840.

BASILIU ARGYRAS was born in Epirus, Greece, April 15, 1816, and died in San Francisco, Cal., January, 1866.

He was sent to this country by the American missionary, Rev. Dr. King, and entered the class at the commencement of Sophomore year. Soon after graduating, he returned to Greece, and was engaged in some revolutionary movements. In 1842, coming again to America, he entered into business in Boston, first as a clerk in a wholesale leather establishment, and afterward on his own account.

In 1849 he sailed for California, but was wrecked in the Straits of Magellan. He, however, reached San Francisco, and there settled. His last days were clouded with sickness and poverty. He was never married.

1842.

JOHN ADDISON PORTER died in New Haven, Conn., August 25, 1866, aged 44 years.

He was the son of Addison Porter, and was born at Catskill, N. Y., March 15, 1822.

After leaving College, he continued his studies at his home, in Philadelphia, and in New Haven, until 1844, when he became connected with Delaware College, Newark, Del., first as Tutor, and afterward as Professor of Rhetoric. In 1847, he went to Germany, and remained three years, studying Chemistry at Giessen, under Dr. Justus Liebig. On his return, he was for a few months assistant to Prof. Horsford, of Harvard College, and then, having been appointed Professor of Chemistry applied to the Arts in Brown University, he entered upon his duties in September, 1850. Two years afterward he was invited to Yale College, as successor to Prof. John P. Norton, in the department of Analytical and Agricultural Chemistry. This Professorship was exchanged in 1856, for that of Organic Chemistry, which he held until led, in 1864, by prolonged illness, to resign. He afterward made a voyage to Europe, but without permanent benefit to his health.

He was married, July 16, 1855, to Josephine, daughter of Joseph E. Sheffield, Esq., of New Haven, who, with two children, survives him.

RUSSELL SMITH died in New York City, May 10, 1866, aged 43 years, having been born on July 13th, 1822.

He entered College from Norfolk, Virginia.

He studied in the Yale Law School, and was admitted to the bar in Sept., 1843. In the spring of 1844 he entered upon the practice of law in N. Y. City, and continued in it until 1852, when he removed to Yonkers, N. Y. He afterward devoted himself only occasionally to his profession. In 1852 he was elected to the Legislature of N. Y. He was married, Sept. 10, 1844, to Miss Harriette M. Bacon, of New Haven. He leaves a daughter.

1846.

FREDERICK STARR, the second son of Frederick and Sarah Starr, of Rochester, N. Y., was born in that city, January 23, 1826, and died in St. Louis, Mo., of a fever, induced by overwork, January 8, 1867, aged 41 years.

He had united, at the age of ten, with the First Presbyterian Church in Rochester, and he turned immediately upon leaving College, to the preparation for the ministry. After three years in the Auburn Theological Seminary, in 1850 he visited Missouri, laboring for a few weeks in St. Louis as a city missionary, and for some months with the Presbyterian Church in Weston. Toward the end of the same year he was ordained pastor of this Church.

His location, on the western border of the State, but four miles from Fort Leavenworth, exposed him to the agitation concerning the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, and the Kansas Border War. Finally, after varied persecution, his declared conviction that slavery was morally wrong, obliged him to leave the town, to avoid violence, in the Spring of 1855.

The next seven years he passed in Western New York, as agent of the Western Education Society, and of Auburn Theological Seminary. Resigning the former of these positions in April, 1862, he took charge of the Presbyterian Church in Penn Yan, N. Y., over which he was installed June 12. From April, 1865, until his death, he was pastor of the North Presbyterian Church in St. Louis.

He was married, in 1850, to Helen, daughter of Prof. Henry Mills, D. D., of Auburn; she survives him, with children.

Mr. Starr was the author of a pamphlet, published anonymously, in 1853, entitled "Letters for the People, on the Present Crisis," (52 pages, 8vo.) which contained nine letters written from Saint Louis, and discussing the influence of slavery upon the opening of Nebraska Territory and the building of the Pacific Railroad. This pamphlet had, it is believed, a wide influence.

He also published a sermon on President Lincoln's death.

1847.

JAMES THEODORE LATTA, son of Robert and Eliza D. Latta, was born in Yorkville, S. C., July 19, 1827, and died at Pendleton, S. C., May 22, 1865, aged 37 years.

After graduation, he commenced the study of law in Columbia, S. C., but was soon compelled, by failing eyesight, to desist. He then devoted himself to agricultural pursuits, residing upon his plantation at Pendleton, S. C. In the autumn of 1857 he visited Europe, with his wife, making an extended tour, and remaining until the Spring of 1859, when he returned to his home in the South. His health soon failing him, he was advised by his physician to seek a more northern climate. He accordingly removed to Trenton, N. J., where he resided about a year, returning again to the South in the Spring of 1861. During the last few years of his life he was in feeble health.

He was married, July 18, 1850, to Angela W., daughter of John W. Scott, M. D., of Galveston, Texas, who survives him, with three sons.

1848.

BENAJAH LEFFINGWELL, son of John D. and Sally Leffingwell, was born in Clinton, Conn., July 23, 1827, and died in New York City, June 29, 1866, aged 39 years.

After graduation, he entered the law office of O. Bushnell, Esq., of New York, where he remained but a short time. He continued his studies in the Yale Law School, and was admitted to the bar in New Haven, November, 1851.

Returning to New York City, after spending three years in the law office of David Dudley Field, Esq., he became a partner of Hon. Josiah Sutherland, with whom he remained until the elevation of Judge Sutherland to the bench, after which he practiced very successfully on his own account.

He married Susanna, daughter of David Redfield, Esq., July 6, 1858, and has left two sons.

1849.

AUGUSTUS WALKER died at Diarbekir, Turkey, September 13, 1866, aged 43 years.

He was the son of Dean and Rebecca R. (Wright) Walker, and was born in Medway, Mass., October 30, 1822.

He began his preparation for College at Leicester Academy, after he had already been for some years engaged, in Charleston, S. C., and in Baltimore, in mercantile pursuits. His theological studies were pursued for one year in Bangor, and then in Andover Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1852. In October of the same year, he was ordained as a missionary of the American Board, at East Medway, and in January, 1853, sailed for Smyrna. A few months after his arrival, he went to Diarbekir, the field in which he labored with rare devotion and great success, until his death. He returned to this country for a few months' visit, in 1864, and then again resumed his labor. While thus engaged, he fell a victim to the cholera.

He was married, October 13, 1852, to Miss Eliza M., daughter of Rev. Sewall Harding, of Auburndale, Mass. She, with two sons and one daughter, survives him.

1850.

SAMUEL WATSON BROWN died at Groton, Conn., November 9, 1866, aged 38 years.

He was the son of Samuel and Phebe (Coffin) Brown, and was born in Winchendon, Mass., April 7, 1828.

After leaving College, he began the study of law, in Philadelphia, but in 1851 engaged in teaching, for the first few months in New Jersey, and afterward in Matagorda, Texas. Here he remained until 1855, spending, however, the Summer of 1852 in the North, on account of his health. During this period he continued at intervals the study of the law, but in 1856 he engaged in mercantile business in Vermont. This he relinquished in 1858, and went to the West, intending to teach, having in view also the study of theology. He entered the Theological Seminary at Chicago, but in May, 1859, went to Andover, Mass., where he was graduated in 1861. He was ordained in January, 1862, and for two years preached as stated supply, at South Coventry, Conn. In June, 1864, he was installed pastor of the First Congregational Church in Groton, Conn., and so continued until his death.

He was married, October 21, 1855, to Mrs. Marianna Ward Moore, daughter of Benjamin Ward, Esq., of Rindge, N. H., who, with two children, survives him.

1854.

CHARLES THOMAS PURNELL was born at Denton, Md., April 16, 1833, and died at McNutt, Sunflower Co., Miss., September 26, 1866, aged 33 years.

He entered College from Port Gibson, Miss., and after graduation studied law, both at Baltimore and at Port Gibson, and was admitted to the Mississippi bar in April, 1856. In January, 1857, he commenced the practice of his profession in Port Gibson, but subsequently removed to Sunflower County, practicing law until 1861, when he took charge of his father-in-law's estate in that county, and led a farmer's life during the civil war, to which he was earnestly and consistently opposed. He was not in the service at any time during the war. From June, 1865, until August, 1866, he was with his father at Berlin, Md.

He married Miss Clara Bertram, of Clairborne Co., Miss., May 26, 1857, and leaves one son.

1859.

HENRY KENT SHELDON, the youngest son of Julius C. and Mindwell Sheldon, was born at Suffield, Conn., Oct. 10, 1837.

He completed the course at the Albany Law School, and was admitted to practice, December 3, 1860.

In 1861 and 1862 he was engaged, successfully, in active business in Suffield. In 1863 he was appointed Assistant Assessor under the U. S. Internal Revenue law, and was thus occupied until the Spring of 1865, when, his health failing, he tried to regain it by a removal to Minnesota. At the close of the year, he returned to his home in Suffield, where he died of consumption, January 28, 1866, aged 28 years.

GEORGE FRANKLIN VOSE, only son of William Hervey and Sarah (Grout) Vose, was born in Royalston, Mass., April 10, 1838, and died of consumption in Philadelphia, March 26, 1867, aged 29 years.

He remained in New Haven as a resident graduate for one year, studying Sanskrit and modern languages. He was then engaged with his father in business, as a woolen manufacturer, at Fitchburg, Mass., and so continued until his death.

He was married, June 17, 1862, to Miss Mary Theodosia, daughter of Hon. Moses Wood, of Fitchburg. His wife, with one son, survives him.

1860.

HENRY CHAMPION died at Mankato, Minn., January 30, 1867, aged 28 years.

He was the son of George and Susan Champion, missionaries to South Africa, and was born in that country, at Port Elizabeth, November 8, 1838.

The first year after his graduation was spent in the study of modern languages, in New Haven, and the two succeeding years in the Law School connected with the College. He was admitted to the bar in May, 1863, and established himself in practice in New Haven. In January, 1866, his health, which had been for some months failing, compelled him to seek a change of climate, and he went to Mankato, Minn., where, after a year's residence, he died.

Mr. Champion prepared and published, in 1863, a "Catalogue of the Cabinet of Coins belonging to Yale College," and subsequently gave to the College his own large and valuable collection.

He was married, August 4, 1863, to Sarah E., daughter of Wilson Booth, Esq., of New Haven, who survives him.

1863.

HENRY SMITH MERCHANT was born in Nassau, N. Y., March 14, 1837, and died in the same village, Feb. 9, 1866.

He entered College from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., with the Class of 1861, but left early in the Senior year, and went to Minnesota for relief from consumptive symptoms. He returned to New Haven in 1862, and entered the Class with which he graduated.

He then studied law in the University of Albany, where he took his degree in November, 1864. In the spring of 1865, he connected himself with the Quartermaster's Department of the Army of Tennessee, located at Chattanooga, but his health soon obliged him to retire. He was afterward in the Law office of E. S. Strait, Esq., of Nassau, but left this business on account of his health. He died after an illness of seven weeks, the immediate cause being an ulceration of the bronchial tubes. He was not married.

1864.

TIMOTHY FARRAR CRANE was the son of Edward and Anna (Farrar) Crane, of Dorchester, Mass., and was born in Exeter, N. H., February 8, 1843.

After graduation, he was employed as Superintendent of Construction on a portion of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad, and while thus employed met with an accident, which three days later occasioned his death. He died at Southbridge, Mass., near the scene of the accident, November 20, 1866. His age was 23 years.

HORACE DANIEL PAINE, the son of Daniel N. Paine, was born in Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 24, 1841, and died, April 17, 1867, at his father's house.

He prepared for College at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year. Since graduation he had resided at home, engaged in giving instruction in music. A severe cold, contracted in January, terminated in quick consumption.

1866.

HENRY PERRIN HOLMES, son of Pitt Holmes, of Worcester, Mass., was born at Worcester, October 4, 1844.

He prepared for College at the Worcester High School, and entered at the beginning of the course. Although in poor health much of the time, and especially during the Senior year, he graduated with his Class, and then spent a few weeks visiting some friends in Putnam, Conn. He returned home early in September, and about the 10th was taken sick, but was not thought dangerously ill until three or four days before his death. He died on his twenty-second birthday, Oct. 4, 1866.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

1819.

WILLIAM PIERCE EATON, born in Plainfield, Conn., in 1795, died in Norwich, Conn., January 5, 1867, aged 71 years.

In November, 1819, he settled in Norwich as a physician, and for nearly twenty years remained in practice. On retiring from his profession, he continued to reside in Norwich, for the first four or five years being engaged in the lumber and coal business. He was also largely interested in real estate, purchasing considerable tracts of land in different parts of the city, for improvement and sale.

In 1845, he opened a drug store, which he carried on until a few weeks before his death, uniting with this business that of insurance.

He was deeply interested in all local improvements, and in the advancement of education.

1823.

EDWARD DICKINSON, the son of Daniel and Sybil (Dickinson) Dickinson, was born in Hadley, Mass., February 15, 1801, and died in Peoria, Ill., July 6, 1866, aged 65 years.

He entered Middlebury College, but was obliged to leave by reason of poor health, and soon after commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Josiah Goodhue, in his native town. After taking his degree at New Haven, he returned to Hadley, and continued to practice until 1829.

In the Winter of 1829-30, he attended lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, and in the Spring of 1830 married Miss Catharine Jones, of Philadelphia. He then practiced medicine for two years in Northampton, Mass., with Dr. J. H. Flint. He was next for two years in Philadelphia, as a druggist. In August, 1835, while returning with his wife from a journey undertaken for his health, he was detained by an accident in Peoria, Ill. So pleased was he with the town, that he determined to make it thenceforth his home. After a little delay, he recommenced the practice of his profession. At his death he was President of the Peoria Medical Society.

He had no children, but had brought up five adopted daughters.

1829.

JEROME BONAPARTE POMEROY died at Wallingford, Conn., August 9, 1866, aged nearly 58 years.

He was the son of Elisha M. and Lydia Pomeroy, and was born in Wallingford, September 13, 1808.

He entered upon the practice of his profession in North Branford, Conn., but after some time, engaged in a manufacturing business, in which he continued until 1858. In 1860 he was appointed Post Master in Wallingford, and occupied this position at the time of his death.

He was married, October 14, 1829, to Miss Cornelia D. Hall, of Wallingford, who died in 1850, leaving five children, all of whom are now living. His second wife, Miss Elizabeth H. Child, survives him, with three children.

EDWARD FIELDS died in New York City after a long and painful illness, Feb. 18, 1867, in the 61st year of his age.

He was from Cheshire, Conn., and soon after taking his degree, he settled in practice in Burlington, Conn., where he remained until about 1843.

The latter years of his life were passed in New York.

1835.

ALVAN HYDE TURNER died at his residence in New York City, March 9, 1867.

He was from Salisbury, Conn., and studied medicine both in New York and New Haven.

In 1855 he was a practitioner of medicine in Monterey, Mass.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1801	Zalmon Storrs, 87,	Mansfield,	Feb. 17, 1867.
1802	David D. Field, 86,	Stockbridge, Mass.,	Apr. 15, 1867.
1803	Noah Porter, 84,	Farmington,	Sept. 24, 1866.
1804	John Pierpont, 81,	West Medford, Mass.,	Aug. 27, 1866.
1805	Samuel B. Beach, 85,	Oneonta, N. Y.,	July 31, 1866.
1806	Willard Welton, 84,	Hamilton, N. Y.,	Aug. 11, 1866.
1807	Leonard A. Daggett, 77,	New Haven,	April 26, 1867.
1807	Charles W. Taylor, 79,	Westport,	Dec. 5, 1865.
1808	Nathaniel Hewit, 78,	Bridgeport,	Feb. 3, 1867.
1809	Jonathan Lee, 80,	Salisbury,	Sept. 13, 1866.
1809	Charles G. Olmsted, 77,	Spring Port, Ky.,	Sept. 1865.
1809	John S. W. Parkin, 74,	New York City,	Nov. 2, 1866.
1811	William R. Gould, 78,	Pottstown, Pa.,	July 2, 1867.
1811	John Thomas, 74,	Galesburg, Ill.,	March 5, 1866.
1814	Anson S. Atwood, 76,	East Hartford,	July 22, 1866.
1814	James H. Couper, 72,	Carteret's Point, Ga.,	July 3, 1866.
1814	Theodore Dwight, 70,	Brooklyn, L. I.,	Oct. 16, 1866.
1816	Charles F. Butler, 76,	Bedford, N. Y.,	Aug. 14, 1866.
1816	George W. Griswold, 72,	Glastenbury,	April 2, 1867.
1816	Jared W. Pardee, 75,	Bristol,	Jan. 7, 1867.
1816	Wm. A. Whittlesey, 70,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	Nov. 5, 1866.
1819	John H. Lathrop, 67,	Columbia, Mo.,	Aug. 2, 1866.
1820	Mason Brown, 67,	Frankfort, Ky.,	Jan. 27, 1867.
1820	Francis H. Rutledge, 67,	Tallahassee, Fla.,	Nov. 6, 1866.
1822	Benjamin B. Coit, 65,	San Francisco, Cal.,	April 16, 1867.
1823	William Turner, 62,	Cleveland, O.,	Jan. 26, 1866.
1824	Hamilton Murray, 62,	Oswego, N. Y.,	Dec. 30, 1866.
1826	David A. Grosvenor, 64,	Cincinnati, O.,	Aug. 11, 1866.
1827	Nathaniel P. Willis, 60,	Idlewild, N. Y.,	Jan. 20, 1867.
1828	John Van Buren, 56,	At Sea,	Oct. 13, 1866.
1829	David Sanford, 58,	Newtown,	May 3, 1866.
1830	Charles F. Pond, 58,	Hartford,	May 10, 1867.
1833	John P. Robins, 54,	Burlington, N. J.,	March 20, 1867.
1835	Edward Warner, 51,	New Brighton, Pa.,	Sept. 14, 1866.
1836	Asa G. Alexander, 50,	Smyrna, Asia Minor,	May 6, 1865.
1837	Samuel B. Hall, 49,	Pine Ridge, Miss.,	Feb. 21, 1867.
1837	Robert C. Learned, 49,	Plymouth,	April 19, 1867.
1838	George W. Sill, 54,	Pass Christian, Miss.,	Aug. 22, 1866.
1840	Basilus Argyras, 49,	San Francisco, Cal.,	January, 1866.
1842	John A. Porter, 44,	New Haven,	Aug. 25, 1866.
1842	Russell Smith, 43,	New York City.	May 10, 1866.
1846	Frederick Starr, 41,	St. Louis, Mo.,	Jan. 8, 1867.
1847	James T. Latta, 37,	Pendleton, S. C.,	May 22, 1865.
1848	Benajah Leffingwell, 39,	New York City,	June 29, 1866.
1849	Augustus Walker, 43,	Diarbekir, Turkey,	Sept. 13, 1866.
1850	Samuel W. Brown, 38,	Groton,	Nov. 9, 1866.
1854	Charles T. Purnell, 33,	McNutt, Miss.,	Sept. 26, 1866.
1859	Henry K. Sheldon, 28,	Suffield,	Jan. 28, 1866.

Class	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1859	George F. Vose, 29,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	March 26, 1867.
1860	Henry Champion, 23,	Mankato, Minn.,	Jan. 30, 1867.
1863	Henry S. Merchant, 28,	Nassau, N. Y.,	Feb. 9, 1866.
1864	T. Farrar Crane, 23,	Southbridge, Mass.,	Nov. 20, 1866.
1864	Horace D. Paine, 25,	Woonsocket, R. I.,	April 7, 1867.
1866	Henry P. Holmes, 22,	Worcester, Mass.,	Oct. 4, 1866.

DOCTORS OF MEDICINE.

1819	William P. Eaton, 71,	Norwich,	Jan. 5, 1867.
1823	Edward Dickinson, 65,	Peoria, Ill.,	July 6, 1866.
1829	Edward Fields, 60,	New York City,	Feb. 18, 1867.
1829	Jerome B. Pomeroy, 58,	Wallingford,	Aug. 9, 1866.
1835	Alvan H. Turner, —,	New York City,	Mar. 9, 1867.

The total number of deaths reported this year is 59.

Those from the Academical department, 54 in number, are distributed as follows:—in Connecticut, 15; New York, 11; Massachusetts, 4; Pennsylvania and Mississippi, 3 each; Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri, California and Turkey, 2 each; one died at Sea, and the remaining seven in as many different States.

Of the deceased, 17 were Clergymen, 16 Lawyers, 5 Teachers and Professors, and 4 Physicians.

The average age is 59 years.

The surviving graduates of the College previous to 1800 are,—

Class of 1794,	Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, of Utica, N. Y.
“ 1795,	Rev. JEREMIAH DAY, D. D., of New Haven.
“ 1796,	TIMOTHY BISHOP, Esq., of New Haven.
“ “	GOLD SELLECK SILLIMAN, Esq., of Brooklyn, L. I.
“ “	JOHN HARVEY TUCKER, Esq., of Hamilton, Bermuda.
“ 1797,	Rev. CHARLES GOODRICH, of Penn Yan, N. Y.
“ 1799,	Rev. EZEKIEL JONES CHAPMAN, of Oneida Lake, N. Y.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page.	Class.	Page.
1836 Alexander, Asa G.,	243	1809 Olmsted, Charles G.,	231
1840 Argyras, Basilius,	246	1864 Paine, Horace D.,	252
1814 Atwood, Anson S.,	232	1816 Pardee, Jared W.,	236
1815 Beach, Samuel B.,	228	1809 Parkin, John S. W.,	231
1820 Brown, Mason,	237	1804 Pierpont, John,	227
1850 Brown, Samuel W.,	249	1830 Pond, Charles F.,	242
1816 Butler, Charles F.,	235	1842 Porter, John A.,	246
1860 Champion, Henry,	250	1803 Porter, Noah,	226
1822 Coit, Benjamin B.,	238	1854 Purnell, Charles T.,	250
1814 Couper, James H.,	233	1833 Robins, John P.,	242
1864 Crane, T. Farrar,	251	1820 Rutledge, Francis H.,	238
1807 Daggett, Leonard A.,	229	1829 Sanford, David,	242
1814 Dwight, Theodore,	234	1859 Sheldon, Henry K.,	250
1802 Field, David D.,	225	1838 Sill, George W.,	245
1811 Gould, William R.,	232	1842 Smith, Russell,	246
1816 Griswold, George W.,	235	1846 Starr, Frederick,	247
1826 Grosvenor, David A.,	240	1801 Storrs, Zalmon,	225
1837 Hall, Samuel B.,	244	1807 Taylor, Charles W.,	229
1808 Hewit, Nathaniel,	229	1811 Thomas, John,	232
1866 Holmes, Henry P.,	252	1823 Turner, William,	239
1819 Lathrop, John H.,	236	1828 Van Buren, John,	241
1847 Latta, James T.,	248	1859 Vose, George F.,	250
1837 Learned, Robert C.,	244	1849 Walker, Augustus,	248
1809 Lee, Jonathan,	230	1835 Warner, Edward,	243
1848 Leffingwell, Benajah,	248	1806 Welton, Willard,	228
1863 Merchant, Henry S.,	251	1816 Whittlesey, William A.,	236
1824 Murray, Hamilton,	239	1827 Willis, Nathaniel P.,	240

GRADUATES OF THE PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

1823 M. D. Dickinson, Edward,	253	1829 M. D. Pomeroy, Jerome B.,	253
1819 M. D. Eaton, William P.,	252	1835 M. D. Turner, Alvan H.,	254
1829 M. D. Fields, Edward,	254

6
5

STATE OF NEW YORK

NAME	RESIDENCE	EDUCATION	EXPERIENCE	REMARKS
John A. Smith	New York City	Harvard University	1900-1905	Member of the Board of Directors
James B. Jones	Albany	Yale University	1905-1910	Member of the Board of Directors
William C. Brown	Schenectady	Columbia University	1910-1915	Member of the Board of Directors
Charles D. White	Rochester	University of Wisconsin	1915-1920	Member of the Board of Directors
Edward F. Green	Syracuse	University of Michigan	1920-1925	Member of the Board of Directors
Franklin G. Black	Buffalo	University of California	1925-1930	Member of the Board of Directors
Harold H. Gray	Watkinsville	University of Texas	1930-1935	Member of the Board of Directors
Arthur I. Hall	Utica	University of Illinois	1935-1940	Member of the Board of Directors
Benjamin J. King	Albany	University of Pennsylvania	1940-1945	Member of the Board of Directors
Clarence L. Lee	Schenectady	University of Maryland	1945-1950	Member of the Board of Directors
Donald M. Miller	Rochester	University of Minnesota	1950-1955	Member of the Board of Directors
Ernest N. Moore	Syracuse	University of Washington	1955-1960	Member of the Board of Directors
Frederick O. Nelson	Buffalo	University of Oregon	1960-1965	Member of the Board of Directors
George P. Phillips	Watkinsville	University of Arizona	1965-1970	Member of the Board of Directors
Henry Q. Quinn	Utica	University of Colorado	1970-1975	Member of the Board of Directors
Isaac R. Reed	Albany	University of Nebraska	1975-1980	Member of the Board of Directors
Julius S. Shaw	Schenectady	University of Kansas	1980-1985	Member of the Board of Directors
Leo T. Stone	Rochester	University of Missouri	1985-1990	Member of the Board of Directors
Malcolm U. Underhill	Syracuse	University of Iowa	1990-1995	Member of the Board of Directors
Nathan V. Vance	Buffalo	University of Wisconsin	1995-2000	Member of the Board of Directors
Oliver W. Ward	Watkinsville	University of Michigan	2000-2005	Member of the Board of Directors
Philip X. Wright	Utica	University of California	2005-2010	Member of the Board of Directors
Samuel Y. Young	Albany	University of Texas	2010-2015	Member of the Board of Directors
Thomas Z. Zimmerman	Schenectady	University of Illinois	2015-2020	Member of the Board of Directors

STATE OF NEW YORK COUNTY OF ALBANY IN SENATE
 JANUARY 1, 1900

OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY, 1868,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED A SHORT
TIME PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 22d, 1868.]

[No. 9 of the printed Series, and No. 27 of the whole Record.]

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1819	Abell, James,	272	1829	Lanneau, John F.,	277
1856	Barker, George P.,	283	1814	Lord, Daniel,	267
1808	Battell, Charles J.,	265	1813	Mather, Hiram F.	267
1805	Beardsley, Nehemiah B.,	264	1857	Matson, Lewis E.,	283
1811	Bennett, Milo L.,	266	1818	Mitchell, William,	271
1865	Bulkley, Tuzar,	286	1857	Morton, Joseph L.,	284
1825	Carpenter, Eber,	275	1849	Murray, Washington,	281
1836	Carter, Josiah M.,	279	1824	Nichols, John C.,	274
1828	Case, Joel T.,	277	1815	Painter, Alexis,	269
1819	Chapin, Edward,	273	1864	Parker, Julius L.,	286
1799	Chapman, Ezekiel J.,	262	1847	Parker, Edward G.,	281
1815	Clarke, Edwards,	268	1825	Perkins, Benjamin,	276
1835	Davis, Samuel R.,	278	1837	Plimpton, Silas F.,	280
1795	Day, Jeremiah,	261	1825	Pynchon Edward E.,	279
1813	Deming, Nicoll H.,	266	1821	Ramey, Sanford J.,	273
1822	Dixon, Simeon F.,	273	1807	Root, Samuel,	264
1810	Ellsworth, William W.,	265	1862	Rowe, Charles H.,	285
1862	Gandy, William W.,	284	1818	Selden, Richard E.,	272
1837	Goodrich, Chauncey,	280	1826	Seymour, David L.,	276
1853	Grout, Alfred,	282	1796	Silliman, Gold S.,	262
1803	Hall, George W.,	263	1814	Stark, James L.,	268
1824	Hall, Willis,	274	1831	Strong, Newton D.,	278
1055	Harmar, Josiah W.,	282	1862	Thayer, Henry W.,	285
1817	Hawley, Isaac A.,	271	1816	Thurston, Asa,	270
1836	Higbie, Daniel,	279	1856	Turner, William E.,	283
1815	Holmes, Isaac E.,	269	1848	Tyler, Edwin,	281
1825	Hooker, Worthington,	275	1833	Whiting, Alexander B.,	278
1858	Johnson, Charles N.,	284	1864	Wurts, Albert S.,	286

GRADUATES OF THE PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

1838	M. D. Bennett, Hanford N.,	288	1820	M. D. Hayward, Elisha,	287
1826	M. D. Brown, Henry C.,	287	1826	M. D. Vanderberg, Federal,	287
1842	M. D. Hawley, Roswell,	288

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

Deceased during the academical year ending in July, 1868, including the record of a few who died previously, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 22d, 1868.]

[No. 9 of the printed Series, and No. 27 of the whole Record.]

1795.

JEREMIAH DAY died in New Haven, Aug. 22, 1867, aged 94 years.

He was the son of Rev. Jeremiah Day (Y. C. 1756) and Abigail Noble, widow of Rev. Silvanus Osborn, and was born in New Preston, Conn., Aug. 3, 1773.

He entered College in 1789, but was absent two years in the middle of the course on account of ill-health and was graduated in 1795. Leaving College just as Dr. Dwight entered on his presidency, he took charge for a year of the Academy at Greenfield, which Dr. Dwight had taught. In 1796 he was elected tutor in Williams College, then in its infancy, and after two years service was recalled to a similar position in this College. During his tutorship he was a student of theology and was licensed to preach by the New Haven West Association in 1800. His health failing in 1801 he made a voyage to Bermuda, where he spent the winter. During his absence he was elected to the professorship of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, made vacant by the resignation of Prof. Meigs, but his health was not sufficiently restored to permit him to enter upon it until 1803. In 1817 on the death of Dr. Dwight he was chosen President of the College and held this office for a period of twenty-nine years, resigning in 1846 at the age of seventy-three, but with faculties still unimpaired. For twenty years longer he continued to serve the College as a member of the Corporation, retiring from the Board only the year before his death, after an official connection with the College of almost seventy years.

During his professorship he published a series of mathematical text-books, which have been widely used, the Algebra especially having passed through numerous editions. The first edition of the Algebra appeared in 1814, the treatise on Mensuration and Plane Trigonometry in 1816, the Navigation and Surveying in 1817. At a later period he published two treatises on the Will, the first in 1838, the second, a review of President Edwards' work on the same subject, in 1841. He also contributed a number of articles to the Christian Spectator and other periodicals.

He received the degree of LL.D. from Williams and Middlebury Colleges in 1817, that of D. D. from Union in 1818, and from Harvard College in 1831.

He was married, Jan. 1805, to Martha Sherman, daughter of Hon. Roger Sherman, who died in 1806. He was again married, Sept. 24, 1811, to Miss Olivia Jones of Hartford. One son only, by his first marriage, Sherman Day (Y. C. 1826), survives him.

A commemorative address, delivered by President Woolsey in Center Church, Aug. 26, 1867, appeared in the New Englander for October, 1867, and was also separately published.

1796.

GOLD SELLECK SILLIMAN died in Brooklyn, N. Y., June 3, 1868, aged 90 years.

He was the son of Gold Selleck Silliman (Y. C. 1752) and grandson of Judge Ebenezer Silliman (Y. C. 1727) and was born in Fairfield, Conn., Oct. 26, 1777.

After graduating (in the same Class with his brother, Prof. Benjamin Silliman) he pursued the study of law and was engaged in the successful practice of his profession in Newport, R. I., until the peace of 1815. He then removed to New York City, and entered into commercial business. On retiring from this at an advanced age he was appointed Postmaster of the City of Brooklyn, and retained the office several years.

He was married in 1801 to Miss Hepsa Ely, daughter of David Ely, D. D. (Y. C. 1769), of Huntington, who died in 1864. His son, Benjamin D. Silliman, Esq., of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a graduate of Yale College, of the Class of 1824.

1799.

EZEKIEL JONES CHAPMAN, eldest child of Deacon William Chapman and Caroline (Jones) Chapman of Saybrook, Conn., was born in that place Aug. 13, 1781, and died at Oneida Lake, Madison County, N. Y., Aug. 1, 1866, aged 85 years.

He studied theology under the care of Rev. Dr. Backus of Somers, Conn., and was licensed to preach by the Tolland Association, Oct. 6, 1801. On the 28th of the same month, he was ordained an evangelist, at Hebron, and in November was sent by the Conn. Missionary Society to the Western Reserve in Ohio. He left this field in April, 1803. In 1804, he went to Ontario County, N. Y., where he preached for over twenty years, viz: in Charleston (now Lima), about eight years; in Bristol, six years; in Livonia, seven years. In 1827 he removed to Oneida Lake, where he resided until his death. When no longer able to preach, he engaged as a colporteur in the service of the Presbyterian Board of Publication (O. S.). He published a work, notes on the New Testament, critical and explanatory, which passed through three editions.

Mr. Chapman was twice married: first, to Palmyra Adams, of Brookfield, N. Y., April 18, 1804, who died at Livonia, N. Y., July 31, 1826; second, to Tryphena Clark, of Lebanon, N. Y. He had five children by the first marriage, and one by the second.

1803.

GEORGE WASHINGTON HALL, son of Abner and Phebe (Percival) Hall, was born at East Haddam, Conn., July 29, 1782.

He married in 1804 Miss Mary Deming, daughter of Henry Deming, of Wethersfield, Conn., who died in 1806. He was licensed to preach in 1805, and was soon after settled over the Presbyterian church at Cherry Valley, N. Y., where he remained about two years. Removing to New York City, he received a call to the Brick Presbyterian church, so long known as Dr. Spring's, which he declined. Having experienced about this period a decided change of religious views, and having become Unitarian in his convictions, he relinquished preaching for teaching.

During the war of 1812, he was appointed Chaplain, and was for some time stationed at Portland, Me. In 1815, he taught in Georgia, and the two following years in Boston. On his return to New York, in 1818, he opened a school for boys at Mt. Vernon, Harlem. He married in 1819 Miss Harriet Nichols, eldest daughter of Perkins and Bridget (Orne) Nichols of Boston, and soon after went South for his health, and taught at Rutherford, N. C. The year following, 1821, he returned to N. Y. and opened a large boarding school for boys, on 13th street, which obtained great celebrity. In 1824 Gen.

Lafayette visited the school, and at Mr. Hall's request suggested a name for it, "The Washington Institute," by which it was afterward known. In 1828 Mr. Hall lost his second wife, and the same year married Miss Emily Orne, daughter of John and Pamella (Prentice) Orne, of Lynnfield, Mass.

In 1829, finding his health failing from the care of so large an establishment, he disposed of his school to Rev. Joseph D. Wickham, and purchased a farm of 700 acres at Shrewsbury, N. J. Driven by too much care from this retirement, he traveled in the South, and in 1831 returned to N. Y. ; he then resumed for five years the charge of the Washington Institute, until so far exhausted in bodily health as never again to be capable of any settled employment. For the past thirty years he resided mainly at Ballston Spa, N. Y.

In Jan. 1842, he lost his third wife, and in June of the same year married Miss Amelia Warner, youngest daughter of the late Col. James Warner of N. Y. City. She survives him. Mr. Hall left no children. During the last three winters, he boarded in Troy, N. Y., and died there after a short illness, Feb. 24, 1868, in his 86th year.

1805.

NEHEMIAH BEACH BEARDSLEY was born in Stratford, Conn., June 20, 1780, and died in Somers, Conn., Feb. 28, 1868, aged 87 years.

He fitted for College with Rev. David Ely, D. D., of Huntington, Conn., and studied divinity, after graduation, with Rev. Joseph Lathrop, D. D., of West Springfield, Mass. He was licensed to preach by the Hampshire South (Mass.) Association, in October, 1806, and for several years performed Home Missionary work in Maine.

In Jan. 1816, he was ordained and settled over the Congregational church in Chester, Conn., where he labored for a little more than six years. From April, 1824, to April, 1831, he was pastor of the Congregational church in Union, Conn. After his term of service in Union, ill health laid him aside from the work of the ministry, and he removed his residence to Somers. About two weeks previous to his own death, his wife deceased, at the age of 93. Three children survive them.

1807.

SAMUEL ROOT died in Hartford, Conn., May 21, 1868, aged 79 years.

He was the son of Ephraim (Y. C. 1782) and Eunice Root, and was born in Hartford, March 22, 1789.

He read law in the office of S. P. Staples, Esq., of New Haven, and was admitted to the bar, but never engaged in the practice of the profession. He retired in early life to a farm in West Hartford, where he lived until his death.

He left a widow and three sons.

1808.

CHARLES ISAAC BATTELL died at Cleveland, Ohio, April 12, 1868, aged 78 years.

He was the son of William and Sarah (Buckingham) Battell, and was born in Torrington, Conn., July 25, 1789.

He studied law in Catskill, N. Y., and the earlier years of his professional life were spent in Western New York. In 1819 he removed to Indiana, taking up his residence first at Springfield, and in 1821 and 1822 was a member of the State Legislature. In 1823 he became and continued until two years before his death, a resident of Evansville in the same State. He filled with honor important public positions, among them that of Judge of the State Circuit Court. The last two years of his life were spent in the family of a relative in Cleveland.

Judge Battell was never married.

1810.

WILLIAM WOLCOTT ELLSWORTH died at Hartford, Conn., Jan. 15, 1868, aged 76 years.

He was the third son of Oliver Ellsworth, second Chief Justice of the United States, and was born in Windsor, Conn., Nov. 10, 1791.

He commenced his legal studies under Judges Reeve and Gould in the Law School at Litchfield, and afterward continued them in Hartford, in the office of his brother-in-law, the late Chief Justice Williams. He was admitted to the bar in 1813, and was engaged in the successful practice of his profession until 1829, when he was elected to Congress and twice reelected at the expiration of his term. He resigned however at the close of the first session of the Twenty-third Congress, to return to his profession. He was a member of the Judiciary Committee during the whole of this period, and a member of the Committee appointed to investigate the affairs of the United States Bank at Philadelphia. In 1838 he was chosen Governor of the State, and reelected the three following years. He twice declined during the period of his service as Governor an election to the United States Senate,—from an unwillingness to be further drawn away from his cherished profession.

In 1847 he was elected by the Legislature a judge of the Superior Court and of the Supreme Court of Errors, and he remained on the bench as one of the associate judges of the Supreme Court, until he reached the age of seventy, when his term expired by limitation of law. He then retired to private life, carrying with him however the unabated interest in public affairs, and in religious and charitable enterprises, which made his life so honored and useful to the last. Since 1827 he had held the appointment of Professor of Law in Trinity College. He received the degree of LL. D. from the University of New York in 1838.

He was married, September, 1813, to Emily, eldest daughter of Noah Webster, who died in 1861. Three of their six children are living. One of his sons, Pinckney W. Ellsworth, M. D., graduated at Yale College in 1836.

1811.

MILO LYMAN BENNETT died in Taunton, Mass., while on a visit to his son, July 7, 1868, aged 78 years. He was born in Sharon, Conn., and spent the first two years of his College course at Williams College.

He studied Law at the Litchfield Law School, and settled in Burlington, Vt., where he resided at the time of his death. In 1839 he became one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the State, and retained that position for twenty years.

Judge Bennett received the degree of LL. D. from Dartmouth College in 1851.

1813.

NICOLL HAVENS DERING was the son of Sylvester and Esther Sarah (Havens) Dering of Shelter Island, Suffolk Co., N. Y., where he was born Jan. 1, 1794. He died, after a long illness, at his home in Utica, N. Y., Dec. 19, 1867, aged 73.

He was prepared for College at Colchester, Conn. Soon after graduation he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. John C. Osborn of New York, and after attending the regular courses of lectures in the College of Physicians and Surgeons in that city, received the degree of M. D., in 1817. From this date until 1843 he engaged in the practice of his profession in New York. In 1818 he was appointed Health Commissioner by Gov. Clinton, a responsible position for so young a man, especially as the yellow fever was very prevalent during the summer of 1819 in New York. This office he held for two years. From 1826 until his removal from the city, he was the Registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

His health, impaired by the exhausting labors of a large practice, obliged him in 1843 to remove to Rome, N. Y. In 1847 he removed to Utica, where he resided until his death. He was until the end of his life particularly interested in matters of education. He was frequently a delegate from the State Medical Society to the meetings of the American Medical Association. For many years he was an elder in the Brick church (Dr. Spring's), New York, and after his removal to Utica, held the same office in the First Presbyterian church there.

Dr. Dering was married in 1826 to Miss Frances Huntington, daughter of Hon. Henry Huntington of Rome, N. Y. She died in 1841, and in 1847 he married Miss Sarah H. Strong, daughter of Benj. Strong, Esq., of New York. His widow, four daughters and one son survive him.

HIRAM FOOT MATHER died after a brief illness in Chicago, Ill., July 12, 1868, aged 72 years. He was the son of Gibbons and Hannah (Foot) Mather, and was born in Colchester, Conn., Feb. 13, 1796.

He first studied theology for two years at the Andover Seminary, but afterward devoting himself to the law, commenced practice in Elbridge, N. Y., being there admitted Attorney-at-law in 1819. From 1828 to 1832, Judge Mather was a member of the State Senate, during the time that the Senate constituted the Supreme Court of Errors, and from this circumstance obtained his title. He removed to Niles, Michigan, in 1844, and to Chicago in 1853, continuing to his death in the practice of his profession.

He was married, April 8, 1821, to Miss Sarah Anne Hyde, of Auburn, N. Y., who died Nov. 4, 1824. The two children by this marriage are deceased. His second wife was Miss Mary P. Cole, of Auburn, who died Dec. 29, 1855, leaving four sons and four daughters. One of the sons graduated at Williams College in 1859. Judge Mather married thirdly, Oct. 15, 1857, Mrs. Anna T. Norton, who survives him.

He was at the time of his death the President of the Association of Yale Alumni in Chicago.

1814.

DANIEL LORD died in New York City, March 4, 1868, aged 73 years.

He was the son of Dr. Daniel and Phebe (Crary) Lord, and was born in Stonington, Conn., Dec., 1794.

His law studies, which were begun in the Law School at Litchfield, were completed in the office of George Griffin, Esq., in N. Y. City, where he was admitted to the bar in 1817. He stood in the foremost rank in his profession, to which he devoted himself exclusively, steadily refusing all public offices.—His practice extended to every branch of the law and he was engaged upon many of the most important cases of his day.

He was married in 1818 to Susan, daughter of Lockwood DeForest, Esq., of New York. His children, four sons and two daughters, with the exception of one son who died in infancy, are all living. One of his sons, George DeForest Lord, is a graduate of this College, of the Class of 1854.

JAMES LANDON STARK died in South Halifax, Vt., March 14, 1868, in the 76th year of his age. He was the eldest child of Jedediah Hyde and Abigail (Camp) Stark, and was born, Oct. 12, 1792, at Salisbury, Conn. During his infancy his father removed to Halifax, Vt.

Immediately after leaving College, he commenced the study of law in the office of his father, and upon his admission to the bar commenced practice in the same town, of which he continued a resident until his death. For many years he represented his town in the General Assembly, and was for nine years a Judge of the County Court. The latter portion of his life was mainly devoted to agricultural pursuits.

He married, Nov. 2, 1817, Miss Sybil Smith of Halifax. Of nine children by this marriage, he leaves surviving him a daughter and three sons.

1815.

EDWARDS CLARKE, son of Jabez and Amie Clarke, was born in Windham, Conn., February, 1796, and died in the same town, March 8, 1868, aged 72 years.

He was prepared for College at Hartford, under Rev. Abel Flint, D. D. (Y. C. 1785).

After graduation he studied law in Utica, N. Y., and in 1818 was admitted to the bar at Albany, N. Y. He soon after returned to his native town, where he thenceforth resided, with the exception of two years spent in Michigan. He was for a few years Judge of the Windham County Court and also of the Court of Probate.

Judge Clarke was married, May 27, 1823, to Harriett, daughter of Dea. Samuel Perkins of Windham, who with four children—three daughters and a son—survives him.

ISAAC EDWARD HOLMES, fourth son of John Bee and Elizabeth Holmes, was born in Charleston, S. C., April 6, 1796.

He prepared for College under the tuition of his cousin, the Rev. C. E. Gadsden (Y. C. 1804), afterward Bishop of South Carolina. Returning home after graduation he commenced the study of law, and was admitted to practice in 1818. While a law student, he published a series of Essays under the title of George Tale-tell, after the style of Irving's Sketch Book, which were well received and contributed to his literary reputation. About the year 1826, in conjunction with Mr. Robert J. Turnbull, under the signature of Caroliniensis, he wrote and published a series of political essays in favor of State Rights; and his views on this subject led him to an active support of the doctrine of Nullification. After a successful practice of his profession in his native city, and having served as a member both of the City Council and of the State Legislature, he was elected in 1838 to the Congress of the United States, and continued to hold his seat until 1850, when he removed to California, resuming the practice of law in San Francisco, where he remained until called home by the illness of his wife in 1854.

After her death, which occurred in Dec., 1856, he returned to California and resided there until Jan., 1861, when learning of the passage of the Ordinance of Secession by South Carolina, he left for his native State, passing on his way home through Washington, where in several interviews with Mr. Seward and Gen. Scott he endeavored to avert the threatening Civil War, and landed in Charleston under the belief that it would be averted. Though a thorough State Rights man after the school of Mr. Calhoun, he deemed secession at that time inexpedient.

A few years after his return, his health began to fail, and was never fully restored.

He died in his native city, on the 24th of February, 1867, having nearly completed his 71st year.

ALEXIS PAINTER died in West Haven, Conn., Oct. 19, 1867. He was the son of Thomas Painter, and was born in West Haven, Nov. 24, 1794.

After graduation he studied law at Litchfield, Conn., and was subsequently admitted to the bar in Annapolis, Md. He continued in his profession long enough to gain his first and only case ; but then abandoned the law, mainly on account of conscientious scruples. He taught for a short time in Maryland, and then returning North was engaged in mercantile life in Massachusetts, for the most of the time until 1837, when he resumed teaching in his native place. About 1852, his health failing, he relinquished this occupation, and after that date, although he recovered his health, engaged in no professional pursuit.

He was one of the earliest and most steadfast friends of the anti-slavery cause, and also one of the pioneers in the temperance reform. He was indeed in almost every respect a reformer, and not only a man of rigid moral principle, but an earnest believer in evangelical Christianity.

He was married in 1825 to Miss Maria, daughter of D. W. McMahon of New Milford, Conn., who survives him with five children, of whom one graduated in the Medical Department of this College in 1856.

1816.

ASA THURSTON was born in Fitchburg, Mass., Oct. 12, 1787, and died at his home in Honolulu, on the island of Oahu, March 11, 1868, aged 80 years.

His father was a scythe maker, and the son followed this occupation until he was twenty-two, when having devoted himself to the work of spreading the gospel, he commenced a course of preparation.

He graduated at Andover Theological Seminary in 1819, and was ordained in September of the same year, at Goshen, Conn., in company with Rev. Hiram Bingham, as a pioneer missionary to the Sandwich Islands under the appointment of the American Board. They sailed from Boston on the 23d of October, and reached the Islands, March 30, 1820.

Mr. Thurston was assigned to the station at Kailua, Hawaii, then the residence of the kings, and there he resided for more than forty years, until forced by advancing age and repeated strokes of paralysis to resign his pastorate. Besides his labors as a preacher, he was for a time the instructor of two of the kings, and the translator of a large portion of the Bible. He never revisited his native country.

He was married about the time of his ordination, to Miss Lucy Goodale, of Marlborough, Mass., who with two daughters and one son survives him. The son, Rev. Thomas G. Thurston (Y. C. 1862), is also settled in the work of the ministry in the Sandwich Islands.

1817.

ISAAC AUGUSTUS HAWLEY died at Geneva, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1867, aged 70 years. He was the son of the Rev. Stephen Hawley (Y. C. 1759) of Woodbridge, now Bethany, Conn., and was born June 1, 1797.

After his graduation he went to Virginia, where he was engaged in teaching a grammar school until 1828, when he became a practical farmer in Tompkins county, N. Y. In 1849 he removed to Geneva, for the education of his children, and although not engaged in any business continued to reside there. He was an active member of the board of trustees of Hobart College. His wife survives him ; as also one son, a graduate of Hobart College, and one daughter.

1818.

WILLIAM MITCHELL, son of John and Abigail (Waterhouse) Mitchell, was born at Chester, Conn., Dec. 19, 1793, where he prepared for College with his pastor, Rev. Samuel Mills (Y. C. 1776).

He graduated at the Theological Seminary at Andover, in 1821, and being licensed, June 5 of the same year, by the Middlesex (Conn.) Association, engaged as a Home Missionary in Northwestern N. Y. In June, 1825, he was settled as pastor of the Congregational church in Newtown, Conn., and sustained that relation until May, 1831.

In 1833, he was installed over the Congregational church in Rutland, Vt., where he continued thirteen years. He then had charge of the Congregational church in Wallingford, in the same State, for five years. After this, he served as Agent of the Vt., N. Y., and N. J. State Colonization Societies, successively, in all about five years.

In 1858, he removed to the residence of his son, John B. Mitchell (Y. C. 1849), at Corpus Christi, Texas. His services as a minister not being needed there, he organized a church at Casa Blanca, about 40 miles from Corpus Christi. To this flock he preached for two Sundays monthly, till the war scattered them. He also preached occasionally in other places. About a year before his death, he organized a small Presbyterian church at Corpus Christi, and undertook personally to raise the funds for the house of worship ; these were secured, and the frame was partly up, at the time of his death.

He died August 1, 1867, of the yellow fever, which also carried off two others of his household.

During the secession war, Mr. Mitchell and the family of which he was a member suffered many annoyances; though Union in feeling, they had much more to complain of from the Federal negro soldiery than from the Rebels.

Mr. Mitchell published a "Doctrinal Guide for the Young Christian," 12mo.; "Coleridge and the Moral Tendency of his writings," a pamphlet of 118 pages, 8vo; "Discourses on Baptism," and many articles in the leading periodicals. Middlebury College conferred on him the degree of M. A. in 1833.

He married Sarah, daughter of Amos and Elizabeth Belden, of Carmel, N. Y., who, with the son mentioned above, survives him.

RICHARD ELY SELDEN died of typhoid fever at Hadlyme, Conn., March 3, 1868, aged 70 years. He was born June 13, 1797.

After graduation he commenced the study of law, but being an only son and his father's health being poor, he decided to remain on the homestead in agricultural pursuits.

He was a member of the State Senate in 1844. He took a deep interest in the theological controversy which arose in Connecticut about thirty years ago, and published a small work on that and kindred topics.

Mr. Selden married Eliza, daughter of Judge William Lynde, of Old Saybrook, Conn., by whom he had five children; four of them are now living, of whom one, Samuel Hart Selden, graduated at this College in 1848.

His wife died Jan. 23, 1866.

1819.

JAMES ABELL died after a brief illness at Oswego, N. Y., May 7, 1868, aged 76 years. He was the son of James Abell, and was born in Norwich, Conn. He entered College from Lisbon, Conn., where his preparatory studies were chiefly pursued, under Rev. Dr. Lee.

After leaving College he studied theology at the Seminary in Andover, Mass., graduating in 1822.

He was ordained and installed, Jan. 18, 1825, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Oswego, where he remained five years. He was then installed over the Presbyterian church in Oxford, Chenango Co., N. Y., Sept. 14th, 1830, was settled there seven years, and was then called to the pastorate of the Reformed Dutch church in Chittenango, N. Y., where he continued nearly nineteen years, until he resigned his charge in 1857. He did not again assume regular pastoral duty, but spent the rest of his life with or near his children. His wife, Miss L. G. Bogue, of Clinton, N. Y., to whom he was married March 5, 1828, died Sept. 4, 1852. His three children, two sons and a daughter, survive him. He was for 14 years a member of the Board of Trustees of Hamilton College.

EDWARD CHAPIN died in York, Pa., March 17, 1868, aged 69 years. He was the only son of Rev. Calvin Chapin, D. D. (Y. C. 1788), and was born Feb. 19, 1799, in Rocky Hill, then a parish of Wethersfield, Conn., where his father was pastor for more than fifty years. His mother was Jerusha, youngest daughter of President Edwards the younger.

Mr. Chapin fitted for College under his father's instruction. After graduation, he studied at the law school in New Haven, then under the care of Messrs. Staples and Hitchcock, and was admitted to the bar in 1821. The next year was passed in recruiting from a severe sickness. In April, 1823, he took up his residence at York, Pa., where he continued until his death, successfully employed in his profession.

He was married in March, 1840, to Sarah McGrath, of York. He leaves two children; a daughter, married to Edward J. Evans (Y. C. 1857), of York, and a son, now a member of the Sophomore class in Yale College.

His death was caused by a paralytic stroke.

1821.

SANFORD JACOB RAMEY died in Loudon Co., Virginia, in 1866, aged 68 years.

Immediately after graduating he commenced the study of medicine, but soon relinquished it for the study of law. He commenced the practice of law in Loudon Co., but his attention was mostly given to agricultural pursuits, in which he was much interested, and to which most of his life was devoted.

From 1837 to 1841, and at intervals afterward, he was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates from Loudon Co.

In 1844 he was married to Anna Maria Mason Grymes, of King George Co., Virginia, by whom he had one son.

1822.

SIMEON FIELD DIXON, the son of William and Mary (Field) Dixon, was born in Enfield, Conn., in 1801, and died in Cambridge, Mass., April 8, 1867, aged 64 years.

When graduated he studied in the Law School at New Haven, then under the charge of Hon. David Daggett, and afterward practised his profession in Hartford, Conn., and New York City. At one time he was the editor of the American Law Magazine. More recently, for about twelve years, he had made Cambridge, Mass., his residence, being engaged in legal studies and writing. Most of his publications were anonymous, though a large Treatise on the Law of Subrogation (Philadelphia, 1862) bore his name.

About four years before his death he was prostrated by paralysis, which finally reduced him to almost entire helplessness. He was never married.

1824.

WILLIS HALL died of congestion of the brain, caused by the extreme heat, July 14, 1868, aged 67 years. He was born in Granville, N. Y., April 1, 1801.

He studied law at N. Y. City and Litchfield, Conn.; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and practiced in Mobile four and a half years. In 1831 he returned to N. Y., and continued in practice until 1838. In 1837 he was a member of the Assembly; in 1838, he was made Attorney-General of the State, and moved to Albany, filling this office for one year, the period of the ascendancy of the Whig party. He was also for a time a lecturer in the Law School at Saratoga. In 1842 he was again elected to the Assembly, but the next year had an attack of paralysis from which he never fully recovered. After foreign travel, he resumed practice in N. Y., but retired from political and professional life in 1848, on the nomination of Gen. Taylor for the Presidency.

JOHN CUTLER NICHOLS, son of Isaac and Abigail (Cutler) Nichols, was born at West Brookfield, Mass., Nov. 17, 1801. He died at Old Lyme, Conn., Jan. 8, 1868.

He prepared for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, and after his graduation taught for three years in Wethersfield, Conn. The next three years were spent in the Theological Department at New Haven, and the three following as a home missionary at Hull, Lower Canada. During this ministry, he was ordained, with reference to his missionary work, at North Brookfield, Mass., Oct 12, 1831. Soon after the expiration of his commission in Canada, he commenced preaching at Stonington Borough, Conn., and was present at the formation of the Congregational church in that place, Nov. 14, 1833; he was installed pastor, May 15, 1834, and dismissed, April 24, 1839. On Feb. 5, 1840, he became pastor of the First (Congregational) church in Lebanon, Conn., from which service he was dismissed, on account of long-continued ill-health, March 21, 1854.

During a portion of his later life, Mr. Nichols kept a family school for boys, first at Lebanon, afterward at Old Lyme, removing to the latter place in the spring of 1857; he also preached as opportunity offered.

In 1834 he married Miss Lucy W. A., daughter of Seth B. Grosvenor, of Brookfield, Mass., who died June 26, 1845. He married in 1848 Miss Mary Woodbridge, daughter of James R. Woodbridge of Hartford, who died Sept. 29, 1861. He leaves two sons by his second wife.

1825.

EBER CARPENTER was born in Vernon, Conn., June 24, 1800, and died in Boston, Mass., Oct. 21, 1867, aged 67 years.

He began his theological studies in New Haven, and completed them in Andover Theological Seminary in 1828. He preached for two years to various churches in the State of Maine, and Feb. 17, 1820, was ordained as Pastor of the Cong. church in York, Me., which charge he retained five years. In December, 1835, he became pastor of the Cong. church in Stockbridge, and this relation continued, with an interruption of about three years, until July, 1864. In the Autumn of 1853, his health being impaired, he became the editor and proprietor of the National Preacher, but in the spring of 1857, at the invitation of the church in Stockbridge, which had failed to unite upon a successor, and by the advice of the council called for his dismissal, he resumed his labor among them. The last three years of his life he spent in Boston without charge, preaching a portion of the time in vacant churches.

He married, during his ministry at York, Me., Miss Narcissa Lyman, who survives him.

WORTHINGTON HOOKER died in New Haven, Nov. 6, 1867, aged 61 years.

He was the son of Judge John and Sarah (Dwight) Hooker, and was born in Springfield, Mass., March 3, 1806.

He pursued his medical studies in Philadelphia and Cambridge, receiving the degree of M. D. from Harvard College in 1829. He was engaged in the practice of his profession in Norwich, Conn., until 1852, when he was chosen to the professorship of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in this College, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Eli Ives. In addition to the duties of his professorship, which he held until his death, and his professional practice, Dr. Hooker performed a large amount of literary labor, his publications amounting to about a dozen volumes. His "Physician and Patient" appeared in 1849. "Medical Delusions" and "Homœopathy," both prize dissertations, in 1850 and 1851, followed by several elementary works in Physiology, Natural History, &c., designed chiefly as text books. He was also a frequent contributor to periodical literature.

He was twice married, in 1830 to Miss Mary Ingersoll of Springfield, Mass., who died shortly before his removal to New Haven, and subsequently to Miss Henrietta Edwards, daughter of Gov. Henry W. Edwards. But one of his five children is living.

BENJAMIN PERKINS was born at Camden, S. C., May 12, 1803, and died at his residence at Kirkwood, near Camden, Feb. 24, 1868, aged 64 years, where he had passed his life as a planter. His father was Benjamin Perkins (Y. C. 1785), who removed from Norwich, Conn., to Camden.

EDWARD ELLIOT PYNCHON died in Huntsville, Alabama, June 24, 1868, aged 63 years.

He came to College from Brimfield, Mass. After graduation he taught in Windsor, Conn., and then in Georgia. His later years were passed in Huntsville.

1826.

DAVID LOWREY SEYMOUR died at Lanesborough, Mass., Oct. 11, 1867, aged 63 years.

He was the son of Ashbel and Mary (Lowrey) Seymour and was born in Wethersfield, Conn., Dec. 2, 1803.

Upon his graduation he began the study of law in the school conducted by Judge Daggett in New Haven. For two years, 1828-30, he was a tutor in Yale College; and while in this office was admitted to the bar. In 1830 he removed to Troy, N. Y., where, after a delay of two years, required by the law of the State, during which he was a clerk in the office of John P. Cushman, he was admitted to practice. He was a partner of Mr. Cushman until 1837, when the latter was transferred to the bench. In 1836 he was a member of the State Legislature, and from 1843 to 1845, and again, from 1851 to 1853, he was a Representative in Congress. The remainder of his life was devoted to the duties of his profession, in which he occupied a commanding position. At the time of his death he was a member of the Constitutional Convention of the State of New York.

He was married in 1837 to Miss Maria L., daughter of Sheldon C. Curtiss, Esq. (Y. C. 1807), of Lanesborough, Mass. She, with three of their four children, survives him.

He received the degree of LL. D., from Hamilton College in 1866.

1828.

JOEL TITUS CASE died at Victoria, Texas, June 10, 1868, aged 65 years.

He was born in Ohio. After leaving College he was an Editor in Mobile, Ala., and subsequently in Galveston, Texas. In 1841 he accompanied the famous Santa Fé Expedition as geological journalist ; but through the treachery of the officers in command of his company he was captured by the Mexicans and carried to Mexico, where he was imprisoned three months in chains. He effected his escape and, returning to Mobile, resumed his editorial labors. In 1848 he returned to his native State, and having pursued a course of theological study, received ordination in the Presbyterian Church (O. S.). He began his ministry in Texas, but his health failing, he engaged in teaching, and was so occupied until his death.

1829.

JOHN FRANCIS LANNEAU was born at Charleston, S. C., Aug. 14, 1809, and died at Marietta, Ga., Oct. 7, 1867, aged 58 years.

He passed the two years succeeding graduation in the Theol. Seminary at Princeton, N. J. In Dec., 1835, he embarked as a Missionary of the American Board, and was stationed for ten years in Syria. He revisited this country in 1841, on account of weak eyes, but returned to his work in 1843, taking with him his wife, Mrs. Julia H. Lanneau. He was obliged by ill health to retire permanently from the foreign field in July, 1846.

The remainder of his life was spent in Georgia, as an agent of the American Board, and as pastor of Presbyterian (O. S.) churches at Mars' Hill, New Lebanon, and Marietta.

1831.

NEWTON DEMING STRONG, second son of Rev. William L. Strong (Y. C. 1802), and Harriet (Deming) Strong, was born Oct. 17, 1809, while his father was settled at Somers, Conn. He died at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 8, 1866, aged 56 years.

During one year, 1834-5, he was a tutor in this College. He then settled in Alton, Ill., in the practice of the law, and in partnership with his classmate, Junius Hall. After about ten years residence at Alton, during a part of which time he was a member of the State Legislature, he removed to Reading, Pa., being there in partnership with his brother, Hon. Wm. Strong (Y. C. 1828). He afterward practiced law in St. Louis, where he died.

He married Matilda R. Edwards of Alton, in Sept., 1846, who died Feb. 7, 1851, leaving no children.

1833.

ALEXANDER BACKUS WHITING died in New York City, May 2, 1868, aged 54 years.

He was the son of Nathan and Lydia (Backus) Whiting and was born in Canaan, N. Y., March 8, 1814. His parents removed, a few months after his birth, to New Haven, where he remained until the close of his professional studies.

After leaving College he entered the Yale Medical School, where he was graduated in 1836, having meantime visited South America. He began the practice of medicine in New York City, and in 1841 was appointed by the Common Council Physician at the Bellevue Hospital. In 1847 he was appointed by Gov. Young, Health officer of the port of New York. He remained in New York in the successful practice of his profession until his death.

He married Miss Matilda A. Church, of Fort Hamilton, N. Y., who with two children survives him.

1835.

SAMUEL RODNEY DAVIS was born in Chatham, Conn., Sept. 27, 1809, and died at Englishtown, N. J., April 20, 1868, aged 58 years.

He was a student in the Theological Department of this College for two years, 1844-6, and was ordained as an Evangelist at Austinburg, O., June, 1853. He was however chiefly engaged in teaching; in New Haven and the vicinity about ten years, subsequently in New York, New Jersey and Ohio.

He was twice married ; first to Miss Mary Fairchild of Stockbridge, Mass., and afterward to Miss Julia A. Reed of New York, who survives him. Three of his five children are living, a daughter by the first and two sons by the second marriage.

1836.

JOSIAH MASON CARTER died at Norwalk, Conn., March 22, 1868, aged 54 years.

He was the youngest son of Ebenezer and Rhoda Carter, and was born in New Canaan, Conn., June 19, 1813.

After his graduation he taught for one year in Fairfield, Conn., where he also studied law with Judge Thomas B. Osborne. He continued his studies in the Law School at New Haven, and was admitted to the bar in Fairfield Co., in August, 1839. From 1840 to 1847 he was engaged in the practice of his profession in New York City. In 1847 he removed to Norwalk and formed a law-partnership with Hon. Thomas B. Butler, which continued until 1855, when Mr. Butler was transferred to the bench. In 1856, 1862 and 1863, he was a member of the State Legislature and during the last term the Speaker of the House. From 1862 until his death he held the office of State Attorney for Fairfield County, and was also for a number of years Chairman of the Board of Education in the town of Norwalk.

Mr. Carter was once the candidate of his party for the office of Lieut. Governor, and twice declined a nomination to a Judgeship of the Superior Court.

He was married, June 23, 1841, to Miss Julia A. Ayres of New Canaan, Conn., who with five of their six children, four daughters and one son, survives him.

DANIEL HIGBIE, son of Abraham and Ann Higbie, was born at Jamaica, Long Island, Feb. 8th, 1815, and died at Spencer Springs, Tioga Co., N. Y., Oct. 21, 1867, aged 52 years.

He pursued his theological studies at Princeton, where he was graduated in 1839, and in October was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of New York. May 1, 1840, he was settled as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Mount Pleasant, Wayne Co., Pa., having preached as stated supply since the previous December. He was dismissed in 1846 in consequence of ill-health and for nearly six years preached to the church at West Milford, N. J. His second settlement, from April 1852 to Dec. 1855, was at Sparta, N. J. Compelled by the state of his health to relinquish preaching, he removed to a farm near Petersburg, Va., where he remained until December, 1857. Returning North he became pastor, July 24, 1858, of the first Presbyterian church of Washingtonville, Orange Co. N. Y., and retained the charge until his death.

He was married, April 23, 1840, to Miss Harriet A., daughter of Moses Sayre of Newark, N. J., and a second time March 9, 1859, to Miss Augusta A., daughter of John C. Richards, also of Newark. All his children, four by the first marriage and one by the second, survive him.

1837.

CHAUNCEY GOODRICH, the eldest son of Prof. Chauncey A. Goodrich (Y. C. 1810), died in New Haven, March 27, 1868, aged 50 years. His mother was Julia, daughter of Noah Webster, and he was born in Middletown, Conn., July 20, 1817.

He spent the first year after his graduation as a private tutor in Virginia, and the two following years in the Theological Department of Yale College. His first settlement, from Aug. 30, 1843, until Nov. 1, 1847, was over the Trinitarian Congregational church in Malden, Mass. He was again settled, Aug. 22, 1849, as pastor of the Congregational church in Watertown, Conn., which charge he relinquished Nov. 1, 1856, on account of an affection of the throat. From this time he was a resident of New Haven, engaged chiefly in literary labors, especially in connection with the revised edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. He also prepared and read before the New Haven Colony Historical Society, of which he was Secretary, several valuable papers.

He was married, Aug. 22, 1843, to Miss Elizabeth E. Coe, daughter of Rev. Noah Coe (Y. C. 1808), at Greenwich, Conn. His son and only surviving child, Edward E. Goodrich, graduated at Yale College in 1866.

SILAS FISHER PLIMPTON was born in Foxborough, Mass., August 26, 1812, and died in Boston, April 22, 1867, aged 54 years.

After graduation he pursued his law studies in the Harvard Law School, where he received the degree of LL. B. in 1839. In this year he visited Mexico, remaining six months. On his return he continued his law studies in Cambridge and in 1841 began the practice of his profession in Boston, where he remained until his death. He was never married.

1847.

EDWARD GRIFFIN PARKER died at the Everett House in New York City, March 30, 1868, aged 42 years.

He entered College from Boston, and on graduating studied law in the office of the Hon. Rufus Choate. Being admitted to the bar in 1849, he commenced practice in the same city, where he continued until the war. He was prominent in State politics, and a member of both houses of the Legislature. During his residence in Massachusetts, he published "The Golden Age of American Oratory" (Boston, 1857), and "Reminiscences of Rufus Choate" (N. Y. 1860). He was also a contributor to some of the leading literary journals. On the breaking out of the rebellion, Col. Parker (having acquired his title from his position on the staff of Gov. Banks) entered the service as Captain on Gen. Butler's staff. Later he was Adjutant General and Chief of Staff of Gen. Martindale during the time that the latter commanded the Department of Washington. At the close of the war he settled in N. Y., and went into business in Wall st. Not being particularly successful he took charge of the American Literary Bureau of Reference, and was thus engaged at the time of his death.

He leaves a wife.

1848.

EDWIN TYLER, the son of Edwin Tyler, was born in Brooklyn, Conn., Dec. 6, 1827.

He entered Yale College in 1845, joining the Sophomore Class. In February, 1849, he went to California, where he was engaged in mining, assaying, and the business of an Express forwarder, until his death. His residence for a number of years past was at Michigan Bluffs. He died at Oakland, Cal., June 21, 1868, from injuries received three days previously.

He was unmarried.

1849.

WASHINGTON MURRAY died in New York City, Sept. 19, 1867, aged 39 years.

He was the son of James B. and Maria (Bronson) Murray, and was born in New York City, July 7, 1828.

He studied law in the Harvard Law School, where he received the degree of LL. B. in July, 1851. He continued his studies in New York during the remainder of the year, and spent the following year in traveling at the South for the benefit of his health. From 1853 until his death, with the interruption of two or three visits to Europe, he was engaged in the practice of law in New York City. In 1864 he was a member of the City Board of Education. He was married April 23, 1856, to Miss Eliza B. W. Dana of Boston, Mass., who survives him.

1853.

ALFRED GROUT, son of Nathan and Ruthey (Daniels) Grout of Sherborn, Mass., was born Sept. 3, 1830, and died at his father's house, July 26, 1866, aged nearly 36 years.

He studied in the Law Department of Yale College during the year succeeding graduation, after which he spent some years in Iowa, engaged in various kinds of business and in teaching.

He returned in 1859 to Boston, where he continued his law studies in the office of P. W. Chandler and in the Cambridge Law School. In 1861 he was admitted to the bar in Boston, where he continued to practice until failing health prevented.

He was unmarried.

1855.

JOSIAH WILLIAM HARMAR was born at Philadelphia, Nov. 23, 1834, and was drowned off Mount Desert, Me., July 24, 1867.

He was a grandson of Hon. James Lanman (Y. C. 1788), and also of Gen. Josiah Harmar, from the latter of whom he derived his membership of the Society of the Cincinnati.

Upon graduation he traveled for a year in Europe, and then returned to New Haven, where his widowed mother was residing, for the study of the law. After graduating at the Yale Law School, he continued his studies in the office of Charles Ives, Esq., being admitted to the bar in May, 1858.

In 1861 he removed to his native city, and opened an office, in which since 1864 his only brother, James L. Harmar, (Y. C. 1861), was associated with him in practice.

He served in the summer of 1863 in the 1st Philadelphia Artillery, at the burning of Carlisle, and in the Cumberland Valley, after the Gettysburg battle.

While spending a summer vacation at Mount Desert, the boat in which he with a party of seven others was returning from a day's sailing excursion was carried down by a sudden gust of wind, and only one of the number rescued.

1856.

GEORGE PAYSON BARKER died in Norwich, Conn., Jan. 28, 1868, aged 32 years.

He was the son of Hon. George P. Barker of Buffalo, N. Y., and was born in Norwich, Conn., Dec. 24, 1835.

His law studies were pursued with the firm of Welch, Hibbard & Baldwin, and subsequently with George B. Hibbard, Esq., of Buffalo. He was admitted to the bar in September, 1859, and until his death was engaged in the practice of law in Buffalo. In 1863 he was a member of the Board of Supervisors of Erie County, and the three following years was Clerk of the Board.

WILLIAM ELISHA TURNER, son of Elisha Turner, was born at Northampton, Mass., Dec. 9, 1834, and died at the same place, Jan. 26, 1868, aged 33 years.

He studied law in the office of Messrs. Baker & Delano, at Northampton, where he was admitted to the bar, Feb. 3, 1859. He was engaged in the practice of his profession in his native town until his death, which occurred after a few days' illness.

From Nov. 1, 1861, to June 1, 1863, he was register of Probate and Insolvency Courts. He was appointed Clerk of the Supreme and Superior Courts Oct. 7th, but resigned Dec. 20, 1864.

He was married to Miss Martha A. Clary of Northampton, Nov. 5, 1863. She survives him with two children.

1857.

LEWIS EMMONS MATSON died at Lyons, France, June 21, 1868, aged 29 years. He was born at Simsbury, Conn., Sept. 24, 1838, and entered College at the beginning of Sophomore year, from Owego, N. Y.

For the first year after graduation he was occupied in teaching. He then entered the Andover Theological Seminary, where he completed his course in 1861. The same year, July 31, he was ordained and settled over the Congregational church at Racine, Wis., where he remained until called to the Congregational church in Madison, Wis., in 1864, from which, in the fall of 1866, he removed to the Plymouth (Congregational) church in Chicago. Immediately after the dedication of a new church edifice in Oct., 1867, he was attacked with hemorrhage of the lungs. He sailed for Europe with his wife in February, but his health continued to fail, and they were slowly making their way homeward when death overtook him.

He was married to Miss Helen M., daughter of Walter P. Flanders, of Milwaukee, Sept. 9, 1862, and leaves two children.

JOSEPH LYMAN MORTON, son of Moses and Sophia A. (Partridge) Morton was born in Hatfield, Mass., Nov. 15th, 1833.

For one year after his graduation he was engaged in teaching in Stockbridge, Mass. He afterward studied law in Northampton, and was admitted to the bar in Massachusetts June 14, 1860, and in New York City, in November of the same year. He was led by convictions of duty to abandon the profession of law after a few months practice, and having studied theology at Princeton, was licensed by the Hampshire (Mass.) Association, and, Jan. 29, 1863, was ordained and installed as pastor of the Cong. church in Pittsfield, N. H. In January, 1864, he accepted a call to the 1st Presbyterian church in Waukegan, Ill., where he remained until his death. He died suddenly of disease of the heart, Dec. 7, 1867, aged 34 years.

He was married shortly before his ordination to Miss Sophia H. Hyndshaw of Morristown, N. J.

1858.

CHARLES NAPOLEON JOHNSON died in New Haven, Nov. 12, 1867, aged 38 years.

He was the son of Sheldon C. and Susan H. (Stoddard) Johnson, and was born in Derby (now Seymour), Conn., March 14, 1829.

He studied law with Judge Waldo of Tolland, Conn., where he was admitted to the bar, April 12, 1859. In August of the same year he opened an office in New Haven, and in 1860 was elected to the offices of City Attorney and Prosecuting Grand Juror, the former of which he held two and the latter three years. In 1866 he became and continued until his death Assistant City Attorney; an office to which are attached the duties formerly performed by the Prosecuting Grand Juror.

1862.

WILLIAM WILSON GANDY was born in Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1840, and died in New York City, July 15, 1868, aged 27 years.

He had resided in N. Y. since graduation, being in business with his brothers. Besides a visit to Europe, soon after leaving College, he made a voyage to China in the summer of 1866 for the benefit of his health.

CHARLES HENRY ROWE, son of Chauncey and Susan (Dickinson) Rowe, was born in Farmington, Conn., March 3, 1841; died at Galveston, Texas, on the 4th of Sept., 1867.

He studied medicine in Hartford and New Haven, Conn., and in Brooklyn, N. Y., receiving the degree of M. D. from the medical department of Yale College in July, 1864. Soon after, being appointed assistant surgeon of the 18th Conn. Volunteer Infantry, he joined the regiment in the valley of the Shenandoah. Here he was assigned to the post of assistant surgeon in the "Island Military Hospital," at Harper's Ferry. After the close of the war, he returned to Connecticut, but soon entered the regular army, and was appointed assistant surgeon of the 17th U. S. Infantry. During the last year of his life he was stationed in the military hospital at Galveston; from June, 1867, the yellow fever prevailed there, to which disease he finally fell a victim.

HENRY WOLCOTT THAYER died in New Orleans, La., Aug. 16, 1867, in the 26th year of his age. He was the son of Obadiah Thayer, deceased, of Newark, N. J., and was born at Middletown, N. J., Oct. 19, 1841.

During the winter of 1862-3 he was engaged in enlisting recruits in N. Y. City. He was made 2d Lieut. in the 14th N. Y. Cavalry, and sent to New Orleans. Upon the storming of Port Hudson he was promoted to a Captaincy, but soon after the regiment was broken up. Early in 1864 he re-enlisted in the 2d N. Y. Veteran Cavalry, and with it passed honorably through all the engagements in the Department of the Gulf. He was promoted to a 1st Lieutenancy, and appointed to the staff of Gen. Lucas, and, as the war drew to a close, served for some months as Acting Ordnance Officer.

On receiving his discharge, he returned home for a visit only, and then settled on Lake Providence, La., expecting to lead the life of a planter. His health soon began to fail, and he took temporarily the position of Chairman of the Board of Registrars for Sabine Parish, in the interior of the State, hoping by the change to regain strength. Contracting there a heavy cold, upon going to New Orleans he was prostrated by an attack of the yellow fever.

1864.

JULIUS LEONARD PARKE, son of Hudson and Ann (Leonard) Parke, was born at Mt. Vernon, Indiana, March 20, 1843.

Immediately upon graduation he sailed for Europe and after a few weeks of travel he began the study of Chemistry, Anatomy and Physiology at Göttingen. In the autumn of 1865, he went to Tübingen and in the laboratory of Prof. Hoppe-Seyler made a series of chemico-physiological analyses, which were highly spoken of in a German chemical journal. Toward the close of 1866 he went to Paris, where however his studies were soon interrupted by symptoms threatening pulmonary consumption. A few weeks spent in Algiers so far restored him that he returned to work. In June, 1867, he came back to America, and in October resumed his medical studies in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Though in a very low state of health he undertook and finished a translation of a German treatise on Pathology, which has since been published. He received the degree of M. D. in March, and at once sailed for St. Augustine, Fla. His stay here was without benefit to his health and after a few weeks he went to Charleston, S. C., where he sank rapidly and died April 29, 1868, at the age of twenty-five.

ALBERT SMITH WURTS, only son of Alfred P. Wurts of Chicago, Ill., was born in Philadelphia, Dec. 15, 1842.

He studied law in Chicago, first in the office of Messrs. Scammon, McCagg & Fuller, and afterward with James L. Stark, Esq., and was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1866. The disease of which he died, an abscess on the lung, soon began to develop itself, and early in the spring of 1867 he went to Philadelphia for medical treatment, where he died, July 17, 1867, aged 24 years.

1865.

TUZAR BULKLEY, youngest son of Tuzar and Frances M. Bulkley, was born at Catskill, N. Y., April 27, 1840, and died at the same place, Nov. 28, 1867, aged 27 years.

He was prepared for College at the Delaware Literary Institute, Franklin, N. Y.

Upon graduation he returned home and pursued the study of law until August, 1866, when an attack of hemorrhage of the lungs cut short his studies. This attack was followed by consumption, of which disease he died the ensuing year.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

1820.

ELISHA HAYWARD died in Raynham, Mass., March 16, 1868, in his 77th year. He was the son of Joseph and Lydia (Barrows) Hayward, and was born in the adjoining town of Easton, June 26, 1791.

He graduated at Brown University in 1817, and soon after commenced the study of medicine with Ebenezer Alden, M. D., of Randolph, Mass. After taking his degree at New Haven he settled in Raynham as a physician in Oct., 1820, where he remained in practice until his death.

He married, Jan. 16, 1821, Miss Betsey Townsend of Middleboro', Mass., who, with two sons and three daughters, survives him.

1826.

HENRY CLINTON BROWN died of disease of the heart in Bridgeport Conn., July 13, 1866, aged 64 years.

He was the son of William W. Brown, of Preston, Conn., and was born Jan. 3, 1804.

He began the study of medicine with William P. Eaton, M. D., of Norwich, Conn., and graduated at the Medical Department of Yale College, in 1826. He practiced medicine successively in Westerly, R. I., North Stonington, Conn., and Norwich, Chenango Co., N. Y.—in the latter place from 1833 till 1839. Relinquishing his profession he removed to Pittsfield, Mass., where he remained until 1842, engaged in the drug business. He afterward resided at Lee, Mass., and since 1853 in Bridgeport, Conn.

FEDERAL VANDERBERG was born in Beekman, Dutchess Co., N. Y., May 11, 1788, and died at Rhinebeck, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1868, aged 79 years.

He was licensed by the Connecticut Medical Society, September, 1808. In 1815 he removed to Geneva, N. Y., where he remained in the practice of his profession until 1822, when he changed his residence to the city of New York. In 1826 he received the degree of M. D. from Yale College.

He was one of the earliest among American physicians to adopt the system of Hahnemann, known in this country as Homœopathy. At the time of the change he was forty-five years of age and in a large and successful practice. The results of his previous observation and experience were never discarded, but combined by him with the new system. He continued in the active practice of his profession in New York City and at his country residence at Rhinebeck, until the close of his life.

He was married in 1812 to Miss H. O. Boardman, daughter of Hon. Homer Boardman of New Milford, Conn.

1838.

HANFORD NICHOLS BENNETT died at Bridgeport, Conn., April 21, 1868, aged 50 years.

He was the son of Rev. Moses P. Bennett and was born in Weston, Conn.

He began his professional life in Bethel, Conn., where he remained with a practice extending into the adjoining towns, until 1853. In this year he removed to Bridgeport, his residence for the remainder of his life. He enjoyed a high reputation, especially for skill in surgery, was a student of the classical as well as of modern languages and made frequent translations from foreign medical journals for publication.

He left a widow, the daughter of Whipple Williams, Esq., of Bethel.

1842.

ROSWELL HAWLEY was the son of Asa and Diademia Hawley, and was born in Farmington, Conn., July 30, 1813.

He commenced practice in Hartford, but soon removed to South Glastenbury, Conn., where he remained for seven years. He then went to New Britain, Conn., where he continued the practice of medicine for five years. For the next four years he was the Superintendent of the State Reform School at Meriden, Conn., and also for most of the time Acting Physician, Treasurer, and Chaplain.

In 1859 he removed to Bristol, Conn., much reduced in health and strength. He kept a drug store in that town until his death, of consumption, Dec. 7, 1867, at the age of 54.

He married Miss Mary Crane, of Berlin, Conn., June 8, 1842. She died July, 1852, and he married, Sept. 13, 1853, Miss Jane B. Rich, of Bristol, who survives him. Four children by the first, and four by the second marriage, are also living.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1795	Jeremiah Day, 94,	New Haven,	Aug. 22, 1867.
1796	Gold S. Silliman, 90,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	June 3, 1868.
1799	Ezekiel J. Chapman, 85,	Oneida Lake, N. Y.,	Aug. 1, 1866.
1803	George W. Hall, 85,	Troy, N. Y.,	Feb. 24, 1868.
1805	Nehemiah B. Beardsley, 87,	Somers,	Feb. 28, 1868.
1807	Samuel Root, 79,	Hartford,	May 21, 1868.
1808	Charles I. Battell, 78,	Cleveland, O.,	Apr. 12, 1868.
1810	William W. Ellsworth, 76,	Hartford,	Jan. 15, 1868.
1811	Milo L. Bennett, 78,	Taunton, Mass.,	July 7, 1868.
1813	Nicoll H. Dering, 73,	Utica, N. Y.,	Dec. 19, 1867.
1813	Hiram F. Mather, 72,	Chicago, Ill.,	July 12, 1868.
1814	Daniel Lord, 73,	New York City,	Mar. 4, 1868.
1814	James L. Stark, 75,	South Halifax, Vt.,	Mar. 14, 1868.
1815	Edwards Clarke, 72,	Windham,	Mar. 8, 1868.
1815	Isaac E. Holmes, 70,	Charleston, S. C.,	Feb. 24, 1867.
1815	Alexis Painter, 73,	West Haven,	Oct. 19, 1867.
1816	Asa Thurston, 80,	Honolulu, Sandw. Is.,	Mar. 11, 1868.
1817	Isaac A. Hawley, 70,	Geneva, N. Y.,	Sept. 25, 1867.
1818	William Mitchell, 73,	Corpus Christi, Tex.,	Aug. 1, 1867.
1818	Richard E. Selden, 70,	Lyme,	Mar. 3, 1868.
1819	James Abell, 76,	Oswego, N. Y.,	May 7, 1868.
1819	Edward Chapin, 69,	York, Pa.,	Mar. 17, 1868,
1821	Sanford J. Ramey, 68,	Loudon Co., Va.,	1866.
1822	Simeon F. Dixon, 64,	Cambridge, Mass.,	April 8, 1867.
1824	Willis Hall, 67,	New York City,	July 14, 1868.
1824	John C. Nichols, 66,	Old Lyme,	Jan. 8, 1868.
1825	Eber Carpenter, 67,	Boston, Mass.,	Oct. 21, 1867.
1825	Worthington Hooker, 61,	New Haven,	Nov. 6, 1867.
1825	Benjamin Perkins, 64,	Camden, S. C.,	Feb. 24, 1868.
1825	Edward E. Pynchon, 63,	Huntsville, Ala.,	June 24, 1868.
1826	David L. Seymour, 63,	Lanesborough, Mass.,	Oct. 11, 1867.
1828	Joel T. Case, 65,	Victoria, Tex.,	June 10, 1868.
1829	John F. Lanneau, 58,	Marietta, Ga.,	Oct. 7, 1867.
1831	Newton D Strong, 56,	St. Louis, Mo.,	Aug. 8, 1866.
1833	Alexander B. Whiting, 54,	New York City,	May 2, 1868.
1835	Samuel R. Davis, 58,	Englishtown, N. J.,	Apr. 20, 1868.
1836	Josiah M. Carter, 54,	Norwalk,	Mar. 22, 1868.
1836	Daniel Higbie, 52,	Spencer Springs, N. Y.,	Oct. 21, 1867.
1837	Chauncey Goodrich, 50,	New Haven,	Mar. 27, 1868.
1837	Silas F. Plimpton, 54,	Boston, Mass.,	Apr. 22, 1867.
1847	Edward G. Parker, 42,	New York City,	Mar. 30, 1868.
1848	Edwin Tyler, 40,	Oakland, Cal.,	June 21, 1868.
1849	Washington Murray, 39,	New York City,	Sept. 19, 1867.
1853	Alfred Grout, 35,	Sherborn, Mass.,	July 26, 1866.
1855	Josiah W. Harmar, 32,	Mount Desert, Me.,	July 24, 1867.
1856	George P. Barker, 32,	Norwich,	Jan. 28, 1868.
1856	William E. Turner, 33,	Northampton, Mass.,	Jan. 26, 1868.
1857	Lewis E. Matson, 29,	Lyons, France,	June 21, 1868.
1857	Joseph L. Morton, 34,	Waukegan, Ill.,	Dec. 8, 1867.

1858	Charles N. Johnson, 38,	New Haven,	Nov. 12, 1868.
1862	William W. Gandy, 27,	New York City,	July 15, 1868.
1862	Charles H. Rowe, 26,	Galveston, Tex.,	Sept. 4, 1867.
1862	Henry W. Thayer, 25,	New Orleans, La.,	Aug. 16, 1867.
1864	Julius L. Parke, 25,	Charleston, S. C.,	Apr. 29, 1868.
1864	Albert S. Wurts, 24,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	July 17, 1867.
1865	Tuzar Bulkley, 27,	Catskill, N. Y.,	Nov. 28, 1867.

DOCTORS OF MEDICINE.

1820	Elisha Hayward, 76,	Raynham, Mass.	March 16, 1869.
1826	Henry C. Brown, 64,	Bridgeport,	July 13, 1868.
1826	Federal Vanderberg, 79,	Rhinebeck, N. Y.,	Jan. 21, 1868.
1838	Hanford N. Bennett, 50,	Bridgeport,	Apr. 21, 1868.
1842	Roswell Hawley, 54,	Bristol,	Dec. 7, 1867.

The total number of deaths reported this year is 61, and the average age is 59 years.

The deaths are distributed as follows:—in Connecticut, 16; New York, 15; Massachusetts, 8; South Carolina and Texas, 3 each; Pennsylvania and Illinois, 2 each; one died in France, one in the Sandwich Islands, and the remaining 10 in as many different states.

Of the deceased, from the Academical Department, 25 were Lawyers, 16 Clergymen, 5 Physicians, 5 Teachers and Professors, and 5 Farmers or Planters.

The surviving graduates of the last century are,—

Class of 1794, Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, Utica, N. Y.

“ “ 1796, TIMOTHY BISHOP, Esq., New Haven.

“ “ “ JOHN HARVEY TUCKER, Esq., Hamilton, Bermuda.

“ “ 1797, Rev. CHARLES GOODRICH, Penn Yan, N. Y.

“ “ 1800 Rev. THOMAS WILLIAMS, Providence, R. I.

OBITUARY RECORD OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY, 1869,
INCLUDING THE RECORD OF A FEW WHO DIED A SHORT
TIME PREVIOUS, HITHERTO UNREPORTED.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 21st, 1869.]

[No. 10 of the printed Series, and No. 28 of the whole Record.]

THE HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF

HENRY THE SEVENTH

OF ENGLAND

AND OF HIS SUCCESSORS

UNTIL THE DEATH OF

HENRY THE EIGHTH

IN THE YEAR 1547

BY

JOHN HALL

OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE

ESQ.

LONDON

Printed by I. I. I.

1647

THE RIGHT

OF

THE

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

Deceased during the academical year ending in July, 1869, including the record of a few who died previously, hitherto unreported.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 21st, 1869.]

[No. 10 of the printed Series, and No. 28 of the whole Record.]

1796.

JOHN HARVEY TUCKER died at Somerville, Bermuda, July 20, 1868, aged 91 years.

He was born in Bermuda in March, 1777, and after graduating here went to London and became a barrister-at-law of the Middle Temple or Lincoln's Inn. He then returned to the Bermudas, but early abandoned the practice of the law, and lived retired from public life. He retained his mental faculties unimpaired until a short time before his death. He leaves two children, a son and a daughter. His wife died many years before him.

1804.

ROYAL RALPH HINMAN, son of Gen. Ephraim and Sylvania French) Hinman, was born in Southbury, Conn., June 20, 1785; died in New York City, Oct. 16, 1868, aged 83 years.

He prepared for College with Rev. Dr. Azel Backus (Y. C. 1787), of Bethlehem, Conn. He taught in an academy in Virginia, in 1804-5, and then commenced his legal studies with Hon. David S. Boardman (Y. C. 1793), of New Milford, Conn.; the next year he attended the Litchfield Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1807. He soon after commenced the practice of the law in Roxbury, Conn., where he continued for about 20 years, when he removed to Southington, Conn. In 1835, he took up his residence in Hartford, being elected Secretary of the State. For seven years he fulfilled the duties of that office, nor did he afterward resume the practice of his profession.

In 1842, Mr. Hinman published a "History of the part taken by Conn. in the War of the Revolution" (Hartford, 643 pp. 8°.), in 1836 a volume of Official Letters between the Kings and Queens of England and the early Governors of the Colony of Conn. (Hartford, 372 pp. 12°.). He was also the author of a "Catalogue of the First Puritan Settlers of the Colony of Conn.," in 6 numbers (Hartford, 1852-56, 8°.), and of an earlier "Register of Families in Conn." Several volumes of statutes and of public and private acts were compiled and published under his supervision.

In Sept., 1844, Mr. Hinman was appointed Collector of Customs for the port of New Haven, Conn., but retired from office in the following March. His residence during later years was in N. Y. City.

Mr. Hinman married, Sept. 14, 1814, Lydia, youngest daughter of Gen. John Ashley (Y. C. 1758), of Sheffield, Mass.; she died in N. Y. City, Aug. 27, 1853, leaving one son and four daughters.

Mr. Hinman's first name, Royal, was acquired from a Freshman Catalogue published by his intimate friend and classmate, Rev. Dr. John Chester, by whom this name was prefixed by way of compliment.

JOHN MARSH was born, April 2, 1788, in Wethersfield, Conn., where his father, John Marsh, D.D. (Harv. 1761), was for forty-seven years pastor of the First Congregational Church. His mother was Ann, daughter of Capt. Ebenezer Grant, of East Windsor, Conn. His eldest brother, Ebenezer Grant Marsh (Y. C. 1795), died in 1803, when Tutor and Professor-elect of Languages in this College.

When only ten years old, John Marsh, Jr., became a pupil of Rev. Dr. Azel Backus (Y. C. 1787) of Bethlehem, Conn.; at twelve he entered College, and graduated at sixteen. After teaching for some years, he began to preach at the age of twenty-one. On the 16th of Dec., 1818, he was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in Haddam, Conn., where he remained until April 1, 1833. While there he prepared and published an "Epitome of Ecclesiastical History," designed for the young, of which sixteen editions have been printed. He early interested himself in the cause of temperance, and by speeches and publications contributed largely to the spread of temperance doctrines in Connecticut. In May, 1829, the Conn. Temperance Society was organized, and Mr. Marsh appointed Secretary and General Agent. In the winter of 1831-2, he spent three months in Baltimore and Washington in behalf of the cause, and in 1833 was invited to leave his pastoral charge in order to act as agent of the American Temperance Society. In consequence he removed to Philadelphia, where he resided until 1838.

In Oct., 1836, he became Secretary of the re-organized American Temperance Union and Editor of its new monthly Journal, and continued to be thus employed until 1865, when a new organization took the place of the old, and the Journal was discontinued. The office of the Society was removed to New York City, in 1837. In 1846 he visited Europe, as a delegate to the World's Temperance Convention at London. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by Jefferson College, Pa., in 1852.

Besides his labors as Editor and Secretary, his publications and addresses on the subject of Temperance were very numerous ; the most extensive being his "Temperance Recollections, an Autobiography" (N. Y., 373 pp. 12 mo.), published in 1866.

The week before his last illness Dr. Marsh undertook an agency for completing the funds necessary to the erection of a building for the Theological Department of Yale College. On July 30, 1868, he fell into an unconscious state, from which he awoke the next day paralyzed. With little suffering he lingered until Aug. 4, when he died at his house in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged eighty years and four months. His wife, a daughter of Lt.-Gov. Talmadge of N. Y., died in 1852 ; two sons (one a graduate of this College in 1845) and three daughters survive him.

HENRY SWIFT, son of Seth and Mary Swift, was born at Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y., Feb. 5, 1784, and died at his residence in Poughkeepsie in the same county, Nov. 5, 1866, aged 82 years and 9 months.

He studied law in the office of Judge Van Ness at Poughkeepsie, was admitted to the bar in 1807, and at once entered on a large practice in his native county. He remained actively engaged in the business of his profession until his retirement in 1852.

One of his sons graduated at this College in 1836.

CHARLES HENRY WETMORE died in Columbus, O., Oct. 10, 1868, aged 85 years.

He was the youngest child of Izrahiah Wetmore (Y. C. 1748). His mother was Phebe, daughter of Hon. Robert Walker (Y. C. 1730), and he was born May 12, 1783, in Stratford, Conn., where his father had been pastor of the Congregational Church.

He prepared for Collège with Rev. Samuel Blatchford, of Bridgeport, Conn.

In 1805 he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Henry of Lansingburgh, N. Y., at the same time teaching in the Academy. Having attended lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in N. Y. City, he commenced the practice of his profession in Troy, N. Y., in 1809, removing to Waterford, N. Y., in 1810. In the war with Great Britain, he was commissioned Surgeon of the 144th N. Y. Infantry, but was only a short time in active service, the war closing soon after his appointment. He then removed to N. Y. City, was quite successful in practice there, and in 1818 removed to Ohio, settling on a farm near Columbus, where for many years he divided his time between the practice of his profession and agricultural pursuits. He died after a brief illness at the old homestead, the residence of his son.

Dr. Wetmore was married, June 1, 1814, to Miss Eliza, daughter of John Rathbone, of N. Y. City. Three sons and two daughters survive him.

1805.

EARL SWIFT was born in Mansfield, Conn., April 8, 1784, and died in the same town, June 14, 1869.

He remained on his father's farm until 16 years of age ; he then prepared for College under Rev. John Sherman, the minister of the parish, and entered the Sophomore Class in 1802.

Soon after graduation he commenced the study of medicine, attending lectures at Cambridge, Mass. He was licensed to practice in May, 1808, and in the same year established himself in Windham, Conn. About two years later he removed to Wethersfield, and, after another interval of two years, to Mansfield, where he continued in successful practice until past fourscore.

Dr. Swift married, Apr. 18, 1810, Miss Laura Ripley : she, with four sons and four daughters, survives him.

1806.

SIMEON COLTON died at 'Ashboro', Randolph Co., N. C., Dec. 27, 1868, aged 84.

He was a son of Jabez Colton (Y. C. 1775), and his wife Mary, daughter of Capt. Ebenezer Baldwin of Bozrah, Conn., and sister of Hon. Simeon Baldwin (Y. C. 1781) of New Haven. He was born at Somers, Conn., Jan. 8, 1785. When he was about three years old, his father settled at Longmeadow, Mass., and from that place he entered College.

He was absent teaching school during two winters of the College course, and immediately after graduating took charge of the academy just founded at Monson, Mass. He remained but one year, and thence went to Leicester (Mass.) Academy, of which he had charge for one year and a half. After two other brief engagements as a teacher, he removed to Salem, Mass., where he studied theology under direction of Rev. Samuel Worcester, D.D. He was licensed to preach at North Danvers by the Salem Association, May 8, 1810, and was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church at Palmer, Mass., June 19, 1811.

In a little more than ten years he was dismissed at his own request, and for the next nine years was again principal of Monson Academy, which he succeeded in placing on a satisfactory basis. From Monson he went to Amherst, Mass., where he had charge of an academy for three years. After this he went by invitation to Fayetteville, N. C., Jan., 1834, to be at the head of Donaldson Academy, an institution just founded under the care of the Presbytery. He held this situation until the close of 1839, when difficulties, produced mainly by the feelings aroused by the division of the General Assembly, caused him to resign. He taught a private school in Fayetteville, until in 1846 he was called to Clinton, Miss., as President of the newly incorporated Mississippi College. This enterprise, under the patronage of the New School Presbyterian Church, required larger funds than its friends could command, and after endeavoring in vain to build up the institution, Dr. Colton resigned in July, 1848. He then returned to N. C., and became Principal of a new Academy, called Cumberland Academy, founded by Fayetteville Presbytery, and located at Summerville, Harnett County. This situation was not favorable, and after five years of trial, he resigned in Nov. 1853. In Jan., 1854, he removed to Ashboro', where after one year he closed his regular teaching, by reason of the infirmities of age, though he continued until near the close of life to hear some recitations in the Female Academy in which his wife was engaged.

The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Delaware College in 1846.

As a teacher Dr. Colton was eminently useful. He also performed much labor as a minister in the various places of his residence.

He was married first to Lucretia, daughter of Capt. Gideon Colton of Longmeadow, Mass., Sept. 2, 1812. She died at Palmer, July 14, 1821, leaving one daughter. He married the second time, Aug. 9, 1823, Susan, daughter of Isham Chapman, of Tolland, Conn., by whom he had three sons and three daughters; of these the second son graduated at the University of N. C., and is now a minister in that state. Mrs. Colton died at Summerville, N. C., Nov. 24, 1850. He married the third time, Dec. 21, 1851, Mrs. Catherine E. Fuller, widow of Jones Fuller, of Fayetteville, N. C., who survives him.

HEZEKIAH RUDD died at Norwich, Conn., Sept. 11, 1868, aged 87 years and 7 months. He was the son of Jonathan and Mary (Tracy) Rudd, and was born in Scotland, Conn., Feb. 2, 1781. He worked on his father's farm, teaching some during the winters, until of age. He was fitted for College with John Adams (Y. C. 1795), at the Plainfield Academy, and entered in the second year of the course.

He married, in 1809, Maria, daughter of Othniel and Hannah De Forest, of Huntington, Conn., and in the following year succeeded his former teacher, Mr. Adams, as principal of Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn. He remained there for three years, and was then for a short time at Stratford, Conn. He then took the homestead of his wife's father, in Huntington, and was there a teacher for thirty years. Most of the youth of the town of both sexes for two generations were his scholars, and his house was also usually well filled with pupils from abroad.

When he retired from teaching he removed to the house of his son, Charles D. Rudd, of Brooklyn, N. Y., where he resided for thirteen years. The remainder of his life was passed with other members of his family, and at the time of his death his home was with his nephew at Norwich.

His first wife dying in Feb., 1828, Mr. Rudd married in September of the same year, Mary E., daughter of Nathaniel and Rebecca Coggeshall of Colchester, who survives him. He left three sons and three daughters; one of the daughters is the wife of Professor Allen of Oberlin College.

1807.

ALEXANDER HODGDON STEVENS, who died in N. Y. City, March 30, 1869, in his 80th year, was a native of N. Y., and a son of Gen. Ebenezer Stevens, an officer of artillery in the Revolution. His mother, a sister of Col. Ledyard, was aunt to the well-known traveler of that name. His brothers, Byam K. and John A. Stevens, are graduates of this college of the classes of 1811, and 1813.

Dr. Stevens entered the office of Dr. Edward Miller of N. Y. on leaving New Haven, attended a course of lectures in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, a second in the University of Pennsylvania, and from the latter institution received his medical degree in 1811. The next year was spent in study in London and Paris, and he then began practice in N. Y. City. He was made a Fellow of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1813; became Professor of Surgery in the Medical Department of Queens College, now Rutgers College, in 1814, and so continued for two years; was appointed a visiting surgeon to the N. Y. Hospital in 1817; was a Trustee of the College of Physicians and Surgeons from 1820 to 1826, and Professor of Surgery in the same institution from 1826 to 1837, when he accepted the chair of clinical surgery, which he held for two sessions.

Ill health now compelled him to confine his practice to consultations and surgical operations. He also served as consulting surgeon in the N. Y. Hospital, and again from 1840 to 1844 as Professor of Surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. From 1843 to 1855 he was President of the College, and since 1844 his name has been enrolled among the Faculty as Emeritus Professor of Clinical Surgery. He was President of the State Medical Society, and, in 1848, of the American Medical Association. He received the degree of LL.D. from the Regents of the University of the State of N. Y.

Dr. Stevens married Phebe, daughter of John N. Lloyd (Y. C. 1802) and Phebe T. (Coles) Lloyd. They had three sons and two daughters. One son is a graduate of this College in the class of 1864.

1808.

MILTON BARLOW was born in Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y., May 4, 1784, and died in East Chester, Westchester County, N. Y., Oct. 26, 1867, aged 83 years. He was the son of Thomas and Amy Barlow, and spent three years of his college course at Williams College.

He was admitted to the bar in Dutchess County in 1811, but never practiced. He never married. His life was passed in his native state, and was neither specially eventful or useful.

1809.

ELISHA BEEBE STRONG, son of Elisha and Mary Strong, was born in Windsor, Conn., Nov. 29, 1788, and died in Detroit, Mich., after a brief illness, Oct. 14th, 1867, aged 79 years.

He studied law at the Litchfield (Conn.) Law School, and subsequently in Canandaigua, N. Y., where he was admitted to the bar in 1812, and commenced practice in partnership with Wm. H. Adams, Esq. In 1816 he purchased, jointly with Elisha Beach, Esq., one thousand acres of land in the vicinity of Rochester, N. Y., and removed to that place. In 1819-20 he was a member of the State Legislature from Ontario County, and after the organization of Monroe County, in 1821, he was appointed first Judge of the County Court. His sons having settled in the West, Judge Strong moved to Detroit in 1851, and there spent the rest of his life.

He married, June 24, 1813, Dolly G., daughter of Nathaniel and Mary (Chaffee) Hooker of Windsor. Shortly after his removal to Detroit, he married Miss Ellen O'Keefe, who survives him.

1811.

FRANCIS GRANGER died in Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1868, in the 76th year of his age.

He was the son of Gideon Granger (Y. C. 1787), and grandson of Gideon Granger (Y. C. 1760), and was born at the family residence in Suffield, Conn., Dec. 1, 1792.

In 1814 his father retired from thirteen years' service as Postmaster-General of the United States, and removed to Canandaigua, where Francis Granger was admitted to the bar in 1816. In 1825 he was chosen a representative from Ontario County in the lower house of the State Legislature, a position to which he was thrice re-elected in the next six years. In 1830 and 1832 he was nominated for Governor of the State, and defeated by a small democratic majority. He was elected by the newly organized whig party a member of the National House of Representatives in 1834, and two years later was the candidate of the Anti-Masonic and of a portion of the whig party for the Vice-Presidency. In 1838 he became again a Member of Congress from the Ontario District, and was re-elected in 1840. On Gen. Harrison's accession to the Presidency, Mr. Granger was called into the cabinet as Postmaster-General, and discharged the duties of the office (held by his father under Jefferson and Madison) until the rupture of the Cabinet in July, 1841, caused by President Tyler's action respecting the U. S. Bank.

Having declined the offer of a foreign mission, he was then again elected to Congress, but refused a renomination at the close of the session of 1842-3.

Though no longer in public life, Mr. Granger was still a valued counsellor of his political friends, and deeply interested in the welfare of the country. He was a delegate to the Peace Convention which met at Washington in Feb., 1861, and the record shows how considerable a part he took in the efforts made to avert the rebellion.

Mr. Granger was married in 1817 to Cornelia Rutsen Van Rensselaer of Utica, N. Y., who died in 1823, leaving two children, of whom one is now the wife of Hon. Robert C. Winthrop of Boston. The other, a graduate of this College in 1843, died six days after the death of his father, as is noticed on a subsequent page of this pamphlet.

ISAAC PARSONS was born in Southampton, Mass., Aug. 28, 1790, and died at East Haddam, Conn., Aug. 22, 1868, aged 78 years.

He entered Williams College in 1806, and remained two years ; after a year's interval he joined the Junior Class in Yale College. On graduating he taught for a year in Hartford, Conn., and then entered the Andover Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1815.

He was settled as colleague pastor with his uncle, Rev. Elijah Parsons (Y. C. 1768), at East Haddam, Conn., Oct. 23, 1816. After the death of his uncle, in 1827, he remained pastor of the church till April 23, 1856, when he resigned the office. He resided until his death in East Haddam.

He was married, Jan. 21, 1819, to Miss Sarah B. Lyon of New Haven, Conn. She survives him with two daughters, and one son, Rev. Henry Martyn Parsons, who graduated at this College in 1848.

JOSEPH VAILL was born in Hadlyme, Conn., July 28, 1790.

His father was Rev. Joseph Vaill, who for fifty-eight years was pastor of the Congregational Church in that place. His mother was the daughter of Rev. Joseph Fowler of East Haddam. His brother, William F. Vaill, graduated in 1806.

The next year after graduation he taught school in Litchfield (as principal of Morris Academy), and in Salisbury, Conn. The following winter he studied divinity with his father. He was ordained pastor of the church in Brimfield, Mass., Feb. 2, 1814, and continued in that office until Nov., 1834, when he accepted a call to the Second Church in Portland, Maine, his predecessors being Edward Payson and Bennet Tyler. In 1837 his health gave way, and he felt constrained to ask a dismission. He soon found himself reinstated with his old parish in Brimfield, where he remained for four years. During his first pastorate, he became deeply interested in the establishment of Amherst College in 1821, being from that date until his death one of its Trustees. His second settlement at Brimfield was terminated by a pressing call to undertake an agency in behalf of the struggling College, which occupied his whole time for four years. By his efforts at this time, Amherst College was probably saved from financial ruin. On the completion of this agency, he returned to the office of pastor, first at Somers, Conn., from Aug., 1845 to Dec., 1854, and then at Palmer, Mass., from Dec., 1854, to Feb., 1868.

Dr. Vaill died at his residence in Palmer, Feb. 22, 1869, of heart-disease. At the time of his death he was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. The discourse preached at his funeral, by President Stearns of Amherst, has been published.

Dr. Vaill married first Miss Ann Kirtland of Hadlyme, by whom he leaves six children, two of them ministers. His second wife, who survives him, was Mrs. Nancy Pope Howe of Ware, Mass. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Amherst College in 1851.

1812.

RICHARD CARY MORSE, while on a tour of foreign travel, died at Kissingen, Bavaria, Sept. 22, 1868.

He was the fourth son of Jedidiah (Y. C. 1783) and Elizabeth Ann Breeze Morse, and was born in Charlestown, Mass., June 18, 1795.

He was fitted for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and after graduating, the youngest member of his class, and spending a year with President Dwight as his amanuensis, returned to Andover, completed the three years' course at the Theological Seminary there and was licensed to preach by the Union Congregational Association of Massachusetts, in October, 1817. During the winter of 1817 and '18 he supplied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church on John's Island, S. C. Returning North, he was for some time associated with his father in geographical labor, and in editing a Universal Gazetteer. In 1823 he removed to the city of New York and engaged with his elder brother, Sidney E. Morse (Y. C. 1811), in founding the New York Observer, the oldest religious newspaper in that state. He remained associate proprietor and editor till 1858, and then retiring from active life, continued to reside in New York till 1863, when he removed to New Haven. He left that place for a tour of foreign travel in May, 1868.

Mr. Morse was married Sept. 30, 1828, to Miss Sarah Louisa Davis of Claverack, N. Y., who died in Paris, France, Oct. 17, 1851. They had ten children, nine of whom, 4 sons and 5 daughters, survive them. The sons are graduates of this College in the classes of 1856, 1862, 1867, and 1868. Mr. Morse married again, Aug. 12, 1856, Miss Harriot Hinckley Messinger of Boston, who survives him.

THEODORE STRONG was born in South Hadley, Mass., July 26, 1790. His father was Rev. Joseph Strong (Y. C. 1784), son of Rev. Joseph Strong (Y. C. 1749), of Granby, Ct., and Williamsburg, Mass. His mother was Sophia, daughter of Rev. John Woodbridge (Y. C. 1726), of South Hadley.

On graduation he was appointed Tutor in Mathematics in Hamilton College, then just organized, and in 1816 he was made Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, and so remained until 1827, when he was called to a similar position in Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J. In this latter place he continued in active duty until 1862. He resided in New Brunswick until his death, which took place, Feb. 1, 1869.

Dr. Strong married Miss Lucy Dix of Massachusetts, who, with one son and two daughters, is still living.

He published various mathematical papers in the first series of Silliman's Journal, and an Algebra of high order in 1859. A treatise on the Differential and Integral Calculus was in press at the time of his death. He received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Rutgers College in 1835. He was a corporate member of the National Academy of Sciences, and an associate of many other scientific bodies.

1813.

THOMAS P. DEVEREUX died at his residence, Connemara, on the Roanoke River, Halifax county, N. C., March 7, 1869.

He was born in the town of New Berne, and was in his 76th year at the time of his death.

He studied law at the Litchfield (Conn.) Law School, but for some years did not seek for practice, a competent fortune rendering that unnecessary until some reverses in business changed the course of his life. He then resolved to devote all his energies to his profession. Not long afterward, he was appointed U. S. District attorney for the District of North Carolina, an office which he filled for many years. In 1826 he was appointed Reporter of the Supreme Court of the State in conjunction with his classmate, Hon. George E. Badger, and soon became sole holder of the office by the resignation of his associate. Four volumes of Law, and two of Equity Reports were the fruits of his labors in that capacity. Receiving in middle life by the death of an uncle the care of a large estate, the remainder of his days he spent on his plantation, while he served also as one of the presiding Justices of the County Court of Halifax.

Mr. Devereux was twice married, first to Miss Johnson of Connecticut, and again to Miss Maitland of N. Y. His widow, one son (Y. C. 1840), and seven daughters survive him.

BENJAMIN FENN was born in Milford, Conn., Oct. 29, 1792, and died at the residence of his son in Hartford, Trumbull Co., O., June 25, 1869, aged 76 years.

He studied divinity with Rev. B. Pinneo of Milford, and was licensed to preach in 1816. After laboring as a home missionary in his native State, he moved to Ohio in 1818, and was ordained over the Presbyterian Church in Nelson, Portage County, June 16, 1819. In April, 1835, he was dismissed from Nelson, and on the 16th of the following June was installed in Gustavus, Trumbull County. He was installed in Hartford, Ohio, June 16, 1847, and returned to his first charge at Nelson, June 14, 1861. At the age of 75, in Oct., 1867, he was dismissed at his own request.

Mr. Fenn married, August 3, 1820, Anna Gunn of Milford, who is still living. Their children were three sons and one daughter: the eldest son is a graduate of Western Reserve College, Class of 1854.

1815.

ROGER CONANT HATCH was born in Middletown, Conn., Oct. 20, 1784, and died in Warwick, Mass., Sept. 12, 1868.

He was the second child of Dr. Josiah Hatch, a surgeon in the Revolution, by his wife, the widow of a Dr. Conant.

He entered College at the beginning of the Junior year. After studying theology with Rev. Dr. Osgood of Springfield, Mass., for about a year, he spent some time as a missionary of the Young Men's Missionary Association, of New York.

He was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church at Hopkinton, N. H., Oct. 21, 1818, and dismissed in 1832. In Jan., 1836, he was installed over the Congregational Church in Warwick, Mass., where he continued to minister for seventeen years. His residence was in Warwick, until his death.

Mr. Hatch married, Sept. 13, 1820, Hannah Fay of Westborough, Mass. She survives him, as also do six of his eight children, of whom one graduated at Amherst College in 1849.

WILLIAM JESSUP, son of Major Zebulon and Zerviah Jessup, was born in Southampton (L. I.), N. Y., June 21, 1797, and died in Montrose, Pa., Sept. 11, 1868, aged 71 years.

In 1818 he removed from his native place to Montrose, where he commenced the practice of the law. He was married, July 4, 1820, to Amanda Harris of Southampton, L. I., who with nine children survives him. In 1838 he was appointed Presiding Judge of the 11th Judicial District of Penn., which position he filled until the Judiciary became elective in 1851, when being a Whig and in a Democratic District, he was removed. From 1851 until his death he was engaged in the practice of law in connection with his eldest son, William H. Jessup (Y. C. 1849). His second son, Rev. Henry H. Jessup, D.D., missionary in Syria, graduated at this College in 1851. His third son, Rev. Samuel Jessup, also a missionary in Syria, after spending two years with the Class of 1860, left College to prepare more speedily for his missionary work, and received the degree of M. A. at the same time with his class. Judge Jessup's fifth son graduated at this College in 1864.

Judge Jessup was foremost in every good enterprise both in church and state, and identified himself with all the educational and temperance movements in Pennsylvania.

He was laid aside from active duties by paralysis during the last five years of his life.

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on him by Hamilton College in 1848.

1816.

EDWARD BULL, the son of Edward and Rosanna Bull, was born in Saybrook, Conn., Nov. 26, 1791, and died in Cheshire, Conn., of congestion of the lungs, April 25, 1869.

He was fitted for college by his pastor, Rev. Aaron Hovey. After graduation he was teacher of the Grammar School in New London, Conn., for two years, and tutor in this college for five years. He also studied theology with Professors Fitch and Goodrich. He was ordained, Sept. 29, 1825, pastor of the Congregational Church in Lebanon, Conn., and dismissed in 1837. The rest of his life was spent in Cheshire, where he received a few pupils for instruction, chiefly of the children of his friends.

Mr. Bull was married about the time of his ordination to Miss Eliza Ann Hallam of New London, Conn., who survives him. They had no children.

HAWLEY OLNSTEAD, son of Aaron and Sarah Esther (Hawley) Olmstead, was born at Wilton, Conn., Dec. 17, 1793.

He early formed the purpose of acquiring a liberal education, and, as means for study were not at his command, he left his father's farm at the age of fourteen, and taught school three years. The latter part of his preparatory course was passed at the Academy at Greenfield Hill, Conn., as an assistant pupil. He entered College as Sophomore in 1813. Ill health and weak eyes caused him great trouble during his course, and subsequently, so that he was obliged to abandon professional studies. He therefore turned his attention to the instruction of youth, and opened in his native town an Academy for both sexes. Here he taught four and a half years, and at Norwalk, Conn., three years. His health failing he returned to Wilton, and for two years and a half engaged in agricultural pursuits, instructing at the same time a few private pupils. He then reopened the Academy, and taught thirteen years, when he removed to New Haven, to take charge of the Hopkins Grammar School. After a service here of more than ten years, which he regarded as the chief work of his life, he was compelled by ill health to resign the office of Rector, but resided in New Haven until his death. He continued to give private instruction until 1860. In 1862 Yale College conferred on him the degree of LL.D.

He represented his native town in the State Legislature in 1825, '26, '28 and '29, and the Second Senatorial District in 1853. His report, as Chairman of a Select Committee on Common Schools in 1826, forms the basis of the present common School law.

During the last year of his life Dr. Olmstead was very feeble and apprehensive of sudden death. On Thursday morning, Dec. 3, 1868, the "Circle of Retired Ministers and Laymen," of which he was a valued member, held their weekly meeting at his house by his request; and he died suddenly while addressing the meeting on the topic of discussion.

His wife, Harriet, daughter of Phineas Smith of New Canaan, Conn., to whom he was married, Apr. 30, 1818, survives him, as do also five of their nine children. The second surviving son is a graduate of Yale College in the Class of 1845, and the two younger sons, graduates of the Medical Department in 1851 and 1861.

LUMAN WHITTLESEY, son of Joseph and Polly (Camp) Whittlesey, of New Preston, Conn., was born March 15, 1795.

He was prepared for College by his pastor, Rev. Samuel Whittlesey (Y. C. 1803).

He adopted teaching as his profession, and established himself soon after graduation at Williamston, N. C. His residence continued in that State until 1848, when he removed to Alexandria, Va., where he died Jan. 14, 1868, having been greatly respected and useful in his work. He had an attack of paralysis in 1861, from which he never recovered.

Mr. Whittlesey married, Sept. 15, 1818, Sally I., daughter of Col. Cogswell of New Preston, Ct., by whom he had two sons, now residing in Texas. He lost his wife, June 15, 1821, and married again, July 2, 1823, Elizabeth G. Peel, of Williamston, N. C., by whom he had a son and a daughter, now residing in Alexandria.

1817.

THOMAS TUCKER WHITTLESEY died at his residence near Madison, Wisc., Aug. 20, 1868, in the 70th year of his age.

He was the son of Elisha and Mary (Tucker) Whittlesey, and was born in Danbury, Conn., Dec. 8, 1798. His older brother, Elisha D., graduated in 1811.

He spent one year as assistant teacher in a classical school in Trenton, N. J., and then entered the law school at Litchfield, Conn. He settled as a lawyer in his native town, and while resident there was a Judge of Probate, and from 1836 to 1839 a member of the National Congress.

In 1846 he retired from professional life and removed with his family to a tract of some 1,200 acres which he had long owned, near Madison, Wisc. Here he devoted himself to the improvement of his estate, building mills and encouraging the settlement of the country. In 1852 he was a member of the Senate in the State Legislature.

Judge Whittlesey married, Nov. 9, 1826, Miss Caroline Holley of Salisbury, Conn., who died June 6, 1841. He leaves five children.

1818.

JAMES WARHAM CROOKS, son of Deacon John and Katherine Crooks, was born in Blandford, Mass., Aug. 23, 1793, and died in Springfield, Mass., Aug. 5, 1867, aged 74 years.

He taught school on leaving College, but soon commenced the study of law in the office of Hon. George Bliss in Springfield, Mass., where he was admitted to the bar. He began practice in April, 1824, and continued it for more than thirty years. His residence remained in Springfield until his death.

He was a recognized leader in the local Democratic party, and held many public offices.

Mr. Crooks married, Aug. 12, 1849, Miss Ann Jeannette, eldest child of Hon. Harvey and Hannah Chapin of Springfield, who survives him without children.

HENRY DUTTON was born in Plymouth, Conn., Febr. 12, 1796, and died at his residence in New Haven, Conn., April 12, 1869.

He was the son of Thomas Dutton, and the brother of Rev. Matthew R. Dutton (Y. C. 1808), formerly Professor of Mathematics in this College. His boyhood and youth were spent on his father's farm and at the age of twenty he had qualified himself, almost unaided, for admission to the Junior class in College.

On graduation he took charge of the academy in Fairfield, Conn., at the same time studying law under Roger M. Sherman (Y. C. 1792). From 1821 to 1823 he was a Tutor in college, and then began to practice law at Newtown, Fairfield county, Conn. After remaining there 14 years, and becoming well established in his profession, he removed to Bridgeport, in the same county. Ten years later, in 1847, he received the appointment of Professor of Law in Yale College, and transferred his residence to New Haven. He retained this office until his death, being, after the retirement of Hon. Clark Bissell in 1855, the Senior Professor in the department. He was also, to the last of his life, except while upon the bench, extensively engaged in professional business throughout the State, and more especially in Fairfield and New Haven Counties.

Professor Dutton was five times a member of the State House of Representatives, twice from Newtown, twice from Bridgeport, and once from New Haven, and in 1849 a member of the State Senate. In 1853 he was the unsuccessful candidate of the Whig party for Governor, and was renominated in 1854 and elected by the Legislature, no choice having been made by the people. After his removal to New Haven he was for one year Judge of the County Court, and in 1861 was chosen an Associate Justice of the Superior Court of Connecticut. He remained on the bench until he had reached the constitutional limit of 70 years of age.

Judge Dutton published in 1833, an Analytical Digest of the State Reports, and, in 1848, a revision of Chief Justice Swift's Digest of the Laws of Connecticut, which is still the standard edition. He was on two occasions chairman of a committee appointed to revise the Statutes of the State (editions of 1849 and 1866) and he was also the chairman of the committee which prepared in 1854 a new compilation of the Statutes.

He married, soon after leaving the Tutorship, Miss Elizabeth E. Joy, daughter of Capt. M. Joy, who survives him. Their only son was graduated at Yale College in 1857, and fell in the battle of Cedar Mountain, near Culpepper Court House, Va., Aug. 9, 1862, at the age of 24 years.

For a few months before his death Judge Dutton's health had been gradually failing, and a severe attack of lung fever, terminating in hemorrhage of the lungs, brought to a sudden close his long and well-spent life.

JOHN WILLIAMS SALTER died in Mansfield, Conn., July 6, 1869, aged 71 years.

He was born in Mansfield, Jan. 28, 1798, and was prepared for College by Rev. Moses Hallock (Y. C. 1788) of Plainfield, Mass.

Mr. Salter studied law with Chief Justice Williams (Y. C. 1794) of Hartford, and practiced in Mansfield for about two years. He was also engaged in teaching in Mansfield and Fairfield, Conn., and Elizabethtown, N. J., for about three years. In 1825 he married Miss Harriet Byron Stedman, who died in 1837. In 1842 he married Miss Elizabeth Turner, who survives him.

In 1827, having abandoned the profession of the law, he commenced the study of Theology at New Haven, and was licensed to preach in 1829. In the same year, he was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in Kingston, Mass. He was installed over the Congregational Church in Bozrah, Conn., in September, 1832, and dismissed in March, 1835. He next became pastor of the Congregational Church in Milford, N. H., and from there was recalled to Bozrah in 1841. He supplied the pulpit for more than a year, without being settled, and then took charge of the church in Douglas, Mass. From this place he was called to the church in Montville, Conn., where he served as stated supply from Aug., 1847 to April, 1858. He afterward ministered to the church in Mohegan, in Montville. In 1862, on account of impaired hearing, he purposed to retire from active professional duties, and removed to his native town. The church there, being at that time without a pastor, induced him to become their acting pastor, and he so served for about two years. The last years of his life were also occupied with ministerial labors in neighboring churches.

HORACE SMITH, son of Windsor and Elizabeth Smith, was born in Hadley, Mass., Oct. 15, 1798.

He prepared for college in his native town, and immediately after his graduation entered Andover Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1821. In the same year he was licensed by the Haverhill Association, and was ordained at Hadley, Feb. 27, 1822, as an evangelist, to be sent by the Hampshire County Missionary Society to Trumbull County, Ohio. He returned to Mass., in May, 1823, spent a short time at the Seminary in Andover, preached the next winter in Peru, Mass., then for eighteen months in Dummerston, Vt., and then went back for a life-long service at the West. From 1825 to 1832, he spent in missionary labors in various parts of Ohio and Illinois, with the exception of one year passed in Missouri. In Nov., 1832, he became acting pastor of the Congregational Church in Richfield, O., and so continued until Nov., 1848. From this date until April, 1854, he supplied the pulpits of neighboring towns; he then resumed his former pastorate, which in 1859 he resigned. He continued to preach in the neighborhood (without removing his residence) until near the time of his death, which occurred suddenly, probably from disease of the heart, Nov. 20, 1868.

Mr. Smith married, first, Nov. 2, 1829, Mary D., daughter of Samuel D. Ward, of Hadley, Mass. His second wife was Miss Caroline A. Kellogg, of Hinckley, O., who survives him. Of his three children, all by the first marriage, one died in infancy, and the other two within ten days of each other, at the ages of 17 and 15.

As a pioneer missionary his hardships were often trying, and his support seemingly quite limited; except for the year when he was sent to Missouri at a salary of $400, he never received over $300 per annum.

1820.

EDWARD FROST was born in Charleston, S. C., April 27, 1801, and died in the same city, July 21, 1868, aged 67 years and 3 months.

His father, the Rev. Thomas Frost, was rector of St. Philip's Church, Charleston, and a graduate of Cambridge University, England, in 1780. His mother was Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Downes, a merchant of Liverpool, and Mary (Le Jan) Downes, from South Carolina.

He was admitted to the bar in Charleston in 1823, and settled there in practice. In 1832 he was U. S. District Attorney, but resigned his office because he could not conscientiously defend the constitutionality of the Tariff Laws. Having already served several terms in the State Legislature, he was elected by that body, in 1843, one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas for life, but resigned the position, after a little more than ten years, on account of the great labor involved.

Judge Frost afterward devoted himself mainly to the carrying out of the Blue Ridge Railroad enterprise, being for many years President of the road. He cordially supported his State in her act of secession, and died in the belief that she was right.

He was married Oct. 19, 1826, to Miss Harriet Vander H. Horry, by whom he had eleven children, nine of whom with his widow are now living. One son was destroyed by the explosion of the magazine in Fort Sumter in 1864.

Judge Frost was a brother of the Rev. Thomas D. Frost, who graduated at this College in 1813.

1822.

HENRY BENEDICT was the son of John and Jane (Raymond) Benedict, and was born in Norwalk, Conn., Jan. 22, 1796. He prepared for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and after graduation studied divinity privately, and was licensed by Fairfield (Conn.) West Association, May 31, 1825.

He preached for short a time at Waterbury, Conn., and in Saratoga County, N. Y., and in Aug., 1828, was settled over the Congregational Church in his native town. Here he labored until Feb., 1832, with marked success. Between 1832 and 1840 he preached at Lansingburgh, N. Y., Covington, Ky., and for two years in the old Bowery Congregational Church, N. Y. City. From Jan., 1840 to March, 1852, he supplied the pulpit of the Congregational Church in Westport, Conn.

The next year was spent in Europe for the benefit of his health, which had caused his frequent changes of residence. Before his return to this country, he received a call to the pastorate of the (O. S.) Presbyterian Church in Port Chester, N. Y. ; he remained in this relation until 1863 when he retired from his ministry. He retained his residence in Port Chester until his death, which occurred while on a visit to Saratoga Springs, July 18, 1868, after a week's illness, occasioned by paralysis.

Mr. Benedict married, Sept. 1, 1823, Mary Betts Lockwood, also of Norwalk. He leaves a widow, two sons and four daughters.

1823.

SUMNER GALLUP CLAPP died at his son's residence in Boston, Mass., Jan. 26, 1869, aged nearly 69 years.

He was a son of Joseph and Susan (Lyman) Clapp, and was born in Easthampton, Mass., March 10, 1800.

He taught the Academy in Newcastle, Me., for two years after leaving College, and then entered Andover Theol. Seminary, graduating in 1827. He was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in Enfield, Mass., Jan. 9, 1828, where he remained until March, 1837. April 26, 1837, he was installed at Cabotville (now Chicopee), Mass., and was dismissed, Jan. 22, 1850. He preached three months in Orono, Me., and in Nov., 1850, began preaching at St. Johnsbury, Vt., where he was installed pastor of the South (Congregational) Church, Jan. 14, 1852. Having continued here for three years, he began laboring in Sturbridge, Mass., Oct., 1855, and was there installed, March 26, 1856. From this charge he was dismissed, Sept. 2, 1862. Afterward, for a year or more, he was acting pastor at Lyndon, Vt., and then retired from the ministry, and lived at Dorchester, Mass.

He married, Aug. 12, 1829, Pamela Strong, of Southampton, Mass., by whom he had one daughter and one son.

HIRAM WILDMAN HUSTED, son of Samuel Husted, was born July 9, 1802, at Danbury, Conn. He died at Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 20, 1868.

He went to North Carolina immediately after graduating, and adopted the law as his profession. He settled in Smithfield, N. C., but in consequence of the unhealthiness of the place—losing his children, and his own health giving way—he was induced to remove to Raleigh at the time of the nomination of Clay for the Presidency, and conducted a campaign paper called the Clarion, in favor of the Whig party. He gave up this situation at the close of the contest, but remained in Raleigh, engaged in the practice of law and in literary pursuits. He was a frequent contributor to the newspapers and periodicals of the day. Among other public offices which he held, was that of U. S. Attorney for the District of North Carolina.

Major Husted married Harriet A., daughter of Hon. Jesse Slocumb, Member of Congress from N. C., Jan. 3, 1830, who survives him. By this marriage he had six children, of whom five died young, and the sixth, Delano Whiting Husted, a graduate of the University of N. C. in 1854, fell before Richmond, June 27, 1862.

1825.

ELISHA SMITH ABERNETHY was the son of Gen. Russell Catlin Abernethy of Torrington, Conn., and was born in Torrington in Oct., 1805. His mother's name before marriage was Aurelia Smith.

After two years spent in the Law Department of Yale College, he commenced the practice of law in Waterbury, Conn. He removed to Litchfield about 1836, and was Judge of the county court. In 1847 he removed to Bridgeport, and was for many years Judge of Probate of the Bridgeport District. He was appointed clerk of the Superior Court for Fairfield County in 1859, and held the office until his death, at Bridgeport, June 4, 1869.

Mr. Abernethy married in 1828 Charlotte M., daughter of Stephen Huggins of New Haven, Conn. He had four children, of whom two survive him.

NATHAN BEERS IVES died in New Haven, Conn., June 18, 1869.

He was the oldest son of Prof. Eli (Y. C. 1799) and Maria (Beers) Ives, and was born in New Haven, June 26, 1806. He graduated at the Med. Institution of this College in 1828, and following the example of his grandfather and father entered upon his profession in his native city, where his talents, industry and social qualities soon placed him in the front rank. With his father he was also for many years engaged in private medical instruction.

But the unremitting labors of his profession proved too severe for a frame never robust, and for the past few years he had retired from general practice, for the last six months being confined to his bed and finally dying of disease contracted in the duties of his profession.

He was married in 1829, and leaves one son, Dr. Chas. L. Ives (Y. C. 1852), Professor of Theory and Practice of Medicine in this College.

JOHN BAYLY McDOWELL was born in York, Pa., Nov. 22, 1804. He entered as Sophomore, in 1822, from Baltimore, where his father was then a practicing physician.

Dr. McDowell received his medical education at the University of Maryland, in Baltimore, where he graduated in 1828. He first practiced in Baltimore, and afterward in Hagerstown, Md., until 1837, when he removed to St. Louis, Mo., where he continued in the practice of his profession until his death.

In 1833 he married Miss Helen Greetham of Baltimore, by whom he had six children; a son and two daughters survive him. His wife died in 1858.

His death, caused by cholera morbus, occurred July 8, 1868.

CHESTER WHITE, third son of Asa and Zilpha (Hayes) White, was born in Williamsburg, Mass., Sept. 18, 1797, and died at Racine, Wisc., Apr. 10, 1868, aged 70½ years.

After graduation he studied law, and spent a few years in Tennessee in the practice of his profession. He then resided for a few years in Augusta, Ga., and in Alabama, chiefly engaged in teaching. About 1836 he established himself as a merchant in Penn Yan, N. Y., and in 1839, removed to Racine, where he continued in mercantile pursuits until his death. He was at one time Mayor of Racine, and also one of the Superintendents of Schools in that city.

He married, Oct. 4, 1847, Miss Clarissa W. Spencer, daughter of William Spencer of Stanstead, C. E. She died Sept. 23, 1854. Her four children, two daughters and two sons, survive their father.

His brother, Addison H. White, graduated at this College in 1823.

1827.

GEORGE GOULD, son of Judge James Gould (Y. C. 1791), and grandson of Hon. Uriah Tracy, (Y. C. 1778), was born in Litchfield, Conn., Sept. 2, 1807. He died in Troy, N. Y., after a brief illness, Dec. 6, 1868.

He studied law in the celebrated Law School conducted by his father, and in 1829 was admitted to the bar, and entered on the practice of his profession in Troy. He was successively associated in partnership with Hon. George R. Davis, Hon. Henry Z. Hayner (Y. C. 1826), and Hon. Job S. Olin. In 1855, he was elected a Justice of the Superior Court of the State of New York, and served for the full term of eight years. On retiring from the bench, Judge Gould devoted himself again to professional practice. He was Mayor of the city in 1852, and filled many other positions of honor and trust in the community.

In November, 1840, he married a daughter of Hon. George Vail of Troy. His wife survives him, with two sons and three daughters.

1831.

WILLIAM JAMES BREED was born in Lynn, Mass., June 10, 1809, the son of William and Mary (Denison) Breed.

From College he went to Andover Theological Seminary, where he was graduated in 1834. He was ordained June 10, 1835, over the Congregational Church in Nantucket, Mass., where he remained until 1839, when the state of his health led him to resign, and he undertook for a year the agency for the "American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions" in the Western States. From Dec. 9, 1841 to Nov. 5, 1845, he was pastor of the Congregational Church in Bucksport, Me. After a brief ministry to the First Congregational Church in Cincinnati, he was installed in 1846 as pastor of the High street Congr. Church, Providence, R. I., where he continued until May, 1852. From 1853 to 1858 Mr. Breed was Financial Agent of Yale College, and for the next five years pastor at Southboro', Mass. For nearly all the remainder of his life he was acting pastor of the Congregational Church in Raynham, Mass.

Mr. Breed died in West Taunton, Mass., from dropsy in the chest, April 12, 1869.

He was married in 1835 to Miss Mary Smith, daughter of Mr. Jesse Smith of Taunton, Mass., who survives him, with two sons and two daughters. One of the sons graduated at this College in 1859.

SETH CRAIGE HUSTON, third son of Thomas Huston of Philadelphia, was born Dec. 30, 1810, and died at his residence in West Philadelphia, of Bright's disease, Feb. 9, 1867, aged 56 years.

He commenced the study of medicine with William P. Brinckley, M. D., and was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1835. In the following year he began to practice in the village of Attleborough, Pa., but removed to Philadelphia in 1844, where he continued in his profession until his death.

Dr. Huston married, Oct. 18, 1836, Miss Lavinia, daughter of Dr. Michael Leib, who, with three sons and three daughters, survives him.

DAVID PLANT JUDSON died in Stratford, Conn., May 23, 1869, aged 60 years.

He was the son of Daniel and Sarah (Plant) Judson, and was born in Stratford, April 16, 1809, the sixth in lineal descent from William Judson, one of the settlers of the town.

The two years immediately following graduation, he studied in the Yale Law School, though not with the view of practising law. He then returned to his native town, where the remainder of his life was spent.

At the age of twenty-eight, he was chosen Deacon of the Congregational Church, which office he held until his death.

Though choosing a mercantile instead of a professional career, and little desirous of public distinctions, he acquired an influence which made his life, while for many years one of much physical weakness, of great usefulness to the community.

In 1835 he married Elizabeth S., daughter of Rev. Frederick Griddley (Y. C. 1816), of East Lyme, Conn., who together with three of their five children survives him.

1833.

DAVID TILTON died in Woburn, Mass., Feb. 10, 1869, aged 62 years. He was born in Gilmanton, N. H., July 6, 1806.

He studied theology for one year with Rev. Alvan Cobb of Taunton, Mass., and for one year at the Andover Theol. Seminary, and was ordained, Oct. 14, 1835, over the Congregational Church in Edgartown (Martha's Vineyard), Mass. He remained three years in this charge. He was installed, Aug. 12, 1840, pastor of the Congregational Church in Lanesville, Gloucester, Mass., where he continued till the spring of 1850. His health then demanding more active exercise, he moved to North Chelsea, Mass., and was employed as a canvassing agent for the Congregationalist, and for various publishing houses. In 1862 he removed to Woburn. During the latter part of his life, he was agent for Mason Brothers, publishers, of Boston.

Mr. Tilton married, March 14, 1836, Sarah F. Batchelder of Danvers, Mass., who died Oct. 13, 1848. Their children were three sons and two daughters. He married again, Sept. 20, 1849, Miss Thirza Lee of New Britain, Conn., who survives him.

1834.

WILLIAM JUDSON died in Providence, R. I., Aug. 30, 1868, aged 55 years.

He was the son of Daniel and Sarah (Plant) Judson, and was born in Stratford, Conn., June 9, 1813.

He studied law in the Law School connected with Yale College, and after completing the course commenced practice in New York City. He soon, however, left general practice, and forming a connection with Charles Goodyear, the inventor of vulcanized rubber, took the direction of the numerous suits in which Mr. Goodyear was engaged in defending his patent. This connection not only brought him into contact with the most distinguished legal talent in the country, but was also highly remunerative.

He married late in life, and left no children.

The disease of which he died, softening of the brain, commenced several years previous to his death.

His brother, David P. Judson of the class of 1831, has also died during the past year.

1836.

RALPH DAYTON died on Staten Island, N. Y., Aug. 13, 1868, aged 53 years.

He was a native of East Hampton, L. I., and entered College during Junior year.

Mr. Dayton taught, after graduating, for a short time in the Clinton Academy, East Hampton, and subsequently in other Academies and private schools elsewhere.

At the time of his death he was resident as an instructor in the family of his cousin, Mrs. Tyler, the widow of President Tyler.

1837.

JAMES AUGUSTUS HAWLEY was born at Farmington, Conn., June 1, 1813, and died at Vicksburg, Miss., Aug. 20, 1868. He was the son of Rufus F. and Betsey (Richards) Hawley, and a brother of Rev. Z. K. Hawley (Y. C. 1833).

He studied theology in Yale Theological Seminary from 1837 to 1840. He was ordained pastor of a Church in Farmington, Ill., Jan. 13, 1841, but left that position on account of ill health in August, 1842. From Oct., 1842 to Nov., 1849, he was settled over the Congregational Church in Ridgefield, Conn.; for the next three years in Augusta, Ill., and from 1852 to 1854 in Jackson, Mich. He then left the ministry, owing to the failure of his health, and engaged in business in Jackson until the fall of 1859. Thence he went to Wisconsin, hoping to resume, in that more favorable climate, his ministerial work. After the experiment of preaching for a year, at Racine and Baraboo, he took charge of the Congregational Church in Ripon, in 1860. From 1864 to 1866 he was in the service of the U. S., first as Chaplain of the Sixty-third U. S. Colored Infantry, then as Superintendent of Colored Schools for the district of Vicksburg, extending 200 miles along the Mississippi. In 1865 he was made Sub-Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau, and assistant in the office of the Commissioner for Mississippi. He resigned in 1866, and engaged in planting and in real estate business in Vicksburg, devoting himself generally to the interests of reconstruction. He was married, Oct. 21, 1840, to Mary Ann Trowbridge, of New Haven, who died of cholera, July 3, 1850. He married as his second wife, Sept. 1, 1852, Ellen C. Ackerman, of Peoria, Ill., who died Nov. 5, 1863. Of four children by his first marriage, one son and one daughter are living.

Mr. Hawley died from congestion of the brain, the result of a cold caught by exposure to a shower four days earlier.

1838.]

JAMES BURNET CRANE died in Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 30, 1868, aged 49 years. He was the son of Rev. John R. and Harriet (Burnet) Crane, and was born in Middletown, Conn., Jan. 26, 1819.

He studied law, and was for a time in business; in 1850-51 he studied in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, N. J., and was ordained and installed colleague pastor with his father over the First Congregational Church in Middletown, Conn., Jan. 11, 1854. He resigned this charge, April 15, 1856, on account of ill health.

He entered the United States Army, as Hospital Chaplain, in April, 1863, and remained until the war's close; at which time his health began to fail.

He died suddenly, from congestion of the brain, produced by a fall.

He was married in 1847; and a second time, Dec. 4, 1861, to Miss Kate W. Field of Philadelphia, who with an only son survives him.

THOMAS MARSHALL KEY was the son of Marshall Key—a connection of Chief Justice Marshall, and was born in Mason County, Ky., in 1819.

He graduated at Augusta College, Ky., and entered Yale in Sophomore year.

He went to Cincinnati after graduation and entered upon the practice of the law, as partner of Alphonso Taft (Y. C. 1833). In 1848 the Commercial Court of Cincinnati was established, of which he served as Judge for five years. He resumed his profession in 1853, and continued in it, in partnership and alone, up to the breaking out of the rebellion. In 1858 he was elected a member of the State Senate on the Democratic ticket. While still in this position, the attack on Fort Sumter occurred, and Judge Key took an active and controlling part in securing unanimous action in the Legislature for the support of the National Government. In this he was brought into contact with Gen. McClellan, became Judge Advocate on his staff with the rank of Colonel, and received in an unusual degree the confidence of his commander. He remained in this position while Gen. McClellan continued in command. While stationed in Washington, he drafted, and promoted the passage of, the bill abolishing slavery in the District of Columbia. When McClellan was removed he returned to the labors of his profession in Cincinnati. He was married, June, 1858, to Mrs. Elizabeth B. Boylan.

He contracted pulmonary disease under the exposure of the Chickahominy and Antietam campaigns, and was never well afterward. He died at Lebanon, Ohio, Jan. 15, 1869.

JAMES McCHAIN, the son of John and Elizabeth McChain, was born in N. Y. City, Febr. 4, 1819.

He graduated at the Union Theological Seminary, N. Y. City, 1841, and was ordained pastor of the N. S. Presbyterian Church at Franklin, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1843. In Oct., 1843, he became pastor of the (N. S.) Presbyterian Church in Abingdon, Va., a relation which was terminated only by his death, of consumption at Abingdon, March 1, 1869. During his pastorate he was untiring in his labors for the spread of the gospel in his neighborhood, and his life was shortened by these incessant exertions.

He was married in March, 1845, to Miss Jane C. Gibson. They had two children, a son and a daughter, who with their mother survive him.

1841.

WILLIAM TAYLOR SULLIVAN BARRY was born in Columbus, Lowndes Co., Miss., Dec. 12, 1821, and died in the same place, Jan. 29, 1868, of consumption.

After graduating he took a plantation in Oktibbeha County, adjoining his native county, and commenced studying law. For two or three years he practised law in Columbus, but in 1847 or 1848 returned to his plantation. He was elected to the State Legislature in 1849 and 1851. He afterward removed to Sunflower County, in the valley of the Mississippi. In 1853-5 he was a Representative in Congress, but refused a re-election and settled again in Columbus to practice law. In the latter part of 1855 he was returned to the State Legislature, and was chosen speaker.

He was a seceder from the Charleston Convention of 1860, and participated in the nomination of Breckenridge at Baltimore. In 1861 he was President of the Secession Convention of Mississippi, and member of the Confederate Provisional Congress. In June of the same year he entered the military service, and in the spring of 1862 he raised a regiment (35th Mississippi), with whom as their Colonel he served until captured at Mobile in April, 1865.

He afterward returned to his professional life in Columbus.

His wife (Sallie, daughter of Dr. Thomas Fearn of Huntsville, Alab.), to whom he was married in December, 1851, survives him, with one son.

JOHN NICHOLSON WASHINGTON, son of Nicholson and Elizabeth (McKinne) Washington, was born Nov. 19, 1819, at Spring Bank, a country seat on the Neuse River, Wayne Co., N. C. His grandfather is said to have been first cousin to Gen. Washington. His brother, William H., graduated at this College in 1834.

He entered Yale College in Jan., 1839, from Randolph-Macon College, Va., and after graduation remained in the Yale Law School for one year. In Jan., 1843, he commenced practice in Rutherfordton, N. C.; a year later he removed to New Berne, N. C., where he practiced till 1854. He then made a long visit to Europe, and after his return lived in retirement, in the enjoyment of a large fortune. In 1862 he was an officer in the Confederate army, and afterward he moved to Pittsborough, Chatham County, where he taught a private school until the close of the war. He immediately returned to New Berne, and in the summer of 1865 was elected Mayor of the city. After the expiration of his term of office, he resumed the practice of his profession.

He married, Jan. 12, 1848, Miss Sallie V. Emery. She survives him, as also eight of their eleven children.

Mr. Washington died at New Berne, Feb. 14, 1869.

1842.

DAVID GOULD SHERMAN died at Marion, Alabama, August 8, 1868, in the 48th year of his age.

He was the son of David and Lovisa Sherman, and was born in Ware, Mass., April 13, 1821.

After graduation he taught in Macon, Miss., until 1846, and afterward in Natchez, Miss., until 1848. He then returned to the North, and studied law, partly in his native town, and partly in the Law School of Harvard University. On being admitted to the bar in 1850, he went to the South with the intention of practising law, but his immediate interests and inclination made the profession of teaching more attractive. He had charge of a High School in Macon, Miss., until July, 1854, when he removed to Marion, Ala. Here he taught for a few months in the Judson Female Institute, when he was appointed, in 1855, Professor of Ancient Languages in Howard College (Baptist) in the same place. He remained in this position until 1862. For the next five years he conducted a private school.

In June, 1868, he was re-elected to his professorship, and was to have entered upon his duties in October; in July he was prostrated by an attack of typhoid fever, which caused his death in a few weeks.

Professor Sherman was married, Oct. 13, 1850, to Mrs. Mary H. Kennon of Marion, who survives him with one son and one daughter.

1843.

GIDEON GRANGER died in Canandaigua, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1868, aged 47 years.

He was born in Canandaigua, Aug. 30, 1821, and was the fourth of his family in direct line to graduate from this College; a notice of his father may be found on page 300 of this Obituary Record.

He studied law in his native place, where he continued to reside in the practice of his profession; devoting, from the outset of his career, the bulk of his professional labors to the service of the poor. During the late war, he was foremost in encouraging enlistments, and in caring for the families of those who were in the field. The sorrow of the entire community at his death testified to the rare worth of his life.

Mr. Granger was married, July 2, 1850, to Miss Josephine Pierson of Canandaigua. His widow with two daughters survives him.

An address at the funeral, by Rev. Frederic B. Allen, with other tributes, has been privately printed.

1846.

SAMUEL ROBBINS, son of Samuel and Fanny Robbins, was born in Woodbury, Conn., Sept. 2, 1822. He died in Glendale, Hamilton County, Ohio, June 8, 1869, of chronic pyæmia, after a long illness.

In his infancy his parents removed to Onondaga County, N. Y., where his boyhood was spent.

After graduating he was for two years principal of the Walterboro' Academy, S. C. In 1852 he graduated in medicine in N. Y. City, and was appointed physician of the Nursery Hospital on Randall's Island. Subsequently he spent more than a year in study in Paris and London. On his return he settled as a physician in South Carolina, and about ten years before his death removed to Glendale, while he continued to be engaged in his profession. He was also an Elder in the Presbyterian Church.

In June, 1858, Dr. Robbins was married to Elizabeth M. Oliver of Yates County, N. Y., who survives him. Their children, two sons and one daughter, died in childhood.

1848.

CHARLES DIMON STURGES, son of Lothrop L. and Jane (Corey) Sturges, was born in New York City, Jan. 14, 1827.

After graduation he entered into business, from which he retired in 1862.

He resided in New York City until his death, which occurred Aug. 27, 1868, in the 42d year of his age.

He was unmarried.

1852.

EDWARD JESUP ALVORD died at Southport, in Fairfield, Conn., Oct. 16, 1868, in the 38th year of his age.

He was the only son of Jesup and Susan Alvord, and was born at Southport, March 26, 1831.

After graduation, he studied law, under Judge Thomas B. Osborne (Y. C. 1817), in Fairfield, and also engaged in teaching in the same town, and was admitted to the bar of Fairfield County, Oct. 16, 1858. He then commenced the practice of his profession in the village of Southport, where he remained till his death.

In 1862, he represented the town in the State Legislature.

He married, June 15, 1859, Miss Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of the late Walter Bulkley, of Southport. She died June 20, 1866. Two of their children died in infancy, and the only remaining child, a boy of five years, died of dysentery in September, 1868. The father, brought down by exhaustion and sorrow at this last bereavement, fell an easy victim of the same disease some three weeks later.

HAMILTON CREIGHTON, son of Robert and Eliza Creighton, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., June 17, 1833.

After leaving College he became a member of the firm of Robert Creighton and Co., importers of dry goods, in Philadelphia. After the death of his father, in 1863, he was occupied in settling the business.

In 1867 he visited Europe, but without improvement to his health, and his death occurred at his residence in Philadelphia, Nov. 24, 1868.

He was never married.

FRANKLIN GRUBE was born in East Coventry, Chester County, Pa., Feb. 10, 1831, and died of congestion of the liver at Jacksonville, Oregon, June 11, 1869, after an illness of only four days.

In 1854 he graduated as M. D. at the University of Pennsylvania, then spent a year in foreign travel, and then removed to Clinton, Miss. In 1857 he removed to Geary City, Kansas, where he practiced his profession. He also filled various public offices, and in 1861 was chosen by the Union party a member of the State Legislature. During the war he served three years as a Surgeon of the U. S. Volunteers from Pennsylvania, and was for a time the executive officer of Denison General Hospital, Camp Denison, Ohio.

Dr. Grube married, June 16, 1864, Miss A. L. Culver, of Rochester, N. Y., and soon after removed to Oregon City. At the time of his death he was practicing medicine in Jacksonville. His widow survives him, with two sons.

1854.

LUTHER MAXWELL LEE, son of James I. and Mary (Newman) Lee, was born at Meadville, Miss., Jan. 27, 1831.

After graduation he studied law in his native town, and on being admitted to the bar in March, 1855, commenced practice. During the rebellion he was in the Confederate army, holding a commission in a Mississippi regiment, and going through hard service. At the close of the struggle he returned to his home, intending to resume the practice of the law, but was delayed by shattered health and family afflictions.

He married in June, 1859, Miss Mock, who died May, 1866. She left one son.

Mr. Lee died at Meadville, Miss., Febr. 12, 1869, aged 38 years.

WILLIAM SHERMAN POTTS died at Dubuque, Iowa, Dec. 8, 1868, aged 33 years.

He was the oldest son of Joseph C. and Elizabeth (Sherman) Potts, and was born at Trenton, N. J., June 3, 1835.

He spent the winter following graduation at St. Augustine, Fla., for his health, and the summer succeeding was occupied with a trip across the western plains.

The winter of 1855-6, he was in business in Philadelphia, at the same time attending Pharmaceutical lectures. A return of attacks of hemorrhage induced him to try St. Paul, Minn., as a place of residence, and in the spring of 1856 he established himself there. He went into the drug business, in which he remained (with the exception of a year or two when health did not permit) until the summer of 1868. Repeated hemorrhages then warned him to try a milder climate, and he was on his way to Little Rock, Ark., when he died.

He married Miss Harriet Ingersoll of St. Paul, July 3, 1860, who survives him.

1860.

THADDEUS HOWE BROWN died in North Woodstock, Conn., Oct. 19, 1868, aged 30 years and 4 months.

He was the only surviving child of Dr. Thaddeus Brown (Y. C. 1826, M.D. Harvard, 1830) and Susan (Crosby) Brown, of Billerica, Mass., where he was born, June 17, 1838. Being early left an orphan, his boyhood was passed in Andover, Mass., under the care of an aunt, and there he prepared for College.

After graduating he returned to Andover for theological study, and finished the course at the Seminary in 1864; in the meantime he married, July 23, 1862, in New Haven, Lydia W., daughter of Rev. Henry Herrick (Y. C. 1822), and neice of the late Edward C. Herrick, Treasurer of Yale College. Immediately after his marriage, he went to Europe, and remained until Sept., 1863, most of the time at Heidelberg, engaged in theological studies.

He preached for six months in Pittsford, Vt., and in 1866, accepted a call to the Congregational Church in North Woodstock, Conn., where he was ordained pastor, April 11. He continued in this relation until his death, which was the sudden result of an illness of less than a week's duration, contracted while at the meeting of the "American Board" at Norwich, Conn.

He leaves a widow with three children.

JOHN RUSSELL PARSONS, son of Col. Edward Parsons, was born in Northampton, Mass., Aug. 24, 1838, and was drowned at Jackson, Miss., Mch. 3, 1869.

After graduation he remained at home until the fall of 1861, when he engaged in enlisting troops in Western Mass. He was made a 2d Lieutenant in the 31st Mass. Volunteers and sent to the Department of the Gulf. With his regiment he was there transferred to the 1st Loyal Regiment of Louisiana Volunteers, as Captain. He was subsequently promoted to the rank of major, and served to the close of the war. He then remained at the South, partly engaged in mercantile pursuits, and for the last three years of his life resided in Jackson, Miss. His intention on graduating was to study law, but the needs of his country appeared more pressing, and continued to demand his time and energies.

At the time of his death he was a member of the House of Representatives from Hinds County.

On the 3d of March, a friend with whom he had passed the evening parted from him at a short distance from his residence; it was not until a week later that his body was found in the river near by.

FRANCIS ROSCOE WAY, the son of Francis D. Way of Philadelphia, was born in that city, April 28, 1840.

After graduation he commenced to study law in Philadelphia, and was admitted to the bar in 1863. In the summer of that year he joined an artillery company (the 1st Philadelphia Light Battery), organized for temporary service in consequence of the invasion of Pennsylvania by Gen. Lee. A few weeks of exposure, combined with the excitement of actual conflict, sufficed to destroy his health, not strong before. He afterward entered into active business, without being able to check the progress of his disease. He went in Dec., 1867, to Florida, in hope of being benefitted by the climate. His strength, however, failed rapidly, and on the 16th of March, 1868, he died in Jacksonville, in his 28th year. His remains were brought home, and buried at Laurel Hill.

1861.

SEXTUS SHEARER, Jr., was born in Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 14, 1838. In 1843, his family removed to St. Louis, Mo., from which place he entered College.

In December, 1861, he left New York for San Francisco, (his father's present residence,) via Cape Horn, and returned by the same route in November, 1866. During the larger portion of the intermediate time, he was in a Law office in San Francisco; and after relinquishing the idea of making the law his profession, he spent some time in teaching. On his return to the east, he entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, Mass. His studies were interrupted in February, 1868, by a violent attack of bronchitis, and by advice of physicians he sailed for California on the first of June.

Notwithstanding the change of climate, the change of seasons, and the most strenuous efforts of friends to baffle disease, he sank rapidly and died of consumption at San Diego, Lower California, March 5, 1869. With rare talents, kindness of heart, and devotion to high purposes, his prospects of usefulness were thus terminated, before he had even entered on his work. His death was sudden, as he rode six miles the day previous, and had taken more or less exercise every day.

1862.

EBEN THOMAS HALE died in Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 7, 1868, aged 26 years and 4 months.

He was the son of Eben and Lucy (Balch) Hale, and was born in Newburyport, May 9, 1842.

He entered College at the beginning of the course, and graduated with his class, but was obliged during Sophomore year to spend two terms at Amherst College, on account of a throat difficulty aggravated by the climate of New Haven.

A few months after graduating he enlisted in the 45th Mass. Volunteers, known as the "Cadet Regiment," and served nine months under Gen. Foster in North Carolina. After his return he studied in the Harvard College Law School, where he received the degree of LL.B. in 1865.

His health, never firm, was further impaired by the exposure of his military life, and in 1866 he made a voyage to Rio Janeiro, from which, however, only temporary relief was gained. The disease under which he was laboring, increased by a severe chill occasioned by sea-bathing, finally terminated his life.

1866.

DANIEL WESLEY INGERSOLL, Jr., was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 21, 1843. He was the son of D. W. Ingersoll, now of St. Paul, Minn., formerly of New York City.

He entered College with the class of 1865, but his course was several times interrupted on account of poor health, and in Senior year he was obliged to seek change of air. He went to Minnesota and entered the Quarter-Master's Department, and accompanied Sherman's army in its march through North Carolina. He then returned to College, and graduated with the next class.

He entered the Albany Law School in the fall, and the next summer received the degree of LL.B. and was admitted to the bar. The next year he spent in New York City, in the office of Bangs, Sedgwick & North. His health again failing, he returned in the summer of 1868 to St. Paul, and was never able to resume his profession.

He died at St. Paul, Feb. 3, 1869, at the age of 26.

He was unmarried.

RICHARD EDWARD SMYTH, the younger son of Ralph D. (Y. C. 1827) and Rachel (Seward) Smith, of Guilford, Conn., was born in that town, Sept. 2d, 1846, and died at his father's house, Dec. 18, 1868, aged 22 years. His only brother, Walter H. Smyth, graduated in 1863, and died in the same year.

He was fitted for college at the Guilford Institute. After graduating, in enfeebled health, he remained at home for a few months, and then went to Mechanicsville, N. Y., as instructor in an Academy. He returned home, March, 1868, and the remaining months of his life were a prolonged struggle with disease. It was ascertained after death that his sufferings were caused by a cancer in the cavity of the abdomen.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

1816.

JOSIAH BOWERS died in Billerica, Mass., Nov. 5th, 1868, aged 77 years.

He was the third son of Benjamin and Silence (Stickney) Bowers and was born in Billerica, Mass., Sept. 1st, 1791.

When about 19 he went to Hingham, Mass., where he pursued his studies with his brother-in-law, the Rev. Joseph Richardson, and was engaged for a while in teaching.

He commenced the study of medicine with the late Dr. Gordon of Hingham, and was for several years the private pupil of the late Prof. Nathan Smith of New Haven.

After graduating he settled in Huntington, L. I., where he gained a high reputation as a physician and Surgeon.

In 1821 he removed to Setauket where he practiced a number of years and subsequently removed to Smithtown, which is between Setauket and Huntington. With a reputation which brought him all the business he cared to attend to, when about 50 years old he made trial of Homœopathy and adopted it on the results of his own experience.

He was one of the original members of the American Institute of Homœopathy.

In 1850, he opened an office in the city of New York. About ten years before his death, becoming tired of the labor and exertions of city practice, he retired to his native place to spend the remainder of his days.

He was twice married, but had no children.

1819.

THOMAS R. BOUTELLE died in Fitchburg, Mass., July 13, 1869, after a long illness, at the age of 74.

He had lived for the last thirty years in Fitchburg, having removed there from Leominster, Mass., about 1838.

1825.

CHARLES MILES FAY died in Charlton, Mass., Dec. 18, 1868, aged 68. He was the son of John and Mehitabel (Brigham) Fay, and was born in Westborough, Mass., Sept. 24, 1800.

After leaving the medical school, he pursued further studies with Dr. Bay of Albany, N. Y. In 1826, he commenced practice in Charlton, Mass., where he continued (with the exception of five years, from 1846 to 1851, which he spent in Southbridge, Mass.) until his death.

Dr. Fay was married, April 5, 1827, to Altha R. Waters, who died June 22, 1828. He was next married, Jan. 1, 1829, to Lucy M. T. Fitts, who died Feb. 5, 1840. He was next married, Feb. 10, 1842, to Frances A. Spurr, who survives him. Two daughters, one the child of the second, and the other of the third marriage, are his only surviving children.

GUY ROWLAND PHELPS was the son of Noah Amherst Phelps (Y. C. 1783) and Charlotte Wilcox Phelps. He was born at Simsbury, Conn., April 1, 1802.

Before taking his medical degree he had studied with Dr. Bestor of Simsbury, and with Dr. Cogswell of Hartford.

In 1827 he commenced the practice of medicine in the city of New York, but some two years later a change of location was rendered desirable by the state of his health, and he returned to his native town. After years of successful practice here, increasing ill health obliged him to relinquish his profession. Soon after he removed to Hartford, and from 1845 devoted his energies to the business of Life Insurance. By his exertions the charter of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company was secured in 1846, of which he was the first Secretary, and afterward President. The remarkable success of Life Insurance in America is perhaps mainly due to the tact and industry of Dr. Phelps.

Dr. Phelps died at his residence after a week's illness, of congestion of the lungs, March 18, 1869.

He married Miss Hannah Latimer of Simsbury, April 7, 1833. Their children were one son and three daughters. His wife with one daughter survives him.

1826.

EDWARD WING GREENE, the sixth son and ninth child of Dr. Rowland Greene, of Cranston, R. I., was born Nov. 18, 1803. His early years were spent on a farm.

After completing his medical studies, he settled in New Bedford, Mass., and pursued the practice of his profession there for about seven years. His health then being poor, he engaged in the drug business. Having become warmly interested in politics, he was appointed Post Master of the city, early in President Polk's administration, but was removed at General Taylor's accession in 1849. Owing to the state of his health he did not again enter active business, except so far as required by the care of the estate of his father, who died in 1859. Being unmarried, he spent the latter part of his life with various relatives in Rhode Island, chiefly in Bristol, where he died, May 12, 1869, in the 66th year of his age.

DAVID STUART DODGE was the eldest son of David Low and Sarah Cleveland Dodge, and was born in Hartford, Conn., July 14, 1803.

He commenced the practice of medicine in Fairfield, Conn., and after three or four years removed to Hartford, where he pursued his profession till about the year 1848. Not robust in health, and therefore deeming a change desirable, he relinquished his practice, and removed to New York City in the fall of 1849, where he resided until his death, May 23, 1869.

His wife, to whom he was married in April, 1827, died in May, 1864. They had ten children, seven of whom were their survivors. One son is a graduate of this college in the class of 1866.

He left also a widow, to whom he was married in January, 1867.

1829.

ELIAS FRENCH MAYNARD died at Jacksonville, Fla., May 28, 1869.

While pursuing his medical studies here, he resided in Trenton, N. J.

1832.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS HOAGLAND was born May 17, 1810, in Griggstown, N. J., and graduated at Rutgers College in 1828.

He studied medicine with Dr. W. W. Perrine of Harlingen, N. J., and attended two courses of lectures in the University of Pennsylvania, before coming to New Haven in 1831.

He first practiced medicine in Raysfield, N. J., then in Catskill, N. Y., then from 1836 till about 1842 in Readington, N. J. He then relinquished his profession for other pursuits, and was for a time Superintendent of Common Schools in N. J. In Nov., 1855, he removed to Henry, Marshall Co., Ill., where his family still reside. In Nov., 1863, he entered the service of the American Bible Society as a County Agent in Illinois, and was thus engaged till Nov., 1866, when he was appointed State Agent for Southern Iowa, which office he held till his death.

He died after two hours' illness, in Des Moines, Iowa, March 19, 1869.

Dr. Hoagland married, Sept. 11, 1832, Gertrude M. Labagh, daughter of Rev. Peter Labagh, of Harlingen, N. J., who survives him. He left four sons and five daughters.

DAVID PRITCHARD, fourth son of David Pritchard, Jr., and Anna (Hitchcock) Pritchard of Waterbury, Conn., was born Oct. 24, 1810, and died at South Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 30, 1868, aged 58 years.

Dr. Pritchard commenced the labors of his profession at Madison, Conn. He subsequently resided in New Haven, Conn., and in several towns in New Jersey. From Hightstown, N. J., he removed to South Norwalk, Conn., in 1861, and was there engaged in practice at the time of his decease. The cause of his death was a cancerous affection of the kidneys, which laid him aside from active labor for only a few weeks.

He married while living in Madison, and his wife, with one son and two daughters, survives him.

1852.

JOHN SHUTE MOODY was the son of Dr. Anson (Y. C. 1814, and M.D. 1840,) and Clarissa (Collins) Moody, and was born in Belchertown, Mass., where his father was at that time in the practice of medicine, July 26, 1828.

He commenced the study of medicine with his father, then residing in New Haven, and subsequently attended the lectures at the Medical College. After receiving his degree he spent one year in the Conn. General Hospital at New Haven. He then commenced practice in Bristol, Conn., but afterward opened a drug-store, to which he chiefly devoted himself. About 1858 he removed to Norwalk, Conn., where he practiced medicine until his death, Sept. 16, 1868, at the age of 46. He was unmarried.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

1864.

WILLIAM WHITTINGHAM KEHLER, of Denver, Colorado, died in that place, Nov. 22, 1868.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1796	John H. Tucker, 91.	Somerville, Bermuda,	July 20, 1868.
1804	Royal R. Hinman, 83,	New York City,	Oct. 16, 1868.
1804	Rev. John Marsh, 80,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	Aug. 4, 1868.
1804	Henry Swift, 82,	Poughkeepsie, N. Y.,	Nov. 5, 1866.
1804	Dr. Charles H. Wetmore, 85,	Columbus, O.,	Oct. 10, 1868.
1805	Dr. Earl Swift, 85,	Mansfield, Conn.,	June 14, 1869.
1806	Rev. Simeon Colton, 84,	Asheborough, N. C.,	Dec. 27, 1868.
1806	Hezekiah Rudd, 87,	Norwich, Conn.,	Sept. 11, 1868.
1807	Dr. Alex. H. Stevens, 79,	New York City,	March 30, 1869.
1808	Milton Barlow, 83,	East Chester, N. Y.,	Oct. 26, 1867.
1809	Elisha B. Strong, 79,	Detroit, Mich.,	Oct. 14, 1867.
1811	Hon. Francis Granger, 75,	Canandaigua, N. Y.,	Aug. 28, 1868.
1811	Rev. Isaac Parsons, 78,	East Haddam, Conn.,	Aug. 22, 1868.
1811	Rev. Joseph Vail, 78,	Palmer, Mass.,	Feb. 22, 1869.
1812	Richard C. Morse, 73,	Kissingen, Bavaria,	Sept. 22, 1868.
1812	Prof. Theodore Strong, 78,	New Brunswick, N. J.,	Feb. 1, 1869.
1813	Thomas P. Devereux, 75,	Halifax County, N. C.,	March 7, 1869.
1813	Rev. Benjamin Fenn, 77,	Hartford, O.,	June 25, 1869.
1815	Rev. Roger C. Hatch, 84,	Warwick, Mass.,	Sept. 12, 1868.
1815	Hon. William Jessup, 71,	Montrose, Pa.,	Sept. 11, 1868.
1816	Rev. Edward Bull, 77,	Cheshire, Conn.,	April 25, 1869.
1816	Hawley Olmstead, 75,	New Haven, Conn.,	Dec. 3, 1868.
1816	Luman Whittlesey, 72,	Alexandria, Va.,	Jan. 14, 1863.
1817	Hon. Thos. T. Whittlesey, 69,	Madison, Wisc.,	Aug. 20, 1868.
1818	James W. Crooks, 74,	Springfield, Mass.,	Aug. 5, 1867.
1818	Hon. Henry Dutton, 73,	New Haven, Conn.,	April 26, 1869.
1818	Rev. John W. Salter, 71,	Mansfield, Conn.,	July 6, 1869.
1818	Rev. Horace Smith, 70,	Richfield, O.,	Nov. 20, 1868.
1820	Hon. Edward Frost, 67,	Charleston, S. C.,	July 21, 1868.
1822	Rev. Henry Benedict, 72,	Saratoga Springs, N. Y.,	July 18, 1868.
1823	Rev. Sumner G. Clapp, 68,	Boston, Mass.,	Jan. 26, 1869.
1823	Hiram W. Husted, 66,	Raleigh, N. C.,	Dec. 20, 1868.
1825	Elisha S. Abernethy, 63,	Bridgeport, Conn.,	June 4, 1869.
1825	Dr. N. Beers Ives, 63,	New Haven, Conn.,	June 18, 1869.
1825	Dr. John B. McDowell, 63,	St. Louis, Mo.,	July 8, 1863.
1825	Chester White, 70,	Racine, Wisc.,	April 10, 1868.
1827	Hon. George Gould, 61,	Troy, N. Y.,	Dec. 6, 1868.
1831	Rev. William J. Breed, 59,	Taunton, Mass.,	April 12, 1869.
1831	Dr. Seth C. Huston, 56,	W. Philadelphia, Pa.,	Feb. 9, 1867.
1831	David P. Judson, 60,	Stratford, Conn.,	May 23, 1869.
1833	Rev. David Tilton, 63,	Woburn, Mass.,	Feb. 10, 1869.
1834	William Judson, 55,	Providence, R. I.,	Aug. 30, 1868.
1836	Ralph Dayton, 53,	Staten Island, N. Y.,	Aug. 13, 1868.
1837	Rev. James A. Hawley, 55,	Vicksburg, Miss.,	Aug. 20, 1868.
1838	Rev. James B. Crane, 49,	Elizabeth, N. J.,	Sept. 30, 1868.
1838	Hon. Thomas M. Key, 50,	Lebanon, O.,	Jan. 15, 1869.
1838	Rev. James McChain, 50,	Abingdon, Va.,	March 1, 1869.
1841	Hon. William T. S. Barry, 46,	Columbus, Miss.,	Jan. 29, 1868.
1841	John N. Washington, 49,	New Berne, N. C.,	Feb. 14, 1869.
1842	Prof. David G. Sherman, 47,	Marion, Ala.,	Aug. 8, 1868.
1843	Gideon Granger, 47,	Canandaigua, N. Y.,	Sept. 3, 1868.
1846	Dr. Samuel Robbins, 46,	Glendale, O.,	June 8, 1869.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1848	Charles D. Sturges, 41,	New York City,	Aug. 27, 1868.
1852	Edward J. Alvord, 37,	Southport, Conn.,	Oct. 16, 1868.
1852	Hamilton Creighton, 35,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	Nov. 24, 1868.
1852	Dr. Franklin Grube, 38,	Jacksonville, Oregon,	June 11, 1869.
1854	Luther M. Lee, 38,	Meadville, Miss.,	Feb. 12, 1869.
1854	William S. Potts, 33,	Dubuque, Iowa,	Dec. 8, 1868.
1860	Rev. Thaddeus H. Brown, 30,	Woodstock, Conn.,	Oct. 19, 1868.
1860	John R. Parsons, 30,	Jackson, Miss.,	March 3, 1869.
1860	Francis R. Way, 28,	Jacksonville, Fla.,	March 16, 1868.
1861	Sextus Shearer, 30,	San Diego, Cal.,	March 5, 1869.
1862	E. Thomas Hale, 26,	Newburyport, Mass.,	Sept. 7, 1868.
1866	D. Wesley Ingersoll, 25,	St. Paul, Minn.,	Feb. 3, 1869.
1866	Richard E. Smyth, 22,	Guilford, Conn.,	Dec. 18, 1868.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

1816	Josiah Bowers, 77,	Billerica, Mass.,	Nov. 5, 1868.
1819	Thomas R. Boutelle, 74,	Fitchburg, Mass.,	July 13, 1869.
1825	Charles M. Fay, 68,	Charleston, Mass.,	Dec. 18, 1868.
1825	Guy R. Phelps, 67,	Hartford, Conn.,	March 18, 1869.
1826	David S. Dodge, 65,	New York City,	May 23, 1869.
1826	Edward W. Greene, 65,	Bristol, R. I.,	May 12, 1869.
1829	Elias F. Maynard,	Jacksonville, Fla.,	May 28, 1869.
1832	Christopher C. Hoagland, 58,	Des Moines, Iowa,	March 19, 1869.
1832	David Pritchard, 58,	South Norwalk, Conn.,	Oct. 30, 1868.
1852	John S. Moody, 40,	Norwalk, Conn.,	Sept. 16, 1868.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

1864	William W. Kehler,	Denver, Col.,	Nov. 22, 1868.
------	--------------------	---------------	----------------

The whole number of deaths reported this year is 76, and the average age of the Academical graduates is 61½ years.

Of the deceased, from the Academical Department, 23 were Lawyers, 17 Clergymen, 8 Physicians, 7 Teachers and Professors, 8 in Business, and 1 Editor.

The deaths are distributed as follows:—in Connecticut, 16; N. Y., 12; Mass., 10; Ohio, 5; Mississippi and N. Carolina, 4 each; Penns., 3; Florida, Iowa, N. J., R. I., Wisc., 2 each; 1 in Bermuda, 1 in Germany, and the remaining 8 in as many different states.

The surviving graduates of the last century are—

Class of 1794,	Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, Utica, N. Y.
" " 1796,	TIMOTHY BISHOP, Esq., New Haven.
" " 1797,	Rev. CHARLES GOODRICH, Penn Yan, N. Y.
" " 1800,	Rev. THOMAS WILLIAMS, Providence, R. I.

The Annual Obituary Record of Graduates of Yale College was first printed in July, 1860, for the Academical year, 1859-60. It is proposed to publish in July, 1870, a supplementary record of the obituaries of graduates deceased since July, 1859, but not hitherto commemorated in this series. Aid in preparing such a list, and in obtaining information appropriate for the Obituary Record of the current year is urgently requested. Communications may be addressed to the Librarian of the College.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

Class.	Page.	Class.	Page
1825 Abernethy, Elisha S.	313	1838 Key, Thos. M.	319
1852 Alvord, Edward J.	322	1854 Lee, Luther M.	324
1808 Barlow, Milton	299	1804 Marsh, John	294
1841 Barry, Wm. T. S.	320	1838 McChain, James	319
1822 Benedict, Henry	311	1825 McDowell, John B.	314
1831 Breed, Wm. J.	315	1812 Morse, Richard C.	302
1860 Brown, Thaddeus H.	324	1816 Olmstead, Hawley	306
1816 Bull, Edward	305	1811 Parsons, Isaac	301
1822 Clapp, Sumner G.	312	1860 Parsons, John R.	325
1806 Colton, Simeon	296	1854 Potts, Wm. S.	324
1838 Crane, James B.	318	1846 Robbins, Samuel	322
1852 Creighton, Hamilton	323	1806 Rudd, Hezekiah	298
1818 Crooks, James W.	308	1818 Salter, John W.	309
1836 Dayton, Ralph	317	1861 Shearer, Sextus	326
1813 Devereux, Thos. P.	303	1842 Sherman, David G.	321
1818 Dutton, Henry	308	1818 Smith, Horace	310
1813 Fenn, Benjamin	304	1866 Smyth, Richard E.	327
1820 Frost, Edward	311	1807 Stevens, Alex. H.	298
1827 Gould, George	314	1809 Strong, Elisha B.	300
1811 Granger, Francis	300	1812 Strong, Theodore	303
1843 Granger, Gideon	321	1848 Sturges, Chas. D.	322
1852 Grube, Franklin	323	1805 Swift, Earl	296
1862 Hale, E. Thomas	326	1804 Swift, Henry	295
1815 Hatch, Roger C.	304	1833 Tilton, David	316
1837 Hawley, James A.	317	1796 Tucker, John H.	293
1804 Hinman, Royal R.	293	1811 Vaill, Joseph	301
1823 Husted, Hiram W.	312	1841 Washington, John N.	320
1831 Huston, Seth C.	315	1860 Way, Francis R.	325
1866 Ingersoll, D. Wesley	327	1804 Wetmore, Chas. H.	295
1825 Ives, N. Beers	313	1825 White, Chester	314
1815 Jessup, William	305	1816 Whittlesey, Luman	307
1831 Judson, David P.	316	1817 Whittlesey, Thomas T.	307
1834 Judson, Wm.	317

PROFESSIONAL DEPARTMENTS.

1819 Boutelle, Thos. R., M. D.	328	1864 Kehler, Wm. W., LL. B.	331
1816 Bowers, Josiah, M. D.	323	1829 Maynard, Elias F., M. D.	330
1826 Dodge, David S., M. D.	330	1852 Moody, John S., M. D.	331
1825 Fay, Chas. M., M. D.	328	1825 Phelps, Guy R., M. D.	329
1826 Greene, Edward W., M. D.	329	1832 Pritchard, David, M. D.	331
1832 Hoagland, C. C., M. D.	330

OBITUARY RECORD

OF

GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

DECEASED DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR ENDING IN JULY
1870.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 20, 1870.]

[No 11 of the printed Series, and No. 29 of the whole Record.]

OBITUARY RECORD

GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE NAMES OF THE GRAVITIES OF LAKE GOLFERS

337

OBITUARY RECORD

OF GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE

Deceased during the academical year ending in July, 1870.

[Presented at the Meeting of the Alumni, July 20th, 1870.]

[No. 11 of the printed Series, and No. 29 of the whole Record.]

1802.

JOHN KEEP, the last survivor of his class, was born, 20 April, 1781, in Longmeadow, then a precinct of Springfield, Mass. Of a family of nine children he was the seventh.

For a year after he was graduated he taught a school in Bethlehem, Conn., reading theology at the same time with the pastor, Rev. Dr. Azel Backus. He continued his theological course for another year with Rev. Asahel Hooker, of Goshen, Conn., and was licensed by Litchfield North Association, 11 June, 1805. The next Sunday he preached in the Congregational Church in Blandford, Mass., and immediately received an invitation to settle, which he accepted. Here he remained for 16 years. In May, 1821, he removed to the Congregational Church in Homer, N. Y., and was installed November 7. In 1833 he resigned in consequence of disaffection caused by his sympathy with the "new measures" of revivalists. For the following year he preached in the Presbyterian Church in Cleveland, O., and then organized the First Congregational Church in Ohio City, (now Cleveland, West Side,) and became its pastor.

In 1834, Father Keep (as he now began to be called) was elected a Trustee of the Oberlin Institute. While resident in Homer, he had been trustee of Auburn Theol. Seminary, and of Hamilton College. Soon after his election as trustee of Oberlin, he gave, as President of the Board, the casting vote which admitted colored pupils to that institution, and has shaped its remarkable history. In June, 1836, he resigned his charge to accept a financial agency for Oberlin College, but the reverses of 1837 caused his return to pastoral work, as supply in Wooster, O., and in Lockport and Albion, N. Y. Then, in view of the pressing needs of Oberlin, he took part in an 18 months' mission to England, and secured $30,000. He resumed preaching in Mansfield, O., during 1841; then in Hartford, O., for over four years; then in Arcade, N. Y., and Litchfield, O.

In 1850, he removed to Oberlin, and aided in raising an endowment of $100,000 for the College. His after life was spent in Oberlin, where his only son resides, and he died there, of old age, 11 Febr., 1870. His wife Lydia, daughter of Adino Hale, of Goshen, Conn., whom he married in June, 1806, died in 1865. The address at his funeral, by President Fairchild, has been published.

Father Keep was the last survivor of the company of ministers who in 1810 organized the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

1806.

ALFRED HENNEN was born in Elkridge, Md., 17 Oct., 1786. His father, Dr. James Hennen, removed at an early age from Ireland to the United States, and located himself in Nashville, Tenn., in 1795. In 1801 his son was placed with Dr. Rogers of Newport, R. I., to pursue classical studies, and in 1803 he was entered Sophomore in Yale College. He resided in College for two years after graduation, as Berkeley scholar, studying law also with Judge Chauncey.

In 1808 he returned to Nashville, but removed in a few months to New Orleans, where he was admitted to the bar, 1 May, 1809. He practiced in the courts of that city until his death, interrupted only by a two years' residence within the Confederate lines during the war. When Louisiana was invaded in 1814, he enlisted in the cavalry company which formed Gen. Jackson's life guard. His earnest and conscientious pursuit of his profession, with his rare zeal for knowledge, entitled him at the close of life to be called the Nestor of the New Orleans bar. He was one of the original members of the 1st Presbyterian Church in New Orleans, and a Ruling Elder from 1828 till his death.

He died in New Orleans, after ten days' illness, 19 Jan., 1870, in his 84th year. A Discourse, upon occasion of his death, by Rev. B. M. Palmer, D.D., has been published.

Mr. Hennen married, in Aug., 1809, Miss Anna Maria Nicholson, who bore him three children; two died in infancy, and the third lived to enter his father's profession in New Orleans.

After the death of his first wife in 1818, Mr. Hennen was married, in May, 1819, to Miss Ann Maria Davison. Mrs. Hennen survives her husband, after a union of more than fifty years, with eight of her twelve children.

1809.

HENRY MATSON WAITE, the eldest child of Remick and Susannah (Matson) Waite, was born in Lyme, Conn., 9 Febr., 1787, and died in the same town, 14 Dec., 1869.

He entered College at the beginning of Sophomore year, from Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn.

Early in 1810, he commenced the study of law with Hon. Matthew Griswold and Ex-Gov. Roger Griswold, of Lyme. He was admitted to the bar in Dec., 1812, and pursued the practice of his profession thereafter in his native town. In 1815, he was a representative in the lower branch of the State Legislature, and after that was repeatedly re-elected; in 1832 and 1833 he was a member of the State Senate. In 1834, he was elected an Associate Judge of the Superior Court and Supreme Court of Errors, and twenty years later, Chief Justice. In Febr., 1857, having reached the constitutional limit for judicial office, he retired to private life. The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Yale College in 1855.

Judge Waite married, 23 Jan., 1816, Maria, daughter of Col. Richard E. Selden, of Lyme. She died soon after the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day. Of their eight children (seven sons and one daughter), three graduated at Yale College.

A sketch of the life of Judge Waite, with a portrait, was published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for April, 1870.

1811.

DAVID MEAUBEC MITCHELL died in Waltham, Mass., at the house of his son-in-law, Rev. E. E. Strong, 27 Nov., 1869, aged 81½ years. He was the second child of Hon. Ammi R. Mitchell, M.D., of North Yarmouth, Maine, and was born in that town, 9 May, 1788.

He studied theology at Andover, graduating in 1814, and after laboring for a year or more in the service of the Maine Missionary Society, he accepted a call from the Congregational Church in Waldoboro', Me. Here he was ordained, 19 June, 1816, and remained until Sept. 1841, when, after the loss of several children by consumption, he felt obliged to seek a change of climate. After residing for three years in Andover, Mass., he went to Portland, Me., as City Missionary, and remained for five years. Then, in 1851, he undertook a similar work, in connection with the Eliot Church, in Roxbury, Mass., where he labored until February, 1860. His later life was spent with his children in South Natick and Waltham, Mass.

BRYAN KERBY STEVENS, the son of Gen. Ebenezer Stevens, a Revolutionary officer of artillery, and of his wife Lucretia Ledyard, aunt of the well-known traveler, was born in New York City, 20 Apr., 1792, and died in Astoria, L. I., 15 Feb. 1870. His brothers, Samuel, Dr. Alexander H., and John A., graduated at this College in 1804, 1807, and 1813.

Mr. Stevens passed an uneventful life, as a merchant in New York City, beloved and respected by all who knew him.

He married Frances, daughter of the late Hon. Albert Gallatin. She is still living, as are also their seven children, of whom two have graduated at this College, in 1854 and 1858.

FREDERICK AUGUSTUS TALLMADGE was born in Litchfield, Conn., 29 Aug., 1792. His father was Col. Benjamin Tallmadge (Y. C. 1773), of Revolutionary celebrity, and his mother a daughter of Gen. William Floyd, a delegate from N. Y. to the Continental Congress, and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Graduating at the age of 19, he studied at the Litchfield law school, then under the charge of Judge Tapping Reeve. On 14 July, 1812, he was appointed Adjutant of the 7th Regiment of Conn. Militia, and removing soon after to N. Y. City, he served as Captain of a Company of cavalry upon Long Island, for the defence of the city during the war with Great Britain. He was admitted an attorney of the Supreme Court of the state, 3 Nov., 1814, appointed Ensign in the 142d Regiment of Infantry, 4 March, 1817, Brigade Quartermaster of the 3d Brigade of Infantry in April, 1818, Brigade Judge-Advocate of the 3d Brigade on June 22, 1818, and Captain in the 142d Infantry, 27 March, 1819.

He entered early into political life, and for over half a century was closely identified with the prosperity and public improvements of the city of New York. In 1834 he was elected Assistant Alderman, in 1837 State Senator, and from 1841 to 1846 and 1848 to 1851 was Recorder of the city. He was elected to Congress from the 5th district in N. Y. City in 1846. In 1857 he was appointed Superintendent of the newly-organized Metropolitan Police, and was elected Clerk of the Court of Appeals in 1862, retiring from public life at the expiration of his term in 1865. As a politician he was ready, energetic, and fearless; as a judge, dignified, impartial, and courteous.

He married Eliza, daughter of Hon. Judson Canfield, of Sharon, Conn., who, with five children, survives him. He died while on a visit to his daughter, in Litchfield, Conn., 17 Sept., 1869, aged 77.

1812.

NATHANIEL SHAW PERKINS was born in New London, Conn., 11 Febr., 1792. His parents were Elias Perkins, M. C. (Yale Coll. 1786), and Lucretia Shaw, daughter of Rev. Ephraim Woodbridge (Yale Coll. 1765), of New London.

He pursued the study of medicine with Dr. Elisha North of New London, and settled in his native place, where he passed the remainder of his life in the practice of his profession.

He married, in 1818, Ellen Richards, of New London, who survives him. They were the parents of 14 children, 6 of whom are yet alive. One fell in the attack on Kinston in the war of the rebellion. Another graduated at this college in 1842.

After a life of great usefulness, Dr. Perkins died, in the house in which he was born, 25 May, 1870, aged 78.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Medicine was given him by Yale College in 1829.

1813.

MOSES BRISTOL was born in Clinton, N. Y., 2 Oct., 1790.

He entered the Sophomore class in 1810, and in 1813 the Medical school, where he received his diploma in 1816.

Returning to his native village, he there began the practice of his profession, but removed soon after to Manlius, N. Y. In 1822 he removed to Buffalo, and practiced until 1849, when he was compelled by failing health to retire. He afterwards served for one term as County Clerk. For forty-five years he was a Ruling Elder in the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Bristol was stricken with paralysis, Nov. 5, 1869, and died on the next day.

JOHN MUMFORD WOOLSEY, son of William Walton Woolsey, of New York City, and grandson of Benjamin Woolsey (Y. C. 1744), of Dosoris, L. I., was born, 10 Jan., 1796. His mother was Elizabeth Dwight, sister of President Dwight.

He was a merchant in New York City until about 1828, when he removed to Cleveland, O. He resided there, occupied as a land-agent, until 1852, after which date his residence was in New Haven, Conn. He died in New Haven, 11 July, 1870, aged 74 years.

He married Jane, daughter of Dr. John Andrews, of Wallingford, Conn., who survives him, with four daughters and one son.

1814.

SAMUEL PUNDERSON, son of Samuel and Eunice (Gilbert) Punderson, was born in New Haven, Conn., 22 Jan., 1791, studied with Dr. Gilbert, commenced the practice of medicine in 1818, retired from practice in 1860, and died of pneumonia in the same city, 13 March, 1870. At the time of his death he was the senior member of the New Haven Medical Association.

He married in 1823 Caroline Swift, who died 3 Oct., 1860, He had four children, of whom one survives him.

1815.

ALFRED SHEPARD MONSON, son of Dr. Æneas Monson (Y. C. 1780), of New Haven, Conn., was born 23 Sept., 1795, and died in the same city, 22 May, 1870.

He commenced the study of medicine in New Haven, and received a degree at the University of Pennsylvania in 1819. He practiced his profession in his native place, but retired many years before his death.

He married, 22 May, 1822, Mary Ann, daughter of Nathaniel Patten, of Hartford, who survives him, with four of their six children.

1816.

WILLIAM HENRY FOOTE, the son of Stephen and Hannah (Waterman) Foote, was born in Colchester, Conn., 20 Dec., 1794.

His father's means were such that he did not enter College until the Junior year, and he spent part of the Senior year as tutor in a family in Falmouth, Va., in which position he remained until July, 1818. After a few months passed in teaching in Winchester, Va., he studied for one year in Princeton Theological Seminary.

Having been licensed by the Presbytery of Winchester, in Oct., 1819, he preached at various missionary stations in Va., until in June, 1822, he organized and afterwards became pastor of a church in Woodstock, where he continued until Nov., 1824. He then became pastor of the congregations of Mount Bethel, Springfield, and Romney, fixing his residence at Romney. About the beginning of the year 1838, he became agent of the "Central Board of Foreign Missions," residing at Petersburg, Va. and laboring within the bounds of the Synods of Va. and N. C. While thus engaged, he gathered the materials for his volumes, afterwards published, of Sketches, Historical and Biographical, of the Presbyterian Church in Virginia (2 v.) and in N. Carolina (1 v.).

In May, 1845, he returned to his old charge, in Romney, and continued till the beginning of the war in 1861. During his pastorates, at both Woodstock and Romney, he conducted also an academy. During the war he was occupied in lower Virginia as agent for Hampden Sidney College, also in supplying vacant pulpits, and in Petersburg, during Grant's siege, as Chaplain to the hospital. On Lee's surrender he returned to Romney and Springfield (now in W. Va.) to labor till the close of life. In the summer of 1869 he was prostrated by a sunstroke which laid the foundation of fatal disease. He died in Romney, 22 Nov., 1869, aged 75 years.

Dr. Foote married, 21 Febr., 1822, Eliza Wilson, eldest daughter of Rev. Joseph Glass, of Frederick County, Va. She died before his first removal from Romney, and he married, in 1838, Miss Arabella, daughter of Dr. James Gilliam, of Petersburg, Va., who, with one daughter, and one of the two daughters by his first marriage, survives him.

He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Hampden Sidney College in 1847.

ARATUS KENT, son of John Kent, was born in Suffield, Conn., 15 Jan., 1794, and died in Galena, Ill., 8 Nov., 1869, in his 76th year.

He spent four years in theological study in N. Y. city, and was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of N. Y., 20 Apr., 1820. He spent the year 1821 as a missionary in Western Ohio. From 21 Nov., 1822 to 11 Apr., 1823, he was a member of Princeton Theol. Seminary. He was ordained pastor at Lockport, N. Y., 26 Jan., 1825, and continued there three years.

He then offered his services to the Amer. Home Missionary Society, desiring that he might be sent "to a place so hard that no one else would take it." He was commissioned to the Galena lead-mines in March, 1829, and arrived in April. Above St. Louis there was not another Protestant minister on the Mississippi; none in northern Illinois. Having performed much labor in preaching and teaching, he was able to organize the First Presbyterian Church of Galena, 23 Oct., 1831; it consisted of six members, of whom two only, and those females, resided within five miles of the village. He acted as missionary, and as stated supply to this church, until 28 April, 1841, when he was installed pastor. In May, 1848, at the urgent solicitation of the friends of the cause there, the Amer. Home Missionary Society asked him to become its agent for northern Illinois. Accordingly, he was dismissed from his pastoral charge (28 Dec.), and entered on his new duties, and sustained them with rare self-denial for twenty years. In November, 1868, he was attacked with gastritis, on returning from a visit to a mission station in Dakota, and never recovered.

He was married, 4 Sept., 1832, to Miss Caroline, daughter of Daniel Corning, of Hartford, Conn., who survives him. They had three children, who all died in infancy.

In October, 1844, he was the chairman of the committee which sketched the first plan of a College at Beloit; and later, as chairman of the Board of Trustees, he was the first President of that College.

CHARLES PEROT, son of John and Mary Perot, and brother of Edward Perot (Y. C. 1811), was born in Phila., Pa., 9 Nov., 1797, and died in the same city, 6 March, 1870, aged 72.

He was never married.

OLIVER ELLSWORTH WILLIAMS, son of Ezekiel Williams, Jr., (Y. C. 1785), of Hartford, Conn., was born 19 April, 1796. His mother was Abigail, daughter of Hon. Oliver Ellsworth.

He studied law and began practice in his native city, but was drawn into political life, and was for a time the editor of the Connecticut Mirror, a weekly paper published in Hartford.

He was quartermaster general of the State from 1838 to 1842, and in that way acquired the title of colonel, by which he was afterwards known.

He married Miss Elizabeth B. Croade, of Rhode Island, who is still living; of their four daughters, three survive.

Col. Williams died in Hartford, 18 June, 1870.

1817.

THOMAS BURR OSBORNE, son of Jeremiah and Anna (Sherwood) Osborne, was born, 8 July, 1798, in that part of the town of Weston, which is now Easton, Conn., and died in New Haven, Conn., 2 Sept., 1869, aged 71 years.

He entered the Sophomore Class in 1814.

He studied law with Seth P. Staples, Esq., of New Haven, was admitted to the bar at New Haven in the spring of 1820, and in the same year commenced practice in Fairfield, Conn. From 1826 to 1839 he held the office of Clerk of the County and Superior Courts, at the same time continuing the practice of his profession, and representing the town in the State Legislature in 1836. In 1839 he was elected a Representative in Congress, and re-elected in 1841. In 1844 he was sent to the State Senate, and the same year was appointed Judge of the County Court for Fairfield County, which office he held for several years. In 1850 he was again a member of the General Assembly, and the next year was Judge of Probate for Fairfield District.

Judge Osborne removed to New Haven in 1854, and from 1855 to 1865 was Professor in the Law Department of Yale College. With his resignation of this office he retired from public life. In 1856 the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Wesleyan University.

Judge Osborne was married, 6 Sept., 1826, to Miss Elizabeth Huntington, daughter of Ebenezer Dimon, of Fairfield. She died 19 Aug., 1851. Of their three children, one son (Y. C. 1848) and one daughter survive them.

1818.

ALFRED KELLOGG died in Avon, Conn., 6 July, 1870, aged 74 years. He was born in Hebron, Conn., 21 Feb., 1796.

After graduating he taught school, both at the South and North, and then studied medicine. Marrying one of the daughters of Rev. Bela Kellogg, of East Avon parish, he settled there and practiced his profession until obliged by ill health to abandon it. During the latter part of his life he kept a drug store, and served as Town Clerk, Judge of Probate, etc. His wife dying soon after marriage, Dr. Kellogg was married, secondly, to the daughter of John Brocklesby, of Avon. She died before her husband, leaving one son and two daughters who are still living. One son by the former marriage died before his father.

Dr. Kellogg received the honorary degree of M. D. from this college in 1843.

1819.

ELIJAH BISHOP, son of Caleb Bishop, was born in Lisbon, Conn., 27 March, 1797. His mother was the eldest daughter of Col. Ebenezer Tracy of Lisbon.

Soon after graduating, he had charge for two years of the mathematical department of Washington College, Chestertown, Md. He then attended medical lectures in New Haven and received the degree of M. D. in 1823. He commenced practice in Freedom, Baltimore Co., but settled in 1824 in Smithsburg, Washington Co., Md., where he gained an extensive practice, and died on April 4th, 1870.

Dr. Bishop married, in May, 1828, Anna, daughter of Wm. Waller Hoyer, of Alleghany Co., Md. They had eight children, of whom two sons were educated at Marshall College, Pa., and one graduated at this college in 1863.

1821.

JOHN MITCHELL died in Stratford, Conn., 28 April, 1870, aged 75 years. He was the son of John and Abigail (Waterhouse) Mitchell, and was born in Chester, Conn., 29 Dec., 1794.

In the autumn of 1821 he entered Andover Theol. Seminary, but left after about nine months, in consequence of impaired health. In Jan., 1824, he became the editor of the Christian Spectator, a religious and theological monthly published in New Haven. He continued in this employment until 1829; in May of that year he was licensed, and soon after preached his first sermon in the pulpit of his brother (Rev. William Mitchell, Y. C. 1818) in Newtown, Conn.

In Dec., 1830, he was ordained as the first pastor of the First (Congregational) Church in Fair Haven, Conn. After remaining there six years, he was settled, 6 Dec., 1836, as pastor of the Edwards (Congregational) Church in Northampton, Mass. At the close of the year 1842, ill health compelled him to resign his charge there, and he spent the following year abroad in the hope of recovery. Though he was benefited, and his life doubtless prolonged by this change, he was never able to resume the labors of the ministry. Most of his remaining years were spent in Stratford, Conn., where he employed himself, as strength would allow, in literary work. While at Fair Haven, he had written a manual of the Congregational polity, entitled "The New England Churches." After his return from Europe, he published "Notes from Over Sea," 2 vols., in which he aimed to give, not merely his own experience as a traveler, but a collection of interesting facts relating to the political, religious, and social status of the countries which he had visited. He afterwards published "Scenes and Characters in College," "My Mother, or Recollections of Maternal Influence," and "Rachel Kell." He also published occasional sermons, and contributed to periodicals, and was editorially connected with different newspapers. At the time of his death he had nearly completed a book of sketches under the title of "Derwent."

He was married, 13 Oct., 1825, to Mary A. Tomlinson, daughter of Charles Tomlinson, M.D., of Stratford. He had three sons, two of whom survive him: one graduated at this College in 1863, and the other received an honorary degree in 1860.

EDWIN BUCKLEY TAINTOR died at his residence in West Brookfield, Mass., 13 March, 1870, aged 69 years.

He was a son of Solomon and Judith Taintor, and was born in Hampton, Conn., 18 May, 1800.

After a brief employment in business in his native town, he became a merchant in West Brookfield, in 1823, where he continued until his death.

Mr. Taintor married Sally Penniman, of New Braintree, Mass., in June, 1826, who died in August, 1841. He married again, 12 July, 1843, Frances M. Pritchard, of West Brookfield, who survives him. Of his children, three daughters by his first, and two daughters by his second marriage, three survive their father.

1822.

CHARLES TAYLOR CATLIN, son of Lynde (Y. C. 1786) and Helen (Kip) Catlin, was born in New York City, 31 Dec., 1803, and died in Brooklyn, N. Y., 24 March, 1870, aged 66.

For some years after graduation he was connected with the Merchants' Bank, in N. Y. His residence was in that city until 1834, and afterwards in other parts of the State:—on Staten Island until 1839, then in Plattsburgh and Hudson successively, in Poughkeepsie from 1841 to 1846, and for the rest of his life in Brooklyn with an office as real estate broker in N. Y.

He was married in 1830, to Lucy Ann, daughter of Gen. Derby, of Salem, Mass. She died in 1846. Five of the nine children of this marriage are living,—one daughter and four sons. The sons are graduates of this College:—Lynde A. in 1853, Charles T. in 1856, Rev. Hasket D. in 1859, and Arnold W., M.D., in 1862.

1823.

GEORGE JONES, youngest son of Robert and Elizabeth (Dunнан) Jones, was born on the family estate near York, Pa., 30 July, 1800.

From 1825 to 1828 he was schoolmaster on board the U. S. Frigates Brandywine and Constitution. For the next two years he was a tutor in this college.

On Jan. 16th, 1831, he was ordained at Hartford, Conn., deacon in the Episcopal church by Bishop Brownell, and he officiated for a time in Middletown. He was appointed chaplain in the U. S. Navy, 20 Apr., 1833, and was stationed under orders at the U. S. Naval Asylum in Philadelphia at the time of his death, 22 Jan., 1870.

He married, in 1837, Mary Amelia, eldest daughter of Gold S. Silliman (Y. C. 1796), of Brooklyn, N. Y. She died in Washington, D. C., in 1865.

He published in 1829 Sketches of Naval Life (2v. 12°); in 1836 Excursions to Cairo, Jerusalem, Damascus and Balbec; in 1865, Life Scenes from the Four Gospels, and Life Scenes from the Old Testament. He was also known in science by his long and careful observations on the Zodiacal Light, which fill one volume of the report of the U. S. Japan Expedition.

WALTER MITCHELL died at his residence in Port Tobacco, Charles Co., Md., 28 March, 1870.

He was a prominent citizen of Maryland, and several times a Presidential Elector. His son graduated at this College in 1861.

1826.

AMOS BLANCHARD, son of Deacon Amos and Elizabeth (Jenkins) Blanchard, was born in Andover, Mass., 7 March, 1807, and was prepared for College at Phillips Academy.

In 1826-7, he studied in the Andover Theological Seminary, and in 1827-8 in the Theological Department at New Haven. During the Collegiate year of 1828-9, he was a Tutor in College.

He was ordained, Dec. 25, 1829, pastor of the First Congregational Church in Lowell, Mass.; May 21, 1845, was installed pastor of the Kirk Street (Congregational) Church in the same city, and died in that office. He died very suddenly, of heart disease, on the night of 14 Jan., 1870.

Dr. Blanchard married, in May, 1830, Miss Caroline R. Draper, of Dover, N. H.; of four children, one son only survives, as does also his widow. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Williams College in 1852.

CHARLES MARSH PUTNAM died in Jersey, Licking Co., O., 17 April, 1870, aged 68. He was the second son of David (Y. C. 1793) and Betsey (Perkins) Putnam, of Marietta, O., and was born 24 Febr., 1802.

He took a three years' course at Andover Theol. Sem., and 24 Sept., 1829, was ordained in Boston, by the Presbytery of Newburyport, Mass. On the 4th of Nov., 1829, he entered on his labors in Jersey, where the whole of his ministerial life was spent. On 24 Febr., 1832, he was installed pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Jersey, and of a Congregational Church in St. Albans, O. After about two years he resigned the charge of the latter church, and on 4 Nov., 1869, being then the oldest pastor in Central Ohio, he was dismissed from the charge of the church in Jersey. He was laid aside from the duties of his profession by a painful disease (calculi in the bladder) for the last fifteen months of life.

He married, 22 Oct., 1829, Miss Abby S. Edgerton, of Marietta. They had ten children, seven of whom survive him.

WYLLYS WARNER, son of Lyman and Annis (Welton) Warner, was born in Plymouth, Conn., 6 Jan., 1800, and died in Chicago, Ill., 11 Nov., 1869. His early life was spent on the farm. When past 21 he began the study of Latin, and a year later entered College.

After graduation, he taught for a year in Norwich, Conn., and then entered the Yale Theological Seminary. In the winter of 1828-9, he spent some time in soliciting subscriptions for the endowment of the Professorship of Sacred Literature in the Seminary, and with such success as to direct his future life. In 1829 he was called to the tutorship, and at the following commencement was appointed the Financial Agent of the College. In June, 1830, with the view of spending the next winter in New Orleans, he was ordained at New Haven as an evangelist. Returning in the spring of 1831, he resumed his labors as Financial Agent. By his personal efforts a general fund of $100,000 was secured, and other large additions were made to the resources of the Theological and Academical Departments.

On the death of Hon. James Hillhouse, in Dec., 1832, Mr. Warner succeeded him as the Treasurer of the College. This office he resigned in July, 1852, on account of protracted ill-health. His residence continued in New Haven. As Secretary of the Corporation (from July, 1858), and as Inspector of the College buildings and grounds (from Dec., 1866), he retained until his death an active and honored interest in the prosperity of the institution.

His death occurred from a disease of the heart, in Chicago, as he had just finished giving evidence in a case involving property of which he was in charge.

In Sept., 1829, he married Miss Elizabeth E. Hazard, of Norwich, Conn. She died, without children, at New Orleans, in March, 1831. In Oct., 1833, he married Miss Elizabeth A. Hart, of Lyme, Conn., and by this marriage left two sons and three daughters. His wife survives him.

1827.

THERON BALDWIN was the fifth son of Elisha and Clarissa (Judd) Baldwin, and was born in Goshen, Conn., 21 July, 1801.

Having spent two years in Yale Theological Seminary, he was ordained as an evangelist by the Litchfield (Conn.) South Association in Sept., 1829, and left Connecticut during the same month for Illinois, under a commission of the American Home Missionary Society. He went as a pioneer of the "Illinois Association," formed (largely by his impulse) at this college, in Dec., 1828, for the purpose of promoting religion and education in the young State of Illinois. For two years he was stationed at Vandalia, then the capital, and was, meantime, active in procuring the charter of Illinois College, of which he was a trustee till his death. He then became the agent of the Amer. Home Missionary Society for Illinois. From 1838 to 1843 he was occupied in organizing and conducting the Monticello Female Seminary, near Alton, Ill., acting also as the pastor of the church established in connection with the Seminary.

At the formation of the "Society for the promotion of Collegiate and Theological Education at the West," in June, 1843 (the conception of which was his own), he was appointed Corresponding Secretary, and so continued until his death. Whatever the Western College Society in these twenty-seven years has achieved, has been the work of its Corresponding Secretary.

Dr. Baldwin died at his residence in Orange, N. J., 10 Apr., 1870, aged 68 years. He received the degree of doctor of divinity from Marietta College in 1862.

He married Caroline Wilder of Burlington, Vt., who survives him, with their five children, two sons and three daughters.

One of his sons graduated at this College in 1861, and the other is a member of the present Junior Class.

EBENEZER DENISON, son of Deacon Ebenezer and Jane (Williams) Denison, was born at Mystic Village, in Stonington, Conn., 30 May, 1802. He died in his native village, 26 Dec., 1869.

After graduating he spent some time in fitting for the ministry, but was never licensed to preach. He eventually settled as a farmer in his native village, where he remained till his death. He filled various town offices, and was for some years before his death the senior deacon of the Congregational Church in Mystic Bridge.

He was married, first, to Miss Mary Niles Hazard, of West-erly, R. I., 5 Nov., 1831; secondly, 9 April, 1848, to Miss Lydia S. Noyes, of Stonington. He had twelve children (seven by the first, and five by the second marriage), of whom five are now living, as is also his widow.

1828.

HORACE BINNEY, eldest son of Hon. Horace Binney (Harv. 1797), was born in Philadelphia, 21 Jan., 1809, and died of a disease of the heart in the same city, 3 Febr., 1870, aged 61.

He read law with his father, and practiced his profession in Philadelphia to the time of his death, confining himself, however, in great measure, to chamber consultations. In early life he took a keen interest in municipal politics. At the outbreak of the late war he at once came forward to devote his time and energies to the service of the government. He was president of the Philadelphia Associates of the Sanitary Commission, one of the founders of the Union League of the city, and president of that association at the time of his death. He was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and often a delegate to its Diocesan and General Conventions.

Mr. Binney left a widow, the daughter of the late Wm. Johnson, LL.D. (Y. C. 1788), of N. Y. City. Their seven children are all living.

A Memoir of Mr. Binney, read before the Amer. Philosophical Society, May 6, 1870, by Charles J. Stillé, LL.D., has been published.

GURDON SALTONSTALL COIT was born in New London, Conn., 28 Oct., 1808. His father was Thomas Coit, M.D., of New London, and his mother was Mary Wanton Saltonstall, a descendant of Gov. Gurdon Saltonstall.

He was ordained Deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church by Bp. Brownell, in Hartford, 8 Aug., 1830, and subsequently Priest by Bp. Onderdonk, in N. Y. City.

After laboring for a short time at Plymouth, Conn., he took charge of the parishes of Milford and Hamden, Conn. Thence in 1833 he was called to the Rectorship of St. John's Church, Bridgeport. In 1862 he resigned this charge, and was for a time a Chaplain with Gen. McClellan in the Peninsula. In the retreat he caught a fever, from the effects of which he probably never recovered. He afterwards officiated for a time at West Haven, and then in Naugatuck, Conn. At last with broken health he retired to Southport, in Fairfield, Conn., where he died, 10 Nov., 1869, at the age of 61.

He married, 1 Febr., 1838, Eleanor Forrester, daughter of Rev. Thomas Carlile, of Salem, Mass. She died some years before him. Of ten children by this marriage, eight survive.

He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Trinity College in 1853.

1829.

ASA DRURY was born 26 July, 1802, and entered College from Athol, Mass.

For the two years after graduating was Rector of the New Haven Hopkins Grammar School.

He was ordained an evangelist in the Baptist ministry, in Providence, R. I., 14 Sept., 1834: and he married there a daughter of Capt. Jacob Willard. In 1835-6 he was Professor of Languages in Denison University, Granville, O., and for the next three years Professor of Greek in Cincinnati College. In 1839-40 he was Professor of Greek and Latin in Waterville College (now Colby University), Waterville, Me.; and, his wife having died some three years before, he married secondly, 7

May, 1840, Miss Lizzie W., daughter of Capt. N. Getchell. He afterwards returned to Cincinnati College, and subsequently, from 1845 to 1848, was Principal of the classical school in connection with the Western Baptist Theological Institute, at Covington, Ky. He was also Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Greek Literature in the Institute at its dissolution. He was for some ten years later principal of the High School and superintendent of the public schools in Covington. From Febr., 1862, to Oct., 1863, he was Chaplain of the 8th Regt. Ky. Volunteers. He afterwards taught a private school for a year, and for the last four years of his life was pastor of the Baptist Church in St. Anthony, Minn., where he died, 18 March, 1870, aged 67. Two sons by his second marriage (one of them an educated physician) are living, as well as his widow.

1831.

JAMES CLARK STUART, second son and third child of Professor Moses Stuart (Y. C. 1799), of Andover Theol. Sem., and Abigail (Clark) Stuart, was born 1 May, 1812, and entered Yale from Amherst College in the Junior year.

Upon graduation he immediately began the study of medicine, first with Dr. Loring of North Andover, Mass., then in Woodstock, Vt., and finally in the Berkshire Medical School, Pittsfield, Mass., where he took his degree in 1837. He settled in Canastota, N. Y., but remained there little more than a year. He then removed to Syracuse, N. Y., where he acquired an extensive practice.

When the rebellion broke out in 1861, he volunteered his services, and served for the entire war, as Surgeon of the 17th N. Y. Infantry, as Division Surgeon in the Army of the Potomac, and subsequently as Post Surgeon at Decatur, Ala. The war over, he engaged in cotton growing at the South, hoping by a season of rest to regain his impaired health. Finding the climate unsuitable, he returned to Syracuse in March, 1868, where he resumed a laborious practice, which proved too much for his strength. He died 24 March, 1870, after a four days' illness, of congestion of the lungs.

In 1838, Dr. Stuart married Louisa M. A., daughter of Dr. R. R. Davis, of Syracuse, who, with one son, survives him.

1833.

NOAH BISHOP, son of Annas and Lois Bishop, was born in Litchfield, Conn., 12 Jan., 1806.

After graduation he taught for two years in Brooklyn, Conn., and studied theology for the next two years at East Windsor Theol. School. In consequence of a bronchial difficulty he resumed teaching, for two years in Keene, N. H. He was ordained, 29 June, 1842, pastor of the Muddy Run Presbyterian church, in Enon, O., from which he was dismissed in Oct., 1849. In 1850 he became principal of an academy in Monroe, O., at the same time supplying the Presbyterian church there, and so remained for three years. His health having failed, he then settled near Springfield, Ill., and engaged in farming for more than two years, removing to Chatham, Ill., in 1855. In 1858 he was sent as a Home Missionary to Murraysville (formerly Iatan), Ill., where he preached to the two churches of East and West Union till 1869, and removed on April 1 to Ironton, Mo. He died in Ironton, 22 Sept., 1869, after six weeks' illness.

He was twice married; first to L. Ann Watson, in Oct., 1842, who died 24 Aug., 1843; secondly, 5 May, 1845, to Mary J. McClelland, who survives him. Two daughters and one son by the last marriage are living.

ZERAH KENT HAWLEY, son of Rufus T. and Betsey (Richards) Hawley, and brother of Rev. James A. Hawley (Y. C. 1837), was born in Avon, Conn., 16 July, 1806.

He studied theology for one year in Lane Theol. Seminary, and for three years in New Haven, spending one intermediate year as tutor in Illinois Collage. In 1837 he was accepted by the American Board as a foreign missionary, but the financial crisis prevented the Board from employing him. After waiting a year for an appointment, he was ordained as an evangelist, in Plymouth, N. H., and was sent to La Harpe, Ill., by the Amer. Home Missionary Society. From Nov., 1839, to May, 1841, he was stationed in Dubuque, Iowa; and then, until Sept., 1842, in Payson, Ill. He next removed to the East, because of illness in his family, and after preaching in New Hampshire, was installed over the Second Congregational church in Norwalk (now in South Norwalk), Conn., in April, 1844. He was dismissed in May, 1848, and spent the next three years as pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Knoxville, Ill., after which he was pastor of the Congregational church in Payson, Ill., until 1856. After laboring as a Home Missionary two years, he was next installed, in Apr., 1859, pastor of the Congregational church in Macomb, Ill. This post he resigned in Dec., 1862, to become chaplain of the (U. S.) Overton Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. After the close of the war he remained in Memphis, in the service of the Conn. Missionary Society. He died there of dysentery, 28 Dec., 1869.

He married, 21 Apr., 1838, Emily P., daughter of Rev. Ebenezer Price, of W. Boscawen, N. H. She survives him, with one daughter.

Mr. Hawley published in 1846 Congregationalism and Methodism, and in 1847 Defence of the Fathers of New England.

1836.

FRANKLIN THOMAS BACKUS was born in Lee, Mass., 6 May, 1813. He was the fourth son of Thomas and Rebecca Backus. While he was very young the family moved to Lansing, N. Y. He prepared himself for college while assistant teacher in an academy in Delaware kept by an older brother, and entered Junior in 1834.

On leaving college he established a classical school in Cleveland, O., and at the same time began the study of law. In 1839 he was admitted to the bar.

In Jan., 1842, he married Miss Lucy Mygatt, who survives him.

In 1846 he was member of the Ohio House of Representatives, and in 1848 of the State Senate. In 1861 he was a member of the Peace Convention which met in Washington, with the hope of averting the rebellion. The later years of his life were devoted to the duties of his profession, in which he had become eminent. His services were especially sought for by railroad corporations, and it is to the excessive and exhausting labor thus brought upon him that his death, from a disease of the heart, is to be attributed. He died in Cleveland, 14 May, 1870.

1837.

PHINEAS BLAKEMAN was born in Stratford, Conn., 14 Feb., 1813.

He studied in Yale Theol. Seminary for three years, and was licensed to preach by the Hartford South Association in Aug., 1839. In 1841-2, he preached in N. Y. State; then (1843-4) in Jefferson, O.; then in Conn.; then (1847-9) in Orient, L. I. From Jan., 1853, to April, 1858, he was stated supply in North Madison, Conn. His next removal was to Maquoketa, Iowa, where he had charge of the Congregational Church for three years. He next spent a year, preaching in Marseilles, Ill., then ten months abroad, and in 1864 went to Leraysville, Pa. At the time of his death he was residing at Tonawanda, N. Y. He died suddenly of heart-disease, 17 Feb., 1870, in a religious meeting in South Wales, Erie Co., N. Y., where he was at the time visiting.

He was married in 1843 to Lucretia D. Stillman, of New Haven, who died 18 Oct., 1861.

FREDERICK AUGUSTUS COE, the second son of Rev. Noah (Y. C. 1808) and Elizabeth (Goodrich) Coe, was born in New Hartford, N. Y., 22 Oct., 1816.

He entered Hamilton College, but removed to this College in the third term of the Freshman year.

He studied law at White Plains, N. Y., in the office of Minott Mitchell (Y. C. 1803), for one year, and for the succeeding year in the Yale Law School. He began the practice of his profession in New York City in 1841, and there practiced until his death. Since 1851, his residence had been at Yonkers. He died in N. Y. City, 9 Jan., 1870, aged 53 years.

Mr. Coe married, 16 Aug., 1841, Ann Eliza, daughter of Minott Mitchell, of White Plains. Their only child, a daughter, died at an early age.

1838.

SAMUEL GOODRICH COE died of Bright's disease, in New Haven, Conn., Dec. 7, 1869, in the 51st year of his age. He was the third son of Rev. Noah (Y. C. 1808) and Elizabeth (Goodrich) Coe, and was born in New Hartford, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1819.

He spent two years in the Yale Law School, and in 1840 began the practice of law in Berlin, Conn., but was hardly established when he was led to devote himself to the work of the ministry. He then spent two years in Yale Theological Seminary.

On July 17, 1844, he was settled over the Congregational Church in Middlebury, Vt., where the Faculty and students of Middlebury College were among his stated hearers. Obligated after seven years to relieve himself by a change of location, he removed, with but a Sabbath's interval, to the charge of the First Congregational Church in Danbury, Conn. The installation sermon preached by President Woolsey, 4 Dec., 1850, was published. He remained in Danbury until May, 1864, when he resigned with impaired health. Removing to Ridgefield, Conn., he preached in the Congregational Church there, as a constant supply during the next four years. The winter of 1868 he spent in New Haven, Conn., for medical advice, and early in the following summer visited the West in the hope of benefiting his health, and preached for six months in the 2d Presbyterian Church of Cleveland, O. While on his return, he was seized with paralysis at his brother's, in Yonkers, N. Y. and after partial recovery came in October to New Haven, where the disease from which he had long suffered closed his life. He married Miss Grace I. Hawley, who survives him with 3 children, of whom one graduated at this College in 1867.

THOMAS GROSVENOR TALCOTT was born in New Hartford, N. Y., 22 Dec., 1818, and died of pyæmia, after three months' illness, in Hartford, Conn., 7 March, 1870. He was the son of Hon. Samuel A. Talcott (Williams Coll., 1809) late Attorney-General of the State of N. Y., and Mary E. (Stanley) Talcott. His grandfather, Samuel Talcott, graduated at Yale College in 1757. He passed the first year of his course at Columbia College, N. Y. City, and entered Sophomore in this College in 1835. On graduation he spent one year in the study of law in the Yale Law School, and completed his studies in the office of Charles P. Kirkland, Esq., of N. Y. City. In 1841 he was admitted to the bar, and began practice in Oswego, N. Y. After about four years, he removed to N. Y. City, where he practiced until 1861, when he relinquished his profession on account of ill health, and transferred his residence to Hartford.

He was married in 1841 to Sarah A., second daughter of William H. Jones (Y. C. 1796), of New Haven, Conn. His wife and only child, a daughter, survive him.

1839.

JOSEPH GAY EATON LARNED, son of George and Anna S. (Gay) Larned, was born in Thompson, Conn., 29 Apr., 1819. He was the half-brother of Professor Wm. A. Larned (Y. C. 1826).

He spent a year and a half after graduating in Savannah, Ga., and in Charleston, S. C., teaching. After studying law at home for a year, he then taught in Waterloo, N. Y., until called to a tutorship in this College in Nov., 1842. This office he discharged until Aug., 1847. He was admitted to the bar in New Haven in Dec., 1847. but after a short time became interested in the development of certain inventions, and after 1852 withdrew from practice. In 1854 he removed to N. Y. city, and from 1855 to 1863 was engaged in the manufacture of steam fire engines, on plans of which the leading features were of his invention. He was then appointed by government Assistant Inspector of iron clads, and had charge of work in Brooklyn. During the last year and a half of his life he returned to the practice of the law. He died of disease of the heart, in N. Y. City, 3 June, 1870, aged 51.

He was married, 9 May, 1859, to Miss Helen Lee of N. Y., who survives him, without children.

1842.

FRANCIS EDWARD CORNWELL, eldest son of Deacon Chauncey and Mary (Cosslett) Cornwell, was born in New Britain, Conn., 29 Sept., 1822.

He taught in Hartford, Conn., until July, 1844, when he removed to Lyons, N. Y., and there commenced the study of law in the office of James C. Smith, Esq. He was admitted to the bar in Sept., 1847, and practiced in Lyons for about ten years, becoming a partner of Judge Smith. He then removed to Buffalo, N. Y., where he was at first associated with the late Judge Hoyt, and subsequently practiced alone. He died in Buffalo, 2 Nov., 1869, at the age of 47. It is an evidence of the esteem in which he was held that at the time of his death he was Republican candidate for the Justiceship of the Supreme Court of the State.

He was married, 23 Sept., 1847, to Miss Catharine L., daughter of Hon. Estes Howe of Albany. His widow with six sons survives him.

Soon after his removal to Buffalo, Mr. Cornwell published a Digest of Decisions of the Court of Appeals of N. Y.

1851.

FREDERIC MORTON STEVENS, son of Isaac and Nabby (Bulkley) Stevens, was born in South Glastenbury, Conn., 17 May, 1824; and died in Montgomery, Ala., of typhoid fever, 14 Febr., 1870, aged 45 years.

He entered College with the intention of becoming a foreign missionary; but being much troubled with bronchitis, he was advised on graduating to go to the Southern States for health. He became a teacher in Mississippi, first near Port Gibson, and afterwards as Principal of the Natchez Institute. While in Natches he studied law, and in 1854 became a teacher in Oakland College. Leaving there in 1858, he opened a boys' school in Vicksburg; this was succeeded in 1859 by a young ladies' Seminary, in which his wife assisted him.

Mr. Stevens kept up his school until after the fall of Vicksburg (4 July, 1863). During the war he lost all his property, and subsequently moved to New Orleans, where he held office as head clerk of the State Treasury, Secretary to the Board of Currency, etc.

In 1866 he removed his family to Middletown, Conn., and traveled for one year in the employ of a manufacturing company in Middletown. He then engaged in life insurance, and at the time of his death was General Southern Agent of the American Life Insurance Co., of Philadelphia.

He married in New Orleans, 30 Dec., 1858, Mrs. Sara Jackson, daughter of Henry Owen, Esq., Attorney-at-law, of Dublin, Ireland. His widow survives him, with two sons and two daughters.

1855.

ALEXANDER McDONALD LYON, eldest son of Rev. George A. Lyon, D.D., was born, 2 Dec., 1834, in Erie, Pa., where he died, 6 Nov., 1869.

He studied law at Erie, with Judge Thompson of the Supreme Court, and commenced practice in April, 1857. In April, 1861, he enlisted as private in the regiment raised in Erie, but before the regiment moved was promoted to a 1st Lieutenantcy, and in the summer was appointed Paymaster, with the rank of Major. He resigned in the summer of 1865, with shattered health, and resumed his profession in Erie, but failed gradually until his death.

Mr. Lyon married, first, Anna, daughter of Hon. M. B. Lowry, of Erie, 13 May, 1857. Mrs. Lyon died 23 April, 1863, leaving one son and one daughter. He married, 8 Sept., 1865, Maria S., daughter of Hon. Nathan Crosby, of Lowell, Mass., who survives him, with his three children.

ANDREW JACKSON WILLETS, son of Platt Willets, was born in Hempstead, L. I., 30 Nov., 1833, and died in Brooklyn, N. Y., 23 May, 1870, aged 36. His mother was Martha, daughter of Elbert Hegeman.

He attended lectures in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, N. Y. City, graduating in October, 1858. On 5 July, 1859, he established himself in Brooklyn, where he practised medicine until his death, excepting a period of service in the army, from 25 Aug., 1862 to 16 Nov., 1863. He was at first surgeon of the 53d N. Y. Infantry, and from 17 Sept., 1862 till his discharge surgeon of 176th N. Y. Infantry, better known as the Ironsides. His army service was confined almost exclusively to Louisiana.

After his return from the army, he was obliged on account of his health to spend one winter in Florida. He was also absent in Europe from July to November, 1869.

He married, 5 Dec., 1866, Catharine Webster Edmonds, daughter of Col. Benjamin and Eliza Edmonds of Brooklyn. He had no children.

1857.

ORRIN FRINK AVERY was born in Auburn, Susquehanna Co., Pa., 1 May, 1831. His father moved to Illinois in 1843.

After studying law in Belvidere, Ill., and in Dubuque, Iowa, he was admitted to the bar, 1 Oct. 1859, and at once opened an office in Waverly, Bremono County, Iowa.

In August, 1862, he enlisted in the 38th Iowa Infantry, and was appointed Lieutenant; on Jan. 8, 1864, he was commis sioned Captain, and was mustered out of service, 15 Aug., 1865. During this time, on a trip to Texas, he contracted a cold, which ultimately caused his death. From the army he returned to Waverly, and resumed his profession. In 1865 he was elected County Judge, and reelected in 1867, but resigned in 1868, on account of continued ill-health.

He married, 17 Sept., 1867, Miss Jennie, daughter of Capt. Joseph Gardner, of Elgin, Ill., who survives him, with one son.

Judge Avery left home, April 5th, 1870, on a tour to the Rocky Mountains, undertaken as the last effort for a restoration of health; but he died in Colorado City, Colorado, on the 24th of May.

1858.

HENRY EDWARD SWEETSER, son of Joseph A., and Catherine (Dickinson) Sweetser, was born in New York City, Feb. 19, 1837.

The first year after his graduation was spent in the store of his father (firm of J. A. Sweetser & Co.) in New York City, after which he was for a few months a reporter for the New York Times. In June, 1860, he entered the office of the World, of which he soon became night-editor. In November, 1863, with Mr. C. H. Sweetser, he started the Round Table, the publication of which, suspended August, 1864, was resumed June, 1865; during this interval he returned to the office of the World. He withdrew from the Round Table in May, 1866, and, after a short visit to Europe, in September of the same year again joined the World and was connected with it chiefly as city editor and editor of the weekly and semi-weekly editions, until his death.

He died suddenly in New York City, Feb. 17, 1870, aged 33 years.

1859.

WILLIAM JAY ROBERTS was born in New Milford, Conn., 1 May 1836, the only son of Deacon Gerardus and Charlotte Roberts.

After graduation he entered the office of Judge Sanford, in New Milford, as student of law. During the summer of 1861 he engaged in enlisting men for the volunteer service, and in September, was commissioned Lieutenant in the 8th Regiment Conn. Infantry and was assigned to Burnside's division. After the reduction of Fort Macon, he was promoted to a Captaincy in the same regiment, 5 May 1862, and was discharged 31 Jan., 1865, on account of wounds received at Fort Harrison.

He was admitted to the bar of Litchfield County after leaving the army, but a bronchial difficulty, contracted in service, pre vented his practising. He was never well after leaving the army, and died in New Milford, 30 June, 1870, at the age of 34.

In 1865 he was married to Miss Ann Eliza Horton, of Hartford, who with two daughters survives him.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON STANTON, eldest son of Hon. Benjamin Stanton, was born in Bellefontaine, O., 9 March, 1838, and died at his father's present residence in Wheeling, W. Va., 3 Jan., 1870.

He was studying law in his father's office until the outbreak of the rebellion, when he enrolled himself as the first volunteer from the county, and served until 1 July, 1861, first as Corporal, and afterwards as Quartermaster Sergeant, in the 13th Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He then received a Captain's commission, dating from 6 May, in the 16th U. S. Infantry. He was assigned to the recruiting service until March, 1863, when he joined the army under Gen. Rosecrans, at Murfreesborough, and participated in all the battles of that campaign until 19 Sept., when he was taken prisoner at Chickamauga. He remained in Libby prison between four and five months, when he was exchanged. After his return in April, 1864, he joined his regiment near Chattanooga, and was for a time in command of a battalion. He was in all the battles of Gen. Sherman's campaign of 1864, from Chattanooga to Atlanta.

He was afterwards transferred to the cavalry service, and commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the 1st Cavalry. After Gen. Lee's surrender, he was ordered to Texas, and in the fall of 1866 was sent to Fort Lapwai, Idaho Territory; thence in the spring of '67 to Camp Harney, Oregon. For gallantry in an action with the Indians, he was promoted to a Captaincy, and, in Dec., 1868, was ordered to Camp Grant, Arizona. Here he contracted in July, 1869, the diarrhoea, which, terminating in dropsy of the abdomen, ended his life.

His widow, a daughter of Erskine Douglas, of Bellefontaine, survives him with one son.

1860.

HENRY LEWIS HALL, son of John and Betsey (Davis) Hall, was born in Guilford, Conn., 26 Nov., 1835.

He studied in Yale Theol. Seminary, until 30 Oct., 1861, when he was ordained Chaplain of 10th Regiment, Conn. Volunteers. In August, 1862, he returned home, and went to Europe, where he studied for three years at Halle, under Tholuck.

He was installed over the Congregational Church in Auburn, Me., 23 Jan., 1868, but resigned his charge in less than a year, on account of failing health, though he was not formally dismissed until 24 March, 1869. His remaining days were spent in seeking recovery, but an acute attack of his malady (Bright's disease) caused his death while visiting in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 6 Nov., 1869, at the age of 34.

Mr. Hall was married, 17 Jan., 1868, to Laura Hale Stickney, daughter of Mr. J. N. Stickney, of Rockville, Conn. She survives her husband, with one daughter.

1865.

JOSEPH APPLETON BENT, son of Samuel W. and Mary N. Bent, was born in Boston, 22 Feb., 1843. Most of his childhood and youth, however, were passed in New Ipswich, N. H., from which place he entered College, having been prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover.

The year following graduation he spent in Columbia College Law School, N. Y. City. In Oct. 1866, he entered the law-office of Browning & Bushnell, Quincy, Ill. to complete his studies under unusually favorable auspices. But he was unable to throw off a cold, contracted on his journey to the West, and increased by exposure in a campaign speech. His strength was quickly overtaxed, and he was forced to return to New Hampshire, where, after six months' rest, hopes began to be entertained of his recovery. In the summer of 1867 he went to St. Paul, Minn., for a trial of that climate; pulmonary disease, however, had taken too deep a hold, and he returned to Nashua, N. H., in April, 1868, greatly reduced in strength, but with unimpaired vitality. He died in Nashua, 12 Aug., 1869, at the age of 26.

HENRY CLAY MCCREARY was the youngest son of Washington P. McCreary, and was born in Milan, O., 12 Sept., 1842. His mother was the daughter of Col. Hoadley, of Winsted, Conn.

His early life was spent in Sandusky, O., and after 1851, in Sacramento City, Cal. He entered college from Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H.

After graduation he studied law with Judge Clark, of Sacramento, and was admitted to the bar on 8 Jan., 1867. He entered on his profession in that city, and was steadily successful. At the time of his death he was a member of the School Board of the City, and President of the Sacramento Library Association.

He married, 27 Feb., 1867, Miss Matie Sexton, eldest daughter of James K. Sexton, Esq., of Gloversville, N. Y., and had a son who proved to be the "Class Boy," born 18 Jan., 1868. The child died of scarlet fever, 6 Nov., 1869, and his father, exhausted by fatigue and grief, died of the same disease four days later. His wife survives him.

1866.

HENRY OTIS WHITNEY, eldest son of Edmund and Esther Whitney, was born in Williston, Vt., 26 Dec., 1840.

The year following graduation he spent in the Yale Theological Seminary, and the next two years in Union Theol. Seminary, N. Y. City, graduating in 1869.

In June, 1869, he was ordained in Williston, and immediately left for the Pacific coast, in the employ of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. After some time spent in surveying the field, he located himself in Elko, Nevada, where he labored till his death, 1st March, 1870. His disease was bilious fever, terminating in a pulmonary difficulty which suddenly proved fatal. He was unmarried.

1869.

CHARLES DOUGLASS McNAUGHTON was born 27 March, 1849, at Jackson, Mich., and died in the same city, 10 Sept., 1869. He was the eldest son of Dr. Moses A. and Mary R. (Turner) McNaughton, both of whom survive him.

He entered the University of Michigan at the age of 16, but at the end of Freshman Year removed to Williams College, chiefly with the hope of greater inducements to physical exercise. One year later, he entered the Junior Class in this college.

Returning home after graduation, in his usual health, he was attacked with typhoid fever, and died after an illness of about two weeks.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

1815.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN HEYWOOD, son of Hon. Benjamin and Mehitabel (Goddard) Heywood, was born in Worcester, Mass., Apr. 24, 1792, and died in the same city, Dec. 7, 1869.

He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1812, and attended the medical lectures of Dr. Nathan Smith, first at Hanover and then at New Haven. He practiced medicine in Worcester from 1815 until his sudden death. He also filled many positions of trust in the community. In 1859, he became a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, in the right of his father, an original member.

Dr. Heywood married, Sept. 28, 1820, Nancy, daughter of Dr. John Green of Worcester; and after her decease, he married, June 23, 1837, her sister, Elizabeth R. Green. Two sons by his first marriage, educated physicians, died before him.

1825.

JOEL GILLETT CANDEE was born in Litchfield County, Conn., 16 Dec., 1798, and died in the Home for Incurables, at West Farms, N. Y., 26 Jan., 1870, aged 71. He had been a physician in Meriden, Conn., and in N. Y. City, and was admitted to the Home, 28 July, 1869, suffering from neuralgia of the lower extremities; he died from exhaustion resulting from his disease and an attack of double pneumonia.

1826.

AMES WALBRIDGE died in Greenville, a village in Leicester, Mass., 30 July, 1869, aged 75 years, 6 months, and 22 days. His native town was Stafford, Conn.

For about forty years he had practiced medicine in Greenville with success. His sympathies were always active towards the unfortunate, and he left by his will a small fund for needy widows and orphans of the town.

He married in middle life, and his wife died some three or four years before him. He had no children.

1830.

JOHN TODD TUTTLE, second son of Bethel and Hannah Rebecca (English) Tuttle, was born in New Haven, Conn., and died in New York City, where his life had been passed as a physician, 27 Jan., 1870, at the age of 68.

He married Sarah Rogers, of Milford, Conn. She died before him, as did also their four children.

1850.

ALPHEUS BRYANT CLARKE, son of Bryant and Elizabeth (Prindle) Clarke, was born in West Haven, Conn., 11 May, 1814.

He settled as a physician in Holyoke, Mass., in 1850, and was very much esteemed there. He gave up his practice in 1863, on account of his health, and removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he confined himself mainly to office practice. He died in Brooklyn, 15 Dec., 1869, aged 55.

Dr. Clark married Elizabeth C. Little of Branford, Conn., who survives him with one daughter.

1861.

BENJAMIN THAYER ALLEN, son of Joseph and Ruth (Alden Thayer) Allen, was born, 14 March, 1829, in Mendon, Mass. and died in Worcester, Mass., 20 Jan., 1870, aged nearly 41.

Dr. Allen practiced medicine in Worcester from the date of his graduation until his death. He married Elizabeth V., daughter of Joseph P. Emerson, of Parsonsfield, Me., who survives him, with one son.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

1858.

GUSTAVUS ROSE ELLIOT, third and youngest son of William R. and Sally (Clark) Elliot, of Guilford, Conn., was born 5 July, 1822.

He was a practising lawyer in New Haven, and died at his residence in Fair Haven, Conn., 26 Nov., 1869.

He married a daughter of Dr. Sherman C. Johnson, of Seymour, Conn., who survives him.

1862.

WILLIAM DOWNES, the son of Michael Downes, was born at Kilrush, County Clare, Ireland, 27 Nov., 1825, and died in New Haven, Conn., 7 Nov., 1869, at the age of 44.

About two years after his birth, his father came to America, settling in Stratford, Conn., and removing to New Haven in 1832. Mr. Downes learnt a book-binder's trade, and after working at the business in New Haven and New York, became a clerk in the office of the town clerk of New Haven in 1857. From 1859 until his death (excepting two years, 1864-66) he was city clerk.

He leaves a wife and children.

1865.

WILBUR GRISWOLD HOWARTH, son of Thomas H. and Miriam D. (Tuttle) Howarth, was born, 12 Dec., 1843, in New Haven, Conn.

He was admitted to the New Haven Bar in 1865, and commenced the practice of his profession in the office of Hon. Henry B. Harrison of this city. When the new Court of Common Pleas was organized, 6 Sept., 1869, he was appointed Assistant Clerk, and acted as Clerk until his death of typhoid fever, after a short illness, 20 Nov., 1869.

He was elected Captain of the New Haven Grays, 30 June, 1868, and filled that office until his resignation a short time before his death, in consequence of other duties.

He was unmarried.

1869.

JOHN BERNARD REILLY, son of Bernard Reilly, was born in New Haven, Conn., 12 Aug., 1848, educated at St. Charles College, Md., and St. John's College, Fordham, N. Y., and died in New Haven, 1 Aug., 1869.

DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY AND THE ARTS.

1867.

LYMAN STEWART FERRY, son of Addison and Margaret (White) Ferry, was born in Granby, Mass., April 3, 1843, and died, of typhoid fever, Nov. 18, 1869, at his home in New Haven, Conn.

After completing the course in Civil Engineering in the Sheffield Scientific School, he immediately engaged in his profession, and was employed by Gen. E. W. Serrell in making preliminary surveys for various railroads, and for a time upon the plans for the Hudson Highland Suspension Bridge. At the time of his death he was superintending the construction of the southern half of the New Haven, Middletown, and Willimantic railroad.

He was unmarried.

Intelligence of the following death has been received too late to be inserted in the proper place.

1815.

JOSIAH HOOKER, third son of Judge John (Y. C. 1782) and Elizabeth (Dwight) Hooker, was born in Springfield, Mass., 17 Apr., 1796. His brothers, John, Dr. George, Dr. Worthington, and Rev. Richard Hooker, graduated at this College in 1810, 1814, 1825, and 1827.

He studied law and opened an office first in Pittsfield, and soon after in Springfield, where he remained until his death. He was prominently connected with the educational interests of the city. For the last three or four years he was an invalid, and he died at his residence in Springfield, 14 July, 1870, aged 74.

He married in middle life Jane W. Judd, of West Hampton, Mass., who survives him. He had no children.

SUMMARY.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1802	John Keep, 88,	Oberlin, O.	11 Febr., 1870.
1806	Alfred Hennen, 83,	New Orleans, La.,	19 Jan., 1870.
1809	Henry M. Waite, 82,	Lyme, Conn.,	14 Dec., 1869.
1811	David M. Mitchell, 81,	Waltham, Mass.,	27 Nov. 1869.
1811	Byam K. Stevens, 77,	Astoria, N. Y.,	15 Febr., 1870.
1811	Frederick A. Tallmadge, 77,	Litchfield, Conn.,	17 Sept., 1869.
1812	Nathaniel S. Perkins, 78,	New London, Conn.,	25 May, 1870.
1813	Moses Bristol, 79,	Buffalo, N. Y.,	6 Nov. 1869.
1813	John M. Woolsey, 74,	New Haven, Conn.,	11 July, 1870.
1814	Samuel Punderson, 79,	New Haven, Conn.,	13 March, 1870.
1815	Josiah Hooker, 74,	Springfield, Mass.,	14 July, 1870.
1815	Alfred S. Monson, 74,	New Haven, Conn.,	22 May, 1870.
1816	William H. Foote, 75,	Romney, W. Va.,	22 Nov. 1869.
1816	Aratus Kent, 75,	Galena, Ill.,	8 Nov., 1869.
1816	Charles Perot, 72,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	6 March 1870.
1816	Oliver E. Williams, 74,	Hartford, Conn.,	18 June, 1870.
1817	Thomas B. Osborne, 71,	New Haven, Conn.,	2 Sept., 1869.
1818	Alfred Kellogg, 74,	Avon, Conn.,	6 July 1870.
1819	Elijah Bishop, 73,	Smithsburg, Md.,	4 Apr., 1870.
1821	John Mitchell, 75,	Stratford, Conn.,	28 Apr., 1870.
1821	Edwin B. Taintor, 69,	W. Brookfield, Mass.,	13 March, 1870.
1822	Charles T. Catlin, 66,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	24 March, 1870.
1823	George Jones, 69,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	22 Jan., 1870.
1823	Walter Mitchell,	Port Tobacco, Md.,	28 March, 1870.
1826	Amos Blanchard, 62,	Lowell, Mass.,	14 Jan., 1870.
1826	Charles M. Putnam, 68,	Jersey, O.,	17 Apr., 1870.
1826	Wylls Warner, 69,	Chicago, Ill.,	11 Nov., 1869.
1827	Theron Baldwin, 68,	Orange, N. J.,	10 Apr., 1870.
1827	Ebenezer Denison, 67,	Mystic Bridge, Conn.,	26 Dec., 1869.
1828	Horace Binney, 61,	Philadelphia, Pa.,	3 Febr., 1870.
1828	Gurdon S. Coit, 61,	Southport, Conn.,	10 Nov., 1869.
1829	Asa Drury, 67,	Minneapolis, Minn.,	18 March 1870.
1831	James C. Stuart, 57,	Syracuse, N. Y.,	24 March, 1870.
1833	Noah Bishop, 63,	Ironton, Mo.,	22 Sept., 1869.
1833	Zerah K. Hawley, 63,	Memphis, Tenn.,	28 Dec., 1869.
1836	Franklin T. Backus, 57,	Cleveland, O.,	14 May, 1870.
1837	Phineas Blakeman, 57,	S. Wales, N. Y.,	17 Febr., 1870.
1837	Frederick A. Coe, 53,	N. Y. City,	9 Jan., 1870.
1838	Samuel G. Coe, 50,	New Haven, Conn.,	7 Dec., 1869.
1838	Thomas G. Talcott, 51,	Hartford, Conn.,	7 March, 1870.
1839	Joseph G. E. Larned, 51,	N. Y. City,	3 June, 1870.
1842	Francis E. Cornwell, 47,	Buffalo, N. Y.,	2 Nov. 1869.
1851	Frederic M. Stevens, 45,	Montgomery, Ala.,	14 Febr., 1870.
1855	Alexander McD. Lyon, 35,	Erie, Pa.,	6 Nov., 1869.
1855	Andrew J. Willets, 36,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	23 May, 1870.
1857	Orrin F. Avery, 39,	Colorado City, Col.,	24 May, 1870.
1858	Henry E. Sweetser, 33,	N. Y. City,	17 Febr., 1870.
1859	William J. Roberts, 34,	New Milford, Conn.,	30 June, 1870.
1859	Alexander H. Stanton, 31,	Wheeling, W. Va.,	3 Jan., 1870.
1860	Henry L. Hall, 34,	Poughkeepsie, N. Y.,	6 Nov., 1869.
1865	Joseph A. Bent, 26,	Nashua, N. H.,	12 Aug., 1869.
1865	Henry C. McCreary, 27,	Sacramento City, Cal.,	10 Nov., 1869.
1866	Henry O. Whitney, 29,	Elko, Nev.,	1 March, 1870.
1869	Charles D. McNaughton, 20,	Jackson, Mich.,	10 Sept., 1869.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

Class.	Name and Age.	Place and	Time of Death.
1815	Benjamin F. Heywood, 77,	Worcester, Mass.,	7 Dec., 1869.
1825	Joel G. Candee, 71,	West Farms, N. Y.,	26 Jan., 1870.
1826	Ames Walbridge, 75,	Leicester, Mass.,	30 July, 1869.
1830	John T. Tuttle, 68,	N. Y. City,	27 Jan., 1870.
1850	Alpheus B. Clarke, 55,	Brooklyn, N. Y.,	15 Dec., 1869.
1861	Benjamin T. Allen, 40,	Worcester, Mass.,	20 Jan., 1870.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

1858	Gustavus R. Elliot, 47,	Fair Haven, Conn.,	26 Nov., 1869.
1862	William Downes, 44,	New Haven, Conn.,	7 Nov., 1869.
1865	Wilbur G. Howarth, 26,	New Haven, Conn.,	20 Nov., 1869.
1869	John B. Reilly, 21,	New Haven, Conn.,	1 Aug., 1869.

DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY AND THE ARTS.

1867	Lyman S. Ferry, 26,	New Haven, Conn.,	18 Nov., 1869.
------	---------------------	-------------------	----------------

Intelligence of the following death is received, too late for insertion elsewhere.

1818.

RICHARD TAPPING NOTT, born in Saybrook, Conn., in June, 1798, died in Alabama, 26 Oct., 1869, after an illness of more than two years duration. He removed to Virginia in 1820, to South Carolina in 1822, and thence to Alabama in 1824, where he resided till his death.

The whole number of deaths reported as occurring during the last year is 66, and the average age of the graduates of the Academical Department is 61 years.

Of the deceased, from the Academical Department, 17 were Clergymen, 17 Lawyers, 8 Physicians, 7 in Business, 1 Teacher, and 1 Editor.

The deaths are distributed as follows:—in Connecticut, 20; N. Y., 14; Mass., 7; Pa., 4; Ohio, 3; Ala., Ill., Md., W. Va., 2 each; and the remaining 10 in as many different states.

The surviving graduates of the last century are, as for two years past,—

Class of 1794,	Hon. EZEKIEL BACON, Utica, N. Y., born 1 Sept., 1776.
" " 1796,	TIMOTHY BISHOP, New Haven, Conn., born 29 Oct., 1777.
" " 1797,	Rev. CHARLES GOODRICH, Penn Yan, N. Y., born 2 April, 1778.
" " 1800,	Rev. THOMAS WILLIAMS, Providence, R. I., born Nov., 1799.

I N D E X.

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1857	Avery, Orrin F.	358	1865	McCreary, Henry C.	361
1836	Backus, Franklin T.	354	1869	McNaughton, Charles D.	362
1827	Baldwin, Theron	349	1811	Mitchell, David M.	339
1865	Bent Joseph A.	361	1821	Mitchell, John	345
1828	Binney, Horace	350	1823	Mitchell, Walter	348
1819	Bishop, Elijah	345	1815	Monson, Alfred S.	342
1833	Bishop, Noah	352	1818	Nott, Richard, T.	367
1837	Blakeman, Phineas	354	1817	Osborne, Thomas B.	344
1826	Blanchard, Amos	348	1812	Perkins, Nathaniel S.	341
1813	Bristol, Moses	341	1816	Perot, Charles	344
1822	Catlin, Charles T.	347	1814	Punderson, Samuel	341
1837	Coe, Frederick A.	355	1826	Putnam, Charles M.	348
1838	Coe, Samuel G.	355	1859	Roberts, William J.	359
1828	Coit, Gurdon S.	351	1859	Stanton, Alex. H.	360
1842	Cornwell, Francis E.	356	1811	Stevens, Byam K.	340
1827	Denison, Ebenezer	350	1851	Stevens, Frederic M.	357
1829	Drury, Asa	351	1831	Stuart, James C.	352
1816	Foote, William H.	342	1858	Sweetser, Henry E.	359
1860	Hall, Henry L.	360	1821	Taintor, Edwin B.	346
1833	Hawley, Zerah K.	353	1838	Talcott, Thomas G.	356
1806	Hennen, Alfred	338	1811	Tallmadge, Frederick A.	340
1815	Hooker, Josiah,	365	1809	Waite, Henry M.	339
1823	Jones, George	347	1826	Warner, Wyllys,	348
1802	Keep, John	337	1866	Whitney, Henry C.	362
1818	Kellogg, Alfred	345	1855	Willets, Andrew J.	358
1816	Kent, Aratus	343	1816	Williams, Oliver E.	344
1839	Larned, Joseph G. E.	356	1813	Woolsey, John M.	341
1855	Lyon, Alex. McD.	358

PROFESSIONAL DEPARTMENTS.

1861	Allen, Benjamin T., M. D.	364	1815	Heywood, Benjamin F., M. D.	362
1825	Candee, Joel G., M. D.	363	1869	Reilly, John B., LL.B.	365
1850	Clarke, Alpheus B., M. D.	363	1865	Howarth, Wilbur G., LL. B.	364
1862	Downes, William, LL. B.	364	1830	Tuttle, John T., M. D.	363
1858	Elliot, Gustavus R., LL. B.	364	1826	Walbridge, Ames, M. D.	363
1867	Ferry, Lyman S., Ph. B.	365

The present series of the Annual Obituary Record (begun in 1860) closes with this number, and it is proposed to begin a new series next year. Aid in preparing these notices is urgently requested by the Librarian of the College.

A Supplement, just printed, can be obtained at the Library, containing an index and title page to this series, with brief notices of some of the graduates who have died since July, 1859, but have not hitherto been commemorated.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE
OBITUARY RECORD
OF
GRADUATES OF YALE COLLEGE.
1860--70.

1797.

RICHARD SMITH was born in Sharon, Conn., Jan. 17, 1779. His father, Phineas Smith, was a cousin of Gov. John Cotton Smith.

He died at Batavia, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1859, at the age of 81. A sketch of him will be found in "Brief Memoirs of the Class of 1797," New Haven, 1848.

EPHRAIM TREADWELL WOODRUFF was born in Farmington, Conn., Oct. 17, 1777, and died in Wayne, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, Nov. 26, 1859, aged 82 years.

An account of his life is given in the "Brief Memoirs of the Class of 1797."

1799.

GODFREY SCARBOROUGH was born in Brooklyn, Conn., 22 Dec., 1778, the son of Samuel and Mary (Amadon) Scarborough.

He died in Kossuth, Iowa, 15 May, 1867, at the age of 88. He practiced law in East Windsor Hill, Conn., but about 1825 removed to Wheeling, Va., subsequently to Paris, Kentucky, and some twenty years before his death, to Iowa.

He survived the rest of his class.

1805.

RODOLPHUS DICKINSON, son of Col. Thomas W. and Thankful Dickinson, was born in Deerfield, Mass., 27 June, 1787.

He studied law in Northampton, Mass., with John Taylor, and was admitted to the bar in 1808. He practiced law in Springfield, Mass., until 1811, and from 1811 to 1819 was Clerk of the Courts in his native County.

On Sept. 17th, 1819, he was ordained Deacon by Bishop Griswold, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and then removed to the upper section of South Carolina, where he was instrumental in the formation of the parishes of Greenville and Pendleton. During the first eighteen months of alternate service there, he traveled more than 7,000 miles on horseback. He was advanced to the Priesthood by Bishop Bowen, 20 Feb. 1822.

In 1832 he returned to Deerfield, and made that his residence for the rest of his life. For six years during this time, he preached in Montague, Mass. He was a candidate for Congress, in his native county, in 1839. He died at his country-seat, Pine Hill, Deerfield, 29 Oct., 1863, aged 76 years.

He married, 6 Nov., 1809, Miss Nancy Hoyt, daughter of Capt. David Hoyt, of Deerfield. His wife survives him, with two daughters. He lost a son in infancy.

Mr. Dickinson published several law and school books, and geographical and other works.

1807.

JOHN MORSE AUSTIN, the son of Eliphalet and Isabella (Dudley) Austin, was born in New Hartford, Conn., in 1783. Before he entered college, his father removed to Ohio, and settled the town of Austinburg.

He studied law for two years with Judge Baldwin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and practiced there till in 1812 he married, and removed to Uniontown, Fayette Co., Pa., where he continued in his profession for over thirty years. He died in Uniontown, 8 April, 1863. His widow is still living. Of his sons, two are lawyers and one a clergyman.

ELEUTHEROS DANA COMSTOCK was drowned on the passage from Sacramento to San Francisco, Cal., on the evening of the 17th of Aug., 1859, aged 69 years. He was at the time on his way to the Eastern States, where his family resided. He was a grandson of Rev. Dr. James Dana, pastor of the First Church in New Haven from 1789 to 1805.

1809.

WILLIAM HENRY WINTHROP, son of Francis Bayard and Phebe (Taylor) Winthrop, of N. Y. City, and grandson of John Still Winthrop (Y. C. 1737), was born in N. Y. in 1792. Two of his brothers graduated in 1804.

Shortly after graduation he married his cousin, Margaret A. Parkin, of New London, Conn., and spent the rest of his life in that town. He followed no profession, but was occupied with the care of his estate, principally Fisher's Island, which had been in the family since 1640. He died in N. London, 3 Sept., 1860, leaving three sons and two daughters.

1810.

PAUL CHAPLIN GRIMBALL was born 17 March, 1788.

He came to college from Sunbury, Ga., and settled in Charleston, S. C., as a planter. He was at one time a member of the State Senate. At the breaking out of the rebellion, he resided on John's Island, and in 1862 was driven from his home, and died in 1864, aged 76.

He was married 7 June, 1814, and had five children.

1811.

SOLOMON LATHROP, son of Dr. Seth Lathrop of West Springfield, Mass., and grandson of Rev. Dr. Joseph Lathrop (Y. C. 1754), was born in 1790. He studied law, and settled on the family estate in W. Springfield: he also lived for a short time in Brattleboro, Vt. He removed, probably in the fall of 1837, to Macomb County, Michigan, where he died in the summer of 1862.

He married Sophia Pomeroy, of Putney, Vt., who died before him. He had four children born in W. Springfield.

EDWARD PEROT, son of John and Mary Perot, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 9 Nov., 1789, and died in the same city, 3 Oct., 1866, aged nearly 77.

He was never married.

1814.

WILLIAM JOHNSON RYSAM MULFORD, son of Edward Mulford, was born in East Hampton (L. I.), N. Y., Oct. 18, 1794.

He was for a number of years engaged in the shipping business in Sag Harbor, L. I. Owing to ill health and a naturally reserved disposition, he led a very retired life. His death occurred at Sag Harbor, 24 July, 1865.

He married, 21 Aug. 1827, Harriet E., daughter of Henry B. Havens, of Sag Harbor. He left two daughters, his only son having died the year before him, a victim to the horrors of Andersonville.

1815.

ISRAEL SHAILER, son of Lieut. Thomas and Anna (Fiske) Shailer, was born in Haddam, Conn., Nov. 22, 1788, and died in Richfield, O., July 2, 1869, aged 80.

He studied theology with Rev. John Elliott (Y. C. 1786) of East Guilford, now Madison, Conn., and was licensed to preach by the Middlesex Association, June 2, 1818. He was ordained as an Evangelist, at Millington, Conn., June 7, 1820, to go to the Western Reserve under the direction of the Missionary Society of Connecticut. He was installed pastor of the Congregational Church in Richfield, O., April 24, 1821, and dismissed Aug. 17, 1830. During this period he spent one-half of the time as a Missionary to other congregations. For some time afterwards he preached in the neighboring churches, and in the last years of active life, was employed as a colporteur. He was laid aside by blindness and infirmity for five years before his death.

Mr. Shailer married, in 1823, Miss Sophronia Mills, of Hudson, O. She survives, with one son and four daughters.

1817.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE CLARK died in Winchester, Va., early in 1865, aged about 68. His son graduated in 1848. For a notice, see Biographical Sketches of Class of 1817, 1868, p. 10.

WILLIAM BACKUS HART, son of William S. and Eunice Hart, was born in Norwich, Conn., 17 July, 1797, and died in Washington, D. C., 12 Jan., 1863.

He studied law with Wm. M. Price, of New York City, but never practiced. He was engaged in business in New York and in Philadelphia. He was afterwards an agent for claims in Washington, and during President Tyler's administration, was employed by the government in removing the Choctaw Indians. From 30th Sept., 1855, until his death, he was a clerk in the First Auditor's office of the U. S. Treasury Department. He left a widow.

1818.

CHARLES BUFORD was the son of Abram Buford, of Virginia, a Colonel in the Revolution. He was born in Scott County, Ky., June 3, 1797, and died while on a visit in St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1866, aged 68.

He devoted himself to farming on a large scale, his residence being at Rock Island, Ill.

He married first a daughter of Gen. John Adair, of Kentucky. His second wife, now living in Rock Island, was a niece of Chief-Justice Marshall. Nine of his children are also living.

JAMES KEITH DUKE was born in Mason County, Ky., March 12, 1799, and died Aug. 2, 1863, in Scott County, Ky., aged 64 years.

His father was Dr. Basil Duke, and his mother Charlotte, daughter of Chief Justice Marshall.

He studied law, but soon after his admission to the bar, in 1821, he married, and settled as a farmer in Scott County, Ky., and there resided till his death. His wife, Mary Buford, was the sister of his classmate, Charles Buford.

Mr. Duke was an intimate personal and political friend of Clay and Crittenden, but declined repeated solicitations to serve his district in the State and National legislatures.

His widow and ten children, four sons and six daughters, survive him. The second son, Basil Duke, is a graduate of the Class of 1845.

PICKETT LATIMER died in Norwalk, O., Jan. 8, 1862. He was the eldest son of Pickett and Eunice (Douglass) Latimer, and was born in New London, Conn., Jan. 20, 1796.

His law studies were begun, in 1819, with Hon. Matthew Griswold (Y. C. 1780), of Lyme, Conn., and completed, after Nov., 1819, in the office of Hon. Ebenezer Lane, of Norwalk, O. He was admitted to the bar in the autumn or 1820, and was successful in his profession. Subsequently he left the law for business in which he was unsuccessful.

Mr. Latimer married, at New London, Conn., Oct. 16, 1825, Louisa I. Cox, of North Carolina, who survives him, with three of his five children.

1819.

JAMES MONGIN SMITH died in Marietta, Ga., 26 Nov., 1859, at the age of 60.

He entered college from Beaufort, S. C., and became a planter in his native state. He subsequently removed to Marietta. His second wife, Mrs. Laura M. Smith, to whom he was married in Dec., 1837, survived him, with one son and one daughter. By his first marriage he had two sons and two daughters, none of whom are now living.

1822.

ARTHUR ALEXANDER MORSON is supposed to have died in Richmond, Virginia, in 1864. (See Class Record, 1869.)

1824.

EBENEZER JESUP, the son of Ebenezer Jesup, was born in Saugatuck Village, now Westport, Conn., 11 Aug., 1805, and died in Southport, Conn., 7 March, 1861.

He studied law for four years with Judge Gould in Litchfield, Conn., lived in Ohio for a few years, and in 1835 settled in N. Y. City. A few years later he went to Southport, where he resided till his death engaged in farming.

MILTON PARDEE ORTON died at Hatteras Inlet, in Feb., 1864, aged 68.

CHARLES DENISON SHOEMAKER died in Febr., 1863.

For a sketch of his life, see Class Record, 1855, p. 37.

JOSEPH HEISTER SPAYD died in Reading, Pa., in June, 1865, at the age of 60.

He was a native of Pennsylvania, and spent his life in Reading, in the practice of law. He was never married.

1826.

MOSES ATWATER, son of Moses and Panthea Maria Atwater, died in Canandaigua, N. Y., his native place, Aug. 8, 1864, aged 59.

He passed his life in Canandaigua, not engaging in any profession. In 1854 he married Miss Margaret Weist, who died in Jan., 1857, leaving one son.

CHARLES BEZALEEL FISK was born in Middletown, Conn., June 14, 1806. He died in Staunton, Va., Jan. 11, 1866. The "Biographical Sketch of the Class of 1826", published in 1866, contains a notice of his life.

JAMES HARMER FRANCIS was born in Wethersfield, Conn., May 28, 1796, and died in the same town, July 11, 1863. For a sketch of his life, see the Class Record, published in 1866.

WILLIAM MAY was born in Westminster, Vt., June 2, 1808, and died in Palmyra, N. Y., Sept. 10, 1865. For the events of his life, see the Record of the Class, published in 1866.

THOMAS LEE SMITH died in Bermuda in November 1862.

He entered college from Bermuda, first with the class of 1824, joining in senior year the class with which he graduated.

In 1834 he received the degree of M. D. from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in N. Y. City.

1827.

VIRGIL DRYDEN BONESTEEL was born in Red Hook, N. Y. He fitted for the bar with James Hooker, Esq., of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and established himself in practice, first in Red Hook, and afterwards in Poughkeepsie. He early entered politics as a Democrat, and became an influential leader of his party. About 1850 he was appointed Surrogate for Dutchess County. In 1856 he visited Iowa for his health, and was appointed Director and Treasurer of the Chicago, Iowa, and Nebraska R. R. Co., in which office he made many friends. He declined a nomination for Judge of the supreme court of N. Y. State, on account of ill health.

He died of a lingering disease, 3 Nov., 1865, aged about 59.

He married Miss Thompson, niece of the late Hon. Smith Thompson. They had one son, but both his wife and son died before him.

1828.

LEVI SWIFT BEEBEE, son of Levi Beebee, was born in W. Hartwick, Otsego Co., N. Y.

He studied Law in the Litchfield Law school, and then entered the office of Sterling & Bronson, in Watertown, N. Y. He was soon led to abandon the law, and entered Princeton Theol. Seminary in 1831, where he remained for two years. He was licensed to preach by the Litchfield South Association of Congregational ministers, in 1833, and was settled two or three years later over the 2d Presbyterian church in Freehold, N. J. His pastorate was very brief, though he continued to reside in Monmouth County, where he married a widow lady named Woodhull, for some years. He was afterward engaged as a missionary at the West, and about 1853 was living in Georgia. From February, 1854 to Febr., 1855, he supplied the pulpit of the Congregational church at New Preston Hill, in Washington, Conn. During the war he was a chaplain in the volunteer corps, and he died while temporarily visiting N. Y. City, 17 July, 1863, at the age of 53. For some 14 years before his death his general health had been shattered.

1830.

EDMUND [SMITH] RHETT was born in Beaufort, S. C., 15 Mch., 1808, and died in Spartanburg, S. C., 15 Febr., 1863, aged 55 years.

He studied law with, and became partner of his brother, Hon. R. Barnwell Rhett, of Charleston. On his brother's election to congress, in 1838, Mr. Edmund Rhett established himself at Beaufort, at first in copartnership with his brother Albert. He served as a representative in the State Legislature, and from 1858 till his death was a member of the State Senate. He urged the secession of South Carolina, and served for a time as a private at Port Royal Ferry.

He married in 1842, and left a family.

While in College he was known by the name of Edmund Smith.

1834.

JOHN DAVES COLLINS, son of Josiah Collins, of Edenton, N. C., and brother of Josiah Collins, a graduate of 1826, resided in Edenton, and died of heart-disease at Henderson, N. C., 16 March, 1862, aged 47. He was unmarried.

ALEXANDER BLUCHER GORDON, born in Falmouth, Va., in 1814, died in the same place, 28 Nov., 1861.

He had a law office in Baltimore from 1835 to 1859.

He married, 15 Oct., 1839, Miss Margaret McKim, of Baltimore, who died, 22 Febr., 1844. In 1848 he married Miss Elizabeth Harrison of Baltimore. The children of the first marriage were two sons and one daughter; by the second, two sons and two daughters.

1837.

ALLEN FERDINAND OWEN was born in Wilkes Co., N. C., in October, 1816; but his family removed to Georgia, when he was four years of age. Having completed the course at Franklin college, Athens, Ga., he entered Yale, in Sophomore year.

After graduation he studied law in Charleston, S. C., with Hon. James L. Petigru, in New Haven and in Cambridge, Mass. He was admitted to the bar in 1839, at Boston, and in 1840 began practice in Talbotton, Ga.

In 1843 he became a member of the State Legislature, and served for two terms, until 1847, when he was chosen Clerk of the House of Representatives. While holding this position, he was elected to Congress, and while a member of Congress was appointed Consul at Havana.

In 1852 he returned to Talbotton, and continued in his profession there until his death, 7 Apr., 1865. For several years before his death he was an invalid from partial paralysis of the left side.

He was married in 1837 to Miss E. L. Matthews, daughter of Col. R. A. Matthews of S. C. He left a widow, and 6 children, his eldest child having died in the army.

1839.

LORENZO DOW BIRD, fourth son of Col. Nathaniel and Hannah Bird, was born in Portland, N. Y., in 1814. His father was an officer of the Revolution, a pioneer settler in Chautauqua County, N. Y., and the proprietor of the first line of stages from Buffalo westwards to Ohio.

He studied law with Mr. Kellogg, of Erie, Pa., and with C. W. Lane, in Ypsilanti, Mich. He afterwards entered an office in Chicago, but soon removed to St. Louis, and remained in the office of his cousin, Gustavus A. Bird, until he was admitted to practice. He married a daughter of his cousin about 1845, and after living in St. Charles, Mo., for about two years, opened a law office in Weston, Mo. He was engaged with others in purchasing government lands, and was one of the originators of the towns of Leavenworth and Atchison, Kansas. He finally removed to Atchison. In March, 1862, he was taken ill while in Leavenworth, and brought home to Atchison, where he died in a few weeks, of a disease of the lungs. He left a widow, with two sons and three daughters.

1840.

JOHANNES BRUYN was born in Ulster County, N. Y., May 16, 1820, and died in Kingston, in the same county, Febr. 1, 1862.

He studied law in Kingston, and subsequently practiced his profession there. He was married.

1845.

JAMES MONROE died near Benicia, Cal., 20 March, 1861, aged 41. (See Class History, N. Y., 1866.)

1847.

WILLIAM HENRY HOWE was born in Millbury, Mass., 5 Jan., 1827.

He studied law in the office of Henry Chapin, Esq., of Worcester, Mass., and was there admitted to the bar in 1849, and practiced till 1860, when he removed his business to New York City. In 1863 he accompanied the northern army to N. Carolina. In 1864 he resumed his profession at New Berne, and in September of that year was attacked by the yellow fever, of which disease he died in the following month.

ELISHA FRANKLIN PAXTON, from Rockbridge Co., Va., born 4 March, 1828, entered college in Junior year.

In the late war he was Colonel in a Virginia Regiment, and afterwards Brigadier General. He had command of the "Stonewall Brigade", at the battle of Chancellorsville, in May, 1863, and was there killed.

JOHN REYNOLDS STURGES, from Waynesboro, Ga., was born 31 Dec., 1827. He studied law in Augusta, Ga., and is reported to have been killed on the peninsula, in charge of a rebel regiment, early in the war.

1848.

SAMUEL ARMSTID EWING died in Washington, D. C., in Aug., 1864. For a sketch of his life see Class Statistics, 1869, p. 44.

FREDERICK CONE FULLER, born in E. Haddam, Conn., 24 May, 1825, killed near Spottsylvania C. H., Va., last of Jan., 1863. [See Class Statistics, 1869, p. 47.]

JOHN RANDOLPH HARPER was born in Upson Co., Georgia, 7 Oct., 1828, and died of consumption at his mother's house in Columbus, Ga., 16 July, 1865.

He was prepared for college by the Rev. Dr. E. E. Beardsley, then Principal of the Episcopal Academy of Conn., at Cheshire.

He studied law at the Yale Law School, and in Litchfield, Conn., and began practice in New York City in the fall of 1851. In 1858 he removed to Winsted, Conn., and at the outbreak of the rebellion went South, to serve in the Confederate army. In four years of service he contracted the disease of which he died. His wife, whom he married in Winsted, and two children, survive him.

1849.

WILLIAM CRAIG SWOPE was born in Danville, Ky., 8 Nov., 1830.

He studied law, and graduated at the Transylvania University Law School, in Lexington, Ky., March, 1852. For most of the subsequent time he was a practicing lawyer in St. Louis, Mo. He died in Kansas City, while returning from a journey to Montana, 14 Oct., 1867.

WILLIAM WALLACE WARD was born in Savannah, Ga., 24 June, 1829.

He studied law in Cincinnati, was admitted to the bar, 30 May, 1852, and practiced there until April, 1855, when he sailed for California. After remaining at the mines a short time, he went to Olympia, Washington Territory, and became Clerk of the Supreme Court, and was afterwards occupied in the defence of the settlements against the Indians until Dec., 1856. For the next two years he was a clerk in a bank in Savannah, Ga.

In Jan., 1859, he was appointed Secretary of Legation to China, and immediately proceeded to his post. After about a year he resigned, to become Superintendent of the Chinese Custom House at one of the open ports. In 1863 he returned to Europe, with his constitution very much shattered by the climate. In 1866 he came to the United States, and, after a short visit to S. America, made N. Y. City his home until Jan., 1868, when he died of chronic dysentery.

1850.

CHARLES CHAUNCEY DILLINGHAM was born in West Chester, Pa., 22 July, 1831.

He read law with his father, William H. Dillingham, in Philadelphia, and received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of Pennsylvania in 1852. He was admitted to the Philadelphia bar, but did not engage in practice.

After making the tour of Europe, he made London his residence for six or seven years, and died there 25 Oct., 1867. He is buried in Kensal-Green Cemetery.

WILLIAM HENRY ORSBORN, born in Oxford, N. C., July, 1826, entered College first term Junior year from Dickinson College, Pa.

Immediately on leaving New Haven he went to Rapides Parish, near Alexandria, La., where he took a large sugar-cane and cotton plantation. He was also employed as a civil engineer and surveyor. He died of consumption in the latter part of the year 1865, aged 39.

1851.

DOUGLASS GRAY, son of James Gray, was born in Richmond, Va., Jan., 1831.

He was teaching and in business in Richmond, until the war, and was wounded in the leg in a battle near Richmond, in June, 1864, while a member of Salem F Artillery, and died in Richmond a few weeks later. He was unmarried.

1854.

WILLIAM STEPHEN MAPLES was born in Selma, Ala., 24 June, 1833. He died in Richmond, Va., in 1861. See Class Statistics, 1867, p. 59.

1855.

ANDREW JACKSON SPRING, born in Meadville, Miss., was killed in battle at Mobile, Ala., April 11, 1865, at the age of 33.

He taught school and studied law until the autumn of 1860, when he was admitted to the bar. He afterwards taught near Rodney, Miss., until April, 1862, and then enlisted in the 1st Confederate Miss. Artillery.

He was never married.

1856.

ROBERT CHOTARD DUNBAR was born in Natchez, Miss., 16 Sept., 1834.

He was a planter, near Natchez, till forced into the Confederate Army, as a private in a company of the Jeff Davis Division of Hampton's Legion. He was shot in the thigh at Brandy Station, Va., 1 Aug., 1863, and bled to death for the want of medical care.

EMMET ALEXANDER EAKIN was born in Bedford County, Tenn., 26 March, 1836, and died in Rutherford County, Tenn., 27 Dec., 1864. For further particulars see the Class Record, 1867, pp. 37-8.

ROLAND KINZER was born in Lancaster, Pa., 17 March, 1835, and died of inflammation of the liver, in the same place, 25 Sept., 1866, aged 31. For the facts of his life, see Class Record, 1867, p. 45.

1857.

HENRY LUSE FOULES, the son of Wm. B. Foules, of Kingston, Miss., was born in that place, 8 April, 1837.

He taught school for two years in Washington, and afterwards for one year in his native place. He then studied law.

He entered the Confederate service as Captain of Gen. Breckinridge's Escort, and afterwards held the same relation to Gen. Bates.

He died of typhoid fever in Atlanta, Ga., 16 June, 1864, at the age of 27.

He married Miss Mary E. Boyd, 20 Sept., 1859.

1859.

ROBERT SENEY MOORE died in Trenton, N. J., 17 Oct., 1866, aged 29. See Class Record of '58, N. Y., 1869, p. 100.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.1816.

ABRAHAM BLATCHLY, eighth and youngest child of Aaron and Prudence (Grave) Blatchly, was born in East Guilford (now Madison), Conn., 13 Oct., 1787.

He married, in 1816, Jemima R., daughter of Joseph Marvin, of Lyme, Conn. From April, 1823, to Nov., 1826, he was a missionary of the American Board in Honolulu.

After his return he was for a while settled in Brookfield, Conn., and then in his native village, where his wife died, 26 Oct., 1856. He afterwards removed to Illinois, where he died in 1860.* He was married a second time, in 1858, to a Mrs. Ware. He had three children, all of whom died unmarried.

1817.

MELINES CONKLIN LEAVENWORTH was born in Waterbury, Conn., 15 Jan., 1796, and died in New Orleans, 16 Nov., 1862.

For a biographical sketch see the Communications of the Conn. Medical Society for 1866, pp. 269-272.

1819.

HOLLIS MONROE died in Belfast, Me., 21 June, 1861.

1822.

CHARLES CHAUNCEY COOK is reported to have died in Youngstown, O., shortly after the battle of Chancellorsville (May, 1863).

GEORGE ALFRED GILBERT, from Tolland, Conn., settled in Richland, now Pulaski, N. Y., and removed about 1850 to the West. He died in Waukegan, Ill., 26 May, 1865, aged 65 years, 6 months, and 26 days.

1823.

SAMUEL WILLIAM BROWN, from Hartford, died in Petaluma, Cal., 30 Jan., 1862.

HOVEY EVERITT, a native of Sharon, Conn., resided as a physician in Chemung, N. Y., where he died in 1860, at the age of 60 years.

1825.

ANDREW CASTLE died in Woodbridge, Conn., of chronic gastritis, 26 Aug., 1861, aged 58.

SAMUEL CHESEBROUGH NOYES, from Montville, Conn., died in Utica, N. Y., in Dec., 1865.

JOHN GILKEY PIERCE, from Plainfield, Conn., settled in Westerly, R. I., and died there in Jan., 1862.

1826.

CHARLES GUSTAVUS GREEN, son of Dr. Isaac and Ann (Barrett) Green, was born in Windsor, Vt., 1 Sept., 1803, and died in Gordonsville, Va., 21 Dec., 1866.

He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1823. From 1826 to 1830 he practiced medicine in Boston; from 1830 to 1844 was in business in Windsor, Vt.; then returned to Boston and opened a drug store.

He married, 1 Nov., 1831, Susan, daughter of Hon. Abijah Bigelow, of Worcester, Mass.

CHARLES BARNEY MCCARTY died in Wallingford, Conn., of typhoid fever, 4 Nov., 1859, aged 55.

1827.

HORATIO THOMSON died in Belchertown, Mass., Oct. 5, 1860, at the age of 57. He was born in Tolland, Conn., Oct. 7, 1803, and was the son of Dr. Gurdon and Betsy S. Thomson.

He practiced as a physician for a year in his native town, and in Dec., 1828, removed to Belchertown, Mass., where he continued till his death.

He married, first, Nov. 15, 1827, Cordelia, daughter of Gen. Eliakim Chapman, of Tolland; she died in Belchertown, Febr. 13, 1834. He was again married, Dec. 4, 1834, to Lucy M., daughter of Hon. Mark Doolittle (Y. C. 1804). Two sons, by his first marriage, were his only surviving children.

His brother, Chas. S. Thomson, graduated in the Medical Class of 1822.

1828.

ELISHA HUTCHINSON, from Lebanon, Conn., died in 1862.

DANIEL PORTER, son of Daniel and Anna (Ingham) Porter, was born in Waterbury, Conn., May 20, 1805.

He commenced the practice of medicine in his native town, and for fifteen years was very successful. As early as 1843 he began to manifest symptoms of mental derangement, which resulted in confirmed insanity in 1845. The rest of his life was passed in the asylum at Brattleboro, Vt. He died April 25, 1863, aged 58.

1829.

JOEL EDWIN HAWLEY was born in Bethany, Conn., 14 Sept., 1802, and died in Ithaca, N. Y., 1 Aug., 1859. For a biographical notice, see Transactions of Med. Soc. of N. Y. State for 1860, p. 173.

1830.

JOHN [FOSDICK] FYLER, eldest son of John and Ruth (Dudley) Fyler, was born in North Guilford, Conn., 21 Apr., 1798.

He settled first in Concordia, La., and afterwards returned to Conn., and was for some years in Manchester, and then in Vernon. He finally went back to Louisiana, and afterwards moved up the Mississippi River, to a place near St. Louis, where he died in Dec., 1862. He married Mrs. Clarissa (Munsell), widow of Otis McClean, of Vernon, Conn. They had no children.

1831.

JUNIOUS LEAVENWORTH FIELD, son of Dr. Edward Field, was born in Waterbury, Conn., Febr. 1, 1808.

After practicing medicine for a short time in Wolcott and in Cheshire, Conn., Dr. Field removed in 1835 to Unadilla, Mich., where he pursued his profession until his death, Nov., 1867.

TITUS WILLIAM POWERS, from Albany, N. Y., died in 1863. He was originally a member of the Class of 1831, in the Academical Department.

1833.

NOAH BENNET BENEDICT, son of Col. Thos. B. Benedict, born in Woodbury, Conn., died in New Orleans, where he had practiced for 30 years, in 1863, a Surgeon in the Confederate home service.

SAMUEL LLOYD died in Westville, Conn., 2 Aug., 1861, aged 55.

RALPH SMITH was born on Long Island, and graduated at Williams College in 1830.

He studied theology at Princeton, 1833-35, and was ordained in June, 1836. He preached in Curtisville, Mass., and in Lee, Mass.; in Milton, Cornwall, Trumbull, Wolcottville, and New Canaan, Conn.; at Southold, L. I.; and died without charge, at Saugerties, N. Y., 2 Nov., 1867, aged 56.

1834.

FREDERIC WILLIAM SHEPARD was born in Plainfield, Conn., 18 March, 1812, and died in Essex, Conn., 2 May, 1860.

For a sketch of his life, see Communications of Connecticut Medical Society for 1861, pp. 123-4.

1837.

JOHN LANGDON SULLIVAN, third son of Gov. James and Hetty (Odiorne) Sullivan, died in Boston, Feb. 9, 1865, aged 88 years.

He received the honorary degree of Master of Arts from Harvard College in 1807.

At the time of receiving his medical degree he was a resident of New Haven, and interested in civil engineering.

He married in 1797, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Hon. Thomas Russell. His son, Rev. Thomas R. Sullivan, graduated at Harvard in 1817.

1838.

MOSES WILLIS OSBORN, son of Moses and Mary (Shaw) Osborn, of East Windsor, Conn., was born 12 Oct., 1809, and died in 1863.

1844.

WILLIAM STRICKLER McCORKLE died in May, 1864.

1845.

HIRAM HOLT LUMMIS died in Russellville, Ky., 18 June, 1860, aged about 38.

He was born in Windham Co. (Woodstock or Pomfret), Ct. He practiced medicine in Russellville, Ky., from 1847 to 1853, when, his health failing, he removed to Texas and remained until 1857. In 1858-59 he was a student in Yale College Analytical Laboratory.

1846.

JEREMIAH KING died in Williamantic, Conn., Feb. 16, 1863, aged 39 years. He was the son of Capt. Joseph King, of Lebanon, and studied medicine for three years in the office of Ashbel Woodward, M. D., of Franklin, Conn. He commenced practice in Norwich, but afterwards removed to Williamantic.

DEWITT CLINTON LATHROP was born in Franklin, Conn., 20 June, 1819, and died in New Berne, N. C., 13 April, 1862.

A biographical notice is contained in the Communications of the Conn. Medical Society for 1864, pp. 64-5.

FREDERIC WILLIAM PERRY, son of Rev. David L. (Williams College, 1798) and Anna (Strong) Perry, of Sharon, Conn., died in Mendham, N. J., of tetanus, occasioned by an injury of the foot, Feb. , 1862, aged 38.

He was in the practice of his profession, and had been Coroner in N. Y. City for three years, not long before his death. He left a widow and two children.

Two of his brothers graduated at this College: Rev. David C. Perry, Class of 1833, and Nathan S. Perry, Medical Class of 1839.

1847.

TIMOTHY PHELPS BEERS, son of Dr. Timothy P. Beers (Y. C. 1808), died in New Haven, Conn., 4 Aug., 1860, in his 35th year.

He was unmarried.

1848.

PHILANDER PHELPS HUMPHREY, son of Daniel G. and Eliza (Burr) Humphrey, was born in Torrington, Conn., about 1822.

After some practice of his profession in New England, he removed to St. Paul's, Minn., near which place he and all his family, except one son, were murdered by the Indians in the massacre of 1862.

1850.

DIXON SCIPIO HALL, of Preston, Conn., died in 1863.

1851.

DAVID SILLIMAN BURR died in Westport, Conn., of phthisis pulmonalis, 1 Feb., 1865, aged 36 years, 8 months, and 17 days.

1853.

RANSOM PERRY LYON, Surgeon of 28th Conn. Infantry, died at Port Hudson, La., 6 Aug., 1863, aged 36, of typhoid fever.

He was previously a practising physician in Bethel, Conn.

1859.

SAMUEL WHITE died suddenly in Springfield, Mass, in Jan., 1867.

1860.

LEWIS HENRY ALLING died at Hampton, Va., 27 Sept., 1864.

JOHN BENJAMIN WELCH died 13 Feb., 1862.

1862.

NATHANIEL WELLS FRENCH, Assistant Surgeon of 50th Mass. Infantry, died in Baton Rouge, La., 21 April, 1863.

1864.

WILLIAM HENRY HINE, son of Newton Hine, was born in Waterbury, Conn., 19 Oct., 1840.

He settled in East Bridgeport, Conn., in 1864, where he died of typhoid fever, 12 Nov., 1866.

LAW DEPARTMENT.1843.

HOMER DE GRASSE IVES, son of William and Polly Ives, was born in North Haven Conn., 3 Aug., 1814.

He settled in Eddyville, Iowa, in the practice of his profession and took a leading part in various schemes for the development of his adopted state. On his return from a trip to Missouri, undertaken to awaken interest in the construction of the Iowa Central R. R., he became suddenly ill, and died on board the steamboat Rob Roy at Keokuk, Iowa, 14 Oct., 1867.

He married in 1849, Mary W., daughter of Rev. Oliver Eastman, of Oberlin, O., by whom he had eight children. His widow and five children survived him.

1847.

AARON ELY STONE, son of Heman and Clarissa Stone, was born in North Madison, Conn., 12 Jan., 1824.

He practiced his profession in New London, Conn., until his death, which occurred without any warning, as he was walking in the streets of that city, 11 Aug., 1859. He married, in 1853, Caroline E., daughter of Joel Field, of North Madison. She is still living, with her two children.

1857.

ADDIN LEWIS BISHOP, elder son of Dr. Ebenezer H. (Y. C. 1826) and H. Maria (Lewis) Bishop, was born in New Haven, Conn., 21 Aug., 1834.

He graduated at Trinity College in 1855, and was admitted to the bar of New Haven County, 12 March, 1858. He settled in his native city, where he died unmarried, 21 July, 1863.

1858.

HENRY WILLIAM COIT, son of Rev. John C. Coit, (Y. C. 1818), died at his father's house, in Cheraw, S. C., in March, 1862, of camp fever contracted in the confederate army.

PHILOSOPHICAL DEPARTMENT.

1857.

DAVID BIGUM MARTIN, from Keokuk, Iowa, died in Chicago, Ill., 29 May, 1869. He had been an engineer, in the employ of a railroad in N. J.

1858.

EDWARD SACKETT, son of Homer and Flora (Skiff) Sackett, was born in Warren, Conn., 22 July, 1836, and died while in charge of a select school in Torrington, Conn., 9 March, 1861.

1863.

IGNACIO M. MEGIA, from Oaxaca, Mexico, is reported to have died by his own hand in 1865.

The average age at death of the 711 graduates of the Academical Department recorded in this series, is $56\frac{1}{2}$ years. The deaths of Academical graduates in the late war (about 75) were at the average age of $31\frac{1}{2}$ years; so that the average age of the remaining graduates at decease has been $59\frac{1}{2}$ years.

INDEX.

Members of the Law, Medical, and Philosophical Departments are denoted by the letters l, m, and p, respectively.

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1821	Abbe, Alanson m	149	1810	Barnes, Jonathan	62
1838	Abbey, David A.	209	1841	Barry, William T. S.	320
1819	Abell, James	272	1856	Bartholomew, Nelson	76
1825	Abernethy, Elisha	313	1807	Bartlett, John	191
1831	Adams, James H.	68	1821	Barton, David W. B.	170
1807	Joel	4	1808	Battell, Charles T.	265
1795	John	83	1805	Beach, Samuel B.	228
1821	John R.	202	1836	William	11
1814	Adrianse, Isaac	92	1858	Beale, Robert M.	214
1848	Aitchison, William	13	1805	Beardsley, Nehemiah B.	264
1836	Alexander, Asa G.	243	1828	Beebee, Levi S.	373
1862	Ira R.	146	1797	Beecher, Lyman	84
1861	Allen, Benjamin T. m	364	1849	Sheldon C.	175
1838	George	133	1842	Beeman, Frederick D.	39
1852	Myron O.	76	1847	Beers, Timothy P. m	381
1840	Alley, John B.	71	1803	Belden, William	23
1860	Alling, Lewis H. m	381	1822	Benedict, Henry	311
1859	Allis, Edmund B.	77	1833	Noah B. m	379
1821	Alsop, Charles R.	170	1838	Bennett, Hanford N. m	288
1852	Alvord, Edward J.	322	1811	Milo L.	266
1853	Anderson, Joshua	139	1865	Bent, Joseph A.	361
1817	Andrews, Ebenezer	125	1819	Billings, Noyes	163
1865	Anthony, Charles D.	217	1828	Binney, Horace	350
1840	Argyras, Basilius	246	1839	Bird, Lorenzo D.	375
1860	Arnold, George W.	110	1825	Birge, Chester	34
1825	Atwater, Jason	10	1857	Bishop, A. Lewis l	382
1826	Moses	373	1819	Elijah	345
1814	Atwood, Anson S.	232	1833	Noah	352
1807	Austin, John M.	370	1853	Blachly, Joseph W.	14
1810	Avery, Edward	192	1854	Blackman, Samuel C.	177
1857	Orrin F.	358	1858	Blake, Edward F.	108
			1862	James P.	216
1836	Backus, Franklin T.	354	1837	Blakeman, Phineas	354
1831	Bacon, David F.	172	1826	Blanchard, Amos	348
1813	Badger, George E.	196	1816	Blatchly, Abraham m	377
1805	Samuel	191	1863	Bloom, Harvey H.	147
1851	Baer, Charles A.	149	1793	Boardman, David S.	158
1807	Baldwin, Abraham D.	60	1860	Boes, Charles A.	110
1811	Roger S.	88	1827	Bonesteel, Virgil D.	373
1827	Theron	349	1792	Botsford, William	118
1802	Truman	190	1819	Boutelle, Thomas R. m	328
1833	Ballard, Josiah	131	1859	Bowe, Daniel	108
1861	Bannan, John N.	146	1832	Bowers, John	95
1856	Barker, George P.	283	1816	Josiah m	328
1808	Barlow, Milton	299	1804	Brace, Joab	23

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1801	Brace, Thomas K.	3	1804	Clark, Gerardus	24
1822	Bradley, Jonathan D.	94	1861	William B.	180
1810	Brainard, Dyar T.	88	1817	William L.	371
1843	Brandeggee, John J.	135	1843	William T.	150
1831	Breed, William J.	315	1850	Clarke, Alpheus B.	363
1813	Bristol, Moses	341	1797	Asahel	189
1853	Brooks, Charles	213	1809	Charles E.	123
1839	Daniel	70	1815	Edwards	268
1826	Brown, Henry C.	287	1830	Robert	10
1820	Mason	237	1838	Coburn, John B.	210
1850	Samuel Watson	249	1837	Coe, Frederick A.	355
1823	Samuel Wm.	378	1838	Samuel G.	355
1860	Thaddeus H.	324	1829	Cogswell, Mason F.	171
1793	Brush, Perlee	20	1822	Coit, Benj. B.	238
1840	Bruyn, Johannes	375	1864	Daniel L.	182
1851	Budlong, James	176	1828	Gurdon S.	351
1818	Buford, Charles	371	1858	Henry W.	382
1856	Bulkeley, Charles E.	142	1818	John C.	126
1817	Bulkley, Chauncey	31		John T.	100
1863	James E.	181	1816	Coley, John H.	201
1865	Tuzar	286	1834	Collins, John D.	374
1816	Bull, Edward	305	1826	Josiah	129
1811	Burchard, Ely	193	1802	Levi	21
1803	Burleigh, Rinaldo	85	1806	Colton, Simeon	296
1851	Burr, David S.	381	1807	Comstock, Eleutheros D.	370
1844	Burroughs, William	13	1845	Conner, William G.	173
1816	Butler, Charles F.	235	1822	Cook Charles C.	378
1857	Francis E.	106	1792	Cooley, Timothy M.	1
			1863	Cooper, Samuel E.	182
1814	Calhoun, William B.	198	1838	Corbyn, Almon D.	133
1822	Camp, Albert B.	205	1842	Cornwell, Francis E.	356
1860	Henry W.	179	1814	Couper, James H.	233
1825	Candee, Joel G.	363	1849	Hamilton	74
1818	Canfield, Orlando	32	1805	Cowles, Leonard	120
1806	Carleton, Henry	86	1828	Orson	36
1825	Carpenter, Eber	275	1826	Crane, Eliezer	34
1860	Carrier, Oscar M.	215	1838	James B.	318
1859	Carrington, Edward	179	1813	John	6
1836	Carter, Josiah M.	279	1864	T. Farrar	251
1833	Carver, Robert	96	1852	Creighton, Hamilton	323
1828	Case, Joel T.	277	1818	Crooks, James W.	308
1847	Seth E.	138	1862	Croswell, William F.	183
1825	Castle, Andrew	378
1845	Casto, William T.	100	1807	Daggett, Leonard A.	229
1822	Catlin, Charles T.	347	1859	Daniel, Peter V.	144
1809	Chaffee, Hezekiah B.	164	1803	Darling, William S.	59
1810	Samuel G.	164	1802	Davenport, John A.	161
1860	Champion, Henry	250	1813	Davies, Thomas F.	165
1849	Chandler, William G.	101	1861	Davis, Frederick S.	111
1807	Channing, Henry W.	191	1836	Samuel R.	278
1819	Chapin, Edward	273	1824	Day, Edgar B.	128
1814	Henry D.	91	1795	Jeremiah	261
1811	Moses	194	1836	Dayton, Ralph	317
1799	Chapman, Ezekiel J.	262	1826	DeCharms, Richard	129
1806	Chauncey, Nathaniel	162	1847	De Forest, Othniel	174
1813	Chester, Stephen M.	63	1817	De Lancey, William H.	168
1857	Church, Frederick N.	15	1827	Delavan, George E.	35
1847	Clack, Franklin H.	150	1811	Deming, William	165
1822	Clapp, Sumner G.	312	1827	Denison, Ebenezer	350
1814	Theodore	199	1853	Denniston, William S.	103

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1813	Dering, Nicoll H.	266	1816	Foote, William H.	342
1813	Devereux, Thomas P.	303	1857	Foules, Henry L.	377
1806	Devotion, Samuel H.	59	1826	Francis, James H.	373
1787	Dewey, Joshua	117	1862	French, Nathaniel W.	m 381
1823	Dickinson, Edward	253	1822	Frisbie, James W.	65
1827	John	35	1820	Frost, Edward	311
1805	Rodolphus	369	1857	Fuller, Edward T.	15
1843	Dill, James H.	99	1848	Frederick C.	375
1850	Dillingham, Charles C	376	1830	Fyler, John	m 379
1810	Dimmick, Alpheus	164
1807	Dixon, David R.	60	1827	Gallup, Joseph H.	35
1822	Simeon F.	273	1862	Gandy, William W.	284
1833	Doane, Hiram	172	1809	Gibbs, Josiah W.	28
1826	Dodge, David S.	m 330	1822	Gilbert, George A.	m 378
1852	Donaghe, William R.	211	1847	Gilman, William H.	40
1854	Donelson, John S.	177	1814	Goddard, Charles B.	124
1862	Downes, William	l 364	1828	Levi H.	67
1857	Drake, Albert W.	77	1812	Goodrich, Charles A.	62
1829	Drury, Asa	351	1837	Chauncey	280
1818	Duke, James K.	372	1810	Chauncey A.	5
1856	Dunbar, Robert C.	377	1853	James R.	14
1812	Dunlap, Thomas	124	1834	Gordon, Alex. B.	374
1818	Dutton, Henry	308	1827	Gould, George	314
1857	Henry M.	105	1811	William R.	232
1833	Samuel W. S.	208	1821	Goulding, John	8
1837	Thomas R.	209	1811	Granger, Francis	300
1854	Duvillard, John A.	p 183	1843	Gideon	321
1814	Dwight, Theodore	234	1851	Gray, Douglass	376
1813	William T.	197	1831	Ninian E.	10
1826	William W.	66	1815	Thomas	30
			1826	Green, Charles G.	m 378
1856	Eakin, Emmet A.	377	1821	Greene, David	203
1859	Easton, Charles	109	1826	Edward W.	m 329
1819	Eaton, William P.	m 252	1815	Gridley, Horatio	166
1832	Ebbetts, John J. A.	69	1797	Griffin, George	2
1825	Edwards, Hosea	m 182	1810	Grimball, Paul C.	370
1806	Joseph	162	1810	Grimke, Frederick	88
1850	Samuel H.	75	1816	Griswold, George W.	235
1813	Eggleston, Ambrose	166	1857	John	106
1858	Elliot, Gustavus R.	l 364	1851	Joseph P.	14
1834	Ellsworth, Henry W.	172	1826	Grosvenor, David A.	240
1825	Joseph	34	1853	Grout, Alfred	282
1810	William W.	265	1852	Grube, Franklin	323
1804	Ely, Ezra S.	24
1811	Emerson, Ralph	89	1847	Hadley, Henry H.	174
1823	Everitt, Hovey	m 378	1862	Hale, E. Thomas	326
1848	Ewing, Samuel A	375	1850	Hall, Dixon S.	m 381
			1803	George W.	263
1825	Fay, Charles M.	m 328	1860	Henry L.	360
1804	Felder, John M.	25	1817	Jonathan P.	92
1813	Fenn, Benj.	304	1837	Samuel B.	244
1867	Ferry, Lyman S.	p 365	1824	Willis	274
1802	Field, David D.	225	1850	Hand, Chauncey M.	211
1841	David I.	12	1808	Hanford, William	27
1831	Junius L.	m 379	1859	Hannahs, Diodate C.	109
1829	Fields, Edward	m 254	1857	Harmar, Josiah W.	282
1809	Fish, Howland	164	1848	Harper, John R.	376
1826	Fisk, Charles B.	373	1851	Hart, Byron	176
1844	Robert F.	137	1817	William B.	371
1811	Flagg, Henry C.	90	1815	Hatch, Roger C.	304

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1851	Hawes, Erskine J.	14	1846	Jackson, Jefferson F.	73
1813	Hawley, Charles	198	1815	Jessup, William	305
1817	Isaac A.	271	1824	Jesup, Ebenezer	372
1837	James A.	317	1858	Johnson, Charles N.	284
1829	Joel E. m	379	1813	James D.	29
1842	Roswell m	288	1835	Johnston, Frank	132
1833	Zerah K.	353		William C.	111
1823	Hayes, Samuel	205	1823	Jones, George	347
1820	Hayward, Elisha m	287	1817	Joel	7
1834	Hazen, James A.	97	1800	Samuel	160
1818	Reuben S.	126	1796	William H.	55
1860	Hebard, Daniel	111	1831	Judson, David P.	316
1806	Hennen, Alfred	338	1824	Frederick J.	66
1838	Herrick, Edward C. hon.	51	1834	William	317
1808	Hewitt, Nathaniel	229
1809	Heyliger, Alfred	88	1802	Keep, John	337
1815	Heywood, Benj. F. m	363	1864	Kehler, William W. l	331
1836	Higbie, Daniel	279	1518	Kellogg, Alfred	345
1835	Hill, Joshua	173	1800	Giles C.	21
1864	Hine, William H. m	381	1805	Kelsey, Aaron H.	86
1804	Hinman, Royal R.	293	1816	Kent, Aratus	343
1832	Hoagland, Christopher C. m	330	1833	Kerr, Samuel C.	37
1859	Holley, John C.	214	1838	Key, Thomas M.	319
1795	Nathaniel	54	1804	Kibbe, Walter R.	120
1866	Holmes, Henry P.	252	1812	Kimberly, Dennis	91
1815	Isaac E.	269	1852	King, Henry L. P.	103
1820	Hooker, Charles	92	1846	Jeremiah m	380
1815	Horace	166	1823	Kingsland, Thorn S.	33
1854	John W.	103	1856	Kinzer, Roland	377
1815	Josiah	365	1849	Kirby, Jacob B.	13
1825	Worthington	275	1840	Knapp, Jared O.	11
1854	Hosmer, Henry	213	1808	Knight, Jonathan	163
1802	Hough, John	57	1847	Kutz, Henry C.	73
1862	House, William W.	147
1865	Howarth, Wilbur G. l	364	1856	Lamson, William	213
1860	Howe, Theodore L. B.	144	1829	Lanneau, John F.	277
1847	William H.	375	1839	Larned, Joseph G. E.	356
1814	Hoyt, John B.	63	1826	William A.	66
1840	Joseph G.	98	1846	Lathrop, Dewitt C. m	380
1843	Hubbard, Joseph S.	136	1843	Frederick M.	72
1822	Thomas G.	127	1819	John H.	236
1820	William J.	169	1811	Solomon	370
1827	Hudson, William W.	10	1818	Latimer, Pickett	372
1842	Huggins, William S.	72	1847	Latta, James T.	248
1863	Humiston, Cyrus E. m	183	1803	Law, Jonathan	4
1805	Humphrey, Heman	25	1837	Learned, Robert C.	244
1848	Philander P. m	381	1817	Leavenworth, Melines C. m	378
1852	William F.	176	1802	Leavitt, Sheldon C.	22
1794	Huntington, Dan	158	1809	Lee, Jonathan	230
1823	Elisha m	217	1854	Luther M.	324
1843	John M.	173	1850	Nathan A.	102
1823	Husted, Hiram W.	312	1848	Leffingwell, Benajah	248
1831	Huston, Seth C.	315	1843	Lent, John A.	99
1828	Hutchinson, Elisha m	379	1833	Lewis, Asahel H.	96
			1828	John N.	68
1866	Ingersoll, D. Wesley	327	1843	Linsley, Timothy	173
1799	Ives, Eli	56	1833	Lloyd, Samuel m	379
1843	Homer D.	381	1806	Lockwood, James	162
1825	N. Beers	313	1828	Long, Edward H. C.	206
			1814	Lord, Daniel	267

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1821	Lord, Frederick W.	8	1834	Murdoch, John	37
1845	Lummis, Hiram H.	m 380	1824	Murray, Hamilton	239
1817	Lyman, Wyllys	92	1849	Washington	281
1855	Lyon, Alex. M.	358	1852	Mygatt, George S.	212
1853	Ransom P.	m 381
1826	McCarty, Charles B.	m 378	1843	Nelson, Robert W.	137
1838	McChain, James	319	1842	William R.	135
1844	McCorkle, William S.	m 380	1810	Newell, Lot	124
1857	McCoy, Henry P.	42	1818	Newton, Joel W.	202
1865	McCreary, Henry C.	361	1812	Nichols, Charles	165
1825	McDowell, John B.	314	1854	George F.	139
1804	McEwen, Abel	25	1824	John C.	274
1855	McHose, James	76	1825	Joseph H.	94
1856	McIntire, Henry M.	104	1826	Norcross, William O.	171
1848	McKenty, Jacob K.	211	1843	North, Hubert F.	137
1829	McLane, James W.	130	1863	William B.	m 218
1805	McLean, Allen	26	1818	Nott, Richard T.	367
1869	McNaughton, Charles D.	362	1847	Noyes, Daniel T.	100
1863	Macomber, Edwin	148	1825	Samuel C.	m 378
1808	Mallery, Garrick	192
1822	Maltby, John	9	1814	Ogden, David L.	125
1821	William J.	42	1858	Deweese	143
1850	Manross, Newton S.	101	1860	Frederick C.	145
1854	Maples, William S.	377	1805	Olcott, George	121
1804	Marsh, John	294	1816	Olmstead, Hawley	306
1857	Martin, David B.	p 382	1809	Olmsted, Charles G.	231
1860	William W.	215	1850	Orsborn, William H.	376
1813	Mather, Hiram F.	267	1824	Orton, Milton P.	372
1857	Matson, Lewis E.	283	1838	Osborn, Moses W.	m 380
1797	Maxwell, Sylvester	3	1817	Osborne, Thomas B.	344
1826	May, William	373	1837	Owen, Allen F.	374
1829	Maynard, Elias F.	m 330
1807	Mead, Darius	122	1848	Packard, Frederick	73
1802	Mark	162	1864	Paine, Horace D.	252
1863	Megia, Ignacio M.	p 382	1815	Painter, Alexis	269
1809	Meigs, Benj. C.	61	1816	Pardee, Jared W.	236
1799	Henry	20	1864	Parke, Julius L.	286
1863	Merchant, Henry S.	251	1847	Parker, Edward G.	281
1828	Merwin, Miles T.	206	1809	Parkin, John S. W.	231
1847	Miller, Benj. S.	13	1816	Parsons, Francis	31
1819	Horatio	8	1811	Isaac	301
1841	Mills, Edward	99	1860	John R.	325
1811	Mitchell, David M.	339	1852	John S.	102
1821	John	345	1837	Lemuel S.	132
1803	Minott	59	1847	Paxton, Elisha F.	375
1823	Walter	348	1856	Peck, Frank H.	178
1818	William	271	1852	Peet, Dudley	75
1819	Monroe, Hollis	m 378	1802	Perit, Pelatiah	119
1845	James	375	1825	Perkins, Benj.	276
1815	Monson, Alfred S.	342	1812	Nathaniel S.	341
1811	Levinus	6	1816	Perot, Charles	344
1852	Moody, John S.	m 330	1811	Edward	371
1859	Moore, Robert S.	377	1846	Perry, Frederick W.	m 380
1818	Sheldon	201	1825	Phelps, Guy R.	m 329
1855	Morris, William L.	15	1825	Pierce, John G.	m 378
1812	Morse, Richard C.	302	1804	Pierpont, John	227
1857	Morton, Joseph L.	214	1808	Pierson, William S.	4
1842	Mulford, Samuel B.	134	1822	Pillsbury, Ithamar	65
1814	William J. R.	371	1823	Pinney, Norman	94
			1806	Pitkin, Caleb	122

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1837	Plimpton, Silas F.	280	1799	Scarborough, Godfrey	369
1828	Plummer, John T. m	217	1860	Schneider, James H.	145
1829	Pomeroy, Jerome B. m	253	1802	Scranton, Erastus	58
1808	Theodore	4	1814	Seeley, Ebenezer	199
1830	Pond, Charles F.	242	1860	Seely, John F.	215
1802	Charles H.	22	1818	Selden, Richard E.	272
1815	Pope, John	200	1826	Seymour, David L.	276
1828	Porter, Daniel m	379	1825	Isaac G.	95
1857	Edward L.	107	1815	Shailer, Israel	371
1821	Henry B.	203	1856	Shaw, Dovald D.	15
1842	John A.	246	1861	Shearer, Sextus	326
1803	Noah	226	1859	Sheffield, Edward C.	43
1841	William H.	71	1859	Sheldon, Henry K.	250
1825	William S.	205	1820	Shelton, George A.	127
1814	Potter, James	64	1802	Nathan	161
1854	Potts, William S.	324	1834	Shepard, Frederick W. m	380
1831	Powers, Titus W. m	379	1842	Sherman, David G.	321
1820	Prather, James S.	8	1833	James T.	70
1864	Pratt, Howard E.	182	1862	Shiverick, Andrew F.	112
1861	James P.	145	1824	Shoemaker, Charles D.	373
1832	Prentice, Charles T.	131	1838	Sill, George W.	245
1832	Pritchard, David m	331	1796	Silliman, Benj.	159
1814	Punderson, Samuel	341	1796	Gold S.	262
1826	Putnam, Charles M.	348	1808	William	61
1825	Pynchon, Edward E.	279	1862	Skinner, Richard	147
			1825	Slidell, Thomas	128
1854	Rains, James E.	140	1839	Smith, Benj. F. m	217
1821	Ramey, Sanford J.	273	1795	David	54
1842	Randall, James M.	72	1857	James J.	108
1845	Rankin, Robert	12	1819	James M.	372
1845	Redfield, James	174	1833	Joshua	209
1843	Reid, Horace H.	12	1839	L. Ward	134
1869	Reilly, John B. l	365	1833	Ralph m	379
1830	Rhett, Edmund S.	374	1797	Richard	369
1854	Rice, James C.	139	1842	Russell	246
1838	Rich, Charles	98	1826	Thomas L.	373
1818	Robbins, George S.	202	1816	Thomas M.	167
1796	Levi	189	1805	William M.	121
1821	Loren G.	204	1866	Smyth, Richard E.	327
1806	Royal	27	1863	Walter H.	148
1846	Samuel	322	1832	Spalding, Asa L. m	149
1857	Roberts, George W.	107	1824	Spayd, Joseph H.	373
1859	William J.	359	1851	Spencer, James M.	75
1833	Robins, John P.	242	1855	Spring, Andrew J.	377
1856	Robinson, George C.	142	1859	Stanton, Alex. H.	360
1843	Lucius F.	39	1808	Staples, Job	61
1817	Samuel	201	1797	Seth P.	55
1822	Rockwell, John A.	33	1814	Stark, James L.	268
1829	Rogers, Charles W.	36	1820	Starkey, Stephen W.	169
1815	John S.	65	1825	Starkweather, John	206
1807	Root, Samuel	264	1846	Starr, Frederick	247
1862	Rowe, Charles H.	285	1849	Nathan S.	42
1823	Rowland, Henry A.	9	1816	Stebbins, Samuel S.	31
1806	Rudd, Hezekiah	298	1862	Sterling, Francis N.	112
1793	Russell, Joseph	20	1807	Stevens, Alex. H.	298
1820	Rutledge, Francis H.	238	1811	Byam K.	340
			1851	Frederic M.	357
1858	Sackett, Edward p	382	1861	Stocking, Gilbert M.	180
1818	Salter, John W.	309	1790	Stoddard, Solomon	19
1829	Sanford, David	242	1847	Stone, Aaron E. l	382

Class.		Page.	Class.		Page.
1814	Storrs, William L.	29	1788	Waldo, Daniel	157
1801	Zalmon	225	1801	Wales, John	119
1812	Street, Augustus R.	195	1859	Walker, Augustus	248
1809	Strong, Elisha B.	300	1856	Edward A.	213
1792	Ephraim	2	1838	Joseph K.	133
1831	Newton D.	278	1835	Walsh, Hugh	38
1812	Theodore	303	1849	Ward, William W.	376
1800	Thomas B.	85	1835	Warner, Edward	243
1802	William L.	3	1826	Wylls	348
1815	Woodbridge	30	1841	Washington, John N.	320
1855	Stuart, George	104	1834	William H.	38
1828	Isaac W.	68	1806	Waterman, Thomas G.	59
1831	James C.	352	1848	Watrous, John R.	74
1848	Sturges, Charles D.	322	1860	Way, Francis R.	325
1847	John R.	375	1863	Webster, Charles	216
1837	Sullivan, J. Langdon m	380	1830	Weed, William B.	37
1858	Sweetser, Henry E.	359	1860	Welch, John B. m	381
1805	Swift, Earl	296	1813	Jonathan A.	7
1804	Henry	295	1854	Weld, Lewis L.	177
1849	Swope, William C.	376	1806	Welles, Martin	87
1821	Taintor, Edwin B.	346	1829	Wells, Nathaniel	207
1821	John A.	93	1806	Welton, Willard	228
1810	Talcott, Hervey	193	1804	Wetmore, Charles H.	295
1838	Thomas G.	356	1852	Weyman, George W. p	150
1811	Tallmadge, Frederick A.	340	1814	Wheaton, Nathaniel S.	64
1807	Taylor, Charles W.	229	1859	Wheeler, Charles M.	110
1828	Fitch W.	207	1855	William	141
1831	Terry, Adrian R. m	182	1825	White, Chester	314
1812	Alfred	32	1859	Samuel m	381
1862	Thayer, Henry W.	285	1833	Whiting, Alex. B.	278
1811	Thomas John	232	1866	Whitney, Henry O.	362
1831	Thompson, Alex. B.	11	1858	Whittlesey, Charles B.	143
1810	Thomson, Asahel	193	1816	Luman	307
1827	Horatio m	378	1817	Thomas T.	307
1816	Thurston, Asa	270	1816	William A.	236
1833	Tilton, David	316	1821	Wilcox, Phineas B.	93
1831	Totten, John A.	69	1856	Timothy K.	105
1850	Tracy, Philemon	102	1855	Willets, Andrew J.	358
1801	Trumbull, Joseph	57	1798	Williams, Joseph	190
1796	Tucker, John H.	293	1816	Oliver E.	344
1835	Turner, Alvan H. m	254	1794	Thomas S.	53
1823	William	239	1838	Thomas W.	70
1856	William E.	283	1816	William	7
1830	Tuttle, John T. m	363	1821	Williamson, Lewis P.	204
1808	Timothy	123	1827	Willis, Nathaniel P.	240
1858	Twining, Theodore W.	178	1844	Wilson, Archelaus	73
1848	Tyler, Edwin	281	1847	Wing, Matthew G.	40
			1825	Winslow, Hubbard	170
1806	Ufford, Hezekiah G.	87	1831	Winthrop, Edward	207
1849	Upson, Andrew	139	1848	Theodore	41
			1809	William H.	370
1811	Vaill, Joseph	301	1849	Wodell, Silas	42
1806	William F.	163	1812	Woodhull, Caleb S.	196
1828	Van Buren, John	241	1797	Woodruff, Ephraim	369
1826	Vanderberg, Federal m	287	1856	Woods, Samuel F.	143
1820	Van Matre, Daniel	32	1813	Woolsey, John M.	341
1827	Van Rensselaer, Cortlandt	35	1811	Worcester, Joseph E.	194
1859	Vose, George F.	250	1861	Worman, George	181
			1804	Wright, Joseph	162
1809	Waite, Henry M.	339	1864	Wurts, Albert S.	286
1842	Wakefield, Leander E.	210	1831	Wynkoop, Augustus	69
1826	Walbridge, Ames m	363

LD
6324
A3
1860-70

Yale University
Obituary record

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY
